THE SOUTH AMERICAN WAR NOW RAGES

Colombia, the Weaker Unable to Repel the Advances of the Insurgents.

UNITED STATES WARSHIPS NOW MOBOLIZING

Policy of the United States May Lead to Serious Trouble Other Nations Likely to Take a Hand.

Kingston, Ja., Aug. 23.—The British steamer Rosneath arrived here to-day from Central American ports and brough advices from Colon of continued and persistent attacks by the rebels on the outskirts of Colon and Panama. The repeated efforts on the part of the Government to repulse the rebels have failed, and the belief is gaining ground that the Colombian Government is weakening.

When the Rosneath left Colon, Aug. 15, the French cruiser Suchet was there, and the arrival of British and American war vessels was anxiously awaited Business generally was crippled.

GREAT ARRAY OF POWER.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The sailing of our warships to the neighborhood of the isthmus is thus far entirely a matter of precaution.

The presence in the adjacent waters of a number of foreign ships, especially those of Great Britain, Germany an dFrance, taken with the information that a number of other large vessels belonging to these Powers are on the way there, affords ample grounds for the action taken by the United States. There are forgign ships on the Pacific side as well as the Atlantic, and before the incident has passed there will be a magnificent array of sea power, representing the four great nations on both sides of the isthmus. As the matter now stands the United States will not land any forces on the soil of Colomba unless one or both of two things shall occur: If the Colombian Government should notify the United States that it was unable to quell the disturbance our marines will be landed; should the American consul at either of the ports on the isthmus ask for protection and represent that the situation was such as threatened to gain headway beyond the ability of the Colombian Government to exercise control, prompt military action may be expected.

WHAT IS SAID AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, Aug. 23.—It was announced at the Navy Department to-day that the North Atlantic squadron would sail from Newport about the 25th instant for Hampton Roads. When inquiry was made as to whether that had any connection with the troubles in South America, an authoritive answer was given that it had no relation whatever to affairs in that quarter. It was explained that the manoeuvres of the squadron in New England waters had come to a close and that Hampton Road afforded better facilities for the evolutions in contemplation. The effect of the movement, however, will be to place the vessels of this squadron about a day and a half sail nearer to the scene of Southern difficulties than they would be if they remained on the New England coast, and also in good location for coaling and equipping for sea if any necessity should arise for despatching any of these ships.

A GERMAN VIEW.

Berlin, Aug. 23.—The Vossische Zeitung to-day, discussing the attitude of certain American newspapers regarding European vessels goin to the Caribbean Sea, points out that a large United States naval force has been sent there, and raises the question whether the "American Imperialists" view the present situation as offering a welcome occasion for extending the sphere and power of the United States, or whether it is an honest attempt to restore peace. The paper continues:

"If the Americans intend nothing more than to protect the reasonable interests of citizens of the United States, then they should rejoice at the presence of European vessels having the same object in view. Even the co-operation of various Powers would be possible. But the very fact that the United States Minister at Caracas undertook the business of the congeed Colombian Minister was calculated to arouse distrust of the intentions of the Washington Government, which, thereby, got control of events at one of the most important points."

Referring to the report circulated ni Washington that the trouble is likely to spread to Nicaragua and Ecuador, the Vossische Zeitung says:

"It does not look as if the United States was trying to quench the flames but, on the contrary, as if that country was trying to spread them as much as possible, in order, in any case to have a pretext for military intervention."

REBELS LOOT CHINESE STORES.

Colon, Colombia, via Galveston Tex. Aug. 23.—A force of rebels appeared at Emperador Saturday night. The station happened to be without a garrison at the time, and the rebels looted the Chinese stores. They are avoiding the garrisoned stations.

ARRESTS IN CARACAS.

Willemstad, Curacoa, Aug. 23.—Senor Vellegas Puldo, formerly president of the Venezuelan state of Guarico, and lately President Castro's Minister of Commerce, has been arrested in Caracas with thirty-five other politicians.

IS GIBRALTER IN GRAVE DANGER

It Is Said That the Great Fortress is now Assailable.

SPAIN MAY HOLD THE POSITION

London, August 23.—The real value of Gibraltar in the past has been its unassailability as a port of naval refuge. There was room in the deep, broad harbor for a monster fleet to assemble, there to lie as long as necessary under the protection of the fortifications. No enemy could approach such a fleet, for the guns high up on the rocks could be trained down with deadly aim, and he could not reply. The change in the situation is, of course, due to Spain, which has ever felt the presence of the English as a thorn in her flesh and a humiliation to her national pride. She has been planting modern batteries where they could shoot into the harbor at Gibraltar for more than ten years. In 1895 they were a menace to Gibraltar's supremacy, and five years later it was pointed out in England that new fortifications then building, were exposed to fire from Spanish works. Northward from the site of Gibraltar's naval docks lies the "Queen of Spain's Chair," on a high ridge of rocky hills. The guns here with the modern range, might sweep the docks and vessels that had the temerity to anchor nearby. From the Queen's Chair," through the third of a circle, runs a line of hills past the town of Algeciras to Punta Carnero, a distance of thirteen miles. Algeciras Heights are little, if any, less formidable than Gibraltar itself. Along nearly all of this third of a circle are points from which Spanish cannon could pour a converging fire not only upon Gibraltar itself, but against the ships in the harbor. The range would be nowhere greater than 10,000 yards, and frequently as little as [illegible] yards.

NIGHT ATTACKS ON BLOCKHOUSES

The Value of the Searchlight In War Again Demonstrated.

BOERS ASK FOR INTERVENTION

Cape Town, Aug. 22.—The blockhouses near Nanuwpoort on the border of Cape Colony have recently received their baptisms of fire. The first night attack was ably repulsed by the British troops, who believed excellently. Subsequently a commando under Lotteer made a bold attack five miles north of Nanuwpoort. Armored trains eventually arrived on the scene with Maxim guns and searchlights and reinforcements of infantry. The rays of the powerful electrical machines were turned on the hills and a shower of projectiles poured in among the sheltering boulders. The Boers retired.

A BOER PETITION.

Paris, Aug. 22.—A Journal despatch from the Hague says that the Netherlands Government has refused to transmit to the powers the protest of the Boer chiefs against Kitchener's proclamation. The leaders now propose to make a pro-Boer manifestation on the occasion of the Czar's visit to France, and also to prepare a vast petition from Europe and the United States, pleading for intervention. This petition will be presented to the Czar and President Loubet.

DENIED CITIZENSHIP.

Ottawa Aug. 22.—As the result of the early sessions of the second-class treason trail court, now in progress here, fifty-one voters have been disfranchised and fifty-five non-voters have been denied the right of ever becoming citizens.

YANKEE GIRLS DANCE BADLY

THEIR BODIES SWAY ABSURDLY

London, Aug. 22.—America looms large in the coronation prospectuses issued to-day by the dancing masters. London women and men hailing from Yankeeland are invited to come early and avoid the rush. They are told that next season the British capital will surrender itself to the delights of dancing, and that Americans can satisfactorily participate in the festivities only by learning in advance how to manoeuvre in a ballroom according to the accepted English fashion.

Many new movements specially created for the coronation are announced, and masters claim that Americans will be given opportunity to study them nowhere except in Cockney academies.

Mr. Walter Humphrey, head of a London academy of dancies and editor of the Dancing Times, says: "Englishmen cannot admire the art of the ballroom as thught in the United States. It violates every principle of graceful motion. American ladies are especially ridiculous when they try to dance. Their vertical demonstrations are exaggerated, not to say grotesque. Their bodies sway absurdly and they attempt to lead rather than follow their male companions.

"American ladies never dance acceptable in smart circles in London without first getting instruction at the hands of capable teachers. Englishmen find it quite impossible to follow their vigorous and complicated gyrations. English ladies permit their gentlemen partners to lead absolutely. They understand that proficiency in the art of dancing, from their point of view, consists in accommodating their movements perfectly to those of their companions.

"They preserve an easy rigidity of body and glide through the figures instead of leading and hopping excitedly. English ladies are able to dance with American gentlemen far better than English gentlemen with American ladies."

Mr Humphrey asserts that the dancing acedemies of London always have a large number of Americans getting rid of the terpsichorean vulgarisms picked up in the United States and taking on the graces of the art as understood and practised in English society.

BREAKERS OF LAWS

Two Lads Fined for Insulting Pedestrians

Mr. J. Stevenson, J. P., in police court yesterday, imposed $1 and costs upon two lads for disorderly conduct. They belong to a gang who congregate in the evenings on the bridge crossing Whyte's pond. Sitting on the railing on opposite sides of the sidewalk, they make it decidedly unpleasant for those who have to run the gauntlet of a cross fire of personal remarks. It is hoped the lesson will put a stop to the nuisance.

The Lindsay Post says: Annie Young, a Peterborough girl, has been around town for some days consorting with men, and Chief Nevison secured a warrant charging her with being a vagrant, and handed it to Night Constable Reeves. When arraigned she pleaded not guilty and was remanded till Friday for the production of evidence.

County Magistrate Deacon, of Lindsay, was summoned to Omemee Tuesday to hear a couple of cases. Percy Pierson, of the village, was charged by Game Warden Smith, of Belleville, with having shot wild ducks out of season. At the same court the case of Arthur McElvain charged with non-support o this family, was adjourned until the 28th, inst.

THE FLOSSIE JUST MISSED ICEBERG

Another Steamer Narrowly Escapes Fate of Islander.

WAS NO DEVIATION WHATEVER

Victoria, Aug. 22.—Mato Neroutesos, of the ill-fated Islander has filed with the local agent of Dominion Marine and Fisheries Department a report of the disaster, upon which inquiry will be held. The report is partially a request for an inquiry, and contains no new details beyond giving the exact spot where the ship went down, and the estimates of the loss of life and the number saved. He estimates that the number lost was forty-two, and the number saved was 143. The exact spot of the wreck is given as Point Hide, six and a quarter miles W.X.S., three-quarters S. Magnetic. Some interest has been manifested in hte course which was followed on the fatal morning, and in his contention it is worthy of note the boat followed the identical course upon which she sailed on the previous trip.

A comparison instituted with the log of Capt. Foote on the prior trip shows that there was no deviation whatever. The quartermaster a moment before the collision had put his wheel over one point, as on scanning the chart in front he saw that such a step would bring his ship into more of a mid-channel track than by following that upon which he was then sailing, whereby he would have borne in closer to the cape, had Islander held on her way for three minutes longer, who would probably have cleared the obstacle which sent her forty fathoms deep.

The captain of the Juneau steamer Flossie, which subsequently succored the survivors, says that the Flossie passed over the same water in which the C.P.R. steamer was wrecked early in the afternoon preceding the catastrophe. They were looking for large bergs, when suddenly they saw right ahead a low lying one with its surface a little more than flush with the surface of the sea. The course of the Flossie was altered just in time to save her from contact with the submerged berg.

AN IMMIGRATION FRAUD

New York, Aug., 22.—An alleged scheme to defraud the Government and evade the immigration laws by securing the admission of undesirable immigrants, by means of forged papers and collusion between ships officers and inspectors of immigration, has developed here. If the story of an inspector, told to Assistant Commissioner of Immigration McSweeney, is borne out in the United States court to-day when an officer of a steamship line will, the Times says, be arraigned, there will be a general investigation of departments in the Immigration Bureau in this city. According to the inspector's story, he was approached by the officer of the steamship and told of a scheme to defraud the Government, in which he was invited to join. This scheme, in brief, was that immigrants, mostly Italians, and all of the undesirable class, be entered on the ship's books as American citizens, and on the voyage provided with forged papers made in Europe with which to carry out their claim of previous residence. For this the immigrants were to pay $5 each and 60 or 70 could be landed every trip, or altogether 3,000 or 4,000 every year. The inspector reported to Commissioner McSweeney and was told to acquiesce. He did so, and when the ship arrived on Sunday the immigrants were landed, but never got further than the pier. The ship's officer was then arrested. The names have not yet developed, but during the day, the case will probably come up in court.

EX-CHIEF JUSTICE BURTON DIES SUDDENLY OF HEART FAILURE

Aged Judge Had Been Ailing For Some Years, and His Death was Not Altogether Unexpected.

HAD RETIRED FROM BENCH NEARLY A YEAR AGO--SKETCH OF HIS CAREER

Decease Took Place About One O'clock Thursday Morning at his Residence on Wellington Street, Toronto

Toronto, Aug. 22.—Sir George William Burton, late Chief Justice of the Court of Appeal for Ontario, died at his residence, 292 Wellington street west, at one o'clock this morning, at the age of eighty-three years. He had been ailing for some years, though the serious part of his illness was of brief duration. The immediate cause of his death was heart failure. Lady Burton and her daughter, Mrs. Ferguson, were present when he passed away.

The deceased gentleman was appointed Chief Justice of Ontario Appeal Court in 1874, upon the retirement of Sir John Hagarty, and retained the position until last year, when he retired, his successor being the present occupant, Chief Justice Armour.

The honor of Knighthood was conferred on the late Chief Justice on New Year's Day, 1898. He was a life long friend of Sir Oliver Mowat, both of them having been called to the bar in 1841, their names appearing together on the roll at Osgoode Hall.

The deceased gentleman is survived by Lady Burton, two sons and four daughters: W. F. Burton, George Burton, Miss Burton, Mrs. Malcolm Macpherson, of Wellington, New Zealand. Mrs. C. L. Ferguson, Toronto, and Mrs. Bain, wife of J. R. Bain, M.P. for Cumberland England.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Hon. Sir George William Burton was the second son of the late Admiral Geo. Guy Burton, R.N., who was born at Sandwich, Kent, Eng. July 21, 1818. Educated at the Rochester and Chatham Proprietary School under the late Rev. Dr. Whiston, he came to Canada in 1836, studied law with his paternal uncle, the late Edmund Burton, of Ingersoll, Ontario, and was called to the bar in 1842. He commenced practice in Hamilton, and became known from one end of the province to the other as a sound and able lawyer. He was for many years solicitor for hte City of Hamilton, for the Canada Life Assurance Company, and the Bank of Montreal. Nominated a bencher of the Law Cociety 1856, he was appointed a Q.C. by Lord Monk, in 1863, and was elected a bencher of the Law Society under the new system in 1871. He was appointed a judge of the Court of Appeal, Ontario, May 30, 1874, and was for a lengthened period the senior puisne judge of that court. In 1885 he served as chairman of the commission then appointed for the revision of the Provincial Statutes. He was appointed Chief Justice and President of the Supreme Court of Judicature of Ontario, April, 1897. Judge Burton is a member of the Church of England. He married in June, 1850, Elizabeth eldest daughter of the late Dr. F. Perkins, of St. Ann's Bay, Jamaica, W.I. and niece and adopted daughter of the late Col. Charles Cranstoun Dixon, H.M.'s 43rd Regiment. His son, Warren F. Burton, was called to the bar in 1875, and is a member of the Hamilton bar. He was elected President of the St. George's Society there in 1897.

THE FOREMOST IN THE WORLD

United States a Leader Among Commercial Nations.

NATIONAL SENTIMENT DECLINING

Vienna, Aug. 22.—Professor Edward Suess, the eminent publicist and paleontologist, has given an interview respecting the industrial and political preponderance of the United States that attracts much attention, especially as it confirms the anti-American views of continental manufacturers and economists.

The professor, surveying international relations from the standpoint of a political philosopher, observes that while the French revolution was occasioned by the abuses of the privileged classes the present situation has been caused by a revolution of material conditions. The declining national sentiment should be replaced by a movement for the common defence of the Central European States against the American trusts, which are moving to conquer the foreign markets more surely than they could by battleships. The American balance of trade has reached an unparalleled figure. It was a serious question if the present political units of Central Europe were strong enough to make an effective defence, taking into account the physical conditions. The present shifting of the center of gravity of the world's forces would create three great units—China, Russia and America. When China was equipped with railroads the people would find that she had the most capable merchants and the cheapest labor. Russia would have the largest army, and be the greatest peasant State. European capital would flow to the United States and would be an important increase of her economic prosperity. Of the three the United States had decidedly the lead. Its policy was commercial aggression beyond doubt, and States like the American Union, and Russia had gained far more in the way of the mobilization of their powers from the construction of railroads than such countries as Germany and France.

WE HAVE IT WITHOUT DOUBT

Natural Gas and Coal Oil Exists in Peterborough.

THE OPINION OF AN EXPERT

That natural gas and coal oil exist in this locality, many people believe. It is many years ago since evidence of this first came to light. About the year 1865 people became so enthusiastic on the subject, that a company was formed and boring operations were begun. A well was sunk near Auburn, on this side of the river, but in those days drilling was slow work, and often when the well was sunk to a depth of two or three hundred feet, the iron point of the drill broke off. As there was no way of getting it out, operations were suspended. The promoters of the enterprise, who were all firm believers in the existence of coal oil, were the late Messrs. Edmund Chamberlain, Wm. Cluxton, Rev. Mark Burnham, Thos. Bradburn, Wm. Lundy Tom Lannin, A. W. Kempt, Robert Romaine and others.

About thirty years ago two men, while digging a well on the farm of the late Wm. Crowley, Otonabee, were suffocated with natural gas.

But the most convincing proof that natural gas or petroleum, or perhaps both, exist here, was shown during the excavating of the well holes at the lift lock. Pockets of gas were opened that burned for days. Broken pieces of rock, strongly impregnated with petroleum, were taken out of the well holes, and this only at a depth of about 70 feet.

On Tuesday last Mr. Conrad Strewing of Toronto, who happened to be in town, took a walk over to the lift lock. To a Times representative, Mr. Strewing said that there was unmistakable evidences of the existence of gas and oil. He had a fair knowledge of such matters, and was persuaded that this locality was rich in these natural deposits.

A letter received from Mr. Joseph Harvey, of Frazer & Harvey, oil experts of Berlin, Ontario, writes as follows in reply to a letter of enquiry:

"You have a good chance of getting either gas or oil in Peterborough. The Trenton rock lies close to the surface there, and whenever you get anticline in the Trenton YOU ARE SURE TO GET OIL OR GAS. If we can assist you in any way we will gladly do so, and should you decide to make a test by sinking one or more wells we will be very glad to make you an offer for the work."

GREAT FISHING.

Two Ladies Capture a 25 Pound Lunge.

While Mr. and Mrs. David Law were trawling the other day, Mrs. Law handling the line, they hooked what was thought to be a snag, but it turned out to be a monster 'lunge. Mrs. Law played the big fellow to a finish, but had to have Mr. Law's assistance in lifting it into the boat. When weighed, the fish tipped the scales at 24 pounds 8 ounces. It measured 3 feet 8 inches in length and 18 inches in circumference. Mr. Law will have the head dressed and mounted as a curiosity. The body of the fish was sent up to Mr. J. T. Braund, of the north end, who gave his customers a treat today.

Mr. and Mrs. Bunch, of Arkansas, who are taking a holiday at the "Kenoha" in Bobcaygeon on the Kawartha lakes captured a 'lunge weighing 27 1-3 pounds on Monday, Mrs. Bunch handling the line.

Says the Lindsay Post:—"Mrs. N. Zeufeldt and daughter Rose, have returned after a pleasant visit with relatives in Peterborough. Miss Rose brought with her a 16 lb. 'lunge, which she caught in the Otonabee waters."

Good Days Sport at Nicholl's Oval.

The Roseneath Foresters will run an excursion to Peterborough on Saturday, August 24, when a good programme of sports has been arranged for. The final match with Matthews baseball team will be played, and a hot time is expected. A matched footrace will also be run between Johnny Jones, of Peterborough, and Jake Brown, of Cobourg. These events will take place on Nicholls' oval. Busses will be run from the Post Office to the grounds.

MR. KELSEY HALL'S GREAT LOSS

Further Particulars Concerning The Buffalo Robbery.

ENJOYING A NAP WHEN ROBBED.

Mr. H. Kelsey Hall, a stamp collector, and dealer in old and rare coins, lost a valuable collection of stamps and two rare medals in the beautiful Orient at the exposition yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hall lives in Peterboro, Ont. He is general Canadian agent for the New York Life Insurance Company. He is in the city to see the exposition and to attend the sessions of the American Philatelic Association, which is in convention here.

Hall visited the exposition grounds yesterday afternoon. In his pocket he had what stamp collectors call an approval book. It is a book in which are stamped stamps which are intended for sale. The stamps are affixed to the leaves of the book in such a way as to be easily detachable. The book was full of rare stamps which Mr. Hall hoped to dispose of to his fellow collectors at the meetings of the Philatelic Club.

Mr. Hall met a few friends at the fair and after seeing a part of the Midway with them he wandered into Streets of Cairo. The stamp-collector was tired. He dropped down on a bench near the coffee-house and soon was fast asleep. During the course of his nap, Mr. Hall says he dimly remembers being awakened by the sensation of someone pulling at his coat. That fact, it seems, did not impress itself on Mr. Hall's mind as being connected with the valuable collection of stamps he had in his posket and he slept on. When Mr. Hall awoke he put his hand in his coat pocket. The book was gone. The valuable medals which were in the pocket with the stampbook also were missing. Mr Hall was dazed and confused. The stamps he had lost were of a variety which could not be duplicated. To a stamp-collector they were worth over $2,000. The medals were rare and much sought after by coin collectors. One is known as the Martin Van Buren Peace Medal. It was struck in 1827 and presented to the Indians as a mark of esteem. There are but two or three more like it in existance. The other medal was struck by order of George III, of England to be presented to a Chippewa chieftain in token of aid rendered to the British in the War of 1812. Of the stamp collection the cheapest specimen was valued at $2.

Mr. Hall went to the office of the exposition detective bureau and reported his loss.

Mr. Hall is staying with Bertrand Tate of Pennsylvania Street.

WAS ALL A JOKE.

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 22.—Col. Byrne chief of the Exposition police force, denounces as a fake the story that W. Kelsey Hall, a philatelist from Peterborough, Ont., was robbed of several thousand dollars' worth of rare stamps, while on the Midway.

"The story is not true and the man who originated it knew it was not true," said Col. Byrne. "Mr. Hall had some valuable stamps with him and while he was asleep at the Exposition, two of his friends took the stamps for safe keeping. There never was any complaint that there had been a robbery. The stamps were returned to Mr. Hall by his friends.

Is You're Catarrh Better?

You ought to treat it now, the weather is so favorable. In the winter you catch cold, nose and throat are kept inflamed despite all you can do. It's hard to cure Catarrh in the winter, but in the summer it's different—everything is favorable. Now there's that delightful remedy, so pleasant and so effective—Catarrhozone. In the summer it cures Catarrh in a very short time. You see it heals, then, removes the cough and bad breath, in fact I cannot say too much in its praise; it's just splendid. I am sure your druggist sells Catarrhozone and recommends it [illegible] 25c, and $1.00

STEEL STRIKE SITUATION FAVORABLE TO THE TRUST

Several Mills Re-Opened by the National Steel Trust is the Latest News From the District Affected.

AMALGAMATED ASSOCIATION WILL NOT GO TO LAW WITH STEEL CORP'N

Pittsburg, Aug. 22.—The developments in the steel strike this morning were all favorable to the masters. Early this morning the American Tin Plate Company succeeded in getting about 100 men safely inside the gates of the Star plant on Twelfth street in this city, and preparations were in progress for starting up two mills before the close of the day. Another crew was put on at the Lindsay and McCutcheon works in Allegheny, and the "Jinney" mill started, and 250 men were reported at work in the Painter plant, on the south side.

WILL NOT LITIGATE.

A report that the Amalgamated Association will enter suits against the operating companies of the United States Steel Corporation, charging violation of the Pennsylvania law respecting the discharge of union labor, is denied by William J. Brennan, solicitor for the worker's organization, who said that the association will not seek to terminate the strike by litigation, or attack the legality of the United States Steel Corporation by the courts.

MAY START ANOTHER MILL.

Notices have been posted at the National Tube Works, McKeesport, requiring the strikers to call at the company's offices tomorrow and Saturday and receive their money. It was reported at McKeesport that the National Tube Company would ask every employe when he calls for his money whether he wants to return to work, and if enough men signify their intention to return to work the mill will be started Monday.

An official of the Tube Works made the statement that the company was receiving letters from all over the country from skilled workmen making application for positions.

SITUATION UNCHANGED.

Pittsburg, Aug. 21.—No attempt was made by the steel managers to start any more mills yesterday. There has been no extension of the strike and no change in the situation. Late in the day fires were lighted in the Demmler Tin Plate Works at McKeesport, but the machinery was not started, and no attempt was made to operate it. The Monessen plant is moving ahead under full crews, and their Crescent works at Cleveland have about half the machinery in operation. There has been no break in the Carnegie group, and the mills that have been started with non-union men since the strike began are going ahead with about the same force of men.

On the streets it was a day of exciting rumors. It was another day of peace in all the strike districts, although the general probability of trouble still holds good at the places where feeling runs high.

VOTE BEING TAKEN.

Syracuse, Aug. 21.—In response to a call issued by the Executive of the United Mine Workers of America last Wednesday, a referendum vote is now being taken by the boards of all international trades unions on the proposition to hold a convention of all international presidents and secretaries to devise means for giving the strikers assistance. It is reported that President Gompers will call that convention at a central point within ten days.

IS MARRIAGE A FAILURE?

It might well be wished that the pessimistic Toronto parson who a few weeks ago, after perpetrating his second or third thousandth marriage ceremony, advised young men to steer clear of the nuptial altar could have been present at that wedding anniversary at New Canaan, Conn., on Saturday last.

Full of years and honors, happy in the gathering shadows of a long and useful life, an aged couple commemmorated the seventieth anniversary of their entrance into the sea of matrimony, through which they have sturdily and steadily and joyously guided their bark. It is a cheerful sign that an institution sanctioned and sanctified by the highest authority known to the law, human or divine, is not in the demoralized condition that might have been presumed from the admonition of the unhappy prophet of evil. Such examples as that just furnished from the happy land of Canaan is sufficient refutation of the croakings of a disgruntled dominie, who, as surmised at the time, is either a confirmed dyspeptic or has had trouble collecting his fees.

SPURIOUS TITLES

A society has been organized in the United States the object of which is the suppression of spurious titles. The preamble to the constitution of the new society says: "Seemingly all the privates were killed in the civil war and there are left few officers of lower rank than colonel. This society presumes that all persons should be addressed as 'Mr.' unless the contrary is shown."

The extraordinary number of so-called colonels and judges to be found in the United States has often been remarked, and has been found the cause of a good deal of mirth and derision, especially as the people of the United States profess, as a rule, a truly democratic scorn of titles and distinctions. Many of these so-called judges and colonels have no shadow of a claim to the title by which they are generally designated, and the recently organized society will probably do something to check the prevalent abuse of military and other distinctions. Genuine titles unquestionably serve a useful purpose. The rank and appellation of general, colonel or judge is often almost the sole reward which its possessor has obtained by a life-long period of meritorious service to the state. The distinction thus earned its possessor has every claim to fully enjoy. But when similar titles are assumed by men who have no right to them and who have done nothing to earn them, their value is much decreased. Titles then become but an empty and even ridiculous honor, and faithful servants of the State are robbed of their reward.

The fault in this use of spurious titles lies oftener with the people than with those who are saddled with the unearned distinction. Many men who were privates are called captains and many majors are given the designation of colonel as a kind of playful compliment. Once the spurious title is thus bestowed it has a habit of sticking, though it can hardly give satisfaction to the man who knows that it does not properly belong to him. From this custom of conferring spurious titles Canadians are not quite free, and it it would not be amiss if, like the recently organized American society, they presumed "that all persons should be addressed as 'Mr.' unless the contrary is shown."

THE SOUTH AMERICAN TROUBLE

Washington, Aug. 22.—The latest developments in the South American uprisings tend to sustain the theory recently advanced that the real purpose of the present disturbances is to bring about a reunion of the republics of Venezuela, Colombia and Ecuador, with Castro as president or dictator of the greater state thus formed. The news that Castro has supplied the Colombian revolutionists with arms and ammunition and that forces are invading Colombian territoyr fromm Ecuador is in keeping with the spirit of General Uribe-Uribe's manifesto, issued recently.

Although there have been no open disputes between Colombia and Ecuador to give color to the supposition that the present advance from the latter is authorized by the government, such color is scarcely needed in these outbreaks of Latin-American republics. Castro has shown himself resourceful in spite of his unpopularity, and it is possible that he may have influenced the Ecuadorian government to unite with him in a movement toward consolidation. If so, then the United States of Colombia will be hard pressed, and the outcome of what promised to be only an ordinary revolution may change the map of South America, and still further retard the progess of a people too long hampered by internal strife.

But, whether merely a confused revolution or an inter-republic war, President Castro will bear watching. He is an ambitious, tyrannical and utterly unscrupulous leader, as shown by his seizure of the Venezuelan Presidency, his unlawful treatment of several political prisoners, his disregard fo rthe rights of foreigners and his unconcealed efforts to embroil the United States and Germany over their respective rights in Venezuelan concessions.

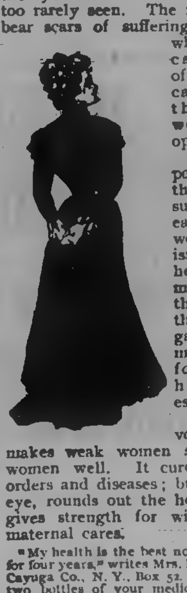
THE IRON MEN'S STRIKE

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 21—The strike situation was not materially changed today. The strikers have not called any more men out and none of the plans of the manufacturers for additional resumptions with non-union men have matured. The feeling of irritation at Wellsville has been increased by the appointment of thirty strike breakers as special officers to guard the plant of the American Sheet Steel Company, and the police here have had to disperse noisy crowds at the recently tied up tube plants, but there has been no serious trouble at any point.

Veryl Preston, of the United States Steel Corporation, was in the city again today and conferred with the officials of the Carnegie Company. He and the other officials are still silent as to their plans. The somewhat shop-worn rumor of peace has again been revived but the mildest suggestions of it at authorative places produces long and positive denials.

THE POISE

Of a woman in perfect health attracts the eye at once. Such a woman is all too rarely seen. The most of women bear scars of suffering on their faces which no smiles can hide, and often in their very carriage betray the womanly weakness which oppresses them.



There can be no perfect health for the woman who suffers from disease of the delicate womanly organism. Her general health is so intimately related to the local health of the womanly organs that these must be cured before the general health can be established.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures womanly disorders and diseases; brightens the dull eye, rounds out the hollow cheek and gives strength for wifely duties and maternal cares.

"My health is the best now that it has been for four years," writes Mrs. Phebe Morris, of Ira, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Box 52. "I have taken but two bottles of your medicine, 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' These medicines have done me more good than all that I have ever taken before. I couldn't do my work only about half the time, and now I can work all the time for a family of four. Before I took your medicines I was sick in bed nearly half the time. My advice to all who are troubled with female weakness is to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery'—the most wonderful medicines in the world."

HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING

Petoria, Aug. 22.—A squadron of South African Constabulary, with some attached men of Morley's Scouts, a command made up partly of former burghers, under Captain Wood, after a night march, surprised a Boer laager on Saturday morning, twenty miles north east of Springs. The Boer camp was surrounded on three sides and fire opened up at 200 yards. Presently the British were attacked in the rear by another greatly surprised force of Boers, and were thus exposed to fire on every hand. Fine bravery was shown. Capt. Morley was severely wounded. Three Boers attacked Capt. Wood and pulled him of his horse. Capt. Wood smashed the face of one of the Boers with his riding whip, took his rifle, remounted, and escaped. There were other similar incidents. During the melee nearly all the prisoners who were taken in the first fight escaped.

HOT TIME AT WARM BATHS.

London, Aug. 21.—Colonel Benson recently captured a Boer laager near Warm Baths, north of Pretoria. The enemy resisted and two were killed. Thirty prisoners were taken, including among whom were Commandant de Villers, father-in-law of Acting-President Schalk-burger, and Capt. Breytenbach. The number of prisoners that arrived at Pretoria during the past week was the largest for months.

KITCHENER OPTIMISTIC.

London, Aug. 21.—General Kitchener has written a long despatch to the Official Gazette, detailing the operations in South Africa from May 6 to July 8. The commander-in-chief makes an amusing reference to the Yeomanry recruits, many of whom, he says, are unable to ride or shot. He considers that there was at the time referred to 13,500 Boers in the field, but the long railway lines necessitate the employment of a large number of troops to prevent the Boers from capturing trains. General Kitchener declares that great patience is required. He says he sees the inevitable end of the insensate resistance, which some may consider patriotic, but which, in his opinion, has long since forfeited such a designation, and has resulted in an unjustifiable prolongation of the war, sufferings of the women and children. Such a continuance is due to the ignorant arrogance of the Boer leaders, who originally opposed the war, but who are now unwilling to submit to what they foresaw would be the inevitable consequence.

The Aristos GOLD MINING CO.
Owning Big Horn Mountain Tunnel and Vereta Vein, 200 acres situated on the Western Slope of Pikes Peak, in the famous Cripple Creek Gold Mining District
THE SAFEST OFFER EVER MADE TO INVESTORS
It is printed on each certificate that subscribers to the above Preferred Share will be entitled to receive in Dividends the full amount of money invested, before other stockholders receive any returns, signed by the President of the Company.
This district produced more Gold in 1900 than any other in the United States
This property consists of 3000 by 3000 feet, or 200 acres, of gold land. The mine has been worked. The feature of this mine is the Vereta Vein, 30 to 40 feet in width, and is certainly one of the strongest veins in this famous district. There are some fifteen openings on this vein, the ore from which assays in gold from $12 to $100 per ton. The property is advantageously located for development by tunnel, which will make it possible to produce an enormous amount of ore daily, the quantity varying from 200 to 500 tons per day. The development by TUNNELING is the most economical and advantageous manner of working this property.
At a distance of 800 feet the Tunnel will intersect the Vereta Vein at a depth of about 680 feet, and will also intersect several other veins. The tunnel will cut the Big Horn Mountain 2100 feet deep, and will give this company 2,000,000 tons of ore, worth over $20 per ton.
The new railroad, now practically completed from Colorado Springs, called the Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek road, passes within 2000 feet of this Tunnel
Adjoining this property is the Colorado Springs TUNNEL Company. In this property at a depth of 400 feet, the Vereta Vein was cut. At this point the vein was fully 20 feet in width, and its value from $20 to $1000 per ton.
There are already in operation mills and smelters sufficient to treat the output of this property, which gives at once cash returns.
Capital Stock $1.000,000. Par Value $1.00 Per Share. 100,000 Shares Preferred Stock at 25c. Per Share.
In buying this stock the purchaser owns a direct title in the Company's property. This Company offers you no watered stock, but a legitimate high-grade gold-mining investment in the Cripple Creek District.
The above offer of Preferred Dividends is an assurance of early returns. After additional machinery is erected, this property will be earning dividends almost equal to its Capital Stock.

AN EFFECT IN ROSEMARY.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

The maid tied the last knot of ribbon and adjusted the last fold of gauze. Contrary to custom they were a quarter of an hour too early.

"No flowers? We are indeed in a strange land. Run out the callboy—anybody—there is yet time. There shoul dbe a florist near."

"And the flowers, madam, what shall they be?"

A second's thought, then a rush of memory. For the sake of the past Milly Ellis said hastily:

"Lilacs—white or purple. There will be plenty this time of the year. See, they will suit my gown!"

"I will go myself, I will not trust a youth. It is a matter of taste."

Then Miss Devereaux went up the steps that led to the greenroom and to the stage in fronth. She wished to see the audience before the play began. She walked slowly and haughtily through the laughing, impatient thron of chorus girls and villagers and took refuge in the wings until she saw an opening in the curtains through which she could look. There was a sea of faces, a great audience, but nowhere one familiar face, although Milly Ellis had been born and grew up in this great city and now returned to it the star of an opera troupe.

The brand new chandelier of electric lights threw its beams over the clean paint and gay draperies of the summer theater. There were rows upon rows of heads and faces, but nothing familiar to respond to the fond longing in her heart.

A voice sounded beside her.

"Surely a success—but perhaps Miss Devereaux will accept the flowers she can so well carry in the ball-room scene."

He held a splendid armful of hothouse roses, red and glowing. Miss Devereaux flushed somewhat angrily. It would not be politic to refuse.

"I will carry them int he one scene," she said coldly, "but they are too sumptuous for the village maiad. I must wear or carry a simpler flowe with this gown."

In the wings Felice waited with an odorous bunch, white lilas with the most delicate perfume, with the subtle wood scent with the message of eternal hope of springtime.

She stood apart with the flowers on her breast until her call; stood absorbed in the dreams of an old house in the grove, of flashing waters, of old and gnarly lilac bushes, of silent stretches of field and meadow, of peace—for Milly Ellis with her clear bird voice, had been only a simple country maiden ere she went away to learn to sing.

Gone were the days of her training, her struggle in grim New York; vanished the Paris life, where her voice had been perfected; like a dream were the tours in small Italian towns to test her powers and to become confident in her work. Gone, gone, nothing left, nothing worth while save the spring mornings in front of an old wooden house in a grove, the odor of lilacs, the calls of birds answering her own clear notes, mild and sweet beyond belief.

No one knew—for she was ever reserved as to her personality. No one knew that to-night she sang before her home audience. It was twelve years and a girl is forgotten in twelve years, when her friends have passed away into the silence of the hereafter.

She went on to the stage with a pensive loveliness in her face and when she sang there were those tears in her voice that she dared not shed, the tears of the heart for the days that were gone.

A girl again in her simple gauze gown and hanging hair, she carried away her audience because she seemed one of them. In the ballroom scene she was alien to the time and place. They resented the attitude, the hour, the glowing crimson roses. Breathlessly they watched the mimic escape as a gypsy girl longin for her home, joyously saw her return to her wildwood haunts and her lover. Then the audience rose in applause and the hour of a great triumph had truly come to Milly Ellis.

Her heart swelled when she went, with her jubilant manager, before the curtains. She longed to cry out:

"I am little Milly Ellis, who was born and brought up here, obscure enough among you—and now—now I have conquered you all!"

But even in that hour there was to be something beside. As she bowed and smiled, speechless in her deep emotion, a slender tongue of flame leaped from above in one of the wings and caught a swaying gilded bannerect. And in the next second hoarse cries of "Fire!" were here and there and wild screams of terror. In a breath the woman was forgotten in the fear of death

The manager flew from her side to the rear, commanding, half mad with this sudden change of fortune. But the fire leapt, like a thing of life, from one flimsy ornament and drapery to another and the opening doors fanned the flames.

In that moment when the manager left her alone, Milly Ellis stood, suddenly stripped of all she had held most dear, stood alone and saw a mad fight for life begin. Where now was the dashing tenor whose burning eyes had so lately pursued her own? Where now the fickle admirers of the past and present? She stood alone and the fire demon ran above her dropped down upon her gauze draperies, burning gegaws which had glittered and shone but a moment before. She invited destruction, she stood alone.

In that desperate moment, a deep voice said:

"Come with me—at once!"

A heavy wrapping, the curtain of one of the boxes was twined about her. She was fairly whirled off her feet by the impetuosity of a race across the stage and a plunge and jump into the orchestra box. Half running, the singer was urged on until she stood in the alleyway back of the theatre and knew she was safe.

But it was dark and she heard the rattle of the engines coming. Holding to her rescuer's arm, they ran to a side street and at last sank down on the stone steps of a church. As they lay there panting the very heavens lit up. The theatre was doomed.

In the lurid light Milly Ellis looked at her rescuer. He was tall and broad and she knew his strength. As he sat still, breathing heavily, memory struggled within her to formulate a name, a remembrance. She leaned forward and when the heavy drapery fell away, she smelled the white lilacs.

"John Crompton!" she exclaimed. "John Crompton! And you have saved me?"

"Everybody else deserted you," he said, "so I came to you."

She deserved the words. Years before she had despised his friendship and expostulations against her career.

"It was death," she whispered fearfully, "it was death!"

"A short enough triumph for you," he said more kindly, "the triumph of a few moments. Still, it may satisfy you—your art may still be more to you than friendship, love and even life."

But she caught his arm and clung to him.

"After this! After I have learned what art means—how cruel it is—how art is nothing to life! Oh, John, my heart has been aching all day for the old time when I could be happy."

For answer he wrapped the red drapery about her and over her fallen hair.

"You are not so changed," he said There was a note of tenderness in his voice.

"But you! What has come to you, John? You are different."

"I am a man," he said, and as he spoke the lurid light fell upon his face. "I am a man now and I claim a man's heritage. I would share no one with art. I must have all or nothing. You know me of old."

She knew him! He had not approached her or written her for yeas.

"And you have waited all this time?"

"I cared for no one else."

The immensity of the feeling she had long ago awakened struck at the door of her heart. She clutched at his hand. She wet it with her tears.

"It was art or life," she said, brokenly, "and life won, John; life has won."

Persistent Backache

That constant gnawing pain in the small of the back tells you the kidneys are out of order—are not filtering the poisons from the blood as they should. Don't neglect the warning. Cure the backache and correct the kidney trouble in time before Bright's Disease or Diabetes fasten their grip on the system. There is no remedy so effectual in curing backache and every form of kidney trouble of young or old as Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets They contain specific ingredients not found in any other medicine. Here is home evidence Miss Irene Grouelle, Water St., Peterborough, Ont., tells of her case as follows: "Since last May the trouble with my back and side has been persistent, and the side very sore. I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and soon felt a big change for the better. The soreness has all gone since taking the tablets and I cannot say too much in praise of the medicine, as it succeeded when others had failed."

A 26 POUND 'LUNGE

Caught a short Distance Below the Locks Yesterday.

While Mr. and Mrs. David Law, of Ashburnham, who are camped down the river, were trowling near Robinson's island, a mile below the locks, they hooked a monster maskinonge. Mrs. Law, who was holding the line, skillfully played the fish, and succeeded in getting it up to the boat, when it made a spurt to escape. A second time it was brought to the surface, and actually pulled into the boat, but threw itself into the water again by the power of its huge tail. Mr. Law felt that he had better take no chances of upsetting, so paddled ashore, where the fish was landed and killed, after an exciting battle. The 'lunge weighed 24 1-2 pounds, was 3 ft. 8 inches in length and measured 18 inches around the body. The stomach was quite empty. Had the fish been caught after a good meal, it would have weighed several pounds more. It was presented to Mr. J. T. Braund, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Law, who distributed the fish amongst his many friends and customers.

THE CEREAL COMPANY.

Work on the Buildings is Progressing Finely

Mr. Robert Stuart, of Chicago, secretary of the American Cereal Company, came to Peterborough with Senator Cox, and yesterday they inspected the progress which is being made by Contractor Bogue. They found operations going ahead with a rush. Mr. Bogue has a large number of men at work, and the pay roll is said to have amounted to $1200 last week.

Mr. Stuart states that the plans and specifications for the big elevator have been completed, and estimates on the cost of erection obtained from a number of well-known contracting firms. Local contractors, however, will have the preference, if their figures are right.

PURELY PERSONAL.

—Mr. Robert Stuart, Secretary-Treasurer of the Cereal Company, is in town.

—Mrs. J. Harrison and her little daughter, Reta, are visiting friends in Campbellford for a few weeks.

—Hon. Geo. A. Cox, who has recently returned from a visit to the Old Country, was in town yesterday.

Many invalids have gone from Canada to California to seek health, but in this case the conditions are reversed. Being an Oddfellow, Mr. Steelbrooke is receiving the kindly attention of members of Otonabee Lodge, I. O. O. F.

A NEW THING IN GOLF.

Why the Club Will Play no More "Club" Matches.

The outcrop of pushers and other objectionable characters, has compelled the Golf Club to adopt the new scheme of having what they call "invitation matches," in which club members play, not as representing the club, but merely as private gentlemen. This allows of the making up of parties to suit the tastes of each other without fearing the disgrace in the eyes of other clubs of being considered "cads." The "bounder" is a man who has unlimited faith in himself and who considers that modesty is a is a merely absurd idea of a bygone age. The age, however, has not yet left the world of golf at any rate, and members seem determined to weed out the man who mistakes bumptiousness for brains. The plan also has the great merit of allowing indifferent casual players to have a good time of their own, which was impossible under the old system.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

Contract Let For West Pier of Chemong Bridges.

The County Council has let the contract for the construction of the west pier of teh new Chemong bridge to Messrs. McDermid and Bogue at $225.

A deputation composed of A. E. Kennedy, ex-Warden Middleton, Reeve Armstrong, of Smith, and Din the Council in reference to making more adequate provision for the Indians in the Chemong reservation getting out to the travelled thoroughfares in the early spring and late fall, when neither the ice nor water is available.

The Committee on Equalization of Assessment allowed the valuators, Messrs. Ed. Hawthorne and Robert Edwards, their travelling expenses in addition to their regular allowance of $3.00 per day.

August in Town.

Though August has always been supposed to represent the heart of summer, everyone knows that there is a chill at that heart, and that it is full of forbodings of fall. The shortening days already tell of the passing of summer, a certain sereness and yellowness in gardens give evidence of it, while the katydids are even now prophesying frost. And human beings are not less ready to announce a coming change; the small boy is already haunted by visions of the second stage in the seven ages of man, the wise housekeeper has put in his winter coal, and the equally sagacious housekeeper has put out his stock of furs and flannels Whatever superiority the country may possess over the city in the springtime, it is certain that in midsummer and fall the latter is to be more devoutly desired as a place of residence. There is more greenness and dampness in the city, and one may take a pleasure drive without being obliged to endure in anticipation the dread process of turning to dust. In the city, too, the hay feverite may encounter fewer of his own particular germ enemies

After Our Mechanics.

A man, supposed to be an agent of the great American Steel Corporation, is in town trying to hire mechanics to go to the other side. It is more than likely that he will not meet with much encouragement in Peterborough.

A STOWAWAY WAS RESPONSIBLE

Had he Not Been Succored the Islander Might Have Been Saved

THE DEAD ARE 38, RESCUED 143

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 22.—The evidence given by the pilot of the ill-fated steamer Islander at the inquest clears up the mystery of the suddenness of the sinking and the consequent great loss of life. The pilot testified that he was on the bridge, and that as soon as she struck he told the captain that that he was going to beach her, but the captain said: 'No, there's a better place about three miles from here, and she will easily float that long." There was a stowaway in the forward watertight compartment. When the vessel struck the water rushed in on him and he set up a big howl, and being immediately under the sailor's quarters one of them thoughtlessly rushed down and opened the compartment, which allowed the sea to come rolling into the hold, carrying the body of the stowaway and the sailor with it. This was done without the captain's knowledge, and I think excused him for thinking the vessel would float several hours, which it would have done had the water-tight compartment not been opened, and he could have beached her in a small bay about three miles away. It was established that if the pilot had carried out his intention he could have gotten her on the beach without the loss of any lives except the stowaway.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 22.—The official report yesterday afternoon presented to Captain Gaudin, local agent of marine, by Chief Officer Nerotsos, of the ill-fated Islander gives the exact location of the disaster at six and a half mites west by south, three-quarters west, magnetic, of Point Hilda. in Stephen's Passage, Douglas Island, Alaska. He computes the approximate number of dead at 38, and saved at 143. Arrangements are now under way for an official inquiry into the disaster, which will be held when instructions are given from Ottawa by the local agent of marine. The report shows that the steamer was on her proper course.

Passengers give an unqualified denial to the report that the captain and pilot were drunk. When the accident occurred the skipper was enjoying refreshment after his turn on watch, but the moment the shock came he rushed up the stairs, and all agree that on the bridge he was cool, collected and deliberate in giving his orders. The same may be said of the pilot.

HIS MITCHELL SAFE.

Rev. J. W. Mitchell last night received tidings that his daughter, Miss M. G. Mitchell of Toronto, was not on the Islander, and is, so far as is known safe with her aunt at Atlin.

CAPT. FOOT'S STORY.

Captain, Hamilton Robert Foot, who lost his life in the Islander disaster, was a nephew of Jeffrey Foot, secretary of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club. Capt. Foot was a native of Chaleloid, Ireland, and was 43 years of age on July 20. He was a son of William E. Foot, the present registrar of Parry Sound, who came to Ontario from Dublin. Ireland, and was one of the early pioneer settlers of Parry Sound district Capt. Foot, before going west, was in command of the old steamer Nipissing, which sailed from Bracebridge up the lakes. He afterwards spent some time farming in the Northwest. Preferring a seafaring life, he took out first-class papers, and became eventually captain of the ill-fated Islander.

Nervous And Sleepless.

Two horrors crowded into one life, the product of poor digestion, and the poisons that are thereby formed within the body. There's just one method of cure for this terrible condition—plenty of food, but mind, food properly digested. That's the difficulty—the digestive power of the stomach must be improved. Rich, red blood formed, strength given to the organs to drive out poisons; then comes strength, vigor and endurance. Ferrozone does all this and more; it makes sick people well; weak people strong. Sow Ferrozone and you reap health. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

CHATHAM'S BUSINESS COLLEGE.

This noted institution of business training will re-open for its 26th year on Tuesday Sept. 3rd. We feel that its work requires no special commendation from us, as it is one of the pioneer institutions in the line of commercial training in Canada, and is doing a class of work that has won for itself the confidence of the business public.

The proprietors, Messrs. D. McLachlan & Co., may justly feel proud of the reputation of their excellent school; and the best evidence of the hold which it has secured on the business community is found in a small pamphlet which this school issues annually, showing where pupils have secured positions during the year. The one just to hand for last year shows results of a most encouraging character. 304 of their pupils secured good positions in business offices as stenographers and bookkeepers or as teachers of commercial subjects in other colleges during the twelve months ending June 31, 1901.

The principal informs us that the demand for graduates has now become so strong that in nine out of ten cases where calls for office help are received, the vacancy has to be filled with an under-graduate.

We commend this school most heartily to our readers, who are interested in a course of either shorthand or business training.

The school was established in 1876 by Mr. D. McLachlan, the senior member of the firm, and is the only business college in Canada which has been running for 25 years without change of management, which is the best guarantee that could be given of the class of work it has been doing.

The attendance last year showed pupils from 126 cities, towns and villages in Canada and the United States, from 30 counties and districts outside Chatham, together with seven States of the Union.

BOAT TURNED TURTLE AND MANY DROWNED

NAMES OF THE MANY VICTIMS.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 24—Seventeen, and perhaps twenty-two, lives were lost in the wreck of the steamer City of Golconda at Cottonwood Bar, four miles above Paducah, last night.

THE DEAD.

Miss Lizzie Graham, Grahamville.
Miss Lucy Barnett, of Smithland.
Miss Trixie Grimes, of Grahamville.
Mrs. David Adams, Smithland.
Mrs. W. A. Hogan and three children—Ira, aged 10; Walda, aged 8, and Lucille, aged 6, of Paducah.
W. Davis, of Livingstone county.
Clarence Slayton, of Dola, Ky.
Wallace Bennett, of Tolu, Ky.
Miss May Fleming, Birdsville, Ky.
D. Jackson, colored, of Paducah.
Will Woods, colored, Golconda.
George Washington, colored, Golconda.
Horace Rondeau, colored, Golconda.
George Sandsburg, colored, Golconda.

CARELESSNESS ALLEGED

The boat's register has not been recovered, so that a complete list of the dead is at present unobtainable. An official investigation will be made, as it seems certain that the most culpable carelessness caused the catastrophe.

A. A. Peck, the pilot, claims the engineer deserted his post, and that he could not manage the boat with the engines helpless. The engineer denies this and claims that he remained at the throttle until the water was waist deep.

Frank Enders, one of the passengers corroborated by several others, declares that the effort to land at Crowell's Landing brought the side of the boat round so that the wind struck it full force. There had been almost a gale blowing for ten minutes, and one man, it is said, went to the pilot house and begged the pilot to land. When he did finally consent to land, the hurricane struck the boat as it swung around into a position least able to resist it.

RECOVERING BODIES

Early this morning the work of searching for the remains began. Three bodies were recovered in the forenoon, those of Miss Trixie Grimes, Miss Lucy Barnett and Mrs. Dave Adams. Miss Barnett's face was badly lacerated.

This afternoon the bodies of Miss Graham and Mrs. W. Hogan and Lucille, her 6 year old daughter, were recovered. The position of the limbs and the expression on the faces, as well as scratches and bruises, indicated a fierce struggle when the prisoners were caught in the little cabin. All the bodies were brought here and prepared for burial. The work of recovery is slow, because of the furniture piled on the bodies. The boat lies in 15 feet of water, and is being dismantled in order that the dead may be reached.

Mrs. Charles Hayden, of Metropolis, Ill., the only woman saved, is badly bruised. When the boat went down she clung to her child, and both were finally saved. She was sitting on the lower guards so as to be near her husband, the engineer, when the boat turned over. A number of other narrow escapes are reported.

The passengers were at dinner in the cabin when the storm struck. There was absolutely no chance for those in the cabin to escape. The boat simply turned over and sank in ten feet of water. Captain Bauer and Pilot Peck jumped overboard and reached the shore where they secured assistance and rowed around the wreck, picking up the few who had been able to throw themselves overboard.

Of those who were inside the cabin when the steamer turned over only two—R. E. Wharton and N. E. Quartermous, of Hampton, Ky., escaped. They got out by breaking a hole through the glass top work, and were picked up by boats.

HARVESTING WELL ADVANCED.

Nearly all the Laborers Have Secured Employment.

Winnipeg, Aug. 22.—Harvesting in the Portage la Prairie district is well advanced, quite a number of the farmers have finished cutting their wheat, while the majority will be through before the end of the week. A short delay was caused by rain, but work is now in full swing again. To-night again the weather is threatening, and if it turns out wet, will cause a certain amount of further delay. Nearly all the laborers who went to Portage have secured employment, though there are still a few standing around without work. No doubt they will be able to secure work of some kind, but there are quite enough there now to satisfy the demand. The amount of machinery sold there this fall is something enormous, and it is estimated that 250 binders alone have been disposed of.

Edrans had a very slight frost about a week ago, but no damage was done. About three-fourths of the wheat in that district is cut, all of which is a fine crop and in splendid shape, there being no rust or smut.

Some of the farmers have cut a portion of their oats, which is also a very heavy crop. The pasture for cattle is very good, especially near the railway.

Many of the excursionists refused offers of $30 and $40 at Brandon.

D. S. Bannerman, of Popular Point, has forwarded a magnificent sample of wheat to the Dominion Immigration Department.

A Lack of Judment

Lindsay Post:—Constable Brock, of Fenlon Falls, did not show very good taste in performing his duties on Tuesday last, when he threatened to arrest a party of American tourists from Stony Lake, who were visiting the Cataract village, because they sought a little amusement among themselves by giving an open-air concert on the band stand. It does not seem consistent for the Fenelon Falls council to grant $50 for advertising the Kawartha Lakes and that village as a summer resort, and on the other hand allow their officer to treat tourists in such a manner.

BRITISH TAKE MANY LAAGERS

Alertness of British Soldiers Cause Boers a Run of Casualties

BOERS SHOT AND KILLED.

Cape Town, Aug. 23.—A British force under Colonel Parker has captured Commandant Hasbroem's entire commando at Dornberg. The Boers lost seven killed and two wounded in the sharp fighting before the surrender.

COLVILLE HUSTLES.

Pretoria, Aug. 23.—As the result of a sudden attack on Alberts' and Pretorius' laagers at Waterval, north of Pretoria, by Colonel Colville's column, three Boers were killed and twenty captured.

Steinacher's Horse met a force composed of Germans and Hollanders at Kallshan. One man was killed, two wounded and thirteen captured.

THE CZAR AND PEACE.

London, Aug. 23.—A Brussels journal says that the Czar has decided to broach South African intervention to the President of France and Emperor William. The paper adds, under reserve that the Czar during his stay in France will receive Mr. Kruger in private audience and obtain from him a direct statement of the Boer position, with the view of formulating a plan of action.

PRISONERS GALORE.

London, Aug. 24. — The War Office announces that the steamship Montrose sailed from Cape Town for Bermuda on August 16 with 972 Boer prisoners and 301 British troops on board. She is expected to reach Bermuda about September 11th.

GALLANT BRITISH DEFENCE.

Durban, Aug. 23.—News was but recently received here of the fall of Bremersdorp on July 23. A commando of marauding Boers made a very bold attack. They attacked a position of the other side of the town, which was held by a company of Steinacker's Horse, and which commanded the road to Lobombo.

A detachment of the Boers attempted to rush a position from which the defenders were working a Maxim gun. The deadly machine swept off every man of the attacking party. Then the whole Boer force attempted to surround the position, and to prevent capture our men slowly withdrew, keeping up a running fight for eight hours. Captain Gardyne's capable handling of his troops saved the British force from disaster. Our losses were ten killed and wounded and thirty missing. The Boer casualties were severe, particularly in the attempt to secure the Maxim gun.

THE FALL OF THE MIGHTY.

Pretoria, Aug. 23.—Schalkburger and Reitz are the only members of the old Transvaal Government Executive still in the field. Gen. Joubert is dead. Gen. Cronje is a prisoner, and Gen. Kock was killed. Out of 27 members of the first Volksraad, thirteen are accounted for.

Of the heads of State departments all are accounted for with the exception of Smuts. The sub-heads of departments have nearly all been captured or numbered among the fallen, and all the judges are accounted for.

LEADERS FLED.

Pretoria, Aug. 23.—Col. Benson's force recently executed a night march to the Lyndenburg district, where it was reported the "Provisional Transvaal Government" was quartered. Seventeen prisoners were captured, but among them were no men of prominence.

Standerton, Aug. 23.—At a farm near Volksrust were a number of Boers who had surrendered to the British. Commandant Christian Botha's column surrounded the farmhouse and called upon the occupants to surrender. After several of the besieged had been killed the remainder surrendered. These were immediately court-martialled by Botha and five were shot without delay. Four were severely flogged and sent to Volksrust, while another was taken prisoner to Amersfoort.

PASTOR HANGS HIMSELF.

A Suicide in the Belfry of His Church Wa Married Only Two Weeks.

Oxford, New Jersey, August 23.—Rev. George B. Harnington committed suicide here to-day by hanging himself in the belfry of the Methodist Church, where he had of late been preaching.

Mr. Harnington was 29 years of age, and was still a student at Drew Seminary, not yet having been admitted to full preachers' orders. He had been, however, acting as pastor of the church at Oxford, and was giving great satisfaction. His home was in Delaware, where his parents and other relatives live.

Two weeks ago he was married in Oxford to the organist of his church and so far as can be learned, his married life was happy. No cause is known fo rhis act. This morning after breakfast he remarked to his wife, as if joking, she thought, that he guessed he would kill himself during the day.

His wife thought nothing of the remark, except to say to him that it was a sorry joke to talk that way. He did not return at noon, as usual, and search for him was begun.

It was learned that during the morning he had visited the store which is operated by the Oxford Mining Company and there had purchased a piece of half-inch rope. In view of the threat to kill himself, this was alarming and a general search was instituted.

The church, being locked, was one of the last places searched, but there late this afternoon the body was found swinging in the belfry. He had tied the rope to a joist, and after placing a noose about his neck had swung off and strangled to death.

Stone Throwers Discharged

County Magistrate Edmison thought that Benjamin Curtis and Robert McKinley, who were arrested on a charge of throwing stones at a C. P. R. train, had been punished enough by their two days' imprisonment and allowed them to go on suspended sentence yesterday. They claimed they did not intend to hit anyone.

HANDS OFF IN SOUTH AMERICA

Policy of the United States in the Controversy Outlined

A PLAIN HINT TO EUROPE

Washington, Aug. 24.—Secretary Hay left Washington to-night for Canton where he will have a conference with President McKinley on the situation in South America and the isthmus of Panama. The situation will be thoroughly gone over, and a line of policy will be mapped out to meet any emergency that may arise. In its general outline that policy is well understood in Washington. There is to be no interference in the internal affairs of any of the Southern Republics, nor is there to be any intervention in their international affairs without the consent of both sides to any controversy unless such interference or intervention becomes necessayr for the protection of life and property of citizens of the United States or the fulfillment of the obligations assumed by this Government under the treaty of 1846.

This is the policy of the United States in its bearing on the Southern Republics. In its bearing towards the nations of Europe it is just as clearly defined. The Monroe doctrine is to be upheld, and the United States, while refraining from meddling with the affaire of these countries, will insist that Europe shall do the same. The policy of non-intervention will speedily become one of vigorous intervention if any European country undertakes to take a hand in the difficulty.

NOT UNDERSTOOD IN EUROPE.

Judging from the comments of European newspapers, this attitude of the United States is not at all understood in the European capitals. These comments provoked some irritation, but more amusement in Washington to-day. No one was more amused than the diplomatic representatives of the Central and South American Republics. These gentlemen and their Governments thoroughly understand the motives of the United States and do not share the fears of Europe that the Government at Washington is dreaming of territorial acquisitions south of the Rio Grande.

REPUBLICS CONFIDENT.

Dr. Martinez Silva, the Minister from Colombia, assured me in the most positive manner to-night that neither he nor his Government had any suspicion whatever of the motives of the United States and they felt certain that under no circumstances would this Government go further than to fulfill its treaty obligations, if the situation should unhappily require such action. "We feel," said he, "that we can trust implicitly the high sense of right and justice of the American people."

Senor Pulido, the Charge d'Affaires of the Venezuelan Legation, was equally as emphatic in his assurances that his Government did not distrust the United States. Venezuela is certain that under no circumstances will the Government of the United States lend itself to any design against the independence or integrity of any of the Southern Republics, and that, if action is taken at the present time it would be on the isthmus under the treaty of 1846.

"And Venezuela," said Senor Pulido, "cannot become involved in any question on the isthmus."

Venezuela is away to the eastward from Panama. While none of the countries to the south of the United States is suspicious of the design of this Government, every one of them looks to the great Power of the North to stand firmly on the Monroe Doctrine and step between them and those Powers in Europe which are looking to South America for opportunities for territorial acquisitions.

No news of any kind was received from any of the countries involved in the present disturbances to-day. This is regarded at the State Department and at the Legations as an indication that the situation is no worse.

ROYALTY MAY ARRIVE LATE.

Dates in Canada May Yet Have to be Altered.

Ottawa, Aug. 22.— The authorities here are beginning to doubt whether the Duke of Cornwall and York is going to be able to arrive at Quebec on the date named, September 16th, as the Royal party has not yet left Cape Town. The fastest run made by any of the contingents was 26 days, and bad weather might delay the Ophir. Should the vessel be late in arriving it would likely interfere somewhat with the arrangements at the various centres where fetes are being provided.

Major Maude has received a cablegram from the War Office to the effect that the clasps for the medals to be presented by his Royal Highness are being sent from the other side and will be here on time for the distribution. The medals are already here. The cablegram states that the medal rolls have been omitted, but it is learned at the Militia Department that copies of these rolls are already to hand.

NO REVIEW AT MONTREAL.

Regarding the report that there is likely to be a review held at Montreal, as well as at Quebec, the military authorities state that there will likely be a parade of the local regiments on the occasion of the distribution of medals, which may partake more or less of the nature of a review, but that nothing on the same lines as the grand review at Quebec is to be anticipated. The local regiments may, however, be put through some manoeuvres before his Royal Highness.

DECORATION OF BUILDINGS.

It is stated that the Government have decided to leave the question of decorations of the buildings in Ottawa and of Government buildings in other places in the hands of specialists. It is understood that in Ottawa these decorations will be almost entirely electrical, and that their detailed nature has been left to Messrs. Ahearn and Soper, who have the contract.

STEAMERS TO TAKE PART.

Four of the Canadian fishery protection steamers will take part in the naval demonstration at Quebec when the Duke of Cornwall and York arrives. The Acadia will be the flagship of the Governor-General, while the Minto will be at the disposal of the Minister of Marine and his colleagues in the Government.

SULTAN MAY SETTLE CLAIMS

It Is Not Likely That the French Will Have to Use Force.

CONSTANS READY TO QUIT

Paris, Aug. 23.—The claims of the French Government against Turkey are in a fair way toward settlement without any recourse to a French naval demonstration or to the seizure of customs dues at any of the Turkish ports. It is the common opinion of those who are in a position to know that the Sultan will come to terms at the last moment, and that there will be no occasion to resort to drastic measures. M. Constans has suspended all personal intercourse with the Sultan and has received instructions from the French Government to quit Constantinople whenever he deems such a step expedient. The real reason for the Sultan changing his mind and declining to fulfil his promise was that he had hopes from the clamor of the Nationalist party in France would induce M. Delcasse, Minister of Foreign Affairs, to disavow M. Constans. The Sultan's great objection to the French concession is that if the Constantinople quays were under the control of a French or foreign company there would be disquieting facilities for the landing of conspirators and their baggage, but M. Constans gave the Sultan the option of buying back the dangerous quays by paying forty-one million francs for them within six months, and providing the Porte with a scheme for raising the cash.

An important factor of the situation is that the Sultan is known to be in great fear of the Young Turk party, whose headquarters are in France, and who have for years been conspiring to get rid of Abdul Hamid. In fact, the sole duty of Munir Bey, the Turkish Ambassador at Paris, for the last four years has been to watch these Young Turks, and to send confidential reports about their doings. In case M. Constans should decide to break off diplomatic relations with Turkey, the Sultan would be kept in ignorance of the machinations of the Young Turk conspirators, and it is thought that this would have upon the timorous but crafty character of Abdul Hamid greater effect than even a naval demonstration.

SEQUEL TO BIRTH OF SON

Aas Not Spoken to His Wife Since Baby Came

BOTH PROMINENS IK SOCIETY

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 23—By a formal petition returned to the Superior Court to-day Howard B. Douglass, president of the Elm City Printing Company, and a member of one of the oldest and best known families here, is called upon to defend himself in a divorce suit in which statutory grounds are given as the reason for legal separation. Young Douglass' father is J. P. Douglass, one of the largest manufacturers in the State and the Republican candidate for city clerk at the recent municipal election. Mrs. Douglass before her marriage was Miss Olive Russell, daughter of the late Calvin Russell, a wholesale grocer. They were married four years ago, and the wedding was a brilliant society event.

Mr. Douglass' cold treatment of his wife dates from the birth of his little son, now about a year old, according to a close friend of his, who adds that the advent of the infant into the Douglass household was very unwelcome to the father, who has never since spoken to the infant's mother or to the babe.

Until three months ago the young couple lived at the residence of Douglass' parents, in Whitney avenue. They were prominent in the younger set in society for three years, but six months ago they dropped out of society and were seen together but little. In May they separated, Mrs. Douglass going to the home of her mother, in Bradley street, taking with her the little child, and she has since resided there.

Gossip has been rife about the young couple for several months, but only within a fortnight have there been reports of a contemplated divorce. The papers filed to-day contained accusations of improper conduct on the part of the defendant at a New York hotel, and while the name of the correspondent is not given, society leaders are repeating rumors which, if verified, as those of the impending divorce have been, will involve another person of prominence. The name of former Judge Lucius P. Deming, of the common pleas court, appears on the writ as that of Mrs. Douglass' counsel. Mr. Deming declined to-night to discuss the case, which will come up for trial on September 4.

FINANCES OF GRAND TRUNK

Full Dividends Will be Paid on Both Stock

Subject to audit the results of accounts of the Grand Trunk Railway Company for the half year ended June 30, are as follows:—

Gross Receipts, £2,288,000; working expenses, including special appropriation of £10,000 to bridge renewal account £1,546,000; net receipts, £743,000; net revenue charges for the half year, less credits, £524,500. leaving £218,500; deducting amounts payable by the company under traffic and other agreements—Grand Trunk Western Company, £6,300, and Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee Company, £18,200, there is a surplus for the half year of £194,000. This surplus of £193,000, added to the balance of £2,500 from December, 1900, makes a total amount of £195,500 available for dividend, which will admit of the payment of the full dividends for the half year on the 5 per cent. guaranteed stock and the 5 per cent first preference stock, leaving a balance of about £6,700 to be carried forward.

TREACHERY OF BOER WOMEN FATAL TO THE BRITISH ARMY

Their Work as Spies Has Led to the Slaughter of Many a Tommy Atkins

MURDERESSES ARE ALL WELL TREATED IN THE BRITISH CAMP.

London Aug. 23.— Edgar Wallace, writing to The Daily Mail from Johannesburg, says,—

"There have been many occasions since the war started when I have wished most earnestly that the friends of emancipated womanhood had had their way, and that the exact status of woman had and that equal to that of man. I have often wished her all the rights and privileges of her opposite fellow. The right to wear his clothes and adopt his freedoms, to earn money, smoke cut cavendish, and wear a ring on her little finger. Also to share man's trials and hardships and responsibilities. To lead men into action, to be always eligible for the Victoria Cross, to be honored for her gallantry—and shot for her treachery. I wonder how many graves Boer women have filled this past year or so! How many brave fellows have given up their lives through a woman's treachery! Women have played a great part in this war, not so much the part of heroine as spy. Not so much in the way of fighting in the trenches as luring the unsuspecting to destruction. The symbol of her patriotism is not the eagle of war, it is rather the decoy duck. The women I speak of are the wives and sisters of the poorer Boers, people who believe that the secret service fund is an English myth, and are actuated in their treachery only by their hatred for the British, and the knowledge born of experience that however badly a woman behaves we shall treat her with the same courtesy and gentleness that we should employ towards her were she our dearest friend instead of our unreasoning foe."

"It has been one of the problems of the war, this question of women enemies and what to do with them, and we have solved the problem in the easiest and most gentlemanly way. We have decided that we do not make war upon women and children, and if through illnature women and children make war on us, we loftily refuse to acknowledge that they are making war, refuse to take them seriously in fact, and after we have buried the Tommies who foolishly accepted the woman's invitation to step in and have a cup of coffee, and are shot from the window by gentlemen friends of the hostess, we return the hospitable invitation of the lady of the house, give her tea, and tell her that we are awfully sorry, don't you know, but we are confoundedly afraid she will have to be brought into the women's refugee camp. We take the murderess into a camp where she will be well fed and kindly treated and we don't burn her farm for fear Mr. Lloyd George or Mr. Redmond shall ask questions in the House. If I were to write down every story I have heard of Boer women's treachery, I should fill these columns, but here is a peculiar instance Two mounted troopers were out on patrol when they came to a Boer farmhouse. They dismounted some distance from the house, which apparently was deserted, except by a woman, who, standing on the steps beckoned the men to advance. This they did and walked to within a few paces of the building, when the woman suddenly disapeared from view through an open doorway, and the next moment a volly was fired from the house.

"Very few people know that De Wet has not once but often owed his wonderful escapes to the aid of women sympathizers. When he was last in the Cape Colony, and we had driven him off northward to the Orange River the women on some of the farms in the Hopetown district had arranged a signal whereby De Wet's hidden scouts should be made aware of the proximity of our scouts. A patrol of Victorians who rode up to a farmhouse was somewhat astonished to see the good lady, who had been taking a siesta on the stoop, suddenly rise from her chair and, making for the door, for apparently no other reason than to make a noise, violently slam it twice. As she did so a horseman broke from the bushes a few hundred yards beyond, and galloped for all he was worth. De Wet, who was in the angle formed by the Brak and Orange Rivers, waiting for one of the two streams to fall, moved that night eastward, and Plumer, who was marching to intercept him, only managed to get on to the tail of the enemy's column. The arrival of a woman at a refugee camp does not mean that her opportunities for evildoing are ended. In the Orange River Colony recently a plot was discovered, in which the prime movers were women, for the rushing of the camp at night, and instances are innumerable of the Boer women of the refugee camps having systematically transmitted important military intelligence to the commandoes outside.

"It is unfortunately true, too that the Boer women, and for the matter of that gentler sympathisers with the Boer cause, have not confined their efforts to aiding the enemy practically. The foulest of all the slanders which have been utilised to inflame the passions of the Cape Dutch, and to excite the horror and pity of the civilised world, have emanated from feminine sources. Stories of murder, outrage, and suffering have originated in the minds of women enjoying British protection, and have been glibly repeated by others who have received at our hands all kindness and chivalrous attention.

"In Capetown, the hub on which the whole organism of sedition turns is a woman. In her salon are to be found England's bitterest enemies, and here it is that propagandists are born, new embarrassments for England are planned, and subscription lists for sedition-mongers caught tripping, initiated. Here gather the men who pull the strings, the Krugerian agents, the subsidisers of the pro Boer press. Here are the semi-millionaires who inspire articles against capitalism; the ministers of religion who weave devilish mendacities about our soldiers; the hybrid crowd of journalists who, in varying degrees of vituperative violence, shriek periodically for moderation. And the women gives them tea and inspiration."

Horrible Lynching of a Negro in Texas

EXPIATION OF A FEARFUL CRIME

Dallas, Tex., August 23.—A dispatch received here to-night from Whitesboro, Tex., is to the effect that the negroe, Abe Wilder, charged with assaulting and murdering Mrs. Caldwell, the wife of a Grayson county farmer, at her home on Saturday last, was captured by a mob and burned at Nelson's ranch, 2 1-2 miles east of Red ranch. The burning occurred early to-night. The mob was composed of 300 men.

The negroe was taken to a tree and swung up in the air. Wood was piled beneath his body and a hot fire was made. Then it was suggested that the man ought not to be permitted to die too quickly, and he was let down to the ground, while a party went to Dexter, about two miles distant, to procure coal oil. This was thrown on the flames and the work completed.

Wilder was captured near Dexter about 2 o'clock this afternoon. He had been seen the day before by a negro who knew him and who had informed the citizens of the fact. A posse was at once organized and the work of beating the Red River bottoms began. It is said that it was the intention of the mob to take him back to the scene of his crimme and there lynch him. but messages by telegraph and telephone gave warning that the authorities were hastily repairing to the scene with a considerable force, and the work of execution was expedited.

At Whitesboro a great crowd had gathered in anticipation of a chance to participate in the lynching, and when it was learned that the work had been done, they expressed great disappointment.

Mrs. Caldwell was a bride of but six months.

Dexter is far removed from railroads there are no telegraph facilities, and it will be some time before all the details of the lynching can be made known.

SHAFFER PLANS VICTORY

Says He Has Found a Way to End Strike

Pittsburg, Aug. 23.—President T. J. Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association, said to-night that he has well defined plans to bring the great strike to a close. This is to be done by bringing about such a crisis in the differences between the steel corporation and the Amalgamated Association as will force a settlement. Just how all this is to be accomplished is a mystery, but it will not be by arbitration or litigation. "We have not heard from the other side," said Mr. Shaffer, "we have not placed anything before them. We are not looking for arbitration. Arbitration, representing both sides, might be worse than the strike itself."

CANADIAN PREACHERS SLUMING IN SYRACUSE

One Arrested on Charge of Intoxication.

MAGISTRATE LET HIM FREE.

Syracuse, N. Y., August 23.—Rev. David Sanderson, a well-known Methodist clergyman of Almonte, Ont., was arrested this morning on a charge of intoxication and disturbance in a disorderly house in East Washington st., and later he was arraigned in Police Court.

Sanderson said that he was on the way to Buffalo with Rev. Foster M. Cannon, another Methodist minister. The two, he said started out for a walk, and Sanderson got separated from his friend about midnight. He then met two men on the street and visited a saloon with them. He drank something he thought was ginger ale, and the two men took him to a place conducted by Pearl Ashley, where they rang the bell and left him. Finally he found that his watch was gone and complained to a policeman.

The Ashley woman, arrested with Sanderson, claimed that the two clergymen met her and went into a saloon and drank with her. She said the dominies were easy and had a wad of money. Later in the night Sanderson came to her house and was drunk. She said that his friend who came with him was also a clergyman and pointed out a man in the court room. The man referred to came forward and told the Police Justice that he was a minister, that his name was Foster McCannon and that he and his friend had been seeing the town. He became separated from Sanderson and found him at the place of the Ashley woman and his watch gone.

Police Justice Thompson told the ministers that as it was a case of religion he would let them go.

A dispatch from Almonte says that Rev. David C. Sanderson is pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church there and is well known and respected.

KNOWN IN OTTAWA.

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Regarding the episode at Syracuse, N. Y., where two Methodist ministers, Revs. D. C. Sanderson, of Almonte, and F. McAmmond of Perth, were overtaken by rather compromising circumstances, it may be said that both parties are known here. Mr. McAmmond used to be in the Eastern Methodist Church in Ottawa, and Mr. Sanderson, also was situated in the capital for a time.

Mr. Sanderson on his return to Almonte to-day was interviewed and refused to make any statement as to the trouble in Syracuse. He said that he and Mr. McAmmond would make their explanation at the meeting of the spires at Smith's Falls tomorrow. He volunteered the remark, however, that he had seen the report of Mr. McAmmond's evidence at the trial in Syracuse, and that it was correct. He says his confrere was drugged.

From Perth comes the intelligence that the Rev. F. McAmmond left there this week for Gananoque or Buffalo.

WHY DID HE SEIZE THE SANDWICHES ?

Port Hope Collector Asked to Explain.

FRIED CHICKEN AND PICKLES

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Enquiries will be made to learn the reason why a lunch basket which was carried by County Judge Arthur E. Sutherland, of this city, was confiscated by a Customs official at Port Hope, Canada, on the 14th of the present month. The judge was subjected to no little humiliation, and does not feel kindly towards the particular official who was responsible.

Judge Sutherland left Charlotte with his sister and daughter on the boat Caspian. Portions of their lunch were eaten on the boat, but when they got off at Port Hope the basket contained these articles.—Part of one fried chicken, some slices of bread and butter, a dozen pickles, cup of orange marmalade, part of a cup of Philadelphia cheese, two bottles of cold coffee, four wooden plates, an equal number of paper napkins, and three knives.

Customs Officer Bletcher declared that the basket contained provisions, and that duty should be paid.

The judge said he would leave the basket on the dock rather than submit to such an arbitrary ruling.

The officer insisted, and Judge Sutherland handed the basket and its contents to one of the Caspian's crew, the only one who got any enjoyment out of the incident. A big crowd was attracted. One of the Rochester papers demands Bletcher's dismissal.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME TO THE DUKE OF YORK

Ottawa, Aug. 23.—Major Maude, secretary to the Governor-General, has issued a circular stating that addresses to the Duke of York should be presented at the following centres: Quebec, Toronto, Montreal, (Montreal addresses only), London (London addresses only), Ottawa, Hamilton (Hamilton addresses only), Winnipeg, Kingston, Regina, St. John, Vancouver, Halifax, Victoria.

Drafts of addresses for presentation to his Royal Highness should reach the Governor-General's secretary, the Citadel, Quebec, by the 1st September next. It should be stated at which "centre" it is proposed to present them.

The deputation intending to present an address should be limited to five individuals. The names of the proposed deputation should in every case accompany the draft of the address.

STEEL STRIKE SITUATION IS STILL UNCHANGED

Pittsburg, Aug. 23.—The steel strike situation was without material change today. All the combine plants started recently with non-union workmen were in operation, with about the same number of men as yesterday and quiet prevailing at all points. The steel officials appear satisfied with the progress made, and are evidently preparing more surprises for the strikers in the way of starting other plants with imported men.

LOOKING TOWARDS AUSTRALIA

There are indications that the British Government, and especially Mr. Chamberlain, are anxious to draw the Colonies closer to the Mother Country. This Mr. Chamberlain is attempting to do in the manner which will be most acceptable to the colonies themselves, and instances of the methods which he pursues are to be found in the proposed reconstruction of the Supreme Court of Appeal, and in the suggested revision of the King's title. The great danger in all such changes is that they may be made in advance of public sentiment in the colonies, or that the true significance of the changes may not be properly understood. Imperial unity is very desirable, but is is better to leave it to develop gradually, than to risk, ever so slightly, its ultimate safety by inaugurating changes for which the Colonies are not quite prepared. Every issue as it arises should be squarely faced, and thoroughly understood before any action is taken either by the Imperial or by the British Government. It is unwise to take any step in questions of far reaching importance, which is not perfectly comprehended by the people, for when the true significance is understood it may give rise to dissatisfaction, which will do something and delay the consummation of the aims of those who are striving to bring about closer ties between the various sections of the British realm. In a recent article on "The Unity of the British Empire," which Hon. David Mills contributed to the Empire Review, a hint is conveyed of this danger, and a word of caution is given, for Mr. Mills says: "Again there is abroad in the Empire a strong feeling in favor of permanent unity, and I earnestly hope that the growth of this feeling may not be hindered or delayed by undertaking to determine at the outset an Imperial constitution, instead of permitting it to grow up by slow degrees, in the way the public exigencies may point out. Enduring political constitutions are the outcome of the national life, acting upon the affairs of State as they arise, and we must be content to give them free play and wait patiently the result, and so an imperial constitution may arise in the course of years, as strong, as flexible, as that under which, at the present time, the United Kingdom is governed." There are, as everyone knows, anomolies in the relations which exist between the Colonies and the Mother Country, but it is better to suffer them in patience for a while than to attempt to remedy them by hasty and ill-considered schemes.

IMPERIAL PROBLEMS

That the trade of Australia is evidently worth competing for, and that Canada, with the advantage of sentiment in her favor, should make a strong bid for a good share in it, is suggested by the present activity of other nations, as well as by the personal observations of Hon. William Mulock while visiting that country.

Not only have new steamers been put on the Australian route by the United States and a great advance made in the volume of trade during the last three or four years, but both France and Italy are stirring to increase their business with the Commonwealth.

It is announced that steps are being taken for the establishment of a Belgian-French-Australian line of steamers, and that the Italian government is contemplating the speedy creation of a new line connecting Italian ports with Australia, on which only first-class boats shall be employed.

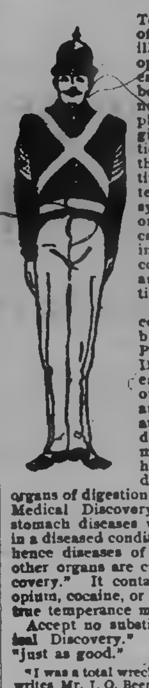
Canada will be compelled to do something as quickly as possible.

THE DESPISED MOSQUITO

The despised mosquito seems destined to loom large as an enemy of mankind in the near future. Our ancestors fought for existence with the wild beasts—the mammoth, the mastodon, and eke the ichthyosaurus—and they did them all up. Now their degenerate descendants have to tackle the mosquito. The death of two unfortunate men experimented upon in Cuba has demonstrated that the bite of a mosquito which has previously preyed upon persons stricken with yellow fever usually proves fatal. Three men were experimented upon. Two died and the other is dying, while the original sufferers are recovering. Scientists who have studied the cases believe that the same results follow in other virulent diseases.

AN IMMIGRATION FRAUD

New York, Aug. 22.—An alleged scheme to defraud the Government and evade the immigration laws by securing the admission of undesirable immigrants, by means of forged papers and collusion between ships officers and inspectors of immigration, has developed here. If the story of an inspector, told to Assistant Commissioner of Immigration McSweeney, is borne out in the United States court to-day when an officer of a steamship line will, the Times says, be arraigned. there will be a general investigation of departments in the Immigration Bureau in this city. According to the inspector's story, he was approached by the officer of the steamship and told of a scheme to defraud the Government, in which he was invited to join. This scheme, in brief, was that immigrants, mostly Italians, and all of the undesirable class, be entered on the ship's books as American citizens, and on the voyage provided with forged papers made in Europe with which to carry out their claim of previous residence. For this the immigrants were to pay $5 each and 60 or 70 could be landed every trip, or altogether 3,000 or 4,000 every year. The inspector reported to Commissioner McSweeney and was told to acquiesce. He did so, and when the ship arrived on Sunday the immigrants were landed, but never got further than the pier. The ship's officer was then arrested. The names have not yet developed, but during the day the case will probably come up in court.



ATTENTION

To physical warnings will often prevent a serious illness. When there are oppresaive fullness after eating, bitter risings, belching, headache, dizziness, nervousness, with physical and mental sluggishness, prompt attention should be given to the condition of the digestive and nutritive systems. Not all these symptoms will occur at once or in any single case, but any one of them indicates a disordered condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

A prompt cure of these conditions will be effected by the timely use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It heals diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, perfectly and permanently. Many diseases, seemingly remote from the stomach, have their origin in a diseased condition of the organs of digestion and nutrition. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures through the stomach diseases which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach, and hence diseases of liver, lungs, heart and other organs are cured by use of the "Discovery." It contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, or other narcotic. It is a true temperance medicine.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing else "just as good."

"I was a total wreck—could not sleep or eat," writes Mr. J. O. Beers, of Berryman, Crawford Co., Mo. "For two years I tried medicine from doctors but received very little benefit. I lost flesh and strength, was not able to do a good day's work. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and when I had taken one bottle I could sleep, and my appetite was wonderfully improved. I have taken five bottles and am still improving."

THE GREAT STRIKE

Pittsburg, Aug. 22.—The developments in the steel strike this morning were all favorable to the masters. Early this morning the American Tin Plate Company succeeded in getting about 100 men safely inside the gates of the Star plant on Twelfth street in this city, and preparations were in progress for starting up two mills before the close of the day. Another crew was put on at the Lindsay and McCutcheon works in Allegheny, and the "Jinney" mill started, and 200 men were reported at work in the Painter plant, on the south side.

A report that the Amalgamated Association will enter suits against the operating companies of the United States Steel Corporation, charging violation of the Pennsylvania law respecting the discharge of union labor, is denied by William J. Brennan, solicitor for the worker's organization, who said that the association will not seek to terminate the strike by litigation, or attack the legality of the United States Steel Corporation in the courts.

Notices have been posted at the National Tube Works, McKeesport, requiring the strikers to call at the company's offices tomorrow and Saturday and receive their money. It was reported at McKeesport that the National Tube Company would ask every employe when he calls for his money whether he wants to return to work, and if enough men signify their intention to return to work the mill will be started Monday.

An official of the Tube Works made the statement that the company was receiving letters from all over the country from skilled workmen making application for positions.

Pittsburg, Aug. 21.—No attempt was made by the steel managers to start any more mills yesterday. There has been no extension of the strike and no change in the situation. Late in the day fires were lighted in the Demmler Tin Plate Works at McKeesport, but the machinery was not started, and no attempt was made to operate it. The Monessen plant is moving ahead under full crews, and their Crescent works at Cleveland have about half the machinery in operation. There has been no break in the Carnegie group, and the mills that have been started with non-union men since the strike began are going ahead with about the same force of men.

On the streets it was a day of exciting rumors. It was another day of peace in all the strike districts, although the general probability of trouble still holds good at the places where feeling runs high.

Syracuse, Aug. 21.—In response to a call issued by the Executive of the United Mine Workers of America last Wednesday, a referendum vote is now being taken by the boards of all international trades unions on the proposition to hold a convention of all international presidents and secretaries to devise means for giving the strikers assistance. It is reported that President Gompers will call the convention at a central point within ten days.

The Aristos GOLD MINING CO.
Owning Big Horn Mountain Tunnel and Veneta Vein, 200 acres situated on the Western Slope of Pikes Peak, in the famous Cripple Creek Gold Mining District

THE SAFEST OFFER EVER MADE TO INVESTORS

It is printed on each certificate that subscribers to the above Preferred Share will be entitled to receive in Dividends the full amount of money invested, before other stockholders receive any returns, signed by the President of the Company.

This district produced more Gold in 1900 than any other in the United States.

This property consists of 3000 by 3000 feet, or 200 acres, of gold land. The mine has been worked. The feature of this mine is the Veneta Vein, 30 to 40 feet in width, and is certainly one of the strongest veins in this famous district. There are some fifteen openings on this vein, the ore from which assays in gold from $12 to $100 per ton. The property is advantageously located for development by tunnel, which will make it possible to produce an enormous amount of ore daily, the quantity varying from 200 to 500 tons per day. The development by TUNNELING is the most economical and advantageous manner of working this property.

At a distance of 800 feet the Tunnel will intersect the Veneta Vein at a depth of about 680 feet, and will also intersect several other veins. The tunnel will cut the Big Horn Mountain 2100 feet deep, and will give this company 2,000,000 tons of ore, worth over $20 per ton.

The new railroad, now practically completed from Colorado Springs, called the Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek road, passes within 2000 feet of this Tunnel.

Adjoining this property is the Colorado Springs TUNNEL Company. In this property at a depth of 400 feet, the Veneta Vein was cut. At this point the vein was fully 20 feet in width, and its value from $20 to $1000 per ton.

There are already in operation mills and smelters sufficient to treat the output of this property, which gives at once cash returns.

Capital Stock $1,000,000. Par Value $1.00 Per Share. 100,000 Shares Preferred Stock at 25c. Per Share.

In buying this stock the purchaser owns a direct title in the Company's property. This Company offers you no watered stock, but a legitimate high-grade gold-mining investment in the Cripple Creek District.

The above offer of Preferred Dividends is an assurance of early returns. After additional machinery is erected, this property will be earning dividends almost equal to its Capital Stock.

Romance of "Maudie."

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

This was a good girl, but not much of a girl. Small-boned, under-statured under-fed, with a thin voice, plenty of brown hair, a wasp waist and pale skin, the fact that the other girls in the department store called her "Maudie" expressed her exactly. When she got a letter, which did not happen very often, it was addressed to "Miss Maud Jennings," but the name seemed formal even to her and to everyone who knew her she was just "Maudie"—"Maudie" who worked twelve hours a day six days in the week for $3.50, and counted herself lucky to get so much. Why, she knew girls—there was Miss Timmins, Miss Smith, Miss Brown a whole lot of them who got only $3, but they worked in the plain goods department to be sure, and did not have charge of the counters of cheap novels, bought at one-quarter price by the firm from frightened publishers who were trying to dodge bankruptcy.

Her father had been a railway brakeman up to the time when a train broke him into several bits. Her mother got $1,000 insurance money from the Ancient, Honourable, Free and Independent Order of American Bird Eagles, and promptly lost it all in keeping a boarding-house. Then she, too, died and "Maudie" went to live with a married cousin, who took her in because, as she said frankly, she had nowhere else to go. This fellow drove a wagon for a parcels delivery company and got $16 a month for the work. He supported a frayed wife and three pasty-city children on his earnings, and not unnaturally had positive ideas about the necessity of everyone makin' a hustle for cash." "Maudie" hustled for cash. She hustled and hustled until the department store job fell in her way and she took it with a sense of great good fortune. She paid $1.50 for board, 60 cents a week for car fare and clothed herself and bought caramels with the remaining $1.40. Moreover, as is the case with thousands of American girls similarly placed, she was surprisingly well dressed.

She had been in the department store about a year, and though she did not know it, another year of it would kill her. Daily she stood behind the counter and sold books or peeped into them surreptitiously. While she came in this way to have a speaking acquaintance with most of the underdone trash fiction of the day, she also got thinner and paler and weaker. Her only way of noting her declining condition was by her increasing weariness at night. Young though she was, she began to have some black moments of thought in her little hall bedroom after she had turned out the light for sleep.

At this time her cousin told her that his wages had been reduced—which was not true—and he must have $2 a week for board.

"You can't expect me Maudie," he said, "to set the table I do on what you're paying me. If you can't afford it, go to your boss and tell him he kin keep you from jumpin' th' res'vation only by givin' you a raise."

She cried secretly about this, as she had begun to have dreams of a large Gainsborough hat which hung unclaimed in the millinery department and had been marked down to $1.98, but she went steadily on.

A drizzle set in just before 6 o'clock in the afternoon and when she passed out of the doors of the shop she found the sidewalks slippery and the crossings an abomination. Three cars swing in on three curving tracks at Hayes and Garfield streets and they make a terrible clanging and grindin in the rush hours but she was inured to them. She took the "red cable" six evenings in a week and was used to caring for herself.

She never knew how it happened, but she lost her head. Her own car was coming from the south, another was tearing in from the north. From the west loomed a creaking monster, and she standing paralyzed where she would be struck and killed by the first to reach her. The gripmen reared backward upon their levers and yelled and banged their bells, but the sickened crowd upon the sidewalk knew that in another instant she would be only a shapeless bundle of crushed flesh and cheap clothing.

Then a lanky figure gained her side in two leaps, swung her over its shoulder, made the opposite walk in two more frog like hops and set her down with a bump. Her knees gave under her, and looking at her, the man, more than six feet high and dressed in a countryman's garb, saw that she had fainted. His long serious face grew frightened and he looked about helplessly.

"Snatch de goil inter de drugship!" said a street urchin, waving a grimy paw. By the gesture the man knew that a drug store was meant. He bore "Maudie" lightly in and, not knowing what else to do with her, laid her softly on the counter. A clerk pressed a bottle of sal volatile under her turned-up nose and she shivered and opened her eyes.

She was a good hearted, simple little thing, for all of her shopgirl ways. She felt grateful and she told him so. He stared down at her bashfully, his new wool hat in his hands.

"Don't mention it; don't say nothin' about it," he protested. "Hit warn't nothin 'tall. I'm Abner Cummins and I live up Humboldt way; in here with a car load o' cattle, you see; an' I'd like to see you home."

She said prettily that she would be very glad. Abner paid the car fares from a fat wallet.

That was the beginning of the end of it, which is plain. In the "best room" of Maudie's married cousin was a little wheezy "melodeon," which had belonged to "Maudie's mamma. Cummins, it appeared, lived a lonely life on his farm, and he was fond of certain classes of music—"mos'ly hims an' sakerd chunes," he said. When he found that she could play "Amazin' Grace," "You must Be a Lover of the Lord," Ebenezer' and dozens of other of the simple melodies which he had heard chanted and whined since his childhood his delight was great and noisy. When she tortured the rheumatic instrument into a cheap waltz or two and a couple of the latest "coon" songs he looked on her with awe.

Abner stayed in town three days and then tore himself away with an effort. From home he wrote her queer stiff, misspelled letters. She asked him to direct to her at the store, and she became a heroine to the other girls. She answered faithfully, saying such things as she could think to say, and they were not many. He asked her once what she considered to be the best brand of melodeon, and she told him that. "I know reapers, binders, mowers, and such things," he wrote "but when it comes to music I have to stall, hub deep."

Possibly she was not surprised when he came to town in the fall, sat in the best room, twirled his hat upon his knees, stared absently at the floor, and asked her to marry him. Anyhow, she said that she would, and she agreed with him that long engagements were unwise.

When she had given consent, he said, soberly:

"I s'pose I orter tell you that I'll take good care o' you. I ain't said nothin' 'bout hit heretofore, but I'm a pretty warm man; I mean," he added hastily, "I'm pretty well fixed. I've got a good farm and some cattle and some money, and I don't owe nobody nothin'. I'll do my best by you."

Then "Maudie" who had dipped into her cheap books and whose little head was well filled with visions of belted earls and mailclad knights and handsome pages, went up to him and put her brown hair against his shoulder and said:

"I know you will, Ab."

It is proper to add that in the country air, on a diet of eggs, milk chickens and so forth with long hours of sleep and freedom from the grinding cares of poverty, "Maudie" blossomed and bourgeoned and bloomed like a rose. She got pink pink in her cheeks and a sparkle in her eye. Her husband's honest belief that she was a pearl without price and the most God-gifted musician in the state did much to build her up.

It is proper to add, also, that in the ensuing summer she got a letter from her married cousin, who suggested that farm life for a month or two would agree with him and his family. She showed this to "Ab." His gaunt form straightened and he brought a knotted hand down upon the kitchen table.

"Charged you $2 out'n your $3.50 fer board, did he, the mean cuss!" he said. "You write to him, Maudie, thet they ain't room in the same township for me an' him."

RECENT WEDDINGS.

Opening of the Fall Campaign of Cupid.

A Sheep Killing Case.

The Mail and Empire publishes the following despatch concerning the recent marriage of Mr. Louis Turnbull, son of Mr. J. C. Turnbull, formerly of Peterborough,—

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 22. — The marriage of Miss Josephine Eldridge, daughter of Rev. Geo. N. Eldridge, of Irvington, to Louis Turnbull, of Toronto, was quietly solemnized at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull left for Toronto today. In the fall they will sail for India, as missionaries, to remain seven years. The wedding was the final chapter of a happy, romance which began two years ago at the Missionary Training School at Nyack, N.Y.

At the residence of Mr. Thomas, Emmons, Emmonsville, his eldest daughter, Miss Emily, was married to Rev L. S. Wight, B. A., of Millbrook

After the ceremony the guests, who numbered about fifty, sat down to a sumptuous repast. Mr. and Mrs. Wight were the recipients of many costly and beautiful presents.

Dr. W. H. T. Peake of Campbellford, and Miss Helena M. Lazier, daughter of Mr. N. M. Lazier, were wed at Belleville on Thursday.

The marriage of Dr. Harry B. Anderson, Professor of Pathology in Trinity Medical College, Toronto, formerly of Norwood, to Miss Florence Northway daughter of Mr. John Northway, of Maple avenue, Rosedale, took place on Wednesday of last wek.

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Another Open Meeting Was Held Last Night.

MR. McCLELLAN AND "REVIEW."

The open meeting of the Federation of Labor last night was well attended and the continual additions to the membership roll show that the movement has taken a strong hold.

Mr. Robert McGregor of the carpenter's union and Mr. J. H. McClellan delivered addresses.

Mr. McGregor gave some information about the Federation, saying it has 2,000,000 affiliated members. This includes trades unions, which have separate charters. In towns such as Peterborough where there are few trades unions, all classes of workers come under the one charter. The organizer, Mr. John Flett, will soon visit Peterborough. Mr. McGregor urged that the Town Council should have a clause in corporation contracts providing for a 9 hour day and a wage of 15 cents an hour. Labor men should look to it that the union label is on goods they purchase.

Mr. J. H. McClellan's speech was in the nature of a reply to certain remarks of the Review newspaper upon his address at a former meeting. He did not know why he was singled out, unless because he happened to be a business man, and it was hoped that a good drubbing to him would deter other business men from joining the Federation. He had been criticised on account of his support of the new power company, it being held that the power should belong to the town. The town had reserved 400 horse power, which would run eight factories as large as Peter Hamilton's. The new company will give power for $15, while the old charge is $25 per horse power. Ten dollars per horse power off the income of the old company means a subtraction of $10,000 or $15,000 a year from men closely connected with the newspaper in question. Touching the charge that there was politics in the business, he said that no one would accuse Mr. Meldrum the largest stockholder, or Mr. Frank Matthews, of being a Grit. As for personal advantage Mr. McClellan pointed out that Frank Matthews is his largest customer for coal and when he gets cheap power he will buy no more. But by increase of population he would be more than compensated by the purchases of workingmen. Mr. McClellan denied the insinuation that he was the author of a telegram sent by Mr. McGregor to Ottawa about the Auburn Woollen Mills, and which caused a debate in Parliament. He expressed sympathy with the striking railway and iron and steel men and said that he had written to Ottawa urging that Peterborough should have a correspondent of the Labor Gazette. In conclusion he promised to join in the demonstration at Chemong on Labor Day.

TURKISH ARMY MAY REBEL

Bordering on Anarchy Because of Arrears in Pay

Constantinople, August 24—The whole Turkish army is ready to rebel because of arrears in pay. It is in a state bordering on anarchy, and a number of violent acts on the part of the soldiers have been reported. The garrison at Andrianople threatened to burn the Governor's house and hold him captive unless the money matters were settled. The Porte sent a courier to pay the men, and trouble was averted there.

At Bitlis, in Asiatic Turkey, the garrison mutinied for the same cause and threatened to pillage the town. At Monastir, in Macedonia, a mutiny was started, and the Governor called the notables of the place together, and a subscription was raised and the troops paid.

At Scio, an island belonging to Turkey off the west coast of Asia Minor, the troops have tied the officers' hands and feet and refuse to release them until the arrears are paid.

Obituary

The sudden and unexpected death of Mrs. John Coe, of Cavanville, took place Sunday last. She walked over to her son's, ex-Councillor R. Coe's for dinner, and sat down to rest before going into the house. When she was called to dinner she was found dead in her chair from heart failure, which had been troubling her for years. Deceased was one of the oldest residents of the township, the mother of a large and respected family. Messrs. Richard and James in Cavan, John A., barrister in Toronto, William in Manitoba, Mrs. McGill and Mrs. Whitfield, Cavan, Mrs Staples, Cobourg, Mrs. Wood and Miss Coe, who lived with their mother and Mr. James Coe on the old homestead at Cavanville. The funeral took place on Tuesday to St. John's cemetery, Rev. Mr. Moment, Methodist minister, and Ven. Archdeacon Allen being present and taking part in the funeral services, where she was buried beside the remains of her husband, who has been dead for many years. The kindly and hospitable face of Mrs Coe will be much missed, as no home in Cavan made old or young more welcome.

U. S. Gov't on Foods.

GRAPE-NUTS.

Solve the Problem

The U. S. Government has been attempting to instruct the people regarding the purchase of food that would give the best advantage to the system with the least expenditure of money. A report has been made by Professor Atwater, the famous chemist, and the subject is of great interest.

This is an age of specialists, and the work of the food specialist is of great importance. Persons who do not care to go into all of the details and statistics, can secure practical results by using Grape-Nuts, the breakfast food, which is probably the most scientifically made food in the market. It is made for a purpose and was originated by a food expert of unquestioned standing.

The elemental principles contained in Grape-Nuts are selected for their value in rebuilding the brain and nerve centres in the human body. The subject is worth any brain worker's attention. The Food is fully cooked at the factory and is ready for instant service.

PURELY PERSONAL.

—Mr. George J. Chalmers shipped a gang of men last week to the lumbering district, and will ship another this week.

—The Lindsay band is holding an excursion to Sturgeon Point on Labor Day to raise funds to purchase new instruments.

—The infant class of All Saints Church will picnic at Jackson park this afternoon. Buses will leave the church at two o'clock.

—Two lads were before Mr. James Stevenson, J. P. yesterday, charged by Miss Leonard with stealing fruit. There were discharged with a warning.

—Mr. Jacobs, the well-known horse dealer shipped a carload of fine horses to Montreal this week. A number will be sent to Africa for war purposes and others to England for farmers there.

—The Pepper Twins—Alvin and Orvin—who will be remembered at the "Living Whist" entertainment here last winter, have returned to Lindsay after having put in the summer season at the public parks in London, Toronto, Kingston and Cornwall, where they won the plaudits of the assembled throngs. They have now entered into a three years' engagement with the Marks Bros. and leave on Thursday next to join the company at Perth.

STRIKE NEAR AN END.

Mr. Frank Chittick, of the C. P. R. Special Service, Talks of Labor Trouble.

Mr. Frank Chittick, of the special service department, C.P.R., Montreal, passed through Peterborough yesterday and thus speaks of the strike:—

"The trackmen's strike is about over," Mr. Chittick said. "It would have been settled long ago but for the officiousness of President Wilson, but the strikers have got rid of him now. Another cause of the delay in settling the trouble has been the fact that the trackmen out west could make $2.50 a day in the harvest field. They have not been anxious consequently to return to work on the railroad. But some of them will find their places filled when they do return. We have been sending one hundred men a day west from Montreal."

How He Was "Fired."

"I've been chucked out of a lot of places in my time," remarked a young man last night to a Times reporter, "but I never was so neatly told to go as yesterday and that by a regular brick of a land lady on Water street. After breakfast she said she had a word to say to me. I told her politely to make it a dozen but I was trembling in my boots. 'Mr. Blank,' she said, 'you've been smoking in the parlor.' I had to confess that I had been. 'And you've smoked in the library,' she went on. 'But that was a week ago,' I expostulated. 'And you've smoked in your bedroom,' she went on, without paying the least attention to my interruptions. 'But in my own room I cried. 'And you've even smoked in the dining room when I was away,' she wound up, 'and you owe me for three weeks' board. Now Mr. Blank, where there's so much smoke, there must, I think, be a little fire.' So she fired me."

ACCIDENTALLY KILLS FATHER.

Pursell and His Son Were Trying to Slay Canines.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 23.—Martin V. Pursell was shot and instantly killed by his son, Orlander, at Sneedville Tenn. Dogs had been worrying Mr. Pursell at night and he and his son, Orlander, had fixed to shoot the dogs when they came. Both were watching for the canines. Being very dark, Orlander heard a noise and saw an object and fired, instantly killing his father. The shooting was purely accidental as no family was more affectionate than this one. The son is frantic over the tragic death of his father.

A Deer Lassoed

About eight o'clock on Wednesday morning there started out from McCracken's Landing, Mr. Cox, of Rochester, in charge of the well-known Indian Madden Howard, Mr. Kale, of Pittsburg, with "truthful Jim" Emmott, as guide, Mr. Cramer, of Cleveland, chaperoned by the redoubtable Jack Hunter, and "Bud" McWilliams.

They proceeded up the lake about seven miles, and were having excellent luck bass fishing, when one of them saw a buck swimming in the water. They paddled after him and threw the anchor rope over his horns and he towed the canoe about 100 yards. Then Mr. Kale cut the rope. In the excitement a fish hook caught in the deer's flank and he got away with it and part of the line.

CANADA BUSINESS COLLEGE

CHATHAM, ONT.

Canada's greatest school of Shorthand and Business Training.

Fall Term Reopens Tuesday, Sept. 3

29 years of successful work is our record.

The past year the most successful in the history of our school.

304 OF OUR PUPILS secured good positions during the 12 months ending June 30, 1901.

If interested, write for the handsomest catalogue issued by any business college on the continent, and for a list of where these 304 pupils were placed.

Within the past few days we have received three calls to supply commercial teachers for other colleges besides several calls from business houses for office help.

The graduates of this school are not to be found anywhere seeking positions in vain. It will pay the intending student to keep this point in view.

We pay the railway fare up to $8 of students from a distance.

Good board at $2.50 per week for gentlemen and $2 for ladies.

If you have not seen our catalogue you are not yet familiar with the best Canada has to offer in the line of Business or Shorthand training. Write for it.

SOUTH AMERICAN WAR COLOMBIA VICTORIES

Big Battle Fought and the Colombia Troops Score A Great Victory.

GARMANY MAY TAKE A HAND IN THE CONFLICT

The Little War May Develop Into a Big One—European Nations Are Greatly Excited Over The Trent of Events.

New York, Aug. 26.—Dr. A. J. Restrepo, diplomatic agent of the liberal party, now attempting to take possession of the government in Colombia, received a dispatch to-day from the liberal agent at Quito regarding the recently reported battle with the government, or clerical, forces at Pasto. The dispatch was as follows:—

Quito, Aug. 23.—The expected battle near Pasto was fought on Saturday, the 17th, and the liberal generals, Lergio Perez and A. Rosas, won a great triumph over the clericals.

Through his secretary, Dr. Restrepo explained that Pasto, where the battle was reported to have been fought, was in the extreme southern part of Colombia, 2,000 miles from where General Urib-Uribe was operating, and that it indicated successful execution of the plans of campaign mapped out by General Uribe-Uribe and forwarded to the commanding officers of the other liberal forces before the General left New York early in the summer.

General H. O. Jeffries, second in command to General Alban, is quoted by a Colon correspondent as saying that he believes President Castro will be overthrown.

"There will be no declaration of war," General Jeffries said. "In 1891, when President Zelaya of Nicaragua invaded Honduras, there was no declaration of war. There are no declarations of war in these countries. There is neither honor nor respect between one nation and another. I do not say that all liberals are thieves but all thieves are liberals. Since the liberal governments have ruled these countries all have become bankrupt. Nicaragua was previously recognized by the world as an American Switzerlnd and was in a flourishing condition, owing nobody, owning railroads and ships, and having a surplus.

Nicaragua, Ecuador and Venezuela are now in misery. The best people are emigrants and are forced to flee for their lives after being robbed of all by their governments. The countries are now in a state of anarchy. Liberty they translate into robbery and libertinism. There is no chance for the Colombian rebels, as their victory can give no security either to foreigners or the natives.

VENEZUELA SENDS TROOPS.

Willemstad, Curacoa, Aug. 26.—Venezuelan steamers have transported 800 men from Maracaibo under command of General Davila, who defeated and captured General Hernandez, to invade Colombia near Rio Hacha and to support General Uribe-Uribe. The Venezuelan authorities have also sent ammunition to that point.

General Juan Pietri, leader of a revolutionary movement that was about ready to start, was captured near Magdaleum, in the state of Carabobo, while on his way to arouse Guarico. On being taken to Caracas he was immediately set at liberty by order of President Castro.

DOUBTS REPORTS OF WAR.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The Columbian minister, Dr. Martinez, to-day discussed recent dispatches from President Castro of Venezuela, through his secretary, and from President Alfaro of Ecuadro.

"Coming from such high quarters," said Dr. Silva, "it cannot be doubted that these messages afford excellent means of viewing the present situation of affairs from the standpoints of these two governments. The chief point to be noticed is that they do not treat war as existing. The message from President Alfaro expressly states that war between Colombia and Venezuela is improbable, and he adds that such conflicts as have occurred growing out of the union between the conservatives in both republics are of a transitory character.

"The dispatch from General Castro's secretary also indicates clearly that no war exists. It states that the conservatives of Colombia have resolved to assist in a revolutionary movement against Venezuela and her government. From this it will be observed that the basis of the affair is a revolutionary movement against Venezuela, and of course such a movement is an internal affair of Venezuela with which Columbia has no concern."

GERMANY MAY TAKE A HAND

St. Petersburg, Aug. 26.—The Novoe Vremya says: "That fact must not be lost sight of that the German press is already beginning to urge the dispatch of German warships to the coasts of Venezuela and Colombia, on the ground that it is difficult to foresee the outcome of the conflict between those republics. Should the German government follow these counsels a German-American conflict may easily be grafted upon the dispute between Colombia and Venezuela. The United States remain a stout supporter of the Monroe doctrine of 'America for the Americans.'"

FRENCH PUBLIC APATHETIC.

Paris, Aug. 24—The approaching visit of the Czar to France largely overshadows the interest taken in the Franco-Turkish incident growing out of the French claims at Constantinople, which, as cabled to the Associated Press yesterday, resulted in M. Constans, the French Ambassador at Constantinople, severing diplomatic relations with the Porte. The apathy of the public concerning the dispute with Turkey is reflected by the comments of the newspapers. They generally express confidence in a peaceful settlement of the dispute.

London, Aug 24—The Westminster Gazette to-day says Turkey has proclaimed martial law in the Sassoun district, in consequence of an alleged Albanian plot. The Sassoun district was the scene of the massacres of 1894

CATTLE THAT PAY.

The report from the model dairy at the Pan-American for the week ending August 13, has been received by Mr. Westervelt, secretary of the Canadian Live Stock Association. The report shows that for the prize for the most profitable animals in point of butter fat, the jerseys lead with $9.70 for the herd of five, while the Guernseys are a close second at $8.72. The other breeds follow in this order.—Ayrshires, Red Polled, Holsteins, French Canadians, Polled Jerseys, Brown Swiss Shorthorns, with the Dutch Belted at the bottom of the list at $5.40. Five of the ten herds are from Canada, and the rest from the United States. The Canadian herds are Jerseys, Ayrshires, Holsteins, French Canadians and Shorthorns.

London, Aug. 23.—Lord Kitchener, in a despatch from Pretoria, dated today, says: "Colonel Williams, after a sharp fight August 19, captured in the vicinity of Klerksdorp (Transvaal) an entire Boer convoy of 86 wagons loaded with ammunition and supplies, much stock, and eighteen prisoners, including the Landrost, of Bloemhof, and Dutoit, a telegrapher, with a complete wire tapping apparatus."

SCRAMBLE FOR SENATORSHIP

Friends of Janes and Jaffray Urging Their Claims Strenously.

Among the names prominently mentioned for the vacancy in the Senate caused by the death of the late Hon. G. W. Allen, are S. H. Janes and Robert Jaffray, Toronto; James Young, Galt; Dr. J. H. Wilson, St. Thomas, and James Innes, of Guelph.

Political friends of Mr. Janes are leading strenuous lives these days in their efforts to land the coveted plum for their favorite. Partizans of Mr. Jaffray are no less active and between the two factions the premier and his colleagues are having a rather warm time of it.

The Toronto men contend that the appointment belongs by right to that city, as the late Senator Allen was a Toronto man. Something in the nature of a revolt is threatened if the Government sees fit to go outside of Toronto in making a selection.

Is it not about time that Peterborough's claim was considered? Mr. Richard Hall should come first.

DEATH LIST NOW NUMBERS FORTY-ONE

THE VERDICT AT THE INQUEST

Victoria, Aug. 24.—About five hundred people met the steamer Hating at Vancouver yesterday morning as she arrived from Skaguay, to hear tidings of the Islander disaster. Lester Gill, of the Hudson Bay stores, Vancouver, was the only Islander passenger on board. He was in the water three hours before being rescued. The remains of five of the victims were on board, and there was a touching scene as the assembled relatives went forward to claim their dead. Governor J. H. Ross, administrator of the Yukon, accompanied the remains of his wife, her niece and child. That bodies, together with those of Captain Foote, master of the lost vessel, and Dr. John A. Duncan were brought to Victoria. It is not known whether the remains of Mrs. Ross will be taken east for interment.

Passengers—E. D. Kills, Mrs. (Dr.) Phills and child, J. W. Bell, Dr. Duncan, Miss Kate Barnes, Mrs. Minnie Ross, A. W. Jerry, J. Dahl, M. J. Braclin, Miss Nicholson, Mrs. Ross and child, Mr. Keating, Arthur Keating, J. Keating, F. R. Douglas, F. Rekate, Mrs. J. G. Henderson, H. T. Rogers, Wm. Meadows, N. Caspar, Louis McKay, 23.

Crew—Capt. Foote, H. Fowler, Miles Jacobs, Claude Berkholder, H. Porter, Norman Law, S. J. Pitts, three Chinese, Geo. Allan, A. Kendall, P. Burke, James Hatch, James Racid, Geo. Mills, two coal passers, names unknown, 18.

The following bodies were recovered: Miss Kate Barnes, H. T. Rogers, Mrs. J. H. Ross and child, Dr. Duncan, Dorothy Phillips, Mrs. Minnie Ross, Joseph Dahl, two passengers, names unknown, A. W. Jerry, or Jorg, Thomas Brocelen, Alf. Kendall, S. J. Pitts, Ah Yet, (Chinaman), Miles Jacobs, Hugh Porter, P. Murke, Captain Foote. These make nineteen out of 41. Twenty-one bodies are still missing.

THE INQUEST.

An inquest was held at Juneau on the body of Dr. Duncan, and the following verdict rendered: "We, the jury, empaneled and sworn in the matter of the inquest upon the body of Dr. J. A. Duncan, deceased, find that he came to his death on August 15, 1901, by the wreck of the steamship Islander, and by evidence produced, we find that we can blame no one for the accident."

(Signed) J. J. Beattie, Foreman.

On the north bound steamer a representative of the C.P.R., and Lloyds agent, will go to taking into consideration the question of salving the Islander.

AMONG THE VICTIMS.

H. Morrison, one of the survivors, reports at Seattle the drowning in the wreck of Mrs. Larkins, who went from that city to Dawson about a year and a half ago to search for her husband, who had gone to that city and is missing. The description brought down by Morrison of Mrs. Larkins was so accurate as to leave no doubt of her identity. She was on her way home to start a business of her own with several thousand dollars furnished by friends of her husband, who it is thought perished in a snowslide.

M. Blumauer, one of the survivors of the wreck, has reached his home at Portland, and reports that Fred Rekate of Portland was among those lost. Rekate's name has not before appeared in the list of the victims.

CHARGED WITH DRUNKENNESS.

One of the principal questions which have to be settled by the court of enquiry will be the charge of drunkenness made against the captain and pilot. Some sea captains are in the habit of having a good time while their vessels are discharging and loading at Skagway, and in the Seattle paper especially that charge is boldly made that both Pilot Leblanc and Captain Foote were both unfit to take command of the vessel. Dr. McFarlane of Atlin, however, says he was with Captain Foote all the evening and he was perfectly sober, and that about ten o'clock at night the pilot came to the captain and said something, whereupon Captain Foote replied: "Well, all right, go and lie down and I'll look after her." Subsequently Leblanc relieved Foote, and McFarlane says that he climbed the stairway so drunk that he could hardly reach the wheel house. It is said that Mr. Belcourt, M.P., is also of the opinion that the pilot was unfit for duty.

FOILS PLANS OF TRUST.

Baltimore Inspector Detains Imported Workmen at Immigrant Office.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 24—One hundred and twenty-six men, suspected of being the advance guard of an army of cheap labor hired by the steel trust to take the places of strikers, have arrived at Locust Point from Bremen on the liner Hanover. They are under a strong guard and probably will be sent back to Germany.

The men are Germans, Hungarians, Russians. They have little to say. Evidently they have been instructed to keep mum. Local immigration authorities are hard at work among them.

Some time ago Immigration Commissioner Powderly received a tip from strike headquarters that the trust would try to import alien labor, and he notified all the seaport commissioners and inspectors. When the Hanover arrived the 126 steerage passengers, nearly all of whom admitted they had worked in steel and iron works, were held up.

They told conflicting stories about where they were going and what they intended to do in this country and little by little enough was learned by Inspector Robinson to warrant detaining them. It is said another large lot of them is due at New York to-day or to-morrow and others will attempt to land at Philadelphia and Boston.

BASEBALL.

The Peterborough baseball team and Oshawa ball team played ball on the P.A.A.A. grounds on Saturday afternoon. The Peterborough team lost by a score of 8 to 3.

The Matthews' Pork Packers ball nine and the Roseneath nine played a game on the Oval Saturday afternoon. The Roseneath team won out by a score of 12 to 4.

A STRONG POINT IN THEIR FAVOR

Fact That Methodist Ministers Complained Lightens Charge

DOES NOT POINT TO GUILT.

Smith's Falls, Aug. 25.—Rev. Foster McAmmond and Rev. D. C. Sanderson were present yesterday at a financial meeting of the Perth district ministers. They appealed to the chairman for an investigation into the Syracuse charges. The reports upon which the charges are based come from Syracuse, and they have already been shown to be inaccurate in several essential details. There is no evidence which can be brought against the accused, except that which is contained in the stories telegraphed, that the ministers went to Syracuse on exceedingly short notice, that they spent some two days in that city, that the names entered upon a hotel register by them were not their own, that Rev. Mr. Sanderson spent some little time in a house of questionable reputation, and that he was detained at a police office as a witness in a case in which a notorious women, known as Pearl Ashley, was charged with the theft watch belonging to him. These facts are frankly admitted, but it is simple justice to say that the accused have with an innocent explanation taken the ugly look which the story bore on its first appearance in the press. For instance, it is explained that the entry of the wrong names in the hotel register was merely a joke. It is explained that Rev. Mr. Sanderson was given drugged candy by two soi-disant Canadians, and found himself after an interval in the house mentioned minus his watch. The fact that the two ministers point in their favor, as nobody can imagine a guilty person of Mr. Sanderson's standing acting so foolishly as to risk exposure by laying a complaint and dragging into publicity a matter which otherwise would have been kept. The fact is strongly compatible with innocence. Rev. Mr. McAmmond is only indirectly implicated in the affair, as no allegations are made against him, and he merely acted as Mr. Sanderson's friend before and after the occurrences refered, to in which he does not figure personally.

SEARCHING ENQUIRY.

The enquiry which will be begun by the church court next Tuesday will be of the most searching character. As chairman of the district, the Rev. J. Tallman Pitcher of this place has already appointed the court, which will consist of three members from this district, one from the Matilda and one from the Brockville district with Rev. Mr. Pitcher as presiding officer. According to the church law, the accused will not be permitted to have legal representatives present, and will prepare their own defence.

Rev. Mr. Pitcher said last night that as chairman of the Board of Investigation he desired it to be known throughout the country that the investigation will be most complete and thorough, and that no stone will be left unturned in the effort to bring out the real facts. "We shall go to the bottom of the whole matter," said Mr. Pitcher, "and there will be no whitewashing. We are all friends of these men. I have known them myself ever since they entered the ministry, and before, and have always esteemed them highly, but we have a duty to perform, a duty to them and to our church." Mr. Pitcher would not say whether he would endeavor to secure any evidence in Syracuse. He said that he believed the committee should decide upon that point. Personally, he was of the opinion that no reliance could be placed upon the testimony of a woman like the person known as Pearl Ashley. He paid a high tribute to the two ministers who will come before the committee, and while he properly refrained from discussing the points of the case he remarked, in referring to the matter of the false signatures. "Men pay for even such simple mistakes."

The evidence will be taken at the enquiry in full, of course, and the case is expected to last several days.

Both Mr. Sanderson and Mr. McAmmond will fill their pulpits to-morrow as usual. Rev. Mr. Sanderson has held his present charge in Almonte for over a year, and previous to that was successively the incumbent of the Methodist churches at Kemptville, Kingston and Centenary Church, Montreal. He is the father of a family, and in addition to being a prominent figure in the church work of this district, is known for his active interest in local affairs. Rev. Mr. McAmmond is also the head of a family, and has an important pastorate at Perth. He was formerly pastor of East Methodist Church in Ottawa, and also of the church at Winchester, in

A THRESHING EXPERIMENT.

Grain is First Run Through an Ensilage Cutter Before Being Threshed

A new mode of threshing was done the other day by putting the grain through an ensilage cutter, which conducted the grain and cut straw into the cylinder of the threshing machine. This method cleaned the grain perfectly and made a first class job in one operation, and was the means of saving the work of four hands. A Waterous, twelve horse-power, upright Champion engine, furnished the power to run both machines at one time.

The ensilage cutter was made by the Wilkinson Plow Co., Toronto, and is capable of cutting twenty tons of ensilage corn per hour and will elevate it perpendicularly fifty feet high into the silo. Chaff was run into the mow by the straw carriers.

At Jubilee Point.

The hotel at Jubilee Point reports excellent business this year—far ahead of former years. Many American visitors have made their headquarters at this popular resort during the season. During the past week Messrs. J. E. Sharp, W. Roberts, G. Wesley and J. Irwin, who are camped at the Point, caught 45 maskilonge and bass.

THE BRITISH LACK KNOWLEDGE OF CANADA'S NATURAL RESOURCES

English Author Explains Why Canada Does Not Develop in Same Ratio as the United States.

CAPITAL AND LABOR WILL EMIGRATE HAND IN HAND HEREAFTER

Millions of British Money Should be Put Into Canadian Industries—Americans are Anti-British Commercially and Politically.

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—Alex. Kenealy English author and student of political economy, discussed in The Times of this city the following subject: "Can Canada be made to rival the United States?"

"Why is it that Canada, a country of splendid natural resources, capable of sustaining an enormous population, does not develop in the same ratio as do the United States?" says Mr. Kenealy. "Why does the British Government do nothing to direct the stream of emigration to this splendid colony, which only needs proper development to support a population of 50,000,000 prosperous inhabitants, each one of them a keen patriot, ready to contribute his life and his resources to the defense and glory of this Empire? Why is it that British capital does not seek investment in civilized, law-abiding Canada instead of going to semi-savage South American republics, in which they hold annual revolutions instead of annual elections.

"The only correct answer to these questions is that the government and the capital both lack the necessary intelligence, knowledge and initiative. The United States have been built up entirely by immigration. The men in authority in the Yankee country realize the fact, and they have scouted Europe for brawny workmen to till their soil and delve in their mines. The emigrants who have ben taken West and placed upon the great grain-growing lands there are raising the wheat which arrives at our ports by the million bushels.

SPLENDID FARM LANDS.

"Meanwhile the splendid farm lands of Canada, which might grow every pound of bread that Great Britain eats, are, comparatively speaking, a vast solitude. Why do emigrants go to the United States, instead of to Canada? Because they are taken there. The big railroad systems of the United States are progressive and active. They have their agencies in every corner of Europe. Their silver-tongued representatives are armed with eloquent literature about the Golden West. They gather in the peasants who are discontented with their lot and ship them, like so much merchandise, properly labeled, to the Western States; and when they arrive there is some one to place a shovel in their hands and show them where to dig.

"The development of the United States proceeds on organized lines. There is ample capital to ensure it. Great railways have been built, often with English gold, and they have nursed and aided the settler. The development of Canada does not proceed on organized lines, and it lacks capital. The country is too much in its infancy to walk alone. It needs the assistance both of Downing street and of Chapel court. Millions of pounds should be poured into it by investors. An enormous amount of effort and enthusiasm should be poured into it by the Government. Emigration from here to Canada cannot be the success that it should be until capital and labor emigrate hand in hand.

EMIGRATION PLANS.

"A plan to promote emigration to Canada can do nothing in the promotion line if it consist of an office in London at £60 a year, a clerk who knows even less about Canada than he does about anything less, and a pile of dreary handbills. That is the official method of promoting emigration. It is not the American plan. It was not the method by which a few years ago a nation of seventy-five million Europeans was built up on the western shores of the Atlantic. There is no reason why half of those seventy-five millions should not be north of the Canadian border.

"Canada is the country that is entitled to the British hand clasp and to British attention. Why don't the 'Blood is thicker than water' men who shed tears at banquets when they talk about the American eagle work up a little feeling over the magnificent colony of the St. Lawrence, the nearest colony England has to her shores and the one most capable of expansion?

Intoxicated with their own loquacity, the "Blood is thicker than water" men aim a blow at the wealth of the empire when they indulge in their spread-eagle talk. The sentimental gush about the disinterested affection which Uncle Sam bears to the British lion, and the spectacle of statesmen weeping hysterically upon the shoulders of United States Ambassadors are injurious to the interests of Canada, inasmuch as they are calculated to divert men and money from our Canadian colony to the country on its frontier.

STIR UP ENTHUSIASM.

Let us stir up some enthusiasm about Canada, and let Uncle Sam look after himself for a while. The former needs our attention; the latter is more than capable of conducting his own affairs. The development of Canada cannot be brought about by shipping solitary emigrants to Canadian prairies, and there leaving them dazed and helpless and wondering what to do next. There has already been too much of this sort of emigration. Railway ticket system, in dealing with intending settlers, generally look down their tariff sheet and "boom" the place that it costs the most to reach. This they do in the interests of their own company, or because of the commissions they receive. England will need a certain number of millions of bushels of wheat next year and the year after. It will import vast quantities of pork and beef and mutton. These quantities will not only be vast, but they are certain quantities. Why should we buy one single pound of wheat, beef or pork from the United States that we can raise in Canada? Is it because we find the spectacle of Lord Salisbury and Mr. Choate holding one another's hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne" in broken pathetic tones a pleasing one?

Britons should be too practical for that. The way to treat the United States commercially is to compete with them in fair contest. Let us confine the "Blood is thicker than water" business entirely to after office hours, and let it be merely one of our innocent diversions like "ping-pong" instead of the guiding star of our commercial politics. The man who would not rather eat Canadian bread and butter than that grown in the United States is not much of a patriot. If it be necessary to discriminate in the matter of duties in favor of Canadian produce, let us discriminate, and the quicker the better.

CANADA FIRST.

The United States, which for years have closed their ports against English goods, and in favor of their own, cannot complain if John Bull suddenly finds Canadian beef and flour more palatable than those with the Yankee flavor.

But supposing, after all, the Choate-Salisbury chorus did cease? Let it cease if it wants to.

In the event of England going to war the United States will help her only if it be to their interests to do so, and perhaps not then, so great is the anti-English feeling in America. It is not that the Americans are anti-English socially. They are only anti-English commercially and politically.

But to return to the matter of emigration to Canada. A man with a sinister face and a hole in the ground in some African swamp has no trouble in raising £100,000 in the city of London under the pretext that there may be gold at the bottom of that hole in the ground. A few months pass, and the man with the sinister face goes suddenly to the continent, while his shareholders enquire the way to the nearest workhouse.

Why cannot a few millions be put into the development of cattle and wheat in Canada? That is where the real gold mines are. Capitalists who find the money to develop such land might at the same time export the emigrants, assuring them of employment on their arrival. In this way Canada can be made to grow. But the Government must help.

YANKEE ACTORS INVADE BRITAIN

London Bill Boards Indicate That the Incursion Has Begun.

GILLETTE AND HIS CIGAR.

London, Aug. 24.—The London billboards already proclaim the American autumnal threatrical invasion. William Gillette and his cigar appeared on the hoardings simultaneously with the actor's arrival in London.

In the meantime Nat Goodwin is hurrying along the rehearsals of "When We were Twenty-one."

The finishing touches are being put to the old Adelphi, now transformed into the Century Theatre, where Henry E. Dixey, Madge Lessing and others will soon open in "The Whirl of the Town."

"Kitty Grey" is in active preparation for the Apollo Theatre, opening September 7.

Mr. Frohman re-opens the Duke of York Theatre this evening with a revival of "A Royal Rival," with Lewis Waller in the leading male role.

Mme. Nordica, who is in the Black Forest, has just completed a book for singers, enlivened by personal reminiscences of her stage career. William Armstrong, who edited and prepared the book for publication, sailed for the United States this week with the manuscript.

Geraldine Farrar, a young Bostonian, has created so favorable an impression among the managers by her Italian rendition of Marguerite in "Faust" that the Berlin Royal Opera directors have waived the rule requiring that it shall be sung in Germany, and will permit her to sing the part in Italian at her debut there in October.

MEETING OF CONCILIATION COMMITTEE

North Bay, Aug 25.—The conciliation committee whose services were recently accepted by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and other striking trackmen presented their report here Saturday to a meeting of all the brotherhoods. The report had been adversely commented on by some of the members of the different brotherhoods, but after a full explanation by Chas. Pope, chairman of the conciliation committee and presentation of the full minutes of the meeting which makes some rather interesting reading, it was decided that the conciliation committee had done everything possible, and that the trackmen should accept the proposition made. Chairman Pope was complimented on his handling of the case, and a vote of thanks given him.

ROOM SMALL UPON STEAMERS

Impossible to Secure Berths Upon Liners Until End of September.

HIGH PRICES PAID FOR SUITES

London, Aug. 25.—The usual end-of-the-summer congestion on the transatlantic steamers now prevails, and it is practically impossible to secure a berth on any of the vessels until the end of September. The reconstructed Philadelphia (formerly the Paris) is just out in time to relieve the pressure, and any former prejudice that may have existed in connection with the Paris must have vanished, as she is full booked for her maiden voyage, as high a price as £150 having been paid for suits aboard of her.

The Hamburg-American liner Deutschland also is crowded. She sailed on Friday. It is said that no less than sixty passengers were booked on her for one western city alone. Her passenger list included a number of Pittsburg manufacturers, who had concluded a tour of Europe made for the purpose of investigating German and British steel plants.

"We find in Pittsburg," said Mr. John K. Bryden, "that it is almost always necessary to get fresh supplies of superintendents from Dusseldorf and other German centres.

"So far as the strike is concerned, we all believe that the manufacturers, both in the trust and out, are too willing to pay fair wages to permit the men to long remain idle."

WHY BRITAIN'S ENVOY BALKED

Wouldn't Attend the Marriage of the Grand Duchess Olga Because a Boer Was There.

London, Aug. 24—Emperor Nicholas is reported to have specially invited Mr. Kruger to send a representative to attend the wedding of his youngest sister, the Grand Duchess Olga, to Duke Peter of Oldenburg. According to the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin it was the presence of his representative, M. Van der Hoeven, that prevented any member of the British embassy in St. Petersburg from attending. The Czar ignored the British ambassador's protest against the presence of M. Van der Hoeven.

Neuralgia Almost Drives People Mad

Only those who have suffered it, know of the darting, distracting pains and aches neuralgia inflicts. Ordinary remedies don't even relieve. It requires an extraordinarily strong, penetrating liniment to drive out the pain. To get relief rub Polson's Nerviline into the spot. Pain can't resist Nerviline, which has five times the strength of any other liniment. Drives out neuralgia in half an hour. Never fails; never harms; always comforts. Try a large 25c. bottle.

RUIN FOLLOWED GERMAN BUBBLE

Smash of the Leipsic Bank Cost Investors $25,000,000

AFFECTED OVER 1,500 FAMILIES

Berlin, Aug. 24. — Never since Germany stepped into the arena of industrial and commercial powers has the financial outlook of the country been so troubled. All the greed and lust of gain have not been free from an element of criminality.

The smashes culminated in the stoppage of payment by the Leipsic Bank. This was an old-established, conservative concern. All went well until about five years ago when a certain Herr Exner became director.

The capital of the bank was about $5,000,000 when he joined it. He rapidly ran it up to $16,000,000. Exner saw his way to a great coup and singled out an insignificant grain-drying establishment in Cassel which he determined to boom. It was probably worth $100,000.

The Leipsic Bank began to support it and Exner ran up the shares. In a few years the bank had lent the Cassel grain-drying firm about $20,000,000 and the enterprise was paying some years 50 per cent. dividend—of course, out of the money lent by the bank.

Exner bought Cassel shares when they were next to nothing and sold them when they were quoted high above par. He must have realized $5,000,000 on the shares.

THE CRASH CAME.

Like a bolt from the blue sky came the crash. The directors of the bank announced that they had stopped payment, but informed their victims that if they only had patience all their claims would be met. They were about $25,000,000 to the bad them.

Days of panic and wild talk such as Leipsic had never known followed. The customers of the bank stormed the offices, but they found the pay desks closed. Women wept, fell fainting and were carried out.

Lohmann's big flannel works dropped $200,000; a huge paper manufactory lost $370,000; the Humanitarian Institute of Leipsic, a concern supported by Government, lost $125,000, and it is computed that of the small people concerned over 350 must go into liquidation at once and over 1,500 families are practically ruined.

Exner was arrested at his villa and lodged in jail, where he hears the execrations of the crowds he has ruined.

The banker, Edward Krohmann, believed to be implicated, and feeling the disgrace coming, shot a bullet through his head.

PETERBOROUGH. AUGUST 26 1901

TEMPERANCE

We knew that the blow would fall sooner or later, and that it would be a heavy one. Mr. F. S. Spence, the secretary of the Dominion Alliance and a pronounced Liberal, has valiantly condemned the Ross Government as "the worst we have ever had." He goes on to say that it is no use talking in fine language of the Ontario License Law, when no attempt is made to make it effective. The increase in Sunday selling is a disgrace to an uncivilized, let alone a civilized, community or province. The Ross Government is a pretty fair government on some lines, but upon the lines of public morality it is nowhere. Favoritism in the administration of the license law of the rankest and rottenest kind exists everywhere, and when the people become fully aware of it and can rest from stupid partizanship for five minutes or so, the Ross Government will wish they had done as they should have done. The morality of our people is not high, and it is no getting any higher. The worst feature of it all is, too, that everybody knows of the undercurrent of corruption but few are making a decent effort to remove it. The churches seem to be centres of complacency and in many places of hypocrisy. They make great pretensions with their mouths, but their hearts are far from their mouths. To the Roman Catholics great credit is due for the inauguration of a system of temperance reform, but unfortunately it affects themselves only, and not the people at large. Protestants are accustomed to look very patronizingly upon their "separated brethren" in temperance matters, but the boot is now on the other foot.

We hope that the people at large will look into this question of their own volition and in the light of their own experience, and when the political demagogue comes upon his quadrennial round [illegible] he will be set to the right-about, and that quickly.

IRISH REPRESENTATION

Ireland, as Mr. Davitt says, has lost nearly half her population, but it is remarkable how she has held on to her representation in Parliament. Here, at least, she has no grievance. The population and non-university representation of the different parts of the United Kingdom are now as follows:

	Pop.	Rep.
England	30,812,508	465
Wales	1,7[illegible]	30
Scotland	4,47[illegible]	70
Ireland	4,456,546	101

There are irregularities which would require a reapportionment for the various English counties, but taking England as a whole, her representation is as one to 66,000. That basis would entitle Ireland to only 67 members, Scotland to 68 and Wales to 26. There was a redistribution of seats in 1885, but the excess in Ireland and Wales is explained by the fact that they were unaffected by it. Six additional members were given to England, and twelve to Scotland, which until then had had only 60 members all told.

Other comparisons will serve to bring out more vividly the over-representation of Ireland. The great manufacturing district of Lancashire has a population of 4,[illegible], about 80,000 less than Ireland's but its representation is only 57, or 44 less than Ireland. The four counties, Middlesex, Surrey, Kent and Essex, have a population of more than eight millions, nearly double that of Ireland, and a representation of 99, two less than that of Ireland.

An analysis recently printed in the Pall Mall Gazette shows that upon the basis of 1 to 66,068 the greatest relative loss in England would fall upon the five eastern counties, Lincoln, Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridge and Hants. They would lose 11 members for a population of 1,687,815. But even they are not so largely over-represented as Ireland, and they could hardly complain legitimately against a reduction if they were.

HARVEST IN THE WEST

Winnipeg, Aug. 22.—Harvesting in the Portage la Prairie district is well advanced, quite a number of the farmers have finished cutting their wheat, while the majority will be through before the end of the week. A short delay was caused by rain, but work is now in full swing again. To-night again the weather is threatening, and if it turns out wet, will cause a certain amount of further delay. Nearly all the laborers who went to Portage have secured employment, though there are still a few standing around without work. No doubt they will be able to secure work of some kind, but there are quite enough there now to satisfy the demand. The amount of machinery sold there this fall is something enormous, and it is estimated that 250 binders alone have been disposed of.

Edrans had a very slight frost about a week ago, but no damage was done. About three-fourths of the wheat in that district is cut, all of which is a fine crop and in splendid shape, there being no rust or smut.

Some of the farmers have cut a portion of their oats, which is also a very heavy crop. The pasture for cattle is very good, especially near the railway.

Many of the excursionists refused offers of $30 and $40 at Brandon.

D. S. Bannerman, of Popular Point, has forwarded a magnificent sample of wheat to the Dominion Immigration Department.

G. T. R. FINANCES

Gross Receipts, £3,288,000; working expenses, including special appropriation of £10,000 to bridge renewal account £1,545,000; net receipts, £743,000; net revenue charges for the half year, less credits, £224,500, leaving £518,500; deducting amounts payable by the company under traffic and other agreements—Grand Trunk Western Company, £6,300, and Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee Company, £13,200, there is a surplus for the half year of £194,000. This surplus of £194,000, added to the balance of £2,500 from December, 1900, makes a total amount of £196,500 available for dividend, which will admit of the payment of the full dividends for the half year on the 5 per cent. guaranteed stock and the 5 per cent first preference stock, leaving a balance of about $4,700 to be carried forward.

HEAD-ACHE

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been the means of curing thousands of women of headache, backache, female weakness and other forms of disease peculiar to women. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures bearing-down pains.

"I think if it were not for your 'Favorite Prescription' I would have been in my grave," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, of Egypt, Plymouth Co., Mass., Box 14. "I had pain all over me, and such a dragging feeling it seemed I could not do my house work. I had to sit down to wash the dishes, even. In the year 1897 I was so sick I did not care to live and prayed many times that God would take me. One day I thought I would write to Dr. Pierce. In a few days I received an answer. I decided to try his medicine, and to-day I am a well woman. I have no headache, no pain at all. I used always to have headaches previous to the monthly period, and such pain that I would roll on the floor in agony. This sometimes would occur every two weeks, and I would be very weak afterward. I was in pain all over. My feet would slip from under me when I would try to go across the room, and I could not walk any distance without being in pain. I took three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and three of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and three vials of Doctor Pierce's Pellets, and was completely cured."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets stimulate the liver.

THE SAFEST OFFER EVER MADE TO INVESTORS

It is printed on each certificate that subscribers to the above Preferred Share will be entitled to receive in Dividends the full amount of money invested, before other stockholders receive any returns, signed by the President of the Company.

This district produced more Gold in 1900 than any other in the United States.

This property consists of 3000 by 3000 feet, or 200 acres, of gold land. The mine has been worked. The feature of this mine is the Veneta Vein, 30 to 40 feet in width, and is certainly one of the strongest veins in this famous district. There are some fifteen openings on this vein, the ore from which assays in gold from $12 to $100 per ton. The property is advantageously located for development by tunnel, which will make it possible to produce an enormous amount of ore daily, the quantity varying from 200 to 500 tons per day. The development by TUNNELING is the most economical and advantageous manner of working this property.

At a distance of 800 feet the Tunnel will intersect the Vereta Vein at a depth of about 680 feet, and will also intersect several other veins. The tunnel will cut the Big Horn Mountain 2100 feet deep, and will give this company 2,000,000 tons of ore, worth over $20 per ton.

The new railroad, now practically completed from Colorado Springs, called the Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek road, passes within 2000 feet of this Tunnel.

Adjoining this property is the Colorado Springs TUNNEL Company. In this property at a depth of 400 feet, the Vereta Vein was cut. At this point the vein was fully 20 feet in width, and its value from $20 to $1000 per ton.

There are already in operation mills and smelters sufficient to treat the output of this property, which gives at once cash returns.

Capital Stock $1,000,000. Par Value $1.00 Per Share. 100,000 Shares Preferred Stock at 25c. Per Share.

In buying this stock the purchaser owns a direct title in the Company's property. This Company offers you no watered stock, but a legitimate high-grade gold-mining investment in the Cripple Creek District.

The above offer of Preferred Dividends is an assurance of early returns. After additional machinery is erected, this property will be earning dividends almost equal to its Capital Stock.

HOW LOVE CAME

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

When Jimmy Marshall went back to the regiment after long leave it was with a heavy heart and a sad spirit that caused him to look with a glad gaze to the war cloud hanging over Cuba.

Jimmy had come in from the regimental station to spend the first long leave since he had laid aside the academic gray with the mother and old friends he had scarcely seen since his boyhood. For seven years he had worked hard and faithfully in the historic old regiment he had elected to join and now with his first lieutenant's bar on his shoulder had come home again. There it was that he had renewed acquaintances of the old days and made new ones and it was one of these new ones that was sending him back to his regiment sad and weary and welcoming war.

She, who was the cause of it all, was a newcomer to the old town, petite, blue-eyed and auburn-haired, and Jimmy had surrendered hilt to front before he even essayed to draw saber. He was her knight from the start and even the sainted mother was neglected in the short campaign that ended in his rout, for when he came to the fatal question, it was laughingly, heartlessly, but oh, so emphatic no. No hope no future, no present, no past only a winter of regret.

So scarcely two months later he was welcoming the hot sun, the fever, the thirst, the hunger, the bullets of Cuba and receiving honorable mention and recommendations for bravery in the affair at El Caney, and for faithfulness in his care of the fever stricken men. Then it was the old post again refitting, recruiting, whipping in the new men, packing, and away across the westward ocean and within the half year of his home leaving he was with the old company in the field against the little brown Tagals of Luzon; still with disappointment rankling in his heart and driving him into the excitement of the war with a fevered energy.

Jimmy had gone through his four years of cadethood without a single love affair and as a consequence had won and still wore the class sobriquet of the 'bachelor.' His seven years of army life had not produced any better results to the credit of the anti-martial god who is believed to be especially fatal to martial heroes, and while there had been many charming women and many pretty girls in whose society he had found much to please him he had not until that fatal long leave found one to take his serious thought. So he who marched through the jungles and cane brakes of the far-off Philippines with but one thought in his mind and that a painful thought he was trying to drown in hard, active service, service that had already brought him recommendations like those spread upon the records of El Caney.

There came a day when the old company went wading over the rice paddies and through the jungles, one of those murky, wet days of the rainy season, just such a day as had seen the Filipino bullet strike brave, big-hearted Lawton. The company had routed out from the abandoned, rain-soaked nipa huts in which it had slept the night, when the first light of the first light of the short tropical dawn announced day and pushed forward over the mud-filled road, water-covered rice paddies and dripping jungles, the rain running off the battered gray slouch hats and soaking through the equally battered blue shirts and the mud squashing into and out of the shoes as it dragged along, only the disciplined formation and the business-looking Krags distinguishing them from a mob of country tramps and marking them for an army.

Slowly the wet, tropical day wore on. Noon, midafternoon passed, and then, as the tired men saw that the short twilight was coming down upon them, they saw one of the scouts running back. There was signalling back and forth. The captains hand went up in the well known signal to halt. The foremost men stopped in their tracks, the rear crowding up upon them and all began to fondle their Krags and to wipe the wet from the locks with their shirt sleeves. Then came a short, sharp command from the captain, a veteran of civil and Indian wars, and the huddled bedraggled mass turned itself into a well-ordered column of fours. Another order and the column was deployed into fighting line, a long, thin line of enthusiastic skirmishers ready and eager for the fight. Wet, mud, discomfort were forgotten. It was a fight.

Over the fields, here in foot deep water, here in almost as much mud, went the company, gray-haired old Captain Lyon directing the movements and Jimmy Marshall encouraging and cautioning the men who needed only cautioning. Then suddenly from a line of earthworks, barely discernible 500 yards ahead through the rain there came volley upon volley, turning into a steady roar, a fire that would have been withering had marksmen held the guns. Four hundred and fifty yards, 400, 350, 300 then the tall corporal off to the right went down without a sound save the splash of the water he fell into. Then at a word from his chief Jimmy led off to the let with a dozen men and struck through the canebrake to outflank the works. And now the Krags were singing a merry song. Around to the left the enemy's right flank, went Jimmy and with a yell broke cover and swept into the open end of the works, sending their bullets crashing enfilading into the little brown fellows. In a moment all was confusion. Then there was a rush and the trenches were empty. And then looking back over the field, Jimmy saw what he had taken to be a number of wounded Tagals rise from the slight trench in which they lay and pour shot after shot into the body of a wounded soldier and that of his bunkie, who was dressing his wound. Then he saw the captain dash to the rescue, and, calling to his men, he ran forward to the scene and routed the outfit. And as he looked about him when it was over at his feet he saw the body of the kindly old captain who had been father and brother, as well as captain, to him since he first had cast his lot with the old regiment.

Four days afterwards, Jimmy with a few of the men of the company, was back in Manila with what was left of the old captain they had all loved so well and it fell to Jimmy's lot to tell of that captain's last moments and tragic death, to his wife and daughter.

And at last Jimmy had ceased to think of that long leave at home. All through the preparations for the Cuban campaign he had thought only of the bitterness of his woe; all through the days and nights of sun and rain and battle and fever, all through the hurry and rush to the new, distant front; all through the seemingly endless chase through the brakes and paddies of Luzon after the elusive little brown men that had been before him, and his comrades, remembering his former cheeriness, had commented—"What a change field work makes in Jimmy." But now with his devoted captain lying in his soldier's grave, with his captain's wife and daughter left to his care, the old trouble faded out and he thought only of the friend that he had lost and the charge that was his for the captain had placed his affairs in Marshall's hands in the event of his meeting a soldier's fate, as Marshall had placed his in the captain's.

And so it came that after the soldiers and the family had paid their last tribute to the dead, the last volley had been fired over the grave, taps had floated out upon the warm, still air and died away that the evening had closed down upon the quaint old city, Jimmy sat in the flag-draped little parlor of the Lyon's quarters listening to the patter and drip of the everlasting rain. The dim lamps cast an uncertain light over the room, the air was still and heavy and his thoughts were sad, but as he looked into the sad, tired face of the young girl sitting there so near to him, and saw the lustre of the dark hair, the fairness of the sweet young face and the sadness yet the brightness in the large dark eyes he felt all the past go from him and his strong manly love go out to her, whom he had watched grow from the short frocked school girl to the comely young woman; felt it was her he had loved from the first. After drawing his chair over to hers he took her hand in both of his and in the silence of the little room, in the silence of his love, looked into her eyes, eyes in which the joy of womanly love burned through the sadness of filial grief, and the one word, "Elizabeth" told his old sweet tale.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 26 1901

JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN.

—Next Monday is labor day.

—Saturday market was the largest for some months.

—A meeting of the Central Charity Board will be held on Monday evening.

—The cottagers are beginning to return from Stony Lake. This week will see most of them back to business.

—Mr. W. J. Young, agent for the Brantford bicycles, had his neck severely burned Saturday afternoon vulcanizing.

—Mr. R. J. Stuart of Halifax, manager of the Sun Life Assurance Company for Nova Scotia, was in town on Saturday visiting his uncle Mr. J. Stuart.

Harmony Lodge, I.O.G.T., will meet on Tuesday evening of this week at the residence of Bro. G. W. Powell. It is hoped by next week their new hall will be in shape to meet in.

—Three of our popular young business men took a trip to Jubilee one day last week, and missed the boat on her return. They were forced to stay all night, but managed to get an early boat next morning.

—Lindsay Post,—Mr. R. J. Frost, jeweller, of Orillia, has decided to open out a first-class store in Peterborough. He spent a few hours in town recently, and after visiting Britton Bros, McCarty's and Petty's premises he said no town in Canada was better served in the jewellery line.

THE LATE JOHN NEWALL.

The death of Mr. John Newall on Saturday morning came with a sad shock to his many friends in town and neighborhood. Mr. Newall had been in rather poor health for some time, although his demise was totally unlooked for.

The deceased was [illegible] years of age, and was born at Great Budworth, Cheshire, England. He came to Canada about thirty years ago, residing in Port Hope for one year before removing to Peterborough, where he has resided ever since, establishing a dairy business here. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Annie Clarke, daughter of Mr. P. T. Clarke, of Port Hope, and one daughter, Mrs. John Holmes, of Buffalo.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Water st. this afternoon, at three o'clock, to Little Lake cemetery.

Motorman Nearly Lynched.

New York, Aug. 22—A determined effort was made last night by a mob to lynch Julius Siebl, a motorman, because his car had killed Annie Emery, nine years old, on Madison avenue. The car was coming down a steep grade when the child tried to cross, became frightened and hesitated, standing in the middle of the track. The little girl was thrown under the wheels and her head was crushed. People immediately swarmed about the place, women and children shrieking. The cry "lynch him," was raised by the men and a concerted attack was made on the motorman, who defended himself manfully, with his back to the car. He was bruised and badly beaten before a squad of police rescued him, beating the crowd back with their clubs. He was arrested.

A Fine Trip.

The second annual excursion under the auspices of the farmers of Dummer, will take place on September 19th and 20th to Balsam lake. The steamers Sunbeam and Alert have been engaged to carry the party. The party embark at Lakefield at seven o'clock, calling at various points on Stony Lake, arriving at Fenelon Falls in the evening, where hotel accommodation has been secured at reduced rates. The following morning Balsam lake will be visited, after which the party will return home. A good orchestra provided for dancing on board the Sunbeam. The round trip tickets are only 80c. The following are the members of the committee, who will be pleased to furnish information: Messrs. W. J. Doughty, town; J. J. Crowe, Henry Moore and Richard Crowe, Dummer. All are welcome.

Forged Bank Notes.

The various banks have been notified that a forged $10 note of the Dominion bank is in circulation and that probably attempts will be made to pass them in the country. The notes forged are series "A" and the one now in possession of the bank is marked No. 0030.2. They are signed Garratt G. Cassels. The circular received from Toronto described the counterfeit as the poorest ever made. It is evidently a photographic reproduction of the series of new notes issued by the Dominion Bank in January, 1900. The printing is blurred and the lettering is excessively clumsy. No person with any experience in handling bills could possibly accept it as genuine.

Sent to Mercer Reformatory.

Lindsay Post — The Peterboro young woman named Annie Smith, who visited town recently and forgot to return from whence she came, appeared before Police Magistrate Steers this morning for sentence, having been remanded from Wednesday. She pleaded guilty to the charge of vagrancy, having changed her mind in the interval. As she has no home the Magistrate sent her to the Mercer Reformatory at Toronto for a period of six months. None of the young men about town, whose cards she had in her possession, appeared in court.

Millionaire Mine Owner Shot and Killed

Cripple Creek, Colorado, Aug. 22—Samuel Strong, the millionaire mine owner, was shot and killed to-day by Grant Crumley. The cause of the shooting has not been learned.

Strong and three friends had visited the place, where John Neville, Strong's father-in-law, became engaged in an altercation with Crumley, who is a saloon-keeper and gambler. Believing his father-in-law's life was endangered, Strong drew a revolver. Crumley stepped back of the bar, grasped a shotgun and discharged it at Strong's head. The millionaire fell dead and Crumley surrendered to the police.

PURELY PERSONAL.

—Mr John Nugent came down from the lakes Saturday.

—The many friends of Mr. Ed. Cox were pleased to see him out again after a severe illness.

—Miss Maud Halpin and Miss Crowley are the guests of Miss M. Keneally, Lakefield.

—Mrs. (Rev.) J. C. Slater has returned to her home in Toronto after an extended visit with her mother and sister, Mrs and Miss Mebarry, Aylmer-st.

Dr. and Mrs. Greer returned on Friday after spending a pleasant ten days at Gore's Landing. Miss Gertie Thompson, who accompanied them, leaves on Tuesday to resume her duties at Cleveland.

—Rev Dr. Torrance left on Saturday for Montreal, in order to consult a specialist in regard to his injured limb, which is not, we are sorry to say, getting well as fast as he would like.

—Rev. Father Hurley, of Houstan, Texas, a member of the Order of Basilian Fathers, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Hurley, Hunter-st., left on Friday for his home in Texas.

—Mr. E. Sullivan manager for Messrs Gun & Co., limited, wholesale grain dealers, of Halifax, N.S. spent Sunday in town. Mr. Sullivan is here on a business trip, and his Company is large purchases of all kinds of coarse feeds and coarse grains. He leaves for the west this morning.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

Two former members of the 57th returned to town on Saturday from South Africa, in the persons of George Daniels and Robert Biggs, two Peterborough boys, who were members of the Canadian artillery, at Kingston, whence they were transferred to Quebec, where they embarked for the seat of war in South Africa.

The men looked exceedingly well, although Biggs was wounded by a Boer shell, which struck him on the head, and which has not yet fully healed.

An Old Veteran.

On Saturday last Sergt.-Major John Martin, of Lindsay, paid Peterborough a visit. The gallant old veteran, though 61 years of age, is physically as active and sound as when, 17 years of age, he enlisted in the 21st Regiment of Foot, now the First Royal Scotch Fusiliers, and later with other Britons in the Crimea, faced the Russians at Alma, Balaklava, Inkerman and Sebastapol. Mr. Martin wore his wellearned Crimean and Turkish war medals, and also the imperial army and service medals. He has ever retained his taste for military matters, and makes a point of attending one, at least, of the summer camps.

Hair in the Comb

A bad sign. You are growing bald. Stop it now. Use Dr. White's Electric Comb and you will find no more combings. Your hair will stay where it belongs. Send 50c. for one. D. N. Rose, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

The Biggest Yet.

A special despatch from Bobcaygeon to the Mail & Empire on Tuesday last says: "Mr. and Mrs. Bunch, of Arkansas, who are taking a holiday at the "Kenosha," in Bobcaygeon, on the Kawartha lakes, captured the largest maskinonge of the season while out trolling together Monday. It measured from tip to tip 4 ft. 7 inches; length of head 14 in.; mouth, open, 7 in., around body 22 in.; weight 27 1-2 pounds. Mrs. Bunch had to play the fish, while Mr. Bunch rowed the canoe three quarters of a mile to a suitable landing, and the lady then pulled the monster on the beach."

My Lady's Toilet.

Is incomplete without the daily use of Dr. White's Electric Comb. No more hair falling out, dandruff or headache. Thousands of testimonials, but what you want is the comb. Send 50c. for it. Sold on a written guarantee. D. N. Rose, Gen Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

The Royal Chorus.

The Times is requested to state that there will be a meeting of local singers in the Y.W.C.A. hall to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a party from Peterborough to take part in the royal reception in connection with the Duke of Cornwall's visit. It is to be hoped that all interested will attend the meeting. It is particularly desired that members of every church choir will make it a point to be present.

Catarrh Prevalent in Canada

Ninety-seven per cent. of the population have catarrh. Foolish to neglect it, for where there is Catarrh, Consumption knocks at the door. The White Plague finds its quickest recruits in the ranks of Catarrh sufferers, and if you have the Catarrh taint you had better get rid of it now. Catarrhozone is the surest means; it kills the germs, cures the cough, prevents dropping in the throat, relieves congestion and heals all the sore places. Catarrhozone is universally used with perfect satisfaction and is sold in two sizes, 25c. and $1.00. Your druggist will refund the price if it fails to cure.

Police Court Notes.

Mr. James Stevenson, J. P. in the absence of Magistrate Dumble, presided at the Police Court Saturday.

Mr. R. R. Redmond made a complaint that a certain dog had bitten him. He wanted satisfaction. The matter was left over till to-day.

A citizen who had been charged with an infraction of the Health Act, as relating to back yards, subsequently complied with provisions, and, paying costs, was dismissed.

You Feel All Used Up

You're discouraged and disgusted—not enough energy to think, less to go to work upon. The reason? You are run down, your blood is poor, your nerves are like India rubber, not like steel as they ought to be. Use Ferrozone and the tired feeling will go, for it makes plenty of rich, red blood, that feeds the brain and nerves. The desire to labor comes back and you enjoy it. You don't get tired, because you have used Ferrozone. Neglect not a day longer. Ferrozone will cure you. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

From Roseneath.

There was an inflex of visitors from Roseneath on Saturday, when the Steamer City of Peterborough ran an excursion to town, under the auspices Centreton Lodge of Foresters. The party appeared to greatly enjoy their visit to town, and left considerable money with the shopkeepers.

Dead Folks Hair.

You can buy it. They make wigs out of it; but why wait until you are forced to wear it. Use Dr. White's Electric Comb and have live hair; your own hair glossy and luxurient and free from dandruff. Sample 50c. D. N. Rose, Gen. Mgr., Decatur, Ill.

The Great Kidney Specialist.

The Famous Physician Who Has Made Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Diseases a Life Long Study.

DR. ZINA PITCHER.

For many years in the hospitals of Detroit and Professor of Genito Urinary diseases in Michigan College of Medicine Dr. Zina Pitcher devoted his time to the scientific study of diseases of the Kidney Bladder and Urinary System.

By this exclusive devotion to one branch of medical investigation Dr. Pitcher was enabled to perfect a treatment for Kidney troubles that far surpasses any other remedy.

After testing it extensively in private and hospital practice and demonstrating its incomparable superiority to all other forms of treatment, Dr. Pitcher decided to give this great boon to suffering humanity at large and not confine it exclusively to the circles of his private and hospital patients.

He has placed his remedy before the public under the name of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and so confident is he of the positive curative qualities of these Tablets for backache, lame or weak back, drowsiness, headaches, pain in the loins, brick dust deposits in the urine, puffiness under the eyes, swelling of the feet and ankles, scalding, irritation, frequent rising at night, dribbling, inflammation or ulceration of the bladder, gravel, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease and Diabetes (except in the last stages), bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, constipation, puffy and pasty appearance of the face, dropsy, backache and weakness of women, urinary weakness of children and old people or any symptomatic indications of Kidney disease that to anyone suffering from any of the above troubles, who uses the Tablets faithfully, according to directions, and derives no benefit therefrom, their money will be cheerfully refunded.

Canada's greatest school of Shorthand and Business Training.

Fall Term Reopens Tuesday, Sept. 3

29 years of successful work is our record.

The past year the most successful in the history of our school.

304 OF OUR PUPILS secured good positions during the 12 months ending June 30, 1901.

If interested, write for the handsomest catalogue issued by any business college on the continent, and for a list of where these 304 pupils were placed.

Within the past few days we have received three calls to supply commercial teachers for other colleges besides several calls from business houses for office help.

The graduates of this school are not to be found anywhere seeking positions in vain. It will pay the intending student to keep this point in view.

We pay the railway fare up to $8 of students from a distance.

Good board at $2.50 per week for gentlemen and $2 for ladies.

If you have not seen our catalogue you are not yet familiar with the best Canada has to offer in the line of Business or Shorthand training. Write for it.

THE BIG STRIKE AND WHAT IT COSTS

Losses That Have Been Sustained Through the Great Steel Strike.

AN OMINOUS ARRAY OF FIGURES--STILL RUN UP

Which Should Make Thinking Men Ponder Over—Will the Strike Soon End ?

New York, Aug. 26—An interesting estimate of the cost of the steel strike to the public, the workers involved, and the Morgan trust is furnished by the Pittsburg correspondent of the "Commercial Advertiser." The correspondent, in commenting on the struggle between organized labor and the combine says that it has degenerated into a fight of money against determination, of the purse against pride.

The fund of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers is not nearly sufficient to enable it to cope with the billion-dollar United States Steel Corporation. The surplus in the treasury, which is not more than $70,000, must be devoted to paying $4 a week to the members of the association who are idle because of the disagreement between their leaders and the mill owners. The assessments that can be levied, and the voluntary contributions together, it is estimated, will not amount to more than $35,000 a month, all of which, if the constitution of the Association is to be complied with, must go to Amalgamated men.

About 15,000 members of the Amalgamated Association are on strike. To pro[illegible] ment will require about $60,000 a week, but, in addition to that, President Shaffer has promised to provide for all non-union men who leave work in sympathy with the Amalgamated Association. That promise carries with it an immense obligation. It is estimated that at least 100,000 non-association men have struck. If they are to receive the same allowance as the Amalgamated men the weekly expenditure from the Association's treasury will amount to $610,000, not counting the routine expenses for office work and the pay for organizers on duty.

The promise of aid from the Federation of Labor is limited by a clause in the constitution of the Federation. The assessment of 1 per cent, per member weekly for strike fund purposes is all that is permitted. Calculating the total membership of the Federation at 12,000, that would give a possible total contribution of $12,000 a week or $600,000 a year of fifty working weeks. But it must be remembered that the Federation has given something like $80,000 to aid the striking machinists during the present year. That sum must be deducted from the total possible contribution of the Federation for the present year, to aid the Amalgamated strikers. Aid from the Federation other than that must be provided by a special assessment of the Federation's members. It is doubtful whether the executive committee has the power to levy that.

So far as the treasury of the Amalgamated Association is concerned, therefore, the strikers find themselves lamentably lacking in funds. The officers say, however, that the true Amalgamated men will not ask for relief at the rate of $4.00 weekly. That may be correct of the men who make large salaries, but if the promise of the officials to provide for the poorer ones is fulfilled the treasury of the Amalgamated will be depleted scarcely less rapidly. The poor strikers will insist on getting the pittance from the strike fund for which the constitution provides.

To estimate the loss in wages the strikers have suffered is difficult. When former President M. M. Garland, of the Amalgamated Association, was before the Congressional Committee on Ways and Means some years ago in a labor enquiry, he estimated the average wages of steel workers at $3 per day. Calculating that 120,000 men are idle from the present strike, to accept the association's figures the loss in wages is $360,000 per day.

The total number of men idle up to the declaration of the general strike was estimated at 40,000. Those were out twenty-eight days before the 80,000 others (the association's figures) were rendered idle by the second call of President Shaffer and the sympathy strikes that followed. The following table will give an idea of the men's loss.

STRIKER'S LOSS

$360,000 per day for nine days	$3,240,000
$120,000 per day for twenty-eight days	3,360,000
Total wage loss thus far	$6,600,000

The actual loss in money to the steel corporation is largely problematical. The following figures are approximately correct, making no allowance for the fact that business lost is in many cases merely business deferred:

STEEL CORPORATION'S LOSS

Profit on 300,000 tons, at $10	$3,000,000
Loss in business and contracts (estimated)	10,000,000
	$13,000,000
Deduct wages saved	6,600,000
Net loss to trust	6,400,000

COST OF STRIKE

Loss to merchants and other business men (estimated)	$1,000,000
Loss in stocks and securities affected by the strike (estimated)	25,000,000
Loss to workers	6,600,000
Loss to Steel Trust	6,400,000
Total to date	$39,000,000

MEN AFFECTED TO AUGUST 21

Men out American Tin Plate Company	25,000
American Sheet Steel Company	20,000
American Steel Hoop Company	25,000
National Steel Company	5,000
Mingo Junction	1,500
National Tube Company	25,000
Elba, Riverside and Republic Iron Works	5,000
Federal Steel, Joliet, Bay View	6,000
Laborers, stevedors and railway men	7,500
Total	120,000

RECAPITULATION

Total men out first order	40,000
Total men out second order and sympathy strikes	80,000
Total to date	120,000
Total Amalgamated men	15,000

FOUGHT AGAINST BRITAIN, WANTS COMPENSATION

London, Aug. 27.—Newton Crane, in behalf of the American Embassy, has presented another claim to the South African Compensation Commission, that of Charles B. Nelken, a native of Prussia, and a naturalized American citizen.

Major General Sir John Ardagh, representing the Foreign Office, pointed out that the claiment's letter said he had joined the Boers in order to protect his property seized by the Boers, and remarked : "No person who has fought against Great Britain will receive any compensation on the recommendation of the commission."

Nelken, said Mr. Crance, was a man who had laid down his arms and resumed his neutral status at the time he was deported, and was entitled to the benefit of his neutral status.

Chairman Milvain said: "No person who has fought against Great Britain will receive compensation."

SERGEANT BLACK WOUNDED.

Ottawa, Aug. 27 — The following cable addressed to Lord Minto, from the Casualty Department, Cape Town was given out by the Militia Department to-day:

"Cape Town, Aug. 26.—Sergt, J. D. Black, 105, Canadian Scouts was dangerously wounded through palvis and left thigh near Helibron 22nd August. Please inform father, Jameson Black, St Catharines." Also a cable from the same source and date, as follows: "Condition of Lieut.-Col. Gordon 24th August, no change."

Charles M. Hays Said to Have Been Offered Managership.

New York, August 27—Following the reported resignation of Charles M. Hays as president of the Southern Pacific company it is now said that he has been asked to resume the office of vice president and general manager of the Grand Trunk railway.

SIXTY-EIGHT BRITISH SOLDIERS CAPTUUED NEAR LADYBRAND

London. Aug. 27.— A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, to-day says:—

"Three officers and 65 men, who were sent north of Ladybrand, Orange River Colony, on the right of Elliot's column, were surrounded on unfavorable ground and captured by a superior force, August 22. One man was killed, and four were wounded. The prisoners were released. Am holding an inquiry.

"Have received a long letter from Steyn containing an argumentative statement of the Boer case, and saying he will continue to fight, also a short letter from DeWet to the same effect.

"Botha writes, acknowledging the receipt of my proclamation, and protesting against it. He states that the Boers intend to go on fighting. On the other hand, the surrenders lately have increased considerably."

KISCHENER'S LATEST REPORT

London, Aug. 26.

A dispatch from Lord Kitchener says since August 19th thirty two Boers have been killed, 139 have been made prisoners and 185 have surrendered, including Kruger, a nephew of the ex-president. The columns are meeting with no appreciable opposition in Cape Colony. The rebels and armed bands are hiding and avoiding our columns with some success, General Beaton alone having been in contact with the commando of Scheper whom he is driving north.

GREAT ALARM IN COLOMBIA

Decree Issued at Bogota Shows Serious Crisis.

BIG PREPARATIONS FOR WAR

Colon, Colombia, Aug. 26.—The government appears now to be in a critical situation as a result of the conflict with Venezuela and internal dissension. Strict censorship has prevented the sending of news bearing upon the serious aspects of the war, but official action just made public proves the government officials are seriously alarmed. An official decree was sent *from Bogota on July 18 to the Gov*ernors of the departments but was not made public until to-day.

This decree says: "A new aspect of the war, which seems to kindle anew with the help of foreigners who threaten the frontier, places the government under the necessity of assuming a different attitude from that maintained hitherto, and forces it to proceedings which it has previously tried to avoid. It has been resolved, firstly, to suspend the payment of all accounts for war material pending and to limit the expenses to the payment of the armed force and ministration.

"Secondly, to proceed to expropriate all the necessary elements for the feeding equipment and mobilization of the army.

"Thirdly, to levy forced and voluntary loans, according to circumstances and to impose war contributions in order to meet the expenses of each department without depending on the national capital.

"The governors are hereby amply authorized to proceed in these matters according to the requirements of the cases without the need of approval from the government, and each governor must assume the responsibility in order to save the situation within his territory."

Washington, Aug. 26.—There is reason for believing that the German foreign office is taking as deep and acute an interest in the attitude of the United States toward the three South American republics that appear to be on the verge of war as several of the leading German newspapers.

Count Von Quadt, first secretary of the German embassy, who in the absence of Dr. Von Holleben is in charge, has unexpectedly returned to the city. It is expected he will ascertain for his government the exact position assumed by the United States toward the isthmian controversy. This can be done in a purely informal manner and without the necessity of officially demanding the purpose or policy of this government. He will undoubtedly be assured there is no intention of acquiring territory or paticipation in the anticipated conflict.

The return of Count Von Quadt was co-insident with the outburst of editorial denunciation of the Monroe doctrine by influential German newspapers. There is no connection between the sudden and unexpected reopening of the German embassy and the publication of the denunciatory comments. But there is a strong inclination among minor officials of the state department to locate the cause of the phenomena at the German foreign office.

SEND FINE COACH FOR YORK.

Dayton Firm Builds Elaborate Travelling Car For The Duke.

Dayton, O., Aug. 26.—The Barney & Smith Car Company has completed one of the finest travelling coaches ever built by that concern. It will be used by the Duke of Cornwall and York on his coming trip through the British possessions on the north and was sent to Halifax to-day from which place the Duke starts out. From there the Duke goes to Montreal and will visit many other places.

This special car is one of the finest and most attractive ever built, and was contracted for by the Inter-Colonial Company. It is named "Sandringham," in honor of the Duke's country estate in England. The interior work is of mahogany finish, holly and light oak. There are several compartments, observation-roomm, dining-room, and sleeping-room.

SHE HAS FICTION BEATEN

Very Staange Incident in a London Girl's Life.

DISCOVERS FATHER BY ACCIDENT

that a daughter was born to him.

The young mother died while her child was in infancy, leaving the babe to the care of her own mother. The granddaughter never knew until less than a month ago that she was such, and not daughter to the woman she called mother. About two months ago the latter died, and the grand daughter subsequently discovered letters which revealed the sad truth regarding her case. She determined to write to the man whom the letters clearly indicated was her father. The terms she used were not those of endearment, for she was very angry at the treatment her dead mother had received.

Something in the girl's letter caught the father, and his old love for the girl he had ruined seemed to centre upon their child. No name was signed to the letter he received, but he never doubted that it was his daughter who wrote, notwithstanding that he had not previously known of her existence. He came here, and with the aid of the city detectives found the girl at Victoria Hospital, where she had been ill. The meeting is said on his part to have been a most affectionate one. He remained for several days, and was constantly at the hospital. The sick room was filled with flowers, and fruit in abundance was always on the table beside the sick bed.

London, Ont., Aug. 26 Truth seems to have fiction beaten in the story of the life of a young London girl. The climax of the story was reached yesterday, when she went to Windsor to join the family of her father, who, although she is now 17 years of age, she had never known until a couple of weeks ago.

Years ago a young man who has since become one of Windsor's well-known citizens fell in love with a charming girl in this city. His love was fully reciprocated, and the young couple kept company for more than a year. He promised to marry, and the young woman trusted him implicitly. At this point, however, a little tiff occurred. The breach grew, and the young man left town. His sweetheart deemed him unfaithful, and they never met again. She bore her shame and sorrow in silence, and he never knew

MANY YOUNG GIRLS SMOKE.

Astounding Confession Made by 13-Year-Old Annie Neff in Court.

New York, Aug. 26.—An astonishing confession was made to-day by Annie Neff, a thirteen-year-old girl cigarette fiend, in Yorkville court. She said that all the girls in her neighborhood on the east side smoke cigarettes; that dealers continually violate the law compelling them to sell cigarettes in unbroken packages and that parties of boys and girls gather on the docks and have "inhaling parties," the one holding the smoke in the lungs the longest collecting a tribute of a cigarette from each of the other contestants. She tells of her experience as follows:

"Us girls wanted to play with the boys in the block, but the boys would not let us unless we smoked cigarettes. It did not take me long to learn to smoke and inhale and when the boys saw that I could they let me play with them. I used to save up all the pennies I could get and buy cigarettes with them. We bought them two for a cent and could get them in almost any store in our neighborhood. There are some cigarettes that you can get four for a cent. They are not as good as the others and I never bought them except when I was short of pennies.

"About a month ago my throat got bad and I went to Bellevue dispensary. They told my mother I was a cigarette fiend and the throat would stay bad if I didn't stop. I could have stopped all right but it was pleasant to smoke, and I said, "What's the use?" I am going to stop now and be a good girl, but I'm not the only girl that smokes in New York. All the girls on our block smoke cigarettes. Nearly every girl in school used to smoke I guess. The boys teach them.

BRITAIN'S DARK CLOUD HOVERS IN THE HORIZON

Paris Papers Affirm That the Outlook is Very Ominous For England.

SHOULD RUSSIA AND FRANCE INTERFERE

The Coming Visit of the Czar in France Will be Taken Advantage of by Boer Sympathizers.

Paris, August 27

The Figaro states that the object of the Czar's visit to France is to consult with France in regard to the South Africa war, and that the two countries will make a demand on Britain to get out of the Transvaal and Orange Free State.

In commenting on the above, Le Temps says that if it is true that the czar is coming to France to consult about intervention in the Transvaal business it might turn out a very ugly business. If Germany remained neutral, Great Britain would find her fleet pitted against the combined naval power of France and Russia and hampered by the fact of having to protect the lines of communication from England to the Cape, the food supply line from America and the whole coast of the United Kingdom. Whereas the enemy's fleets could cut loose and practically go where they pleased because Great Britain with 250,000 men in South Africa, 50,000 in India and a large number in China, Malta and elsewhere is in no position to invade either France or Russia even if the coasts were left unprotected. The ameer of Afghanistan is restless, the colonial troops have nearly all gone home and been disbanded, the large army in Africa is pretty well tired with the long campaign and altogether the situation favors the project of a European coalition.

DEFEAT OF STEEL-WORKERS ONLY A QUESTION OF TIME

Despite the Fact That They Have Made Gains All Along the Line There is Little Hope of Success.

THE STEEL TRUST IS PLAYING A WAITING GAME--SURE TO WIN OUT

Officials Say That President Shaffer Could Not Have Devised a Policy That Will Result More Satisfactorily to Them.

Pittsburg, Aug. 27.—Business men, manufacturers and most of the rest of the Pittsburg public have settled down in the conviction that the Amalgamated Association is defeated, and that it is only a question of time when the striking steel workers will realize it. No one here believes that the Amalgamated Association will be annihilated, but most approve the demand of the Steel Trust officials that the association shall no longer dictate or rule in combination mills.

There is little probability that any one can make peace unless the steel workers yield. The trust officials seem determined to free themselves and their corporation forever from the influence of any single coterie of men.

The strikers have made heavy gains all along the line. Their success in gaining the co-operation of the American Federation of Labor was a surprise to the Trust officials. Their ability to draw the welders and skilled men of the Pennsylvania and Continental Tube concerns into the struggle stumped the National Tube Company.

The superintendent of the two mills informed his superiors on the very afternoon the men quit that it was impossible to render the plants idle. But even this had no effect on the constant contention of the trust managers that the strike must be fought to the finish.

TRUST'S WAITING POLICY.

The waiting policy of the trust has amazed the workmen. They have looked for aggressive action, and are disappointed. Trust managers say that they believe the quickest way to defeat the strikers is to have every possible plant forced into idleness. They say that President Shaffer could not have devised a campaign that could have been more satisfactory to the trust. They declare the sooner all the workmen friendly to the Amalgamated Association are idle and are placed in the beneficiary instead of the contributing class, so much the quicker will the strike languish and disappear.

Observing men in Pittsburg who have had experience of other strikes cannot see how the men can possibly win, unless a general sympathetic strike is declared. This is now improbable.

It is believed that the strikers have practically reached the limit of their success in closing plants. The strike leaders and organizers of friendly unions say that even greater surprises are coming, and that the entire Monongahela Valley will be idle. They intimate that the Carnegie mills at Duquesne, Braddock, Rankin and Homestead will follow the lead of the other operating companies of the United States Steel Corporation. Carnegie officials laugh at these claims.

MEAGRE DEVELOPMENTS.

Pittsburg, Aug. 27.—Developments in the steel strike were meagre this morning. The probable renewal of peace negotiations by disinterested parties was being discussed again, but nothing definite could be learned. Henry M. White, of the Garment Makers of America, and Ralph M. Apeley, of the National Civic Federation, who took part in the conference in this city last week, left for the east last night, and it is reported that they went to New York to make another attempt to have negotiations between the contending parties re-opened. President Shaffer, however, said to-day that he knew nothing of the proposed venture, and his Association had authorized no new steps for peace.

The combination, it is said, intends to make aggressive attempts to start more plants this week. They were successful in putting two more mills in operation at Painters this morning, and now have four mills, with a force of 400 men, at work. More men were taken on at the Star plant of the American Tin Plate Company, and at the Lindsay and McCutcheon works of the Steel Hoop Company. These mills, the combination officials say, they expect to have in full operation before Saturday.

NO PROPOSITION SUBMITTED.

New York, Aug. 27.—No proposition looking to a settlement of the steel strike has been submitted up to 11 a.m. to-day to the United States Steel Corporation, following the conferences at Pittsburg last week of members of the Amalgamated Association, the Industrial Commission, the Civic Federation, and labor leaders. As far as could be ascertained none of the participants in the conference had come to New York.

DELAREY ACCEPTS THE CHALLENGE

Crafty Hill Fighter Issues Proclamation In Reply to Kitchener

THE WEARING DOWN PROCESS

London, Aug. 27.—The War Office publishes the following despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated at Pretoria, yesterday: "Delarey has issued a counter-proclamation warning all Boers against my latest proclamation, and declaring that they will continue the struggle."

Delarey is one of the most capable and reputable of Boer generals, and his example may be followed by De Wet and Botha. Lord Kitchener's task thus will be made more difficult.

RECENT OPERATIONS.

London, Aug. 27.—Gradually but surely the Boer guerillas in South Africa are being gathered in. Although the quick movements of the roving bands, coupled with their knowledge of the country and the aid given by farmers whose political opinions depend upon the character of the fighting force in nearest proximity to their farms, give the British considerable difficulty, the small successes scored from week to week by the British must eventually bring the conclusion of the war in the very near future.

In July last General Kitchener reported that there were about 13,500 Boers in arms. Recent weekly reports reduce the number to 10,000, and in an interview with a representative of The Gaulois, Mr. Kruger confirmed this, intimating at the same time that they were determined to continue the struggle.

The largest hostile force is in the Eastern Transvaal, but probably it does not exceed eight hundred burghers, Scheeper's commando is the only one south of the Orange River, and Gen. French is operating against it. Kritzinger and Wessels have been reinforced in the Wepener district by the bands which Knox was driving through the Orange River Colony, but this combined Boer force is about four hundred men.

NOT OF PEACE CONFERENCE.

London, Aug. 27.—It is pointed out that Mr. Kruger's protest against Kitchener's proclamation, addressed to the Powers, will lose much of its force from the fact that neither of the former South African Republics were represented at The Hague convention. The Netherlands Government, when arranging for the convention, submitted to Russia a list of the countries which it proposed to invite to the conference. It was returned from St Petersburg with the names of the two Republics crossed out. This may be an advantage for England at a time when the resources of the Boers are nearly exhausted; it would have been greater gain for England during the last two years if the two Republics had been represented in the Congress, and had been under obligation to respect the enlightened principles adopted by it.

BOERS CUT WIRES.

Cape Town. Aug, 27.—Many of the main telegraph lines in the Cape Colony and in Natal have been cut lately. General De. Wet has been reported at Lastron collecting a force. At Burghersdorp 247 second-class rebels have been disfranchised.

CAVALRY BAYONET CHARGE.

Bloemfontein, Aug. 27.—A portion of Colonel Delisle's column, composed of Australian bushmen, rushed a farmhouse in the night recently on horseback with fixed bayonets. Five Boers were killed and seven captured. Forty Boers were engaged north of the Modder River by a detachment of South African Constabulary. The Boers lost three killed and several wounded and six taken prisoners. Our men lost two killed and seven wounded.

SIR F. ROBINSON WAS DROWNED

He Fell Into Comparatively Shallow Water While Ill

WAS ONLY FOUR FEET DEEP

Sir Frederick and Lady Robinson had been spending the summer in their cottage there, and on Saturday evening entertained Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Wilgriss to tea. After tea Mr. and Mrs. Wilgriss left the cottage and Sir Frederick and Lady Robinson set out for a farm across the lake to obtain some butter. The trip was made in safety, and on their return Lady Robinson preceded her husband into the house, taking the wraps with her. Sir Frederick remained to properly secure the boat. After a short time Lady Robinson returned, but could see no trace of her husband. She went into the next cottage, but he had not been there. Then, becoming alarmed, help was sought from another cottage about a quarter of a mile away. Two young men came over, and in a short time discovered the body and brought it to land. A physician was at hand, and every effort was made to revive him, but without success. Sir Frederick had been subject to fainting fits, and it is believed that while he was standing on the boathouse platform, which is about three feet wide, he was seized with faintness and fell into the water, which was only four feet deep at the spot where he was drowned. A slight bruise was found on the head, such as would be caused by striking the platform, and the body was found beneath the platform. Sir Frederick was a skillful swimmer, and had he not fainted could easily have saved himself in much deeper water.

Corner Reece, who was called in, decided that an inquest was unnecessary. Yesterday morning Lady Robinson, accompanied by Mr. Wilgriss, brought the body to Toronto. The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from Sir Frederick's late residence, 18 Roxborough avenue west, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Sir Frederick, who was 46 years of age, was a clerk in the Surrogate Office at Osgoode Hall. Lady Robinson, whom he married in 1893, was Miss Mary Elizabeth Filer. He is succeeded in the title by his cousin, John Beverley Robinson of New York, son of the late Hon. John Beverley Robinson.

SAY CHINA WILL YIELD.

Ministers of Allied Powers Believe Protocol Will be Signed.

Pekin, Aug. 27—The delay of the Chinese plenipotentiaries in signing the protocol is causing some uneasiness in the foreign community here, although the ministers of the powers do not think the Chinese intend to defy the powers by ultimately refusing to sign. Indeed they believe China is anxious to wind up the negotiations speedily.

Decrees reciting the punishments and suspending the examinations will be issued before the Chinese signatures are affixed.

Prince Ching, at the request of the Empress Dowager, telegraphed to her verbatim the restrictions as to the importation of arms.

Li Hung Chan, having practically conducted all the active negociations, has retired into the background, leaving to Prince Ching the responsibility of consummating the work. Earl Li finds himself in the same precarious position that he occupied at the close of the negotiations following the war with Japan. The native press is unanimous in violently denouncing him for what is called his surrender to the foreigners, and a number of officials have petitioned the emperor to punish him for betraying his country.

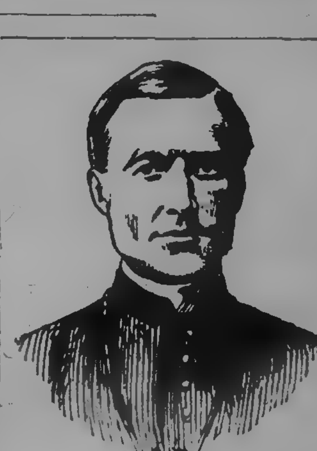
WELCOME FOR A CARDINAL

The Man Who May be Pope Welcomed at Baltimore.

Eight Thousand Men in Line to the Prince of the Church.



CARDINAL GIBBONS, OF BALTIMORE.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 27

Cardinal Gibbons arrived in this city yesterday on a return from a visit to Rome. Upon the arrival of the Cardinal at Union Station addresses of welcome were delivered by Acting Mayor Henry Williams and Charles J. Bonaparte, to which the Cardinal responded. Immediately after this ceremony, escorted by the Young Catholics' Friend Society, and the uniformed cadets, the Cardinal passed through the procession. The different organizations assembled and moved into positions assigned them at 2 o'clock. Uniformed Knights, Holy Name societies, League of the Sacred Heart, unattached societies, Catholic Benevolent Legion, Hibernian societies, Athletic societies, Young Catholics' Friends Society and Uniformed Cadets. The Young Catholics' Friend Society and the Uniformed Cadets formed the guard of honor, and marched to Union station at 2.30 o'clock. Carriages containing the acting mayor and city council, speakers and clergy, preceded the Cardinal to the Cathedral, where seats were reserved for them. Marshal Wheeler estimated that there were about 8,000 men in line. The addresses were chiefly of a felicitous nature, and were entirely non-political. The Cardinal spoke clearly, and described his visit to the Holy Pontiff.

THE AFGHANISTAN TROUBLE

The expected trouble with the Ameer of Afghanistan, which was the cause of the late report of the withdrawal of 70,000 troops from South Africa, seems likely to be averted by the good offices of Lord Curzon, the British Viceroy in India. The Ameer is on the whole friendly, as he should be so, under the existing treaty, which guarantees his country's independence, together with a large annual subsidy but he entertains a strong personal dislike to the foreign Secretary, Lord Lansdowne, who while Viceroy of India, fell at cross purposes with him in what he regarded as an attempt to meddle in the internal control of his territories. He complained that the Viceroy addressed him dictatorially, stopped the transit of arms and metals across the Indian frontier, and proposed to send a military envoy with an escort of 10,000 men. All this the Ameer resented in a letter to Lord Salisbury. He found it inconvenient to receive so large a number of soldiers as guests, and prepared an army of 100,000 to even matters up. The trouble was averted for the time but has been renewed by pressure from some quarter for the prolongation of a railway into his country, which he thinks would be fatal to its independence. He is determined not to allow the construction of roads and railways in Afghanistan by subjects of other countries. This policy he recommends to his sons and successors as the only safe one to follow. When the country is strong enough to defend itself, then it may be expedient to allow the railways that may be built in Afghanistan to be joined with those of the neighboring country whose government is the least hostile to Afghanistan. Any concessions given to foreigners should be carefully considered and granted only to subjects of countries not touching the boundaries of Afghanistan. Incidentally, the Ameer wishes to promote internal prosperity by checking importations and encouraging native industry. It is probably the applications of these principles, combined with a refusal to allow a railway to be carried to Kandahar that is at the root of the trouble with the British Government. But the present Viceroy is too sound and discreet a ruler to permit any passing misunderstanding to reach a perilous focus.

THROUGH ENGLISH EYES

An article by Alex. Kenealy, an English student of political economy, which recently appeared in the Philadelphia Times is worth repeating. The title of the article is "Can Canada be made to rival the United States?" Canadians will not agree with all that he says, but he is at least suggestive. The article is as follows.

"Why is it that Canada, a country of splendid natural resources, capable of sustaining an enormous population, does not develop in the same ratio as do the United States?" says Mr. Kenealy. "Why does the British Government do nothing to direct the stream of emigration to this splendid colony, which only needs proper development to support a population of 50,000,000 prosperous inhabitants, each one of them a keen patriot, ready to contribute his life and his resources to the defense and glory of this Empire? Why is it that British capital does not seek investment in civilized, law-abiding Canada instead of going to semi-savage South American republics, in which they hold annual revolutions instead of annual elections.

"The only correct answer to these questions is that the government and the capital both lack the necessary intelligence, knowledge and initative. The United States have been built up entirely by immigration. The men in authority in the Yankee country realize the fact, and they have scoured Europe for brawny workmen to till their soil and delve in their mines. The emigrants who have been taken West and placed upon the great grain-growing lands there are raising the wheat which arrives at our ports by the million bushels.

"Meanwhile the splendid farm lands of Canada, which might grow every pound of bread that Great Britain eats, are, comparatively speaking, a vast solitude. Why do emigrants go to the United States, instead of to Canada? Because they are taken there. The big railroad systems of the United States are progressive and active. They have their agencies in every corner of Europe. Their silver-tongued representatives are armed with eloquent literature about the Golden West. They gather in the peasants who are discontented with their lot and ship them, like so much merchandise, properly labeled, to the Western States; and when they arrive there is some one to place a shovel in their hands and show them where to dig.

"The development of the United States proceeds on organized lines. There is ample capital to ensure it. Great railways have been built, often with English gold, and they have nursed and aided the settler. The development of Canada does not proceed on organized lines, and it lacks capital. The country is too much in its infancy to walk alone. It needs the assistance both of Downing street and of Chapel court. Millions of pounds should be poured into it by investors. An enormous amount of effort and enthusiasm should be poured into it by the Government. Emigration from here to Canada cannot be the success that it should be until capital and labor emigrate hand in hand.

"A plan to promote emigration to Canada can do nothing in the promotion line if it consist of an office in London at £60 a year, a clerk who knows even less about Canada than he does about anything less, and a pile of dreary handbills That is the official method of promoting emigration. It is not the American plan. It was not the method by which a few years ago a nation of seventy-five million Europeans was built up on the western shores of the Atlantic. There is no reason why half of those seventy-five millions should not be north of the Canadian border.

"Canada is the country that is entitled to the British hand-clasp and to British attention. Why don't the 'Blood is thicker than water' men who shed tears at banquets when they talk about the American eagle work up a little feeling over the magnificent colony of the St. Lawrence, the nearest colony England has to her shores and the one most capable of expansion?

Intoxicated with their own loquacity, the "Blood is thicker than water" men aim a blow at the wealth of the empire when they indulge in their spread-eagle talk. The sentimental gush about the disinterested affection which Uncle Sam bears to the British lion, and the spectacle of statesmen weeping hysterically upon the shoulders of United States Ambassadors are injurious to the interests of Canada, inasmuch as they are calculated to divert men and money from our Canadian colony to the country on its frontier.

Let us stir up some enthusiasm about Canada, and let Uncle Sam look after himself for a while. The former needs our attention; the latter is more than capable of conducting his own affairs. The development of Canada cannot be brought about by shipping solitary emigrants to Canadian prairies, and there leaving them dazed and helpless and wondering what to do next. There has already been too much of this sort of emigration. Railway ticket system, in dealing with intending settlers, generally took down their tariff sheet and "boom" the place that it costs the most to reach. This they do in the interests of their own company, or because of the commissions they receive. England will need a certain number of millions of bushels of wheat next year and the year after. It will import vast quantities of pork and beef and mutton. These quantities will not only be vast, but they are certain quantities. Why should we buy one single pound of wheat, beef or pork from the United States that we can raise in Canada? Is it because we find the spectacle of Lord Salisbury and Mr. Choate holding one another's hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne" in broken pathetic tones a pleasing one?

Britons should be too practical for that. The way to treat the United States commercially is to compete with them in fair contest. Let us confine the "Blood is thicker than water" business entirely to after office hours, and let it be merely one of our innocent diversions like "ping-pong" instead of the guiding star of our commercial politics. The man who would not rather eat Canadian bread and butter than that grown in the United States is not much of a patriot. If it be necessary to discriminate in the matter of duties in favor of Canadian produce, let us discriminate, and the quicker the better.

The United States, which for years have closed their ports against English goods, and in favor of their own, cannot complain if John Bull suddenly finds Canadian beef and flour more palatable than those with the Yankee flavor.

But supposing, after all, the Choate-Salisbury chorus did cease? Let it cease if it wants to.

In the event of England going to war the United States will help her only if it be to their interests to do so. and perhaps not then, so great is the anti-English feeling in America. It is not that the Americans are anti-English socially. They are only anti-English commercially and politically.

But to return to the matter of emigration to Canada. A man with a sinister face and a hole in the ground in some African swamp has no trouble in raising £100,000 in the city of London under the pretext that there may be gold at the bottom of that hole in the ground. A few months pass, and the man with the sinister face goes suddenly to the continent, while his shareholders enquire the way to the nearest workhouse.

Why cannot a few millions be put into the development of cattle and wheat in Canada? That is where the real gold mines are. Capitalists who find the money to develop such land might at the same time export the emigrants, assuring them of employment on their arrival. In this way Canada can be made to grow. But the Government must help.

FRENCH GUNS TO AWE ABDUL

Berlin, Aug. 21. — Never since Germany stepped into the arena of industrial and commercial powers has the financial outlook of the country been so troubled. All the greed and lust of gain have not been free from an element of criminality.

The smashes culminated in the stoppage of payment by the Leipsic Bank. This was an old-established, conservative concern. All went well until about five years ago when a certain Herr Exner became director.

The capital of the bank was about $5,000,000 when he joined it. He rapidly ran it up to $16,000,000. Exner saw his way to a great coup and singled out an insignificant grain-drying establishment in Cassel which he determined to boom. It was probably worth $100,000.

The Leipsic Bank began to support it and Exner ran up the shares. In a few years the bank had lent the Cassel grain-drying firm about $20,000,000 and the enterprise was paying some years 50 per cent, dividend—of course, out of the money lent by the bank.

Exner bought Cassel shares when they were next to nothing and sold them when they were quoted high above par. He must have realized $5,000,000 on the shares.

THE CRASH CAME.

Like a bolt from the blue sky came the crash. The directors of the bank announced that they had stopped payment, but informed their victims that if they only had patience all their claims would be met. They were about $25,000,000 to the bad then.

Days of panic and wild talk such as Leipsic had never known followed. The customers of the bank stormed the offices, but they found the pay desks closed. Women wept, fell fainting and were carried out.

Lohmann's big flannel works dropped $200,000; a huge paper manufactory lost $370,000; the Humanitarian Institute of Leipsic, a concern supported by Government, lost $125,000, and it is computed that of the small people concerned over 350 must go into liquidation at once and over, 1,500 families are practically ruined.

Exner was arrested at his villa and lodged in jail, where he hears the execrations of the crowds he has ruined.

The banker, Edward Krohmann, believed to be implicated, and feeling the disgrace coming, shot a bullet through his head.

WHY BRITAIN'S ENVOY BALKED

London, Aug. 26—Emperor Nicholas is reported to have specially invited Mr. Kruger to send a representative to attend the wedding of his youngest sister, the Grand Duchess Olga, to Duke Peter of Oldenburg According to the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin it was the presence of this representative, M. Van der Hoeven, that prevented any member of the British embassy in St. Petersburg from attending. The Czar ignored the British ambassador's protest against the presence of M. Van der Hoeven.

"Go West,

Ranch it and rough it and you'll soon get rid of that weak chest and that hacking cough." That is what the doctor said to a young married man with a wife and child to care for and a modest salary to support them on. He couldn't go West. Love and duty tied him to his desk in the city.

People don't have to travel to cure coughs or strengthen weak lungs. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding of the lungs, weakness, emaciation and other forms of disease which if neglected or unskillfully treated terminate fatally in consumption.

"I will write you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has done for me," says George H. Belcher, Esq., of Dorton, Pike County, Ky. "Thirteen years ago I was wounded by a ball passing through my lung. I have had a bad cough almost ever since, with shortness of breath, and it was very easy to take cold; the slightest change of weather would cause the cough to be so bad I would have to sit up in bed all night. Could not eat or sleep at times; was all run down; could not work at all. A few months ago I began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Have not used more than two bottles, and now can eat, sleep, and work, and I feel like a new man. I cannot find words to sufficiently recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, or tell the good it has done me."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser in paper covers is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. The book has 1008 pages. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Cathedral Treasure.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

The old cathedral—like most Spanish churches—is almost in the center of the town. But the grey weather-beaten walls of this one are rendered doubly imposing by the hill which gives them greater height. There the church has stood for more than three centuries, the witness of many a bloody struggle. It saw the successors of Cortez pass through the valley on their way to the gold fields of the north; it looked down on fierce battles between the Spanish adventurers and the natives; it saw the peaceful farmers massacred by raiding Indians and was itself spattered with blood in the uprising for independence, next the Texans and then the victorious Americans seized it and for a time it was the refuge of Maximillian's ill-fated followers. Again blood spotted its walls in a war for independence.

Many a time during these centuries had the holy fathers in whose care it was been forced to flee for their lives. Many a time had they taken refuge in the near-by mountains and left the sanctuary to be desecrated by warring men. But during all those centuries, during all those blood-stained years, the treasures of the church had been kept safe. The golden candlesticks and censers, the chalices, all the vessels of the altar—priceless both from association and workmanship——had never been allowed to fall into the hands of the looting armies.

Now these treasures are gone. The altars have been stripped and the sanctuary despoiled. Cheap vessels replace the golden ones and jewels no longer flash from the vestments of the priests.

What became of them? It is useless to ask the fathers, for their lips are sealed. It is useless to search the archives, for no record tells the tale.

* * *

Vespers were over. In a grove on the bank of the river, just below the town, a man was restlessly pacing to and fro. A cloak thrown over his shoulders half hid his face, and a broad-brimmed hat pulled over his eyes would have made recognition impossible had not his impatience betrayed him. As he watched a woman came toward him. The lithe sinuousness of her form showed she was young and the moon's rays fell upon a face which no one could pass unnoticed. The poise of the head, the dark olive complexion, the glossy hair gracefully arranged, all combined to intensify the beauty of the features. But for the expression of the lips and the light that shone in the eyes the face could have been the model for a goddess. Those made it that of a Phryne.

As she neared the grove the man, with outstretched arms, ran to meet her. His cloak, thrown to one side, revealed the sombre garb of a priest.

"Here at last, Pepitta," he breathed as he drew her to him. "The minutes seemed hours as I waited, but now you are here the hours will seem like minutes."

"There can be no hours to-night," answered the young woman. "No, I came only to say adios."

A passionate glance contradicted her words and with a kiss she silenced the young man's protests.

"Yes, we must part," she continued as she drew his head to her. "What would people say if they knew Father Pedro met me here? They would stone us both from the city. They would kill us. I have no wish to die. Life is too good. But we cannot meet like this any more. Even now some women begin to suspect. In a little while they will discover our secret. For our own safety we must see each other no more."

"But I can't leave you, Pepita. You don't know what you are to me. You are more than a woman, more than a wife. You are the ideal of which I used to dream. I can't give you up. I can't."

"But you must, Pedro dear," answered Pepita. "What future can there be for either of us. We must sacrifice our love, even if it wrecks our lives. How can Father Pedro of the cathedral and Pepita have anything in common? Why, I could not be your housekeeper if you lived alone in the parish. For your sake, dear, I will give you up. I can leave you now and go away. What becomes of me doesn't matter. But you must go on as a priest. It is too late for you to turn back."

Placing her hands on his temples she drew his face close to her own. Her eyes looked into his and all the passion of hell blazed from them.

"I tell you I will not leave you, Pepita," whispered the priest as he drew her to him. "I will not give you up. I would rather die. We will go away from here. We——"

"What! And would you abjure your vows for the love of a woman?"

Pepita's voice recalled him to his duty, but her actions outweighed her words a hundred times. As she spoke the young priest hesitated. Then he looked in her eyes and all thought of the life to which he had pledged himself was gone.

She drew herself slightly from his grasp.

"And for me you would sacrifice your future?"

"For you I will sacrifice—eternity."

Father Pedro's voice was husky, but there was a ring of determination in it which showed the woman her power. She placed her hands on his shoulders and looked long and piercingly into his eyes. It was the basilisk look which it is said a serpent gives as it seizes its victim.

"Do you mean it?" she asked.

"I mean it," the priest answered brokenly.

For a moment the woman stood motionless. She read his face and saw the struggle which was taking place within him. But she knew she had won. She saw the man, the priest, scorning the world, rejecting his life, defying his order, and sacrificing salvation for her. But there was no pity in her eyes, none in her heart. The utter strength of her mind was put forth to accomplish the evil she had planned.

Slowly the expression of her face changed. The passion she had showed before returned and she sank into his arms.

* * *

It was late when they left the grove. The priest was silent and like one in a dream. His arm was about the woman and she made no protest to the caresses which he gave. As they neared the outskirts of the town she stopped.

"We will take the midnight train," she said.

"The midnight train," repeated Father Pedro mechanically.

"We will go first to the City of Mexico. I have enough money for the tickets. Once there we can live quietly until we go to Spain. The church treasure will give us plenty for the rest of our lives——"

"The church treasure," again echoed the priest.

"No one shall know who we are or whence we came and love all shall make our life better than paradise."

The tempting passion of her whole nature was again in Pepita's voice. The priest was still like a man in a dream. The woman again put her hands to his temples and drew his head toward hers. Again she poured into his eyes the burning gaze which deadened his will and seared over the thoughts which came to him.

The next morning there was consternation in the cathedral. The treasures were gone, the altar itself was rifled. A sacrilegious hand had left nothing of the wealth of the church. But it was quickly evident that it was no stranger who had gone to the hiding-places and had looted them without force. Besides Father Pedro was missing. His bed was undisturbed. On his pillow they found his breviary, his rosary, even his scapular—all the evidence of his religion.

* * *

"You fool! Did think I cared for you? I have got what I wanted and now you can go to the devil who you are so sure will get you.

Father Pedro again stood like one in a trance and again Pepita's eyes were blazing at him. But this time there was no passion, no tenderness, in them.

"I tell you you can go to the devil to whom you say you have sacrificed your eternity," half screamed the woman. "Do you think I want you around? Why, your face is gloomier than your rusty old priest's coat. Put it on and go back to your church. I am through with you. Get out."

Pedro seemed deaf to the words. If he heard them his face did not betray the fact. Nothing that could be said or done could affect him now. The battle of his life had been fought with himself and he had lost. Silently he left the house.

* * *

When they found his body it was lying on the steps of the cathedral. It was dressed in black, but there was nothing to show that the man had ever devoted his life to God. They did not take it into the church. A renegade priest, a thief, a suicide—they could not do that. But they buried him close outside the walls and the little stone obelisk at the head of the half-sunken mound still bears these words:

PEDRO GONALZEZ.
Requiescat in Pace.

DEATH LIST NOW NUMBERS FORTY-ONE

Victoria, Aug. 24.—About five hundred people met the steamer Hating at Vancouver yesterday morning as she arrived from Skaguay, to hear tidings of the Islander disaster. Lester Gill of the Hudson Bay stores, Vancouver, was the only Islander passenger on board. He was in the water three hours before being rescued. The remains of five of the victims were on board, and there was a touching scene as the assembled relatives went forward to claim their dead. Governor J. H. Ross, administrator of the Yukon, accompanied the remains of his wife, her niece and child. That bodies, together with those of Captain Foote, master of the lost vessel, and Dr. John A. Duncan were brought to Victoria. It is not known whether the remains of Mrs. Ross will be taken east for interment.

Passengers—E. D. Kills, Mrs. (Dr.) Phills and child, J. W. Bell, Dr. Duncan, Miss Kate Barnes, Mrs. Minnie Ross, A. W. Jerry, J. Dahl, M. J. Braelin, Miss Nicholson, Mrs. Ross and child, Mr. Keating, Arthur Keating, J. Keating, F. R. Douglas, F. Rekate, Mrs. J. G. Henderson, H. T. Rogers, Wm. Meadows, N. Caspar, Louis McKay, 23.

Crew—Capt. Foote, H. Fowler, Miles Jacobs, Claude Berkholder, H. Porter, Norman Law, S. J. Pitts, three Chinese, Geo. Allan, A. Kendall, P. Burke, James Hatch, James Badd, Geo. Mills, two coal passers, names unknown. 18.

The following bodies were recovered: Miss Kate Barnes, H. T. Rogerrs, Mrs. J. H. Ross and child, Dr. Duncan, Dorothy Phillips, Mrs. Minnie Ross, Joseph Dahl, two passengers, names unknown, A. W. Jerry, or Jorg, Thomas Broolen, Alf. Kendall, S. J. Pitts, Ah Yet, (Chinaman), Miles Jacobs, Hugh Porter, P. Murke, Captain Foote. These make nineteen out of 41. Twenty-one bodies are still missing.

THE INQUEST.

An inquest was held at Juneau on the body of Dr. Duncan, and the following verdict rendered: "We, the jury, empaneled and sworn in the matter of the inquest upon the body of Dr. J. A. Duncan, deceased, find that he came to his death on August 15, 1901, by the wreck of the steamship Islander, and by evidence produced, we find that we can blame no one for the accident."

(Signed) J. J. Beattie, Foreman.

On the north bound steamer a representative of the C.P.R., and Llo agent, will go to taking into consideration the question of salving the Islander.

AMONG THE VICTIMS.

H. Morrison, one of the survivors, reports at Seattle the drowning in the wreck of Mrs. Larkins, who went from that city to Dawson about a year and a half ago to search for her husband, who had gone to that city and is missing. The description brought down by Morrison of Mrs. Larkins was so accurate as to leave no doubt of her identity. She was on her way home to start a business of her own with several thousand dollars furnished by friends of her husband, who it is thought perished in a snowslide.

M. Blumauer, one of the survivors of the wreck, has reached his home at Portland, and reports that Fred Rekate of Portland was among those lost. Rekate's name has not before appeared in the list of the victims.

CHARGED WITH DRUNKENNESS.

One of the principal questions which have to be settled by the court of enquiry will be the charge of drunkenness made against the captain and pilot. Some sea captains are in the habit of having a good time while their vessels are discharging and loading at Skagway, and in the Seattle paper especially that charge is boldly made that both Pilot Leblanc and Captain Foote were both unfit to take command of the vessel. Dr. McFarlane of Atlin, however, says he was with Captain Foote all the evening and he was perfectly sober, and that about ten o'clock at night the pilot came to the captain and said something, whereupon Captain Foote replied: "Well, all right, go and lie down and I'll look after her." Subsequently Leblanc relieved Foote, and McFarlane says that he climbed the stairway so drunk that he could hardly reach the wheel house. It is said that Mr. Belcourt, M.P., is also of the opinion that the pilot was unfit for duty.

ROOM SMALL UPON STEAMERS

London, Aug. 25.—The usual end-of-the-summer congestion on the transatlantic steamers now prevails, and it is practically impossible to secure a berth on any of the vessels until the end of September. The reconstructed Philadelphia (formerly the Paris) is just out in time to relieve the pressure, and any former prejudic that may have existed in connection with the Paris must have vanished, as she is full booked for her maiden voyage, as high a price as £150 having been paid for suits aboard of her.

The Hamburg-American liner Deutschland also is crowded. She sailed on Friday. It is said that no less than sixty passengers were looked on her for one western city alone. Her passenger list included a number of Pittsburg manufacturers, who had concluded a tour of Europe made for the purpose of investigating German and British steel plants.

"We find in Pittsburg," said Mr. John K. Bryden, "that it is almost always necessary to get fresh supplies of superintendents from Dusseldorf and other German centres.

"So far as the strike is concerned, we all believe that the manufacturers, both in the trust and out, are too willing to pay fair wages to permit the men to long remain idle."

FOILS PLANS OF TRUST.

Baltimore Inspector Detains Imported Workmen at Immigrant Office.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 24—One hundred and twenty-six men, suspected of being the advance guard of an army of cheap labor hired by the steel trust to take the places of strikers, have arrived at Locust Point from Bremen on the liner Hanover. They are under a strong guard and probably will be sent back to Germany.

The men are Germans, Hungarians, Russians. They have little to say. Evidently they have been instructed to keep mum. Local immigration authorities are hard at work among them.

Some time ago Immigration Commissioner Powderly received a tip from strike headquarters that the trust would try to import alien labor, and he notified all the seaport commissioners and inspectors. When the Hanover arrived the 126 steerage passengers, nearly all of whom admitted they had worked in steel and iron works, were held up.

They told conflicting stories about where they were going and what they intended to do in this country and little by little enough was learned by Inspector Robinson to warrant detaining them. It is said another large lot of them is due at New York to-day or to-morrow and others will attempt to land at Philadelphia and Boston.

The Royal Chorus.

The Times is requested to state that there will be a meeting of local singers in the Y.W.C.A. hall to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a party from Peterborough to take part in the royal exception in connection with the Duke of Cornwall's visit. It is to be hoped that all interested will attend the meeting. It is particularly desired that members of every church choir will make it a point to be present.

The Great Kidney Specialist.

The Famous Physician Who Has Made Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Diseases a Life Long Study.

DR. ZINA PITCHER.

For many years in the hospitals of Detroit and Professor of Genito Urinary diseases in Michigan College of Medicine Dr. Zina Pitcher devoted his time to the scientific study of diseases of the Kidneys [illegible] and Urinary System. [illegible] exclusive devotion to one branch of [illegible] investigation Dr. Pitcher was enabled to perfect a treatment for Kidney troubles that far surpasses any other remedy.

After testing it extensively in private and hospital practice and demonstrating its incomparable superiority to all other forms of treatment, Dr. Pitcher decided to give this great boon to suffering humanity at large and not confine it exclusively to the circles of his private and hospital patients.

He has placed his remedy before the public under the name of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and so confident is he of the positive curative qualities of these Tablets for backache, lame or weak back, drowsiness, headaches, pain in the loins, brick dust deposits in the urine, puffiness under the eyes, swelling of the feet and ankles, scalding, irritation, frequent rising at night, dribbling, inflammation or ulceration of the bladder, gravel, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease and Diabetes (except in the last stages), bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, constipation, puffy and pasty appearance of the face, dropsy, backache and weakness of women, urinary weakness of children and old people or any symptomatic indications of Kidney disease that to anyone suffering from any of the above troubles, who uses the Tablets faithfully, according to directions, and derives no benefit therefrom, their money will be cheerfully refunded.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists or sent by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1895, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper, to any sufferer, on receipt of two stamps.

THE ANNUAL RETREAT.

Peterborough Priests Participate in the Weeks Spiritual Work.

The annual retreat of the priests of the Diocese of Peterborough is being observed this week at St. Peter's Cathedral. It is a special season of silence and solitude, in which the participants withdraw for exclusive occupation in spiritual self-examination and in the duties of devotion.

Service of a preparatory character were held in the Cathedral last night, the preacher being Rev. Father Thumel O.S.B., of Detroit. During the retreat the Cathedral will be closed to the participants will resort for private devotion.

Besides the priests of the Cathedral, there are present: Rt. Rev. Father Monsignor Laurent, Lindsay, Rev. Fathers P. J. McGuire, Hastings; M. J. McGuire, Wooller; F. O'Sullivan, Gradton; M. Lynch, Port Hope; E. Murray, Cobourg; T. O'Connell, Burnley; W. J. McClowsky, Campbellford. P. Conway, Norwood; M. F. Fitzpatrick, Young's Point; P. J. O'Leary, Galway; A. F. Kelly, Trout Creek; D. J. Scanlan, North Bay; J. J. O'Brien, Sturgeon Falls; F. F. Collins, Bracebridge; J. Sweeney, Victoria Road; C. J. Phelan, Lindsay; C. S. Bretherton, Downeyville, W. J. McCall, Ennismore, W. J. Kelty, Douro.

The Rosedale Locks.

Says the Lindsay Post: "Mr. H. Gunner has been elected president of the Muskoka Lakes Association, which intend to wait on the Government, asking them to increase the size of the locks, also to take steps to ensure proper care of the locks, and to provide sufficient accommodiation for the boat traffic at Port Carling. Lindsay Town Council and Board of Trade should take up the matter of the Rosedale lock, which should be rebuilt. It would open up a new excursion route for our large steamers, which could then run to Coboconk and all Balsam Lake points, and Kirkfield, some miles up the Trent Valley canal. As the lock forms part of the canal system proper it may be the intention of the Dominion authorities to take it over, but if so their action should be hastened in the interests of Kawartha lake navigation."

PASSENGERS' GRAVE PERIL.

A Plunge Into Lake Cayuga, Near Ithaca, Narrowly Averted.

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 27—The Lehigh Valley passenger train which left Auburn at 7 o'clock to-night for Ithaca, while running along the shore of Lake Cayuga, struck a landslide just north of this city and part of the train plunged off into the lake.

The fireman, Dennis Fitzgerald, of this city, is missing in the wreckage, and the engineer, "Jack" La France, also of this city, is badly injured. Both of the men stuck to their posts and thus saved the lives of many passengers.

At King's Ferry, were the accident occurred, the road runs close to the water's edge and the water, only a few feet away, is very deep. As the train shot around the curve at a high rate of speed, it was only a short distance from the obstruction, which extended some three hundred feet along the track.

The application of the brakes was sufficient to stop the first passenger car on the very brink of the lake, but the engine and tender plunged off into the water and disappeared beneath the surface. The tender turned completely over and the engine struck on its side.

Fitzgerald was caught by the tender and buried beneath it. La France's arm and leg were smashed, but somehow he managed to get loose from the wreckage and swam ashore. The passengers were badly shaken up, but none was seriously injured.

A wrecking train sent from Auburn up to midnight had failed to find the body of the missing fireman.

KILLED ALL HIS ENEMIES.

A Returned Volunteer Soldier Renews a Feud in Kentucky.

Williamsburg, Ky., Aug. 27. — Sheriff Sutton has reliable information concerning a pitched battle about twenty miles from here in which five men were killed by Wes Mays and George Golden, the first of whom was a former resident of Whitley County, and who has just returned home after having been discharged from the Volunteer Army service in the Philippines.

Mays is said to have had trouble with Logan before he went into the army, Mays' wife being the cause, it is said. According to the story that was brought here from the scene of the killing, Mays and his comrade came back from the army with shirts of mail and pistols. Golden accompanied Mays from the Philippines and made Mays' quarrel his own.

They reached Mays former home on Tuesday and at once hunted up Logan and renewed the quarrel. In the pitched battle that followed none of the men had any chance against the mailed soldiers and they were all killed. The dead men were dragged into the house and for fortyeight hours Mays and Golden refused to allow anyone to enter the place.

The neighbors were terror-stricken and made no effort to secure the bodies of the dead.

A posse has been made up here to go to the scene of the killing to arrest the men who did the shooting and to bury the dead. The place is in the mountains, away from railroads or telegraph station. It is one of the most desolate spots in eastern Kentucky.

PETERBOROUGH FAIR.

Great Attractions For the Coming Industrial Exhibition.

Lady Hietso, lady cornetist.

Varin & Turenne, famous Mexican axe jugglers.

Franklyn (Nellie) & Hiatt, English, transformation singing and comedy artists.

There will also be trials of speed for horses.

Hon. Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia, has expressed his willingness to be present at the opening of the fair. Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. Jas. Kendrey, M.P., will also attend the opening.

SING TO DUKE AND DUCHESS.

100 Voices From Peterborough Will be in Grand Choir For Royal Reception.

This evening at 8 o'clock, in Y.M.C.A. Hall, a meeting will be held to arrange for the sending of 100 Peterborough vocalists to Toronto on the occasion of the Duke and Duchess of York. Mr. G. W. Mulligan is taking the lead in the matter. There will be no difficulty about getting the required number of voices, and good voices too, but the matter of meeting the expenses is not yet settled. The expenses will amount to at least $200 and the members of the chorus will be willing to pay at least $100 of this. The remainder of the amount will have to be raised by private subscriptions, and already liberal promises have been made. No doubt full provisions will be made at the meeting tonight, to which all persons interested are invited.

Trenton is to send a chorus of 70 voices.

AMERICAN CANOE ASSOCIATION

Walter J. English Elected to the Office of Rear Commodore

Mr. Walter J. English is home from the annual camp of the American Canoe Association on the St. Lawrence river. Mr. English was elected to the office of Rear Commodore for the ensuing year.

It was decided to hold a one day's meet for racing only at Carleton Place, Ont., or at some other point which in the opinion of the Executive will suit the purposes of the Northern Division.

The Association has purchased Sugar Island in the St. Lawrence River, from the Department of the Interior, and every member of the Association who visited the Island is pleased with the advantages which the location affords for a successful A.C.A. meet. A contract for furnishing the Association with a topographical survey of the Island has been given to Mr. Lent, an architect of Boston.

SHOT AND KILLED FATHER AND SON

Tragedy Attending Sheriff's Defence of a Convicted Negro.

THE MOB AT THE COURT HOUSE

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 26. — Sheriff North successfully defended "Jim" Brown, a convicted negro, at Asheville, St. Clair county, and in doing so his deputies shot and killed Arthur and Walter Blakenship, father and son, and wounded James Hanby, all three members of a mob of four hundred men who were determined to lynch the negro.

The prisoner, who had attacked Miss Dell Garrett, a schoolgirl, at Springville, in May, was tried at a special term of court this morning at Asheville, the county seat. In two hours he was found guilty.

The judge instructed Sheriff North to bring the prisoner back to Birmingham. The verdict was death, and the sentence was hanging on Sept. 20, but the mob wanted the hanging to occur on the spot.

The sheriff held his prisoner in the court house, surrounded as he had been during the trial, by a strong guard. The mob gathered in front of the court house and demanded the negro. The sheriff declined to surrender him, and, moreover, informed the mob that the first man who attempted to mount the court house steps to get the negro would be shot. The Blankenships started up the steps, firing their pistols. At a sign from Sheriff North the guards opened fire on the mob, and the two Blankenships and young Hanby were shot. The mob returned the fire, and probably one hundred shots were fired altogether.

The mob retired, but soon gathered for a second attempt. A severe rain commenced to fall, and the crowd took refuge in the stores about the court house square. While the rain was most blinding Deputies Treece and Starnes handcuffed the prisoner and rushed him out of the back door of the court house, the judge having advised that this would be the only way to prevent the mob from finally being victorious.

The two deputies reached Whitney with their prisoner and arrived at Birmingham tonight at eight o'clock with him. The mob gathered a third time after the rain, and were not aware of the departure of the negro until it was too late to overtake the deputies.

ST. PETER'S T. A. S.

A Boys Branch Formed in Connection With The Society.

A boy's branch has been formed in connection with St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society. The membership comprises lads under 17 years of age.

The membership of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society numbers three hundred and fifty. Every new meeting furnishes evidences of its flourishing condition. Sunday there were 20 new members received. The formation of a Ladies' Society will take place very shortly, and by the end of the year it is expected the membership will have reached 1,000. Certain improvements will be made to the society's halls and apartments in view of a pleasant and progressive winter.

The T.A.S. will have an excursion to Jubilee Point on Labor Day.

BRIDE'S GIFT TO BE $1,000,000

North Carolina Lady Weds Oil Magnate Flagler To-day.

Wilmington, N. C., August 27.— The marriage on Saturday of Miss Mary Lilly Kenan, of Wilmington, N. C. and Henry M. Flagler, of Florida, the multi-millionaire oil magnate, promises to be a brilliant affair.

Mr. Flagler's wedding gift to his bride is said to be $1,000,000. Two others of the family, it is said, will be given $50,000 each.

New York, August 27. — Papers were filed to-day in the Supreme Court appointing a special guardian to look after the interests of the insane and divorced wife of Henry M. Flagler, the Florida millionaire. The estate of the divorced wife amounts to $3,500,000. Franklyn Paddock was appointed special guardian, his allowance being $2,000.

WEDDING BELLS.

Mr. Francis Guerin and Miss Amelia Kylie Made One at the Cathedral.

Miss Amelia Kylie, daughter of Mr. Martin Kylie, Ashburnham, and Mr. Francis Guerin, also of Ashburnham, were married at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, Rev. Father Scanlon officiating. Miss Laura Leagy assisted the bride, and Mr. Jas. Guerin was best man. Wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents to a happy party of friends and relations. Mr. and Mrs. Kylie have many warm friends best wishes with whom the Times joins in.

Why Catarrhozone Cures Catarrh

Because it is carried by the air you breathe to diseased parts, because it destroys the germ life that maintains the diseased condition, because it powerfully stimulates the mucous membrane to its normal action, because through its oxidizing power it burns up rapidly the old tissue and stimulates the formation of new healthy tissue. Catarrhozone is an absolute specific for catarrh of every form, and never fails to cure. Catarrhozone is the only remedy sold with a guarantee. At all dealers, 25c. and $1.00.

Christian Scientist's Reply to a Critic.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of the 17th inst., you reported an interview with Mr. F. W. Peabody, the Boston lawyer who conducted the recent $150,000 libel suit against Mrs. Eddy. This suit was instituted because in Mrs. Eddy's annual message to her church in 1899 she had quoted certain passages from the Revelation of Saint John, and applied the same in condemnation of certain types of evil. The suit entered through Mr. Peabody claimed that these quotations were intended to refer to the complainant, but the trial proved an utter failure to sustain such a contention. Instead, it was shown that Mrs. Eddy's message had no reference to any person whomsoever. The Boston newspapers stated that the plaintiff expected the trial would occupy fully three weeks, but after four days' examination of the witnesses called by plaintiff, the judge dismissed the case and discharged the jury without a single witness, being called for the defence.

Since the suit ended, Mr. Peabody lectured to a very small audience in Boston with the evident malicious intention of inducing the public to believe observations which he had so ignominiously failed to establish in court. The press throughout the United States has published detailed replies to his wanton attacks, and very effectually refuting the same. Now, he enters Canada, and, parrot-like repeats verbatim many of the falsehoods which were bad currency where he came from. With your permission, I would like to correct briefly some of his allegations.

1. Mrs. Eddy never was either a mesmerist or spiritualist; nor did she ever countenance "seances," but she has faithfully exposed such practices Dr. Quimby was a distinguished mesmerist. Christian Science is not allied to mesmerism or spiritualism, but shows clearly the fallacy thereof. No idea of Christian Science could ever be gained from the teachings or practice of mesmerism.

2. Mrs. Eddy is not a "whimsical and despotic dictator." Those who endeavour to follow her teachings, do so of their own volition, and because they receive thereby such an understanding of the Scriptures as confers health and peace. As to Mrs. Eddy being a "successor of Jesus" in one sense she is for He has said to us all, "follow me. The apostles styled Him "our elder brother." Mrs. Eddy is an illustrious religious reformer, and claims nothing more than that she is the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science.

3. Christian Science is not "a sham and a fraud," nor does it make any "pretentions." It is simply an elucidation of spiritual truth, and its practical application in overcoming evil with good. The revelation of Christian Science to Mrs. Eddy was a "direct revelation," in the same way that the sun shines directly upon all who can see and feel its warmth and kindly influence. Some individuals have clearer vision than others. This is undoubtedly true of spiritual insight.

4. As to the statement that Mrs. Eddy secured the lan docuupied by her church in Boston for $5,000 and that the land was worth three times that amount, entailing a loss of $10,000 upon the owners, that statement carries upon its face a conviction of its untruth for the reason that under such circumstances it would have been no trouble for the owners to have borrowed upon the land sufficient to have paid off the mortgage and several thousand dollars besides. The property is splendidly situated and Boston capitalists are not all such fools as Mr. Peabody would lead your readers to believe.

6. Mrs. Eddy is not by any means in an enfeebled condition, as asserted, nor is she of the age indicated by her caluminator. His small tittle-tattle, with which he winds up his tirade, is like a spoiled peevish child, who, when he is denied the gratification of some whim, indulges in a freak of temper and would scratch and bite the best friend he has.

Yours Respectfully,
WESLEY SPAULDING,
Press correspondent for the Christian Science churches of Ontario.

YANKEE GENIUS WINS EGYPT

Handles all the Coal Imports of Alexandria

Washington, D.C., August 26—John G. Long, American Consul General at Cairo, reports another trade invasion of Egypt by Americans, no less important than the securing of the Atbara bridge contract. The greatest work ever undertaken in regard to discharging coal from steamers has just been completed in Alexandria. The huge mass of machinery that towers above the surrounding ships owes its origin to Alexander E. Brown, an American engineer, who invented a system of suspended bridge tramways, whereby colliers could be unloaded automatically in about one-quarter of the time taken by manual labor and the use of steam winches. The Egyptian railway administration decided to adopt this system; the present apparatus is the first that has been installed in Africa.

The hoisters are capable of unloading 2,120 tons of coal in a working day of 10 hours. A boat that now takes a week to discharge, will, by the help of these coal hoisters, be discharged within 48 hours of berthing. These machines will be able to work on two or three ships at a time, and will result in an enormous decrease in "small," as there will be no coal dust flying about. Every bit of coal will be put into buckets and carefully unloaded again, none being wasted.

AFRAID OF THE NIHILISTS.

Russian Revolutionists Must Keep Indoor When the Czar Visits Paris.

Paris, August 26 The police, who have begun to devise measures to insure the safety of the Russian sovereigns during their coming visit, have already succeeded in getting mixed up with the sharp claws of the League of the Rights of Man. Among the large Russian colony in Paris there are 800 Nihilists, mostly quiet, peacable students at the Sorbonne, none of whom are known to have committed any act of violence in the carrying out of his ideas. Nevertheless the prefecture of police issued an order forbidding these nihilists from leaving their houses during the presence of Czar Nicholas in France. This order is accompanied by the warning that if they are found on the streets they will be dealt with summarily. The league intends to prevent such a travesty of justice by any means in its power and will go "if necessary even to the forming of a cohort to protect the nihilists while on the streets."

MAY PASS THROUGH PETERBORO

Brother of the Emperor of China May Visit Canada This Year.

Prince Chun, of China, a brother of Emperor Kwan Su, is expected to arrive at Vancouver about September 20, and will cross the C.P.R. to Ottawa. He will in all probability visit Toronto and Ottawa, in which case he will pass through Peterborough.

In New York the Chinese merchants and the Chinese consul, Chou Tsz Chi, have already commenced elaborate preparations for the reception of Prince Chun, who is expected to arrive there in about a month. He will first visit Berlin, where he will convey to Emperor William an official expression of China's grief at the murder of the German Minister, Baron von Ketteler, at the hands of the Boxers in the streets of Pekin last summer. He will then go to Paris and London. All Chinatown is talking about the coming visit, and will celebrate it as they have never celebrated anything before. Consul Chow hopes to have 5,000 Chinese at the pier to receive the Prince. Wu Ting Fang, the Chinese Minister at Washington, and his entire staff, will stay in the city to welcome him. City and state officials will be asked to take part in the celebrations. Prince Chun will be escorted to the Waldorf-Astoria. A reception and dinner will be given in his honor, Prince Chun will spend twenty days in the United States.

SULTAN OF TURKEY AGAIN BREAKS FAITH

FLAGRANT DISREGARD OF SOLEMN UNDERTAKING

M. Delcasse Informs the Sultan That France Can no Longer Permit Her Representative to Remain at the Porte

Paris, Aug. 28.—A semi-official note has been issued announcing that the Porte, not having carried out its undertakings with regard to the disputed questions between the French and the Ottoman Governments, M. Constans, the French Ambassador, under instructions left Constantinople August 26.

An arrangement was effected Aug. 17, and its terms drafted by the Ottoman Foreign Minister, with the approval of the Sultan, who had promised M. Constans that the text should be handed to him August 18. M. Constains telegraphed to Paris August 19 that none of the promises had been fulfilled, and that Delcasse August 21 telegraphed M. Constans that in view of so flagrant a disregard of the undertakings the negotiations could no longer be continued, and requested M. Constans to inform the Porte that he had received orders to leave Constantinople. On August 23 M. Constans communicated with the Porte, fixing August 26 as the date for his departure, and as the engagements were still unkept M. Constans left Constantinople on that day.

With the departure of M. Constans the relations between France and Turkey may be regarded as broken off. Munir Bey, the Turkish Ambassador to France, has been telegraphed not to return to Paris.

THE CHARGE D'AFFAIRS.

Constantinople, Aug. 28.—During the absence from his post of M. Constans, the French Ambassador to Turkey, who started yesterday for Paris, M. Bapst, Councillor of the Embassy, will act as Charge d'Affairs.

FRANCE WILL WAIT.

Paris, Aug. 28.—The correspondent of the Associated Press was informed to-day from the best source that while the current affairs of the two embassies could be carried on by the Charge d'Affairs all negotions of a pholitical nature would be entirely suspended until the Sultan should yield to the French demands. The French Government considers that the Sultan has broken his word. He had promised full payment of the long-standing indemnities to Frenchmen, amounting to twelve million francs, but at the end of last week declined to pay the full amount and offered a reduced sum which was refused.

M. Constans had arrived at Stamboul, where he was to take the Orient express, when a court, chamberlain reached there in post haste from the Sultan begging M. Constant to return to Therapia and promising that everything would be satisfactory settled. M. Constans declined to return, declaring the time for promises was past. It was for the Sultan to fulfil his undertakings.

The French Government will take no further steps in the matter, but will wait for the Sultan to move, and it is thought the Sultan will allow the present situation to last very long.

FRANCE IS VERY NEAR RUIN

Government Poor While the People are Rich.

DEBT CONSTANTLY INCREASING

Paris, Aug. 28.—Political economists here are greatly preplexed to discover a remedy for conditions that confront the nation and threaten its stability. While the people of France are the wealthiest in Europe, the government is reduced to the verge of pauperism. An elaborate plan of fiscal reform will be agitated in the chambers next winter.

The causes of the poverty of the state are obvious to everyone who has given the matter any consideration. Many of the forms of taxation have been in operation for more than a century, while the difference between their returns on paper and the actual revenue has constantly widened. For the six months ended June 30 the revenue was nearly $13,000,000 under what it was for the same period last year, and about $9,000,000 below the estimate.

When it is considered that the budget framed in the early part of the year showed a surplus of barely $50,000 on a total of $710,920,000 the seriousness of the decline is understood. In the meantime the bands of the government are tied, for the national debt and pensions take yearly $250,000,000, the army and navy $200,000,000, so that some $450,000,000 must be provided before a sou can be devoted to education, public works, the furtherance of trade or other interests of general public importance.

The debt of France is now $60,000,000,000, and this stupendous sum will continue to augment under prevailing conditions until the middle of the century, when all the railways now operated privately will revert to the state.

That the growing debt has never troubled the French people is said to be owing to the constant accumulation of private wealth, but now certain legislators have been aroused to the fact that half a century is a long time to wait and that the debt will soon grow out of all proportions to be expected returns beginning in 1950. Besides the illusive customs taxation is believed to be at fault in principle and mode of administration, while the tariff cripples foreign business and eats into the very core of national wealth, so that unless these barriers be raised the state apart from the people, will grow poorer and poorer.

The sugar bounties having occasioned a deficit of 14,000,000 frances the minister of finance, M. Caillaux, has issued a decree reducing them by 55 per cent with a view of covering the deficit.

BIG LAND ROW,

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 27—A legal battle royal commenced at Sault Ste. Marie yesterday, when the St. Mary's Power Company filed a suit in ejectment against the Chandler-Dunbar Water Power Company and the Edison Sault Electric Company for a half interest in certain private land claims. The suit is the sequel to the organization last week of the St. Mary's Power Company, which is capitalized at $100,000, with $50,000 paid in. The incorporators and stockholders are Francis H. C. Clergue, Bertrand J. Clergue, Ernest V. Clergue, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.; Edward V. Douglas, Walter P. Douglas, Frank P. Lewis, of Philadelphia, and William B. Cady, of Detroit. The purposes of the new company are the construction, maintenance and development of water power for manufacturing purposes on the shores of St. Mary's falls or rapids. The pieces of land in contention are situated at the head of the falls and have been held by the Chandler-Dunbar people under franchise and tax title for about ten years.

By many the contest is looked upon as the initial step for the acquirement of the immense water power of the falls by the Clergue people, who already control the Canadian rights and who are building the big water power canal through the city of Sault Ste Marie. The entente cordiale between Mr. Clergue and the Chandler-Dunbar people has been strained since the question of maintaining the upper lake level was brought up by the Lake Carriers' Association, with the result that the Clergue Company was obliged to construct remedial works shutting off a large cross section to equalize the volume of water that will be taken through the new power canal.

Quite naturally the Chandler Company objects to any interference with the supply of water to which it is entitled in its canal, and hence the fight. The Chandler Company's holdings are considered worth anywhere from $750,000 to $1,000,000 in prospective value.

BOUGHT BY THE C. P. R.

The Kingston and Pembroke Railway Changes Ownership.

Montreal, August 28—The Kingston and Pembroke Railway has become the property of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The story of the change in ownership was contained in a telegraph despatch received this morning from Kingston. The despatch states that it is understood upon good authority in Kingston that Mr. B. W. Folger, sr., the general manager of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway, has agreed to turn over $75,000 shares in the stock of the company at a certain price, for which he is to receive $75,000 in cash, commission and the retention of the office of superintendent for his son and certain positions for other positions for other employees on the road.

The price of K & P stock was recently as low as $5 a share, but recent extensive buying by Mr. Folger's agents has sent the stock up to $9 a share, with prospects of a further advance.

It is understood that the road will be used by the C.P.R. in the shipment of grain brought down the lakes in vessels to Montreal. The President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Mr. T. G. Shaughnessy was seen by a press representative and remarked, when shown the story, that some of the details were inaccurate, but that the correct version of the negotiations would soon be made public.

The Kingston and Pembroke Railway was built in 1874 after being heavily bonused by the corporation of Kingston. It runs from Kingston to Renfrew and does a large freight business. A recent bonus from the Government will cause its extension from Sharbot Lake to Carleton place.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN THE COMING YEAR

Old Moore Issues His Prophecies for 1902 In Good Time.

THE RISING IN SOUTH AFRICA.

London, Aug. 28.—Although over four months yet remain of the year 1901, Old Moore has already prepared his wonderful predictions for 1902, and they are now being sold in the familiar form of the penny almanack.

The war in South Africa will apparently end next January; at any rate, this seems to be the hidden meaning of the prophetic phrase, "We shall hear from South Africa tidings of really good omen." But it will be a short-lived peace. In July "we shall learn of a sudden rising in South Africa. Some of the smouldering emblems of revolt will be fanned into flame, and for a time things will look serious for the British. In the end the Union Jack will float again in peace."

Reverting to January, it is prophesied that "a King's messenger will be seen on his road from Windsor to London, involving a hasty meeting of the Cabinet, and for a time at least all the world will be in a state of expectation and suspense."

A terrible shipwreck, violent disturbances in Dublin, a marriage of great national importance, are among the events that will happen in February.

In March there will be a second Rougemont in the country—"mysterious traveller from the East, with tales of the most extraordinary character. He is nothing more than a plausible fraud." A vast improvement in an instrument of war is predicted for April, and in May the disturbers of the Church will again be active. In the same month will occur the death of "a venerable and respected nobleman, who for more years than the usual span of life has devoted himself to his Queen, his King and his country."

There will be great times from motor cars in July, and startling news from China August. General lawlessness will be rampant in Paris during September, and a big fire will break out in Scotland in October.

For November two sad events are prophesied—"a beloved life will be in danger," and "a collision between two large vessels in the Channel will happen, with great loss of life."

DRIVES OUT BRITISH COAL.

British Dealers Alarmed by American Shipments to the Continent.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 27.—The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad has invaded the foreign coal market and is now making preparations to cut even deeper into the business of the English concerns which heretofore have had a monopoly of the coal trade in France, Austria and other European countries. Great Britain is alarmed at absorption of the Marseilles trade by America, and these fears are well grounded. Since Jan. 1 the Chesapeake and Ohio has exported through Newport News to Marseilles 63,915 tons of coal, to Austria 44,747 tons, to twenty-three leading seaports in other countries, nearly 150,000 tons. These figures do not include the large quantities of bunker coal taken by foreign-bound steamers. A new line of American ships will be established between this port and Marseilles to handle coal only.

RETURNING KLONDIKERS.

Many Destitute Persons Trying to Get Away

Port Townsend, Wash., Aug. 28.—The exodus from Nome is fairly on, and each steamer arriving from there brings large numbers. The Roanoke, which arrived yesterday, brought 130 cabin passengers, besides a large number in the steerage, which makes about 1,000 which have arrived from the north this season, and from reports each succeeding steamer will be loaded with passengers until ice shall close navigation. Returning passengers report Nome as being remarkably quiet and filled with idle men, many of whom are willing to work for almost anything in order to get passage money, but there is no work, and great anxiety is felt by residents as to what will be done with so many destitute. The Roanoke brought down $1,600,000 in dust, most of which was shipped by the North American Trading and Transportation Company. Besides this it is estimated that the passengers brought $200,000.

The four masted schooner James Sennett, Captain Holstrup, is high and dry on the north end of Unimak Island having gone ashore August 7, in a dense fog.

DOCTORS SEEKING A CURE

A League in Europe to Investigate Sea Sickness.

London, Aug. 27.—A league against sea sickness, according to the "British Medical Journal," has been formed in Paris with the object of collecting information in regard to sea sickness and to conduct experiments regarding the pathology and the treatment of the sickness and to publish the results and also to train specialists who will practice on all steamers. The league has issued a journal called "Du Mal de Mer." A congress will be held in the autumn. At Ostend an exhibition of inventions fo rthe prevention and treatment of seasickness has been opened under the patronage of the King of the Belgians.

It is confirmed that the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, which conveyed the royal party to Flushing when they went to attend the funeral of Empress Frederick, was sent home and ordered on a long sea trial because she rolled terribly in a moderate sea on the way over. Queen Alexandra and the majority of the members of the crew were sea sick. It seems that no tinkering will redeem the vessel which has already cost almost as much as a battleship. It is doubtful if the King and Queen will ever use the yacht again.

EMPRESS WANTS MEN

Imperial Edicts by Dowager Empress of China.

NEW DEPARTURE NOTED.

The Country in Need of Able Men Who Are Above Reproach

The Edict Having a Good Effect—It is Thought That China Will Now Become Modernized.

Pekin, Aug. 28.—The State Department has received from H. G. Squiers, Secretary of the United States Legation in Pekin, copies of the translations of three edicts of the Dowager Empress of China, touching upon the selection of competent men for official positions under the Government and demanding the correction of certain abuses. These edicts have been published in the official gazette. The most important of the edict says:

"The most impiortant principle of government is the selection of men. The present time is one of difficulty and danger. We should be the more willing, therefore, to break through all traditions in seeking for talent to be employed in the service of the Government. We ought to respectfully observe the statute to establish examinations for the selection of the learned and talented by opening an examination in political economy, which should be put in operation at the forthcoming metropolitan examination.

"It cannot be possible that in all this great empire there are no talented men. If there be those of earnest purpose and pure loyalty, of broad mold and extensive learning, versed in foreign and domestic affairs, let the presidents and vice presidents of the boards, the Viceroys and Governors, and provincial directors of education prepare a statement for their qualification and recommend them, and let the Board of Reforms devise a system of examinations and submit the same for the imperial approval.

"The court is eager for all sorts of suggestions to promote the prosperity of the Empire. Mother and son are one in the purpose to correct the mistakes of the past, and long to obtain talent to assist in the Government. Your Ministers ought to carefully seek out men of such ability, and each one introduce those known to himself, and thus together aid in relieving the present difficulties that the State may be streuthened and that men of ability may rise up from the midst of the people, and be seen again in the present time to flourish before your eyes. This is what the court prayerfully seeks.

"Let this edict be published abroad for the information of all."

The edict in relation to the abuses in the offices of the Six Boards says:

"Many abuses have gradually grown up in all the offices of the Six Boards, in the practice of which rapacious clerks have become very crafty. We have already frequently issued edicts to correct these abuses, and recently, on account of the loss of many of the records of the boards, consequent upon the military occupation of Pekin, we again ordered a thorough cleaning out and a destruction of the whole. Formerly there was a large number of recorded cases of ambiguous character which could be used as precedents on either side of a disputed question, and the clerks seized the opportunity to use them to forward or to oppose any interest at their pleasure It is more important that energetic measures be taken to get rid of these accumulated abuses. But, lest there may be among these records some important investigation or decision upon points not covered by ancient law, or recently gathered precedents, the presidents and vice presidents of the various boards ought to appoint secretaries to carefully examine them in detail and prepare a classified list, which shall be submitted to the Board of Reforms for their inspection. Those that ought to be retained should be collected together for a supplementary code of rules, that there may be uniform procedure and all ambiguity be removed."

The third edict treats of the imperial clansmen and states:

"From the time our dynasty ascended the throne to the present our imperial clansmen have shown great talents surpassing those of ancient times. How ought all members of the clan to carefully observe the family regulations in order to shed lustre on the genealogical records!

"Now, however, the customs have become light and trifling, and those who have already taken office are all greatly affected by these habits, and do not consider how to improve themselves. Let the Chief of the Imperial Clan Court transmit this edict to all imperial clansmen, commanding them to exert themselves to abandon these old faults and vie with one another to improve themselves, that they may make an earnest effort to make themselves useful. These clansmen, who go about idle, not attending to their duties, day by day, pursuing worthless aims, even to the extent of becoming bandits and deluded followers of evil societies, bent on gratifying their evil desires, are certainly a disgrace to the clan, and deserving of all contempt. Further, let the said Chief of the Imperial Clan Court increase the severity of the restrictions, and, as occasion may require, administer punishment. Should any show such pleasure in violence and depravity as to become bandits and put faith in evil teachings, let them be severely punished without leniency."

Died in New York.

The announcement of the death, in New York City, of Florence Kempt-Kerrigan, wife of Dr. J. A. Kerrigan, of that city, and daughter of the late Dr. Wm. Kempt, of Peterborough, will be received with lively expressions of sympathy and regret by the many friends of the deceased and of the family in this town and vicinity. The sad event occurred early last week. Heart failure was the cause of her sudden death.

MAY RETURN TO THEIR HOMES

THE MINES STOP OPERATIONS

Johannesburg, Aug. 27.—Recent development lead to the hope that the period of banishment of loyalists from their homes to concentration camps is now at an end. Railway facilities for the transportation of civilians are increasing daily, and General Kitchener has granted 300 permits, to be issued to those refugees in greatest distress. By this means it is hoped the threatened terrible distress on the coast will be alleviated.

Although the Imperial Government is spending hundreds of thousands of pounds annually to help the Boer refugees, about £5,000 only has been devoted, through the Imperial Relief Fund, to helping destitute loyalists.

Seven mines, including the famous Bonanza, are now in operation, running altogether about 365 stamps. These mines employ about 350 white men and more than 5,000 natives. The men on each hundred stamps require 135 truck loads of supplies a month, including foodstuffs. Other mines are being pumped out, and siding are being built from the railway to the mines.

No difficulty is anticipated in obtaining a sufficient number of natives for the gradual but accelerated resumption of work. The greatest necessity is rolling stock. This at present is wholly insufficient on all the railways, and many of the trucks now in use are of obsolete types. It is necessary that several thousand modern trucks and heavy engines be obtained without delay.

KRUGER STILL STUPID.

London, Aug. 28.—During a recent interview with a representative of the London Telegraph, Mr. Kruger said that peace was only possible on the basis of the independence of the two republics and free pardon for the colonial Afrikanders who had taken part in the war.

The aged former President indignantly denied the fact that the Boers had introduced guerilla and irregular warfare. The tactics employed by the country, he said, were simply tactics of defence.

The Telegraph correspondent says he found the ex-President healthier than at any time since his arrival in Europe. He listened with keener interest and argued with fuller interest than even. His general health and his eyesight have been fully recovered.

SEEK SETTLERS FOR ALASKA

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 27.—Transportation companies operating to Alaska are preparing to inaugurate a movement having for its object the settlement of valleys of southern Alaska with thousands of hardy immigrants from Norway and other northern European countries. Recent experiments show that all hardy grains thrive in Alaska. Acting on this knowledge, companies are planning to send photograph and agricultural experts into the Yukon, Copper and Tanana valleys.

Information and views obtained by them will be placed in the hands of agents sent to Europe. The latter part of the project will not be attempted until congress so amends the Alaska land laws that settlers can secure speedy titles to homesteads. Congress will be asked to do this next winter and to make an appropriation for the commencement of surveys.

HER BODY TURNED TO STONE

Wonderful Case of a Young Girl Turning to White Stone After Death.

Baker City, Ore., Aug. 28.—E. L. Sullivan found that the body of his dead daughter, Aurilla, had turned to white marble, after being in the ground a little over a year, when the grave was recently opened for the purpose of transferring the remains to the cemetery at Union. Aurilla Sullivan a girl of 22, died on April 21, 1900. She was at the city hospital on an errand of mercy when she fell to the floor from a stroke of paralysis, from which she died. The interment was at Mount Hope cemetery.

It was decided recently to reinter the body in a cemetery at Union. When an attempt was made to lift the casket from the grave it was found to be unexpectedly heavy. After it was taken out of the grave the father of the girl ordered the casket opened, when the entire body was found to have turned to white stone. Miss Sullivan never weighed more than 130 pounds, while the casket with its petrified occupant weighed fully 350 pounds.

THE AGRICAN RAILROAD.

The Outlook is Most Hopeful For Rich Freight.

London, August 27—The progress of the railway which will one day stretch from end to end of the Dark Continent is unresting, if unhasting. It is learned from Rhodesia that in the course of an interview at Bulawayo Mr. Townsend, the railway engineer recently returned from the Zambesi, is reported to have stated that the railway to the north will not stop at the Victoria Falls, but will go straight on to the rich copper mines, 300 miles beyond that point. He estimates that the coal traffic will amount to from 200,000 to 300,000 tons per annum, which would make the railway pay. The Falls could be reached in 11 months if material were obtainable, but he expects construction will take two years. Mr. Townsend further stated that there is an enormous source of power in the falls, sufficient to run trains for hundreds of miles by electricity and to supply power for coal mines and other works. All this looks hopeful.

KRUGER'S AGENTS TRY TO OBTAIN SYMPATHY

Ministers of Dutch Retormed Church are in England Engaged in Kruger's Interest.

TRYING TO ROUSE PURITAN SPIRIT OF THE NORTH

One of Them Says They Have Everywhere Been Well Received and That Their Mission Is Succeeding.

London, Aug. 28—Whatever may be the condition of Mr. Kruger's health—and his recent bereavement may well account for the anxiety of friends—it is evident (writes a correspondent) that he is not premitting himself to collapse through political worry so long as hard work remains the cure for that debilitating malady. He is, as a matter of fact, in almost daily communication with friends of his own now in Europe, especially in London, friends who possess his absolute confidence in a degree hardly possible to understand in this philistine country—namely, ministers of high repute belonging to the Dutch Reformed Church in South Africa.

Yesterday it was my lot to meet one of these distinguished visitors, says a correspondent of The Daily Chronicle. The introduction took place in no less innocent a quarter than Westminister Abbey, where he was gazing with pious disfavor upon the architectural and other embellishments of that edifice, under the wing of one of the most eminent signatories to Dr. Clifford's "stop the war" appeal. His name must in courtesy be withheld, but it should suffice to say that he is indeed a very old friend of the ex-President, and that he professed no secrecy as to the objects of his sojourn in Great Britain. He has been in London for several weeks. Our conversation was brief and rapid, but suggestive.

"I have been on terms of affectionate intimacy with the President and Mrs. Kruger," he said, "since long before our pastoral Republics began to be eaten up and rotted out by European adventures, that is, for nearly forty years.

"The curse of gold has been upon us. We have no lust for gold. We certainly never desired among us the evils and abominations which the mines have thrust upon a patient, unselfish, working people. President Kruger's ideal has always been to retain South Africa for the workers in the field, and that is the patriotic dream of all Dutch Boers from the Cape to the Zambesi. He still believes that this will be brought about in God's own time.

"Yes, other ministers of my church and of the Alte Kirche are now in England. Some are in Scotland, where we hope, especially in the North, to rouse the ancient Puritan spirit of the country in our support. Everywhere we have been well received. Hospitality has been offered to us by some of your greatest preachers. I have shown to them letters from the President. They cannot but know that he is fighting God's battle. Here in England we have all but succeeded."

Asked whether he had heard from M. Kruger since Lord Kitchener's proclamation, and whether the ex-President approved the Non-conformist appeal, the Boer pastor replied,—"I have heard through another of my brethern, who says that the President regards the ultimatum in the most hopeful spirit. It was the one thing needed to bring about European intervention. The civilised world will not stand it. As to Dr. Clifford's appeal, the President is grateful for it, but he does not think that by using the work 'autonomy' Dr. Clifford means actual independence, though it must come to that in the end.'

A LITTLE TOT LOSES ITS FOOT

RUN DOWN BY A HORSE MOWER

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Clark Township, giving brief particulars of a horrible accident that took place there. It appears that Mr. Hock, a farmer residing near Leskard, was engaged in cutting a field of millet, which was in close proximity to his dwelling house. The grain was thick and tall and he was on the lookout for his little four-year-old child, who was playing around the house and yard. As Mr. Hook approached the house, driving the mower, he was careful to see that the little fellow was not in the grass. In doing this he forgot about his younger child—a tot of but two years old. This little one had got tangled in the tall grain, and was not seen by the father. The first he knew of the horrible accident was seeing a little foot fly in the air as the little one was mown down. A heart-rending shriek followed, and the crazed father stopped the horses and picked the child up.

Dr. Tucker, of Orono, was sent for and, assisted by Dr. Rutherford, of the same place, the injured child was attended to. One foot was severed above the ankle and the other one so badly injured that amputation may be necessary. The poor little sufferer is doing well, and will recover.

KILLING THE TREES.

The Destructive Little Borer is Doing Big Damage in This City to the Trees.

If the blissful borer is allowed to go on his way uninterrupted, he will soon destroy the foliage beauty of this town. Never before this summer has the little pest been so voracious and industrious in his evil work of destruction on the maple trees. He even extends his operations to stately elms and other trees and if it isn't stopped soon there won't be a tree left alive in the town in afew years.

The borer, as his name implies, bores his way into the tree trunk and continues until he has made a tunnel right through. He will also work his way around in a circle inside the bark. Again, he will attack the tree at the roots and work up. There is a way of offsetting the little borer, but he must be attended to in time. Therefore it behooves the citizen who has trees in front of his home or on his property to have them examined for traces of the borer, and to lose no time about it. It is a very important matter to this City of Trees, and one that should receive the immediate attention of everyone.

To Horticulturists.

Fruits and Flowers are the topics especially treated in the Canadian Horticulturist, which is the leading journal of horticulture in America. It contains forty-eight pages of up-to-date reading matter, written by experts and professional gardeners, and is fully illustrated by beautiful photo-gravures. It is issued monthly, and a sample copy may be had free of charge by addressing the editor, Mr. L. Woolverton, M.A., Grimsby, Ont. The subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and new subscribers for 1902 may have the balance of this year free of charge.

WIRELESS SYSTEM ACROSS ATLANTIC

Tesla's Wonderful Invention Nearly Ready For Operation.

FAR QUICKER THAN THE CAKLE

New York, Aug. 28.—America still leads the world in electrical invention. Machinery for Tesla's marvelous system, perfected after years of work, is just finished by the Westinghouse Company. The earth—not the air—is his medium. Wireless messages will be cheaper and quicker than cable, and absolutely secret. Even in war time one army cannot capture the dispatches of another by "tapping" the earth. Other wireless systems employ his inventions, but cannot transmit over more than 200 miles without relay. "They do not know" says Tesla's friend, "what his apparatus is capable of doing."

Wireless telegraph is only an incident in Inventor Tesla's incredible scheme for transmission of electrical energy. From his station on Long Island Sound he will send force in enormous volume underneath the sea to foreign lands. Sites have been chosen—in France, Germany and Portugal—for European receiving stations. With these as nucleus, his system will be extended till at encircles the globe.

The great American inventor received word yesterday that the complicated apparatus he has devised for the transmission of electrical energy to all quarters of the globe is completed. Incidentally these instruments are available for the sending of telegraphic messages without the aid of wires, but this is only one item in the incredible labor which the Servian has planned his mysterious mechanisms to perform.

The preliminary tests of Tesla's system of long distance transmission will be in the sending of messages across the Atlantic. This will not be in the nature of experimentation, however, for Tesla overcame the difficulties attendant on wireless telegraph six years ago, and passed on from them to the perfection of a greater work, the sending of electrical energy across seas and continents.

HARNESS THE GLOBE.

His purpose, which he now looks upon as accomplished in all save actual operation, is to harness the globe with a complete chain of electrical force, dirigible to the finest imaginable degree, to be applied or withdrawn or modified at the will of one man.

It was announced at the Tesla laboratory yesterday that three stations had been arranged for on the other side of the Atlantic—one in Portugal, one in France and one in Germany. By the end of September it is expected that all the mechanism requisite to the transatlantic service will be in position, and the marvels upon which Tesla has been working will become fact, and the world, which has waited on his work, will see the first fruits of it. The apparatus which will be employed in the wireless telegraphy, and which, therefore, will be the first placed in position, is similar to that with which Tesla has for some time past been carrying on operations, save that the new plant will be much larger and more powerful than the old. Tesla is averse to talking for print about his inventions of the inventions of others. He declined yesterday to do so.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 28 1901

WHAT WE MAY EXPECT

If the New York Central is extended through to Sydney, N.S., as seems likely, it will work a change of enormous geographical importance. Hitherto the only obstacle to the establishment of a fast Atlantic passenger service has been the lack of railway connections with the United States. The extension of the N. Y. C. will lead to a tremendous development not only of the steel freight business and the Nova Scotia coal trade, but of course of the Atlantic passenger traffic as well. To Canada the significance of this is more than casual. The introduction of American capital in great bulk into Canada has had an important bearing on our relations with the people to the South of us. The tourist travel has made these people thoroughly up-to-date in Canadian geography. With the introduction of the New York Central it looks as if the march of the American capitalist is irresistible. The Yankees, likewise, take their medicine when they get it like men. If they lose, they lose, and that is the end of it. There is no squealing and whining and blackguarding of the country. It is put down where it belongs, viz.: to the stupidity and double-dealing of the whiners and their friends.

THE CENSUS

It is useless to look round for excuses for the poor showing of our census returns. The result shows how necessary it is for us to have an eye to economy. That the country is prosperous is undeniable. The tariff operates favorably to the great companies, and as a consequence they have invested vast sums in Canada. It is quite evident that we must look to the Americans for the development of our resources. The great republic is overshadowing the whole world, and if it will help us by all means let us reap the advantage. The works of the Clergue Syndicate at the "Soo" are really stupendous, and in addition to the creation of new and mighty industries, the syndicate is carving out its own highway to the sea, even going so far as to make preparations for keeping the St. Lawrence open in winter by means of ice crushers. It is such stupendous concerns as these that will build up a country, census or no census. They give, with agriculture, a solid basis to the nation's industry, and tend to anchor prosperity. As for the "Soo," it is rapidly becoming a Pittsburg, and in the near future will be a veritable hive of industry. Mr. Clergue is very popular and capable, and is deserving of appreciation and generous treatment.

FIGARO'S DREAM

The following, cabled from Paris, is suggestive rather of sentiment in France than of what is likely to occur:

> The Figaro states that the object of the Czar's visit to France is to consult with France in regard to the South Africa war, and that the two countries will make a demand on Britain to get out of the Transvaal and Orange Free State.

> In commenting on the above, Le Temps says that if it is true that the czar is coming to France to consult about intervention in the Transvaal business it might turn out a very ugly business. If Germany remained neutral, Great Britain would find her fleet pitted against the combined naval power of France and Russia and hampered by the fact of having to protect the line of communication from England to the Cape, the food supply line from America and the whole coast of the United Kingdom. Whereas the enemy's fleets could cut loose and practically go where they pleased because Great Britain with 250,000 men in South Africa, 50,000 in India and a large number in China, Malta and elsewhere is in no position to invade either France or Russia even if the coasts were left unprotected. The ameer of Afghanistan is restless, the colonial troops have nearly all gone home and been disbanded, the large army in Africa is pretty well tired with the long campaign and altogether the situation favors the project of a European coalition.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

London, Ont., Aug. 26—Truth seems to have fiction beaten in the story of the life of a young London girl. The climax of the story was reached yesterday, when she went to Windsor to join the family of her father, who, although she is now 17 years of age, she had never known until a couple of weeks ago.

Years ago a young man who has since become one of Windsor's well-known citizens fell in love with a charming girl in this city. His love was fully reciprocated, and the young couple kept company for more than a year. He promised to marry, and the young woman trusted him implicitly. At this point, however, a little tiff occurred. The breach grew, and the young man left town. His sweetheart deemed him unfaithful, and they never met again. She bore her shame and sorrow in silence, and he never knew that a daughter was born to him.

The young mother died while her child was in infancy, leaving the babe to the care of her own mother. The granddaughter never knew until less than a month ago that she was such, and not daughter to the woman she called mother. About two months ago the latter died, and the granddaughter subsequently discovered letters which revealed the sad truth regarding her case. She determined to write to the man whom the letters clearly indicated was her father. The terms she used were not those of endearment, for she was very angry at the treatment her dead mother had received.

Something in the girl's letter caught the father, and his old love for the girl he had ruined seemed to centre upon their child. No name was signed to the letter he received, but he never doubted that it was his daughter who wrote, notwithstanding that he had not previously known of her existence. He came here, and with the aid of the city detectives found the girl at Victoria Hospital, where she had been ill. The meeting is said on his part to have been a most affectionate one. He remained for several days, and was constantly at the hospital. The sick room was filled with flowers, and fruit in abundance was always on the table beside the sick bed.

ENORMOUS COST OF STEEL STRIKE

A very interesting and instructive estimate of the cost of the steel strike to the public, the workers involved, and the Morgan trust is furnished by the Pittsburg correspondent of the "Commercial Advertiser." The correspondent, in commenting on the struggle between organized labor and the combine says that it has degenerated into a fight of money against determination, of the purse against pride.

The fund of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin workers is not nearly sufficient to enable it to cope with the billion-dollar United States Steel Corporation. The surplus in the treasury, which is not more than $70,000, must be devoted to paying $4 a week to the members of the association who are idle because of the disagreement between their leaders and the mill owners. The assessments that can be levied, and the voluntary contributions together, it is estimated, will not amount to more than $15,000 a month, all of which, if the constitution of the Association is to be complied with, must go to Amalgamated men.

About 15,000 members of the Amalgamated Association are on strike. To provide for them will require about $60,000 a week. But, in addition to that, President Shaffer has promised to provide for all non-union men who leave work in sympathy with the Amalgamated Association. That promise carries with it an immense obligation. It is estimated that at least 100,000 non-association men have struck. If they are to receive the same allowance as the Amalgamated men the weekly expenditure from the Association's treasury will amount to $610,000, not counting the routine expenses for office work and the pay for organizers on duty.

The promise of aid from the Federation of Labor is limited by a clause in the constitution of the Federation. The assessment of 1 per cent. per member weekly for strike fund purposes is all that is permitted. Calculating the total membership of the Federation at 12,000, that would give a possible total contribution of $12,000 a week or $600,000 a year of fifty working weeks. But it must be remembered that the Federation has given something like $80,000 to aid the striking machinists during the present year. That sum must be deducted from the total possible contribution of the Federation for the present year, to aid the Amalgamated strikers. Aid from the Federation other than that must be provided by a special assessment of the Federation's members. It is doubtful whether the executive committee has the power to levy that.

So far as the treasury of the Amalgamated Association is concerned, therefore, the strikers find themselves lamentably lacking in funds. The officers say, however, that the true Amalgamated men will not ask for relief at the rate of $4.00 weekly. That may be correct of the men who make large salaries, but if the promise of the officials to provide for the poorer ones is fulfilled the treasury of the Amalgamated will be depleted scarcely less rapidly. The poor strikers will insist on getting the pittance from the strike fund for which the constitution provides.

To estimate the loss in wages the strikers have suffered is difficult. When former President M. M. Garland of the Amalgamated Association, was before the Congressional Committee on Ways and means some years ago in a labor enquiry, he estimated the average wages of steel workers at $3 per day. Calculating that 120,000 men are idle from the present strike, to accept the association's figures the loss in wages is $360,000 per day.

The total number of men idle up to the declaration of the general strike was estimated at 40,000. Those were out twenty-eight days before the 80,000 others (the association's figures) were rendered idle by the second call of President Shaffer and the sympathy strikes that followed. The following table will give an idea of the men's loss:

STRIKER'S LOSS

$360,000 per day for nine days	$3,240,000
$120,000 per day for twenty-eight days	3,360,000
Total wage loss thus far	$6,600,000

The actual loss in money to the steel corporation is largely problematical. The following figures are approximately correct, making no allowance for the fact that business lost is in many cases merely business deferred:

STEEL CORPORATION'S LOSS

Profit on 300,000 tons, at $10	$3,000,000
Loss in business and contracts (estimated)	10,000,000
	$13,000,000
Deduct wages saved	6,600,000
Net loss to trust	6,400,000

COST OF STRIKE

Loss to merchants and other business men (estimated)	$1,000,000
Loss in stocks and securities affected by the strike (estimated)	25,000,000

Total Amalgamated men	16,000

The Fad

Of the modern woman is health by exercise. It's an excellent fad, provided that it is always remembered that exercise cannot cure womanly diseases. Indeed, where such diseases exist exercise is apt to aggravate the condition rather than to help it. The first step toward establishing the general health is to establish the local womanly health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures womanly diseases which undermine the general health. It establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. When these are cured, backache, headache and nervousness are things of the past. The universal testimony of weak and sickly women, cured by "Favorite Prescription," is this: "It has made me feel like a new woman."

"My wife has used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine, and I never saw such results," writes A. B. Haynes, Esq., of Aurora, Lawrence Co., Mo. "It was wonderful in its work. We had used lots of medicine, also had one of the best physicians in Aurora, but my wife got no better; we heard one pitiful groan after another, day and night. A friend handed me a copy of Dr. Pierce's book, the Common Sense Medical Adviser, and after reading the testimonials of Dr. Pierce's successful treatment, and seeing that the cases described were similar to my wife's, I bought for her a bottle of Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Before she had taken all of the medicine she was up and helping to do the work. She has taken three bottles and is now about well. Has better health than she has had for years."

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

When 23 years old Mary Ellerby was sure that she would never marry. Men were well enough to talk to, to ride or row or golf or sing with, but the idea of surrendering herself to one of them to be held in marital thrall for a lifetime filled her, when she thought of it, with a shudder of loathing. She thought of it just as seldom as was possible to her, which is to say that she thought of it only when some one of her many admirers forced it upon her attention. Her manner of refusing them was characteristic of her. She did it gently, smoothly, irrevocably with as much regard for their feelings as was consonant with making her dissent unmistakable.

"No," she would say finally, when some desperate wooer had returned for the fifth time to the charge, 'no; I do not love you well enough to give myself to you. I can never love you that well. Let this be the last word on this subject between us. We will talk of something else, if you please."

Miss Ellerby was handsome, healthy, and well to do. No young woman held a better place in Sthyborough society. She was popular with every male acquaintance except those with whom she had declined to mate, and the girls liked her because they understood that she would never willingly poach on any manor of theirs. Her mind was set firmly on celibacy and she was at no pains to conceal the fact.'

Richard Haven, better known as "Dick," knew this when he began his pursuit. He was a big, square-jawed, lawyer, successful in most of his cases, and he made up his mind to win her if it were humanly—man-humanly—possible. His friends predicted defeat; his enemies, of whom there were many, laughed at him. The women wished him godspeed, but predoomed him to fatigue. He could not say, after six months of assiduous courtship, that he had made any decided progress. The girl was affable, apparently glad to see him when he came, certainly no whit disturbed when he went away, gentle-mannered, entertaining and

"I feel," he said to himself, "a good deal like the latin chap who was always rolling a heavy stone up a hill and never getting it to the top. However, faint heart never won, etc. and here's for another go at the citadel."

Miss Ellerby was talking to her very dearest friend, Miss Norman, when she said tentatively:

"You know my dear, that I shall never marry."

The other merely looked as one who has heard it before and was noncommittal.

"I shall not marry for reasons well known to you, Unfortunately one cannot put these reasons as an advertisement into the morning paper, though I would like to. I have been bothered a good deal by the men and shall likely be bothered more, because they are stubborn creatures. Many of them I care nothing about, because they soon get over a disappointment, but others of them feel more deeply, and I hate to give pain. There is one in my mind now, who will be badly hurt, but I cannot help it."

Miss Norman looked at her gravely and said:

"Dick Haven, I presume."

"Yes."

"Oh, well, I am satisfied he will make a quick recovery. He is big enough and strong enough, you know. You must not take all of his passion for genuine. He used to be noted as an ameteur actor, and much of it is simulated. He is too level-headed to put his all upon any cast."

Miss Ellerby did not like the intimation that her pursuer was half sincere, but she only remarked in a brisk manner:

"Well, I can't break the rule of a lifetime for him," and went her way, which was the way of an automobile party for the afternoon.

About this time Dick Haven was striding up and down the rooms of his friend, Arthur Pym Jackson, a young minister of the Protestant Episcopal church, who ran a good deal to boxing gloves, foils French novels hid under sofa cushions, and bull ter-

Haven's coat was off, for the men had been sparring, and his hair was rumpled as he swung one arm up and down savagely and said:

"I'ev got to have her Pym; I tell you I've just got to have her. I'm standing with one foot over the insanity line right now, and I don't want to drag the other after it."

"Well," said the divine, between puffs of cigar smoke, "if you got to have her, why don't you take her?"

"Do what?"

"Take her!"

"Take her?"

"Yes, take her."

"Her, Her?"

"Yes, her."

"Pym," said Haven staring at him "you're a good fellow, You spar well; you are a crackerjack with the cleek; I don't know anybody whom I would rather row with, sail with or tramp across country with, but you've got one drawback as a companion and a minister; you ought ot have some sense."

"Not at all; oot at all," was the placid response. "You're the one who lacks gray matter. Listen!"

He sat upright and suffered his cigar to lie idle in his fingers.

"You want to marry Miss Ellerby; she doesn't want to marry, or thinks she doesn't. Bear in mind that I know a good deal about her; more, certainly, that she knows about herself. She plays the organ at my church. I've talked to her often and watched her oftener She is of the musical temperament. Unknown to herself, deep in her nature are springs of sentiment that have

"Oh how hard it was to part with coffee, but the continued trouble with constipation and belching was such that I finally brought myself to leave it off.

Then the question was, what should we use for the morning drink? Tea was worse for us than coffee; chocolate and cocoa we soon tired of; milk was not liked very well, and hot water we could not endure.

About two years ago we struck upon Postum Food Coffee, and have never been without it since. We have seven children, Our baby, now eighteen months old would not take milk so we tried Postum and found she liked it and it agreed with her perfectly. She is today, and has been, one of the healthiest babies in the State. I use about two-thirds Postum and one-third milk and a teaspoon of sugar, and put it into her bottle. If you could have seen her eyes sparkle and hear her say "good" to-day when I gave it to her, you would believe me that she likes it.

If I was matron of an Infants' home every child would be raised on Postum.

Many of my friends say 'You are looking so well!' I reply, 'I am well; I drink Postum Food Coffee. I have no more trouble with constipation and know that I owe my good health to God and Postum Food Coffee.'

I am writing this letter because I want to tell you how much good the Postum has done us, but if you knew how I shrink from publicity, you would not publish this letter,—at least not over my name."—Milford, O.

DELAREY ACCEPTS THE CHALLENGE

London, Aug 27.—The War Office publishes the following despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated at Pretoria, yesterday: "Delarey has issued a counter-proclamation warning all Boers against my latest proclamation, and declaring that they will continue the struggle."

Delarey is one of the most capable and reputable of Boer generals, and his example may be followed by De Wet and Botha. Lord Kitchener's task thus will be made more difficult.

RECENT OPERATIONS.

London, Aug. 27.—Gradually but surely the Boer guerillas in South Africa are being gathered in. Although the quick movements of the roving bands, coupled with their knowledge of the country and the aid given by farmers whose political opinions depend upon the character of the fighting force in nearest proximity to their farms, give the British considerable difficulty, the small successes scored from week to week by the British must eventually bring the conclusion of the war in the very near future.

In July last General Kitchener reported that there were about 13,500 Boers in arms. Recent weekly reports reduce the number to 10,000, and in an interview with a representative of The Gaulois, Mr. Kruger confirmed this, intimating at the same time that they were determined to continue the struggle.

The largest hostile force is in the Eastern Transvaal, but probably it does not exceed eight hundred burghers, Scheeper's commando is the only one south of the Orange River, and Gen. French is operating against it. Kritzinger and Wessels have been reinforced in the Wepener district by the bands which Knox was driving through the Orange River Colony, but this combined Boer force is about four hundred men.

NOT OF PEACE CONFERENCE.

London, Aug. 27.—It is pointed out that Mr. Kruger's protest against Kitchener's proclamation, addressed to the Powers, will lose much of its force from the fact that neither of the former South African Republics were represented at The Hague convention. The Netherlands Government, when arranging for the convention, submitted to Russia a list of the countries which it proposed to invite to the conference. It was returned from St Petersburg with the names of the two Republics crossed out. This may be a disadvantage for England at a time when the resources of the Boers are nearly exhausted; it would have been greater gain for England during the last two years if the two Republics had been represented in the Congress, and had been under obligation to respect the enlightened principles adopted by it.

BOERS CUT WIRES.

Cape Town, Aug, 27.—Many of the main telegraph lines in the Cape Colony and in Natal have been cut lately. General De. Wet has been reported at Lastron collecting a force. At Burghersdorp 247 second-class rebels have been disfranchised.

CAVALRY BAYONET CHARGE.

Bloemfontein, Aug. 27.—A portion of Colonel Delisle's column, composed of Australian bushmen, rushed a farmhouse in the night recently on horseback with fixed bayonets. Five Boers were killed and seven captured. Forty Boers were engaged north of the Modder River by a detachment of South African Constabulary. The Boers lost three killed and several wounded and six taken prisoners. Our men lost two killed and seven wounded.

SIR F. ROBINSON WAS DROWNED

Sir Frederick and Lady Robinson had been spending the summer in their cottage there, and on Saturday evening entertained Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Wilgriss to tea. After tea Mr. and Mrs. Wilgriss left the cottage and Sir Frederick and Lady Robinson set out for a farm across the lake to obtain some butter. The trip was made in safety, and on their return Lady Robinson preceded her husband into the house, taking the wraps with her. Sir Frederick remained to properly secure the boat. After a short time Lady Robinson returned, but could see no trace of her husband. She went into the next cottage, bu the had not been there. Then, becoming alarmed, help was sought from another cottage about a quarter of a mile away. Two young men came over, and in a short time discovered the body and brought it to land. A physician was at hand, and every effort was made to revive him, but without success. Sir Frederick had been subject to fainting fits, and it is believed that while he was standing on the boathouse platform, which is about three feet wide, he was seized with faintness and fell into the water, which was only four feet deep at the spot where he was drowned. A slight bruise was found on the head, such as would be caused by striking the platform, and the body was found beneath the platform. Sir Frederick was a skillful swimmer, and had he not fainted could easily have saved himself in much deeper water.

Coroner Reece, who was called in, decided that an inquest was unnecessary. Yesterday morning Lady Robinson, accompanied by Mr. Wilgriss, brought the body to Toronto. The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from Sir Frederick's late residence, 18 Roxborough avenue west, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Sir Frederick, who was 46 years of age, was a clerk in the Surrogate Office at Osgoode Hall, Lady Robinson, whom he married in 1893, was Miss Mary Eliza-beth Filer. He is succeeded in the title by his cousin, John Beverley Robinson of New York, son of the late Hon. John Beverley Robinson.

GREAT ALARM IN COLOMBIA

Colon, Colombia, Aug. 26.—The government appears now to be in a critical situation as a result of the conflict with Venezuela and internal dissensions. Strict censorship has prevented the sending of news bearing upon the serious aspects of the war, but official action just made public proves the government officials are seriously alarmed. An official decree was sent from Bogota on July 18 to the Governors of the departments but was not made public until to-day.

This decree says: "A new aspect of the war, which seems to kindle anew with the help of foreigners who threaten the frontier, places the government under the necessity of assuming a different attitude from that maintained hitherto, and forces it to proceedings which it has previously tried to avoid. It has been resolved, firstly, to suspend the payment of all accounts for war material pending and to limit the expenses to the payment of the armed force and ministration.

"Secondly, to proceed to expropriate all the necessary elements for the feeding equipment and mobilization of the army

"Thirdly, to levy forced and voluntary loans, according to circumstances, and to impose war contributions in order to meet the expenses of each department without depending on the national capital.

"The governors are hereby amply authorized to proceed in those matters according to the requirements of the cases without the need of approval from the government, and each governor must assume the responsibility in order to save the situation within his territory."

Washington, Aug. 26.—There is reason fo rbelieving that the German foreign office is taking as deep and acute an interest in the attitude of the United States toward the three South American republics that appear to be on the verge of war as several of the leading German newspapers.

Count Von Quadt, first secretary of the German embassy, who in the absence of Dr. Von Holleben is in charge, has unexpectedly returned to the city. It is expected he will ascertain for his government the exact position assumed by the United States toward the isthmian controversy. This can be done in a purely informal manner and without the necessity of officially demanding the purpose or policy of this government. He will undoubtedly be assured there is no intention of acquiring territory or paticipation in the anticipated conflict.

The return of Count Von Quadt was co-insident with the outburst of editorial denunciation of the Monroe doctrine by influential German newspapers. There is no connection between the sudden and unexpected reopening of the German embassy and the publication of the denunciatory comments. But there is a strong inclination among minor officials of the state department to locate the cause of the phenomena at the German foreign office.

KITCHENER'S LATEST REPORT

London, Aug. 26.

A dispatch from Lord Kitchener says since August 19th thirty two Boers have been killed, 139 have been made prisoners and 185 have surrendered, including Kruger, a nephew of the ex-president. The columns are meeting with no appreciable opposition in Cape Colony. The rebels and armed bands are hiding and avoiding our columns with some success, General Beaton alone having been in contact with the commando of Scheper whom he is driving north.

The Great Kidney Specialist.

The Famous Physician Who Has Made Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Diseases a Life Long Study.

DR. ZINA PITCHER.

For many years in the hospitals of Detroit and Professor of Genito Urinary diseases in Michigan College of Medicine, Dr. Zina Pitcher devoted his time to the scientific study of diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary System.

By exclusive devotion to one branch of medical investigation Dr. Pitcher was enabled to perfect a treatment for Kidney troubles that far surpasses any other remedy.

After testing it extensively in private and hospital practice and demonstrating its incomparable superiority to all other forms of treatment, Dr. Pitcher decided to give this great boon to suffering humanity at large and not confine it exclusively to the circles of his private and hospital patients.

He has placed his remedy before the public under the name of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and so confident is he of the positive curative qualities of these Tablets for backache, lame or weak back, drowsiness, headaches, pain in the loins, brick dust deposits in the urine, puffiness under the eyes, swelling of the feet and ankles, scalding, irritation, frequent rising at night, dribbling, inflammation or ulceration of the bladder, gravel, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease and Diabetes (except in the last stages), bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, constipation, puffy and pasty appearance of the face, dropsy, backache and weakness of women, urinary weakness of children and old people or any symptomatic indications of Kidney disease that to anyone suffering from any of the above troubles, who uses the Tablets faithfully, according to directions, and derives no benefit therefrom, their money will be cheerfully refunded.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists or sent by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

MANY YOUNG GIRLS SMOKE.

New York, Aug. 26.—An astonishing confession was made to-day by Annie Neff, a thirteen-year old girl cigarette fiend, in Yorkville court. She said that all the girls in her neighborhood on the east side smoke cigarettes; that dealers continually violate the law compelling them to sell cigarettes in unbroken packages and that parties of boys and girls gather on the docks and have "inhaling parties," the one holding the smoke in the lungs the longest collecting a tribute of a cigarette from each of the other contestants. She tells of her experience as follows:

"Us girls wanted to play with the boys in the block, but the boys would not let us unless we smoked cigarettes. It did not take me long to learn to smoke and inhale and when the boys saw that I could they let me play with them. I used to save up all the pennies I could get and buy cigarettes with them. We bought them two for a cent and could get them in almost any store in our neighborhood. There are some cigarettes that you can get four for a cent. They are not as good as the others and I never bought them except when I was short of pennies.

"About a month ago my throat got bad and I went to Bellevue dispensary. They told my mother I was a cigarette fiend and the throat would stay bad if I didn't stop. I could have stopped all right but it was pleasant to smoke, and I said, "What's the use?" I am going to stop now and be a good girl, but I'm not the only girl that smokes in New York. All the girls on our block smoke cigarettes. Nearly every girl in school used to smoke I guess. The boys teach them.

SAY CHINA WILL YIELD.

Ministers of Allied Powers Believe Protocol Will be Signed.

Pekin, Aug. 27.—The delay of the Chinese plenipotentiaries in signing the protocol is causing some uneasiness in the foreign community here, although the ministers of the powers do not think the Chinese intend to defy the powers by ultimately refusing to sign. Indeed they believe China is anxious to wind up the negotiations speedily.

Decrees reciting the punishments and suspending the examinations will be issued before the Chinese signatures are affixed.

Prince Ching, at the request of the Empress Dowager, telegraphed to her verbatim the restrictions as to the importation of arms.

Li Hung Chan, having practically conducted all the active negociations, has retired into the background, leaving to Prince Ching the responsibility of consummating the work. Earl Li finds himself in the same precarious position that he occupied at the close of the negotiations following the war with Japan. The native press is unanimous in violently denouncing him for what is called his surrender to the foreigners, and a number of officials have petitioned the emperor to punish him for betraying his country.

KILLED ALL HIS ENEMIES.

A Returned Volunteer Soldier Renews a Feud in Kentucky.

Williamsburg, Ky., Aug. 27. — Sheriff Sutton has reliable information concerning a pitched battle about twenty miles from here in which five men were killed by Wes Mays and George Golden, the first of whom was a former resident of Whitley County, and who has just returned home after having been discharged from the Volunteer Army service in the Philippines.

The dead are Blake Logan, his two sons, and two neighbors named Wilson

Mays is said to have had trouble with Logan before he went into the army, Mays' wife being the cause, it is said. According to the story that was brought here from the scene of the killing, Mays and his comrade came back from the army with shirts of mail and pistols. Golden accompanied Mays from the Philippines and made Mays' quarrel his own.

They reached Mays former home on Tuesday and at once hunted up Logan and renewed the quarrel. In the pitched battle that followed none of the men had any chance against the mailed soldiers and they were all killed. The dead men were dragged into the house and for fortyeight hours Mays and Golden refused to allow anyone to enter the place.

The neighbors were terror-stricken and made no effort to secure the bodies of the dead.

A posse has been made up here to go to the scene of the killing to arrest the men who did the shooting and to bury the dead. The place is in the mountains, away from railroads or telegraph station. It is one of the most desolate spots in eastern Kentucky.

Perfect Manhood

Is rightly yours; but if you are not the man you should be, if you are losing your energy, your Vital force, memory, annoyed by Varicocele, shrunken parts, and feeling if you don't care what happens, you are suffering from Lost Vitality; it creeps upon men unawares; do not deceive yourself or remain in ignorance while you are being dragged down by this disease: no matter what the cause may be, whether early abuse, excess or overwork and business cares, the results are the same; premature loss of strength and memory, emissions, impotency, Varicocele and shrunken parts. OUR LATEST METHOD TREATMENT WILL CURE YOU. We guarantee it as a positive cure for these conditions; it is the outcome of years of experience; it equalizes the circulation, stops all drains, thereby vitalizes the parts, restoring them to their normal condition and make the man of you as nature has intended. Do not be misled by so-called Specialists and Institutes. Read the following facts:

1. We do not accept an incurable case for treatment.
2. Each time you call you see Dr. Goldberg personally. He has 18 Diplomas, etc., which should be sufficient guarantee to his abilities. All other chronic, private and Blood Poison Specialists either have some doctor in charge of their office or have an assistant to doctor you.
3. We are doing business on our own reputation, not of our predecessor.
4. Our records show more actual cures than all the other Specialists combined.
5. You need pay nothing until you are convinced that you are thoroughly cured.

THE RIFLE MATCHES.

Programme For The Ranges for Labor Day

The programme for the annual rifle matches in connection with the 57th Regiment, which will be held on Labour Day, are now out, and contain a few changes from the programme of last year's matches.

The range officers for the event are Lieut.-Col. E. B. Edwards, Major Miller, Major Stevenson and Capt. Walker. All men will parade at the drill shed at 7 p.m., and will be conveyed to the range free of charge. The matches will commence at 8 a.m. sharp, and lunch will be served at the ranges. Rifles must be drawn and signed for previous to the matches.

The events will be as follows:

General match, open to all officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the 57th Regiment. Value of prizes, $55.50. Ranges 200, 400, 500 and 600 yards. Five shots at each range.

Tyro match, open to officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the 57th Regiment who have not made a score of 60 points or over in any previous match. Value, $11.75. Ranges 200, 400 and 500 yards, five shots at each range, the same score to count in the general match.

Skirmishing and volley firing match. Value, $16.25, open to team of five non-commissioned officers or men from each company. Five rounds advancing and five returning. Targets to be exposed 15 seconds; magazines not to be used. If more than one shot be fired by a competitor at one exposure in skirmishing his team will be disqualified.

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Mr. Edward Manning and Miss Lillian Lee.

Mr. Charles Manning and Miss Lillian J Lee were married yesterday morning at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. William Lee, No. 710 George street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. L. Armitage, of All Saint's church, in the presence of a number of invited guests.

The bride was attired in white organdie, and was attended by her sister, Miss Ida Lee. The groom was supported by Mr. George Dawson.

After the ceremony the wedding party sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast, and later left for their honeymoon trip to Toronto, Buffalo, and other places.

They will on their return take up their residence for the present at No 710 Water street.

Victoria Cheese Board.

Victoria County Cheese Board met this morning, 1717 boxes being boarded by 16 factories. Mr. Flavelle captured the first selection at 9 5-16c., taking 481 boxes, the make of five factories. Buyer Whitton made the same bid for a second selection and took 680 boxes, but later released 80 boxes to Mr. Flavelle, they being in the firm's cold storage warehouse. Mr. Flavelle then offered to clear the board at 9 1-4c. Janetville, North Verulam, and Fenelon Falls refused the bid and were given permission to sell off the board. Previous to the bidding Mr. Flavelle referred to the proceedings at the last meeting of the Peterboro Cheese Board, and his trenchant remarks on the subject of buyers refusing on insufficient and unfair grounds to accept cheese purchased at a high price will appear to-morrow.

Douro Council Meeting.

The Council met in the Town Hall on August 12th at 2 o'clock p.m. All the members were present. The Reeve, Mr. Maloney, presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The Reeve moved that those persons who signed the petition re the drainage of Buckley's Lake be heard before the Council.

A number of the petitioners withdrew their names from the petition, giving as a reason that the cost would be too much.

The estimated cost as contained in the Engineer's report was about $5,798.80, and the cost of opening up two concession lines across the lake about $1,000.

After the report was read and thoroughly discussed it was moved by Mr. Condon and Mr. Sullivan—That the report be not adopted.

Moved by Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Condon That the Reeve do order the payment of $118.25 to E. R. Blackwell, salary as Engineer in connection with the drainage of Buckley's Lake and for hired help, this amount to be loan by those persons who signed the petition.

Moved by Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Condon That the Reeve do order the payment of $1 each to the Assessor and Clerk re the equalization of Union S. Sections.

Moved by Mr. Curtis and Mr. Allen—That James Condon and M. D. Sullivan be authorized to inspect the line between lots 18 in concession 4, with building a culvert if needed.

Orders on Treasure for gravel to Martin Leahy for 43 loads, $3.00; Martin Guerin, 30 loads, $2.10.

Council adjourned to Sept. 9th next, then to meet at 10 o'clock a.m.

The Grim Reaper.

Monday's Lindsay Post says:—"The announcement of the death, in New York city, of Florence Kempt-Kerrigan, wife of Dr. J. A. Kerrigan, of that city, and daughter of the late Dr. Wm. Kempt, and niece of the late Sheriff Wm. Kempt, of this town, will be received with lively expressions of sympathy and regret by the many friends of the deceased, and of the family in this town and vicinity. The sad event occurred early last week, but the news did not reach town till Saturday. Heart failure was the cause of her sudden death."

The funeral took place Thursday in Cavan of Mrs. Hannah Graham.

Mrs. Graham, who was in her 74th year, succumbed to bilious fever. The deceased lady was a granddaughter of the late Samuel Grandy, who was well known in this vicinity. She was married to William Graham, son of the late Thomas Graham and Mary Lytle Graham. One son, Thomas, died in 1892, at Boscurvis, N. W. T., another son, John was for many years treasurer of Cavan township, and died in 1898. Mrs Graham's home was gladdened with three daughters, viz., Annie, Mrs. John Purser, of Cobourg; Minnie J., Mrs. W. H. Swaine, of St Thomas, North Dakota; and Adelaide K., Mrs. D. Staples, of Cavan.

There died yesterday, in Peterborough, 1901 Robert Weir, aged 65 years. The funeral will take place this afternoon from the family residence, corner of Benson-ave. and Wolsely-st. to the Little Lake cemetery.

Letters from the People on Interesting Topics.

The Devil and Dr. Claudius.

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—The attack of Mr. McClellan upon the good faith of the Review looks rather serious—for the Review. Your "esteemed contemporary" has always had the reputation of being sly and lazy. If it was slower than other papers in its style of writing and make-up it was by no means slower when it came to grinding an ax or doing some scavenging for its friends. "Needs must when the devil drives," is an old proverb, and when the call of hard times required a prompt response the Review responded and pretty promptly. Hence Mr. McClellan should not be too hard upon the little daily for rushing to the grindstone. True, it is very reprehensible that people should pretend to be good when they are only sly, but then they deceive no one, nor for long. Pretty Poll!

VAN.

Peterborough, Aug. 26

Municipal Book-keeping.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—There is a crying need for legislation that will compell public and corporate, or business, bookkeeping to be identical. All who know anything about corporate accounting, know the necessity for the great exactness of it. If the accounts of any great corporation were kept like those of any large city in the country, the stockholders would have cause of criminal action against the directors, of which existing law would take cognizance. This is a startling fact, that acts criminal in the individual or the corporation are the settled rule of conduct in municipal administration. So far every effort to reform municipal methods has been a failure. That which the criminal law would do promptly to a corporation is left undone in the case of a city.

This applies to Peterborough. No one, for instance, knows just what the New Market building cost the town, or how much the Electric Company got from the people.

RATEPAYER.

The Potato Bug.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I can remember the time when the common potato bug was styled the Colorado Beetle, and was deemed a novel nuisance. How did it come from Colorado, or what is its history? 2. How long does it take a bug to reach the adult age?

G. W. L.

Reply,—This insect was first described in 1824 as peculiar to northern Missouri, and as feeding on a wild plant of the potato family. When next heard of it was attacking potatoes in Nebraska, this in 1859. From then it spread steadily, reaching Canada in 1874. Meanwhile it had picked up its present name. 2. A little over a month; the eggs hatch in about a week, the larva burrows in the earth, when from two to three weeks old, the beetle issuing in from seven to ten days.

Whose Hair?

Your own, or a wig. If you want to keep your own hair into old age use Dr. White's Electric Comb. It cures dandruff and hair falling when everything else fails, yet costs no more than an ordinary comb. Sold on a written guarantee. Ladies' size, 60c., gents' size 40c., fine 35c., (stamps). D. N. Rose, Gen. Mgr., Decatur Ill.

The Cordage Company.

Messrs Adam Hall and R. R. Hall returned last evening from a trip to New York, Boston and other points where, with Mr. W. T. Clarke, the manager, they were arranging for the purchase of the machinery for the Cordage Company's works.

They arranged for the purchase of the binder twine plant, orders being placed for part of it with Lawson, Coon, Barber & Coon, of Belfast, part with the Lloyd Manufacturing Co., of Brooklyn, and part with the Hoover & Gamble Co. of Miamsburg, Ohio.

No time will be lost in calling for tenders and letting the contracts for the buildings here.

Fell Down a Shaft.

The following despatch has been received from Rat Portage: "Andrew Yeomans, miner, working at the Sakoose Mine, north of Dynment, fell 35 feet down the shaft on Saturday, August 24, and was seriously injured. He is suffering from concussion of the brain, a severe scalp wound and an injury of the spine. He has been unconscious and speechless since the accident. He may recover. Yeomans is about 35 years of age and came from Peterborough. He is being treated at the hospital at Rat Portage."

St. James Church, Emily.

The anniversary services of St. James' church will be held next Sunday, Sept 1st. There will be two services, at 10.30 a.m. and 6.30 p.m., Rev. E. A. Langfeldt preaching at both. The evening service will be his farewell.

On Monday, Sept. 2, a concert and tea will be held at the church grounds. Mr. Halpany and members of St. John's church choir, Peterborough, are in charge of the programme. Tea will be served from 4 30 p.m., to 7.30.

HARD TO PLEASE.

Regarding the Morning Cup.

About two years ago we struck upon Postum Food Coffee, and have never been without it since. We have seven children. Our baby, now eighteen months old would not take milk so we tried Postum and found she liked it and it agreed with her perfectly. She is today, and has been, one of the healthiest babies in the State. I use about two-thirds Postum and one-third milk and a teaspoon of sugar, and put it into her bottle. If you could have seen her eyes sparkle and hear her say "good" to-day when I gave it to her, you would believe me that she likes it.

If I was matron of an Infants' home every child would be raised on Postum. Many of my friends say 'You are looking so well!' I reply, 'I am well; I drink Postum Food Coffee. I have no more trouble with constipation and know that I owe my good health to God and Postum Food Coffee.'

I am writing this letter because I want to tell you how much good the Postum has done us, but if you knew how I shrink from publicity, you would not publish this letter,—at least not over my name,"—Milford, O.

NEW DIVIME HEALER FOUND.

Bernhardt Wourth, Uncouth German Farmer, stirs Rock Falls, Ill.

Rock Falls, Ill., Aug. 27—The entire portion of this part of the State is excited over the discovery that Bernhardt Wourth, an uncouth, unlearned German farmer, has the power to heal by simply laying his hands on the afflicted ones and muttering a few mysterious words. Wourth lives in a squalid cabin in a secluded part of a swamp south of here which is a Mecca for hundreds of sick pilgrims, and his appearance in this city has at times almost stopped business. He discovered his power by accidentally placing his hand on a sick child's head. He is already hailed as a divine healer and a new sect is rapidly building up around him. He absolutely refuses all pay for his services.

LAKE AND RIVER NEWS.

The Steamers on the Lower Waters Unusually Busy.

—The steamer City of Peterborough, although late in getting to work, will have recorded a good season's business.

—Idyl Wyld is one of the prettiest places on the inland lakes. The new hotel is clean, well kept and should secure a large trade.

—Next Monday will be Labor Day, and the steamers City of Peterborough and Water Lily have been engaged to run an excursion to Jubilee Point.

—The North Star will continue her daily trips until September 15.

Poor Girl Pity Her

Growing! Yes, into weakness, but not strength. Studies—plenty of them. Tired, of course she is, and weak, too. Does not eat enough, and digests far less than enough. This condition is so frequent, but how seldom noticed even by fond parents. Give her Ferrozone, and watch her appetite improve, her cheeks and lips grow ruddy, her step elastic, her spirits buoyant. All this is simply the result of eating and digesting enough, making blood, and thereby strengthening the nerve and brain power. Ferrozone gives a woman's strength to weak girls. Your daughter or wife needs Ferrozone. Get it to-day from Ormond & Walsh.

Underwear Company Assigned.

The Peterborough Underwear Company, which has been in existence for the past three years, has assigned for the benefit of its creditors. Mr. H Rush is the assignee, and a meeting of the creditors will likely be held next week.

The company's works are located at Auburn on the Peterborough side of the river, and for some time they appeared to be doing a flourishing business.

Hay Fever Can Be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs—prevent the disease. Hay fever is caused by germs that float about in the air, and finally find lodgement in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Start now to use Catarrhozone. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure Hay Fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and U. S. Sent to any address for $1.00. Forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S., or Kingston, Ont.

The Royal Choruses.

A large number of vocalists gathered at the Y.M.C.A. last night, and practice was begun, under the direction of Mr. S. W. Mulligan, for the singing at Toronto on the occasion of the visit of their Royal Highness, the Duke and Duchess of York.

PEACE WITHIN TEN DAYS LATEST STRIKE HUMOR

Basis of the Report is Shaffer's Proposition Sent Out for Approval of Amalgamated Ass'n.

TERMS UPON WHICH MEN WILL RESUME WORK

Provisional Scale Not to be Signed for a Certain Plant and Recognition of the Union to Remain Open.

Pittsburg, Aug. 28. — Probably peace for the striking steel workers within ten days was the interesting topic in strike circles here today, but nothing definite could be learned. President Shaffer was averse to talking on the subject. Finally he said that while the report might be true he had no knowledge of it. He did not see how a settlement could be effected without the Amalgamated Association, and while some might hope for such good luck, yet in the face of gains made by the strikers he would not back down from his original position.

The steel officials reiterated their previous statements that no overtures for peace had come from the strikers and that the strike could be settled only by the return of the men to their places.

The peace proposition sent out by President Shaffer to the members of the Executive Board of the Amalgamated Association for their approval previous to the presentation to the United States Steel Corporation by the representatives of the National Civic Federation, lent color to the peace rumors, and the provisions of the plant were being discussed today by the strikers at Lindsay and McCutcheon's works.

The proposition provides for a provisional scale, not to be signed for this plant, leaving recognition of the union open. The men stated that they were prepared to return to work tomorrow under these conditions. They stated that all they would require would be that the amalgamated scale be paid, and that union men be allowed perfect liberty and no discrimination.

Notwithstanding the reports that all preparations had been made, the tin plate mill and Demmler did not resume this morning. There was much excitement in the vicinity of the plant all night, and several hundred strikers guarded the approaches to the property, but no new men appeared, and there was not the slightest disorder.

STATUS OF THE STRIKE.

Pittsburg, Aug. 28.—The rumors of negotiations for peace in the steel strike have been denied by both the Amalgamated Association and the steel officials. The American Tin Plate Company has announced that the mills in operation during the strike will be run as non-union in the future. The Tin Plate has always been a stronghold of the Amalgamated. The organized tube-makers who are out on strike, in sympathy with the Amalgamated, will receive no strike allowance from their union. They left their shops without submitting their grievances to the Executive Council.

Painters' mill—Six mills being operated and management says plenty of good material is being turned out.

Star mill—Men still at work upon two mills. No more men have entered the plants. Third turn may be put on at midnight.

Lindsay and McCutcheon mill—Several men secured. Two mills open with separate crews.

Clark and Union mills—Captain L. T. Brown says the strike is over so far as these mills are concerned. Strikers say the mills are not running full.

McKeesport—Representatives of the tub workers decided to stand by the Amalgamated officials. Demmler plant may be started this week.

The one place within this district where strikers have scored a victory is at Irondale, Ohio. At this place the American Tin Plate Company was compelled to close down its recently opened plant for lack of men to operate it. The day was full of excitement in the little village, and street fights came thick and fast for a time, until the inhabitants were wrought into a state of excitement bordering on terror. Reports from all the mills now partially operated with non-union men are to the effect that the management is making gains in its force, and as a rule time is being given towards inducing the old men to return to their places. It is said that in most cases these works had been successful. Officials of the Demmler Tin Mills have announced their intention to start that plant during the present week. It is claimed that the men to operate the mill will come from the ranks of the former employes and no men will be imported.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug 28.—The strike situation at the Crescent Mills seems to favor the Steel Corporation. Three of the six mills are in full operation. of the six mills are in full operation. One of the mills is operated by men who are said to have left the ranks of their union brethern. Three experienced union men deserted last night. The mill officials state that more men are expected from the east within a day or two.

BOERS ARE STILL FULL OF FIGHT

England Still Has a Monster Task on Her Hands.

WILL MAKE A BRAVE STRUGGLE

London, Aug. 28—While Jas. G. Stowe, United States Consul to Cape Town, who arrived here to-day from South Africa, talked guardedly, as became his position, he said enough to bear out the general testimony that Great Britain has still a monster task in crushing the Boers.

"The South African problem is undoubtedly difficult and complicated," he said. "The topography of the country and the mobility of the Boers, whom the English columns are unable to pursue individually, render operations most difficult. The British are feeding many prisoners and providing for thousands of Boer families, all of which is very nice on the part of England. But in the meanwhile the war drags on. There is a great future for South Africa when peace is secured. The surface of her mineral wealth is scarcely scratched. Undoubtedly England is prepared to solve the problem of reunification, but when that will occur certainly no person at the Cape is able to say."

RESTOCKING THE LAKES

The People From the Back Country are Restocking the Lakes.

Dr. Alex. Bell, the popular and efficient Clerk of Burleigh, who resides at Apsley, informed The Times a few days ago that the settlers in the country around Apsley have been restocking the lakes there with bass. These fish increase very rapidly when given a chance, and the action of the settlers in thus taking the matter in their own hands, is worthy of commendation.

The Ontario Government should send up a consignment of Lake Erie bass, similar to those recently put in Stony Lake. We commend this matter to the attention of the Provincial Secretary, who will no doubt supplement the work of the settlers on the lines above suggested.

Will War on Mosquitoes.

Washington, Aug. 28 — Washington's health department is preparing to begin a coal-oil campaign against mosquitoes, Dr. Woodward recently asked for an appropriation of $25 to purchase oil with which to attack stagnant pools of water in which mosquitoes propagate. As a matter of fact the national capital is peculiarly free from this particular form of summer pest, which is all the more remarkable because of the surroundings. It has fleas that are at once voracious and lively; caterpillars that have a fondness for one's neck, and the greatest variety of bugs of all sorts to be found in any community on the continent, but the mosquito, except in certain sections, is a comparatively unknown misfortune.

BITTEN BY A SNAKE

Mrs. Levi Bowles, of Cavan, Meets With a Serious Mishap.

On Saturday last Mrs. Levi Bowles, who resides with her husband near Frazerville, was bitten by a snake on the ankle. She hurried home and bathed the part, which soon became greatly swollen. The pain became so great that a physician was sent for, who did everything possible to relieve the sufferer.

At last accounts there were indications that her life would be saved.

INJURED IN A TROLLEY MISHAP

Fourteen Persons Are Hurt in a Collision at Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 28 — Fourteen persons were injured in a collision between a Greenfield interurban car and a train on the belt railroad this morning. A freight engine with a dozen cars was approaching, and as the electric car reached the centre of the track the locomotive struck it and threw it to the side of the track. The electric car was new and of heavy construction and withstood the impact, otherwise the death list would have been heavy. The motorman and conductor were badly bruised.

MORE INSURGENTS GIVE UP

Colonel Lorcel and Seventeen Officers and Thirteen men Surrender.

Manila, August 28—Word was received to-day that the insurgent Colonel Loreel, with seventeen officers and thirteen men, had surrendered yesterday to Captain Brown of the Fourth Infantry at Talisay. The surrender of numerous other smaller bodies last week brings the total to more than 100. Governor Taft is expected to return to Manila Friday after having appointed civil officials throughout all northern Luzon.

HOLLAND'S LITTLE WAR.

Nearly a Quarter of a Billion Dollars Already Spent.

The Hague, Aug. 29.—Holland is conducting a war in Sumatra that has been going on with more or less violence since 1870, and is not by any means ended yet. The Dutch exercise a suzerainty over the island, but the Sultan made an attempt to throw off this influence. Originally the Netherlands only wanted to restore matters to their former state, but since then they have determined on the island's complete subjugation. In this effort they have already spent over $200,000,000 and the Sumatrans say they have only begun to fight.

How to Get up an Appetite.

Distaste for food often follows Grippe, and fevers, and is associated with a general weakness of the system. To impart a real zest for food and give power to the stomach to digest and assimilate, no remedy can equal Ferrozone. This is a new and startling discovery. It strikes at the root of disease and by removing the cause, cures quickly and permanently. Ferrozone will quickly enable you to eat and digest anything. Ormond & Walsh, druggists, can tell you a great deal more about Ferrozone, how it cures and why it cures. Call to-day and see him.

THIS VESTIGE OF GROWING HATE

Quebec Catholics on the Coronation Oath.

PETITION SENT TO CHAMBERLAIN

Montreal, August 28—The Herald, the organ of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, says this evening:—

In view of the approaching date when His Majesty King Edward VII will take the coronation oath, the hierarchy of the Catholic church are taking more active steps to have their protests against certain passages of the royal pledge reach the proper authorities with a view to having them eliminated.

While in the diocese of Montreal no announcement has been made of any such steps of the church authorities, the clergy of the diocese of Quebec have expressed their desire and that of their congregations in a petition which has just been framed, and which is to be forwarded to Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies.

In an interview with a Herald representative, Mgr. Racicot, Vicar-General of the diocese of Montreal, has already stated that the authorities here are not desirous for the present of making any utterance on the subject. Further than that, Mgr. Racicot would not say. The petition of the Catholics of Quebec is not to be merely an explosion of the views and wishes of the clergy, but an expression of the opinion on the question of the members, both lay and clerical, of the Catholics of the diocese. The wording of the petition was heard in all the Quebec city churches at the different masses on Sunday and read as follows:

"Right Honorable Joseph Chamberlain, Minister of Colonies:—

"We regret that notwithstanding the energetic protests of the Catholic subjects of His Majesty you persist in retaining in the formula of the royal oath declarations which are contrary to the Catholic faith, as also to the spirit of justice and liberty which we have a right to expect from the people of England.

"This sectarian intolerance, dishonorable to England, cannot but alienate the hearts of a great number of the subjects of His Majesty. In the name of the Catholics of Canada, and in particular of the members of the parish of (name of church designated), Quebec, we declare our protest against the formula of the royal oath, and demand of the government of His Majesty the abolition of this vestige of hate and religious discord."

MRS. NATION ON THE STAGE

Opens the Afternoon Bill at a Philadelphia Vaudeville House.

Philadelphia Pa., August 28—Carrie Nation came out of the west yesterday into the staid old city of Philadelphia and incidentally made her debut on the vaudeville stage. Her arrival was a much-heralded affair. The initial appearance was made at the Grand opera house this afternoon before a large audience. Right at the start the Kansas woman balked. She arrived at the theatre and then flatly declined to appear as part of the vaudeville show. The managers had assigned her stunt to a place about the middle of the programme, but she said she wanted to be either first or last and the management after a few sharp words with her manager gave in and she was allowed to open the show. There was little applause for her and she began to talk in a strong, concise way, urging her hearers to wipe out the saloons. She then spoke of women generally and what they should do to make the public rise and wipe out saloons from the city.

Mrs. Nation was all day an object of curiosity. A large crowd hung around her hotel waiting for a chance to see her. She made an attempt to see Mayor Ashbridge, but that official evidently did not care for a visit from the reformer and her efforts were in vain. She insisted that she must see him and offered to find him if allowed to search, but the official in charge of the mayor's office refused to allow it.

Mrs. Nation again appeared at the Grand opera house to-night. She goes to Baltimore to-morrow and then to Ocean Grove, N.J.

DO NOT SUE FOR PEACE.

Strike Leaders Have Not Authorized Overtures for Settlement.

Pittsburg, Pa., August 28—While the representatives of the National Civic Federation are working zealously for peace between the steel-workers and the United States Steel Corporation, President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association declared to-day that his association had given no authority to anyone to make a settlement and that any effort that might be made in that direction is being done by outside parties on their own responsibility. He announced that so far as the officials of the organization are concerned they are satisfied that the attempts of the officials of the trust to operate the plants in Pittsburg have been futile and that while there is apparently a lot of men at work and machinery is in operation practically no product is being turned out.

The officials of the various plants that have been started during the past week in Pittsburg say they have made gains in all of them. More men have come to work and the output is in every case increased. The Painter plant of the hoop combine started two additional mills today and the officials say that before the end of the week these mills will be working double time. The Star mills are being operated by non-union tinworkers and two double mills are turning out satisfactory black sheets. Manager Arthur Piper claims that the mills will be operated three turns before the end of the week.

Successful Fishermen.

On Tuesday Warden Fitzgerald and Mr. R. J. Munro drove to Hiawatha, and rowed over to Jubilee, about three miles distant. While out they caught two fine 'lunge, weighing about 16 pounds each. Mr. Fitzgerald manipulated the trawling line, and the way he played the fish before landing was a terror to behold. In the excitement and struggles attending the capture, the genial warden held his seat, while Mr. Munro held his breath.

SAMPSON HAD A TIP

Warned That Cervera Was to Run the Blockade

30 HOURS NOTICE GIVEN

In Face of This He Moved His Flagship from the Fleet

Positive Statement to be Made at Schley Court of Inquiry—Garcia Could Have Known of the Important Fact.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Admiral Sampson was informed on the evening of July 2, at least thirty hours before Admiral Cervera made his dash from the harbor of Santiago, that the Spanish fleet would attempt to run the blockade of the United States ships of war on the following day July 3. This intelligence was sent to Sampson by an officer of his fleet just before dark.

Sampson ignored the information and on the following morning took the New York, his flagship; the torpedo-boat Ericsson, and the despatch-boat Hist out of the blockading line and started for Siboney to hold a conference with Shafter. The officer in question was so worried that he scarcely slept during the night of July 2, but maintained an almost unbroken vigil on the flying-bridge of his ship.

The Washington correspondent of the Chronicle is enabled to make the foregoing statements on the highest possible authority but for obvious reasons cannot publish the name of their author. It can be stated, however, that during the course of the Schley inquiry the facts relative to the notification of Sampson that the Spanish fleet might make a dash for the open sea on the morning of July 3, will be brought out in detail.

As Sampson himself will be on the stand as a witness he will doubtless explain why he quit the blockading line in the face of the information that he had received on the previous night. The fact that he had previously assigned to every subordinate officer every task to which was attached the slightest peril will have a strong bearing upon this particular inquiry.

GARCIA KNEW OF THE PLAN.

The records of the war department indicate strongly that Sampson had received information of the proposed flight of Cervera from General Garcia also on July 2. Garcia is dead and his testimony therefore cannot be obtained. Sampson himself knows whether the gallant Cuban gave him warning of Cervera's plans and, inasmuch as the admiral has never indicated in his reports that such was the case, it is presumed that he will deny at this time that Garcia sent him the news or which the fleet had waited patiently for more than a month. Garcia was in possession of the news on July 2, as is shown by the following extract from a dispatch to the secretary of war which General Shafter cabled from his headquarters on July 3:

"The French Consul informed General Garcia, into whose lines he went yesterday that Admiral Cervera had stated that he would run out at ten o'clock this morning and that was the hour witnessed his departure. Cervera told such consul it was better to die fighting than blow up ships in the harbor."

There is absolutely nothing in the record to show that General Shafter was apprised of Cervera's contemplated dash until the forenoon of July 3, hence the story that Shafter communicated the news to Sampson is unsupported. On the contrary, the Chronicle's Washington correspondent has been reliably informed that Shafter did not send word to Sampson about Cervera's purpose to escape because he did not know about it until July 3. It does not follow, however, that because the news was delayed in reaching Shafter that Garcia did not communicate it direct to Sampson. His camp was close to the coast than any of Shafter's aids. He had maintained regular communication with Sampson by a code of signals furnished him by Generla Miles since June 6, and it is known that there was almost daily interchange of communications between Garcia and the flagship by means of wigwag signals.

KEPT THE NAVY POSTED.

Here is an extract from a letter General Garcia wrote Miles on June 2, in which he placed him in possession of the wigwag code for communicating with the navy:

"It would be of great assistance if you could have as large a force as possible in the vicinity of the harbor of Santiago and communicate any information by signals which Colonel Hernandez will explain to you, either to our navy or to our army, which will arrive before many days."

On June 6 General Miles received from Sampson a despatch stating that General Garcia regarded his suggestions as orders and that he would take immediate steps to do as the major general of the United States army directed. Garcia maintained communication with the navy up to the moment the signal service corps relieved him of the task, after Cervera's fleet had been destroyed.

If Garcia did not notify Sampson of the French consul's statement he clearly failed in his duty, but the fact remains that Sampson did receive notification of the proposed movement from an officer of his own fleet thirty hours before the battle, and that in spite of it he started for Siboney half an hour before the fighting began and was never within range of a hostile gun afterward.

ASKS FORSYTHE TO EXPLAIN.

The navy department has written a letter to Captain Forsythe asking for an explanation of the interview with him bearing on the approaching inquiry into Admiral Schley's conduct in the Spanish war published today.

A story is current to-night that Admiral Howison may be asked to be relieved from acting as a member of the court of inquiry, but the navy department declares it has heard nothing about it.

NEW CURE FOR LUPUS

The Alfred Nobel Prize Awarded Prof. Finsen

The Invention of a New Lamp Which is Very Effective—Wonderful Results That are Destined to Revolutionize Modern Curative Methods.

London, Aug. 28—The Alfred Nobel prize for the advancement of science has recently been awarded to Professor Finsen, of Copenhagen, for his origination of the method of treatment of lupus and other diseases by the use of light. Lupus is caused by tubercle bacilli, and is really skin consumption. Great ulcers appear, usually on the face. Professor Finsen places the patient under a strong electric light, which passes through a cup-shaped lens filled with blue water, and thence to the ulcers. The blue water separates the light into the violet chemical rays and the red heat rays, and lets only the violet rays pass through. These are death to the lupus microbes. The patient's eyes and the healthy parts of his skin are protected from the rays, which are very strong, by means of bandages. Smallpox and measles cases have also been successfully treated, but with the red rays, as the violet rays have an inflaming effect on such eruptions. The treatment in these cases consists in shutting the patient in a room with red glass windows and red curtains. The effect is to minimize the violence of the eruptions.

According to the Electrician, London, a department for treating lupus vulgaris by means of electric light has recently been opened at the Manchester and Salford Hospital for Skin Diseases. At present one arc lamp of about 30,000 nominal candle-power has been installed, but by an arrangement of collectors four patients can be treated at the same time. The collectors are made of Siberian rock crystal filled with distilled water. The portion of the skin being treated is compressed with two pieces of glass set in a metal frame, between which a constant stream of cold water is kept running. The pressure is to remove the blood from the skin, while the flow of water helps to further keep the skin cool. About a quarter of a square inch is treated for about 60 minutes; antiseptic ointment is then put on, and in a few days the skin is completely healed. Twenty patients can be treated each day.

According to the New York Sun, a despatch to the Daily Mail from Copenhagen says that Dr. Sophus Bang, manager of the laboratory belonging to Professor Finsen, inventor of the light cure for lupus, has constructed a special electric lamp, giving a feeble light, but which is extremely rich in chemical rays.

The despatch adds that Dr. Bang used metal instead of carbon poles. The bacteria-killing power of this lamp is ten times as great as that of an ordinary arc lamp, and a lupus patient requiring 75 minutes' treatment with the arc lamp will require only from three to five minutes' treatment with the new one, which costs only $15.

THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

The Enormous Military Resources of the Czars.

St. Petersburg, August 28—During the last twenty-five years military service has been rendered obligatory in Russia on all men from their twenty-first year. Out of about 870,000 young men reaching their majority every year some 287,000 are taken into the active army and the remainder are inscribed partly in the reserve and partly in the second reserve, or "zapas."

The term of service is in European Russia five years in the active army, thirteen years in the reserve, and five years in the "zapas," seven years in the active army and six years in the reserve in Asiatic dominions and three years in the active army and fifteen in the reserve in Caucasia.

In case of need the Minister of War has the right of keeping the men under the college for another six months. College men, doctors and teachers are exempted and certain privileges are granted on account of education. The lowest estimate which can be made of the peace strength of the Russian army puts the number of officers at 36,000, and of the rank and file at 860,000 men, the total number being 896,000. In war the total strength is approximately 63,000 officers and 3,440,000 men, a total of 3,500,000.

SURE OF A STRONG FRIEND.

The London "Times" Advice to South American Republics.

London, August 28—The Times, in an editorial on Central and South American politics, says it is not easy for European observers to follow the obscure revolutionary movements in the Central American Republics. The point at which they interest Europe is the point where they begin to interest the United States by virtue of the Monroe Doctrine.

The United States claims to exercise a sort of moral hegemony over the minor States of Central and South America. These may learn that they have nothing to fear from the moral hegemony which the United States must exercise over their destiny, and that they have everything to gain from the friendship and good will of the most powerful and most prosperous community of the New World.

SHARK AND WHALE FIGHT

Exciting Battle Witnessed by the Inhabitants of Peck's Island, Me.

Portland, Me., August 28—At a late hour one morning last week the residents of Long Island and of Evergreen Landing, Peck's Island, witnessed a marine battle such as was never before seen in this harbor. A thresher shark about fifteen feet long and a small whale got into an argument and swam in through Hussey sound. When the two big fish were between the two islands the contest began, and from the spectators' point of view the shark had the better of it. The shark would throw himself from six to eight feet out of the water, coming down with such force that the spray would be thrown twenty feet into the air. And then the back of the whale would appear and the water would be lashed to foam for a short time, after which the contestants would apparently take a rest, only to come back in a few minutes for another round.

The battle lasted for half an hour and drew a large crowd to the shore. Both fish later swam out to sea.

KRUGER'S LIEUT. NOW IN AMERICA

Said to Have Been Recognized by a Hamilton Man.

WHILE TRAVELLING INCOGNITO

Hamilton, Aug. 28.—Dr. Leyds is in America. True, he didn't send his card in the proper fashion, the people have not been lying awake nights thinking about triumphal arches in his honor, but nevertheless he is here. At least this is the opinion of Mr. H. H. Bicknell, the well known lawyer of this city.

Mr. Bicknell returned yesterday from a holiday trip at Rochester, Kingston, and other eastern points, and it was traveling from Kingston to Rochester that he saw the famous Boer diplomat, whose courage must have flagged in securing aid for his dying cause from European friends, and, as a last resource, made up his mind to visit the fire eating city that belongs to our neighboring republic, and secure aid from them.

The first intimation that Mr. Bicknell had of the presence of the distinguished person was on the evening before last at supper time, when a waiter came up and said in a low tone:

"See that man over there? That's Dr. Leyds, the Boer!"

The lawyer looked around and saw a solitary individual sitting at the table engrossed in thought, and with an air about him that intimated that he intended to mind his own business and wanted other people to do the same. The lawyer did not take much stock in the tale the waiter told him, as it was apparent that individual was not above accepting tips, so thought little about it until on deck again when the solitary man paced to and fro in deep thought, never speaking to a soul.

THE RUMOR SPREADS.

By this time the rumor had spread about the boat, and every one was eyeing the man curiously. He was plainly a foreigner, and after talking the matter over, several passengers were positive the man resembled the person who was pictured in the newspapers and magazines and being Kruger's private agent to Europe.

During the entire evening the man spoke to no one, and remained by himself up in the bow of the boat, retiring at an early hour to his cabin.

The Hamilton legalite went to his cabin and to bed, thinking about the strange looking man in the bow.

Another young man was in the double cabin with him and on awaking the next morning Mr. Bicknell remarked:

"Well, did you see Leyds?"

"Who is that?" asked the young man, who had not been on deck the previous night.

It has been reported several times that Kruger himself intended to visit America to secure aid, but it appears that he has sent his lieutenant, if the person seen by the Hamilton lawyer was indeed Leyds.

The fact that Leyds entered the country incog has its natural explanation in the fact that the better class of the people across the line would not participate or allow any public demonstration in receiving the representative of a conquered race, such as the Boers have come to be regarded by all right thinking people. It would be his desire and policy to create as little excitement in entering as possible, and gain friends and sympathy before public feeling was in any way aroused. It is surmised that he came to Montreal incog and from that port on to Kingston where he took boat for Rochester, there entering the United States.

"Why," was the answer "that strange looking man who was walking about late yesterday afternoon and evening. That's Leyds, Kruger's representative."

"By jove," said the young man, "I was trying to think who that man reminded me of. That's him sure enough. But he's got a lot of nerve coming into America through Canada."

The two men again went out and had an opportunity of again seeing the man before he disembarked at Rochester yesterday morning.

$28,000 IN DIAMONDS.

The waiter on the boat positively affirmed to the guests that he was sure the strange looking man carried $28,000 worth of diamonds, besides a large amount of money in gold and bills. He was plainly dressed, evidently with a view of diverting any suspicion as to his identity. Most of the people who were on the boat and in any way acquainted with the movements and features of the Boer statesman were firm in their belief that the strange looking man was indeed the same one who has acted as Kruger's right hand support in diplomatic relations since the latter was forced to flee from his country with his sacks of gold.

LOSES NEARLY A MILLION.

New York Customs Frauds Said to Involve That Amount.

New York, August 28—It was stated to-day by a man familiar with the facts in the Japanese silk scandal in the local customs office that the United States had been defrauded of between $900,000 and $1,000,000 in duties in this department since January 1 1900.

United States Collector Bidwell still refused to seize the consignment of Japanese silks imported by Rosenthal & Co. and reported last week by United States Appraiser Wakeman for seizure. Appraiser Wakeman makes formal charge of fraud against the importer. Collector Bidwell, who has the matter in charge, insists there is no fraud. If the seizure be not made Appraiser Wakeman's friends will demand a congressional investigation.

Deputy Appraiser Sherwood of the third division—the silk division—is the man whom Appraiser Wakeman holds responsible for all the alleged frauds. He has filed charges of malfeasance in office against Sherwood several times, but in vain. It is said he will file more charges in the present case as soon as he has made up the record. Examiner C. O. Brown will be included in the charges this time, it is said.

ANOTHER GREAT TRUST

Will be Capitalized for Thirty Millions

All Salt Wells in the United States and Canada to be Secured by New Corporation Trust Formed—Annual output Will be Immense.

New York, Aug. 28—The International Salt Company was incorporated at Trenton, N.J., last week with a nominal capital stock of $125,000. The actual amount of capital stock which its projectors expect to issue is estimated at $30,000,000.

Nothing indicates more clearly the growth of the trust idea for special industries or the vast capitalization which each of them will be forced to undertake to keep control of its trade and shut out competition than the formation of this new salt trust almost on the heels of the formation of an existing one, which two years ago was reputed to control 90 per cent. of the production of evaporated salt in the United States.

The older trust, whose legal name is the National Salt Company, was organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, on March 18, 1899. Now the National Salt Company, with its $12,000,000 of capital stock, is become only the nucleus of the bigger corporations. This company reported net earnings last year of $1,267,509.

It is estimated that the United States produces and uses every year about 12,000,000 barrels of evaporated salt and about 6,000,000 barrels of salt. Each barrel weighs 280 pounds. This equals 5,040,000,000 pounds, or 2,520,000 tons.

The principal sources of evaporated salt are the brine wells. New York holds a commanding place in this production with her great Warsaw district and the old Syracuse district, but there are important brine wells also in Michigan, Kansas, Ohio, Texas, and Louisiana.

There are salt mines also at Retsof, N. Y., while three are working in Louisiana, Kansas and Michigan, each of which has one.

At Salt Lake and on the Pacific coast salt is also made by evaporating the waters of the lake and ocean by exposing the waters in shallow pits as is done in Turk's Island.

The National Salt Company acquired originally the Cayuga plant at Ludlowville, the Ithaca plant at Ithaca, the Glen plant at Watkins, the Kerr plant at Watt Glen, the Bradley, Empire, Guinlock No 1, Guinlock No. 2, Hawley, and Warsaw plants at Warsaw, the Pearl plant at Pearl Creek and the Pavilion plant at Pavilion, all in this state. This gave it 90 per cent of the evaporated salt product of New York. Later it bought the United Salt Company of Ohio, with plants in Cleveland, Pomeroy and Akron and acquired by purchase or lease of 70 per cent. of the Michigan production, secured the Hutchinson-Kansas Salt Company of Kansas, and a controlling interest in the Lone Star Salt Company of Texas.

Its total production is estimated at 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 barrels of salt a year.

Since that time, however, there have sprung up many independent salt companies which it is desirable to control.

The International Salt Company is expected to absorb the National Salt Company, the Canadian Salt Company, the Retsof Mining Company, the Avery Salt Manufacturing Company, and the American Salt Company.

This would again give to the trust an almost absolute command of the production, not only in the United States but in Canada.

A STAANGE PROCEEDING.

A Dead Body Transferred From one Coffin To Another.

London, Aug. 29.—A curious story comes from Vienna. The son of a rich Jewish banker named Fleisher recently died and his body was brought with great ceremony to the synagogue for a most ornate funeral. Just before the coffin was carried out to be taken to the cemetery, the father, despite it is against the sacred rites, had it opened that he might take one more look at his son. To his horror he discovered that it was not his son at all, but a stranger. An investigation showed that through the help of some of the officials at the morgue, a poor Jewish family who had lost a son at the same time had succeeded in substituting theirs for that of the rich man "in order that their son might have a fine funeral." Late that evening after much searching the right body was found. It had been buried as a pauper.

CATCH SUPPOSED MURDERER

W. H. Ward Charged With Triple Crime Near Deadwood, S. D. Caught.

Deadwood, S.D., August 28 — W. H. Ward, the alleged Pluma murderer, was captured Saturday near Devil's tower, fifty miles north-west of this city. Sheriff Dolen got word that Ward was in that vicinity Friday and a telephone message late last night told the deputy sheriff here that the sheriff was returning to Deadwood with his man. Ward was perfectly willing to come without requisition papers, having been captured across the line in Wyoming. He refuses to say a word about anything pertaining to the killing of the Shepherd brothers. While feeling is very high in the matter, there will be no violence shown the man. He will have to stand trial for the murder of three men. Sheriff Dolen is bringing him overland in a buggy.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 29 1901

MR. McCLELLAN AND THE "REVIEW."

Our Hunter street evening echo has evidently determined to upset the government dam transfer if at all possible. It pretends that it has undertaken the task on high public grounds, and in behalf of labor and the workingman. It is true that it does not make this virtuous and disinterested claim in so many words, but it is doing it by attacking Mr. McClellan, and that too concerning his "rectitude of purpose." Our contemporary has amongst its owners, we believe, one or more owners of the Auburn water power likewise. It has joined the Burleigh Falls promoter, Mr. Culverwell, C.E., in a concerted attempt to keep up the price of horse-power. It alleges that the "nigger in the fence" is the sale, at a comparatively low price, to a syndicate, of the water-power at the government dam. If we were all noodles this charge of wrong-doing might pass as a serious thing, but when we are further informed that the syndicate offer water-power to the public at a greatly reduced rate, we begin to see where the shoe pinches Then again, in order not to overdo its part, our contemporary, at the tail end of its long and abusive article, makes the necessary admission that the syndicate has agreed to present to the town free of all charge 400 horse-power, or about one-fourth of the whole thing, taking it the year round. With a snort of virtuous indignation it practically exclaims: "We hope that the town may get it!" as if the law of the land under which the contract and sale is made were merely a cover for Liberal wickedness. It is now plain to the most casual observer why our contemporary and Friend of the Workingmen objects it would prefer that the whole river should lie idle and not furnish an hour's work than that the power of Auburn should go down in price as an asset of the Auburn Company. We do not accuse the Auburn Company as a whole of such meanness, but we do say that the Review's attack on Mr. McClellan, who is helping in the arousing of a spirit of industry, is absolutely wicked in its origin and carrying out. Is there one word in favor of cheaper power in the Review's article? Certainly not. That was not the reason for writing it. It demands instead a higher price for what it calls the people's property, when "the people's property" has been running to waste for the last Heaven knows how long just because the monopolist owners had tied down the safety-valve of competition. But as Hon. Mr. Stratton used to say in the course of his classical utterances on the hustings when exemplifying the beauties of the Ontario School system "this pig won't grunt." Nor will it in this case. The workingmen know a thing or two, and will know how to judge between the man who is helping to furnish work and the newspaper which wishes to keep up the price of power. If any plainer illustration of the true significance of the affair were needed, it can be found in the frantic exertions of the handsome and plausible promoter of the Burleigh Falls Power Co., who foresees that the alleged dividends of his concern are now truly in the dim and distant future of uncertainty. When another industrial syndicate, desirous of developing power for one of its own industrial creations, such as the Cordage factory, finds the need of cheaper power for the success of its legitimate plans, then the Burleigh Falls power will be developed no matter how low the price of its horse-power—in fact the lower the better in such a case for the best interests of employers and employed. But if it is merely a case of selling shares at a profit the Burleigh Falls power, (as the government dam power did) will remain idle till the magnates and monopolists find time to look into it as a sufficiently profitable investment.

The government dam would have remained a mere water-carrier to the end of time if it had not been that the specific object of its new owners was to provide power, and as cheaply as possible, for a great industry. This is the difference between capital and labor, and a fair illustration of the difference between the statements of the Review and the facts of the case.

FRANCE'S FINANCES

The debt of France is now $60,000,000,000, and this stupendous sum will continue to augment under prevailing conditions until the middle of the century, when all the railways now operated privately will revert to the state.

That the growing debt has never troubled the French people is said to be owing to the constant accumulation of private wealth, but now certain legislators have been aroused to the fact that half a century is a long time to wait and that the debt will soon grow out of all proportions to be expected returns beginning in 1950. Besides the illusive customs taxation is believed to be at fault in principle and mode of administration, while the tariff cripples foreign business and eats into the very core of national wealth, so that unless these barriers be raised the state apart from the people, will grow poorer and poorer.

The sugar bounties having occasioned a deficit of 14,000,000 francs the minister of finance, M. Caillaux, has issued a decree reducing them by 55 per cent with a view of covering the deficit.

The causes of the poverty of the state are obvious to everyone who has given the matter any consideration. Many of the forms of taxation have been in operation for more than a century, while the difference between their returns on paper and the actual revenue has constantly widened. For the six months ended June 30 the revenue was nearly $13,000,000 under what it was for the same period last year, and about $9,000,000 below the estimate.

THE SITUATION IN CHINA

Pekin, Aug. 28.—The State Department has received from H. G. Squiers, Secretary of the United States Legation in Pekin, copies of the translations of three edicts of the Dowager Empress of China, touching upon the selection of competent men for official positions under the Government and demanding the correction of certain abuses. These edicts have been published in the official gazette. The most important of the edict says.

"The most important principle of government is the selection of men. The present time is one of difficulty and danger. We should be the more willing, therefore, to break through all traditions in seeking for talent to be employed in the service of the Government. We ought to respectfully observe the statute to establish examinations for the selection of the learned and talented by opening an examination in political economy, which should be put in operation at the forthcoming metropolitan examination.

"It cannot be possible that in all this great empire there are no talented men. If there be those of earnest purpose and pure loyalty, of broad mold and extensive learning, versed in foreign and domestic affairs, let the presidents and vice presidents of the boards, the Viceroys and Governors, and provincial directors of education prepare a statement for their qualification and recommend them, and let the Board of Reforms devise a system of examinations and submit the same for the imperial approval.

"The court is eager for all sorts of suggestions to promote the prosperity of the Empire. Mother and son are one in the purpose to correct the mistakes of the past, and long to obtain talent to assist in the Government. Your Ministers ought to carefully seek out men of such ability, and each one introduce those known to himself, and thus together aid in relieving the present difficulties that the State may be strengthened and that men of ability may rise up from the midst of the people, and be seen again in the present time to flourish before your eyes. This is what the court prayerfully seeks.

"Let this edict be published abroad for the information of all."

The edict in relation to the abuses in the offices of the Six Boards says:

"Many abuses have gradually grown up in all the offices of the Six Boards, in the practice of which rapacious clerks have become very crafty. We have already frequently issued edicts to correct these abuses, and recently, on account of the loss of many of the records of the boards, consequent upon the military occupation of Pekin, we again ordered a thorough cleaning out and a destruction of the whole. Formerly there was a large number of recorded cases of ambiguous character which could be used as precedents on either side of a disputed question, and the clerks seized the opportunity to use them to forward or to oppose any interest at their pleasure. It is more important that energetic measures be taken to get rid of these accumulated abuses. But, lest there may be among these records some important investigation or decision upon points not covered by ancient law, or recently gathered precedents, the presidents and vice presidents of the various boards ought to appoint secretaries to carefully examine them in detail and prepare a classified list, which shall be submitted to the Board of Reforms for their inspection. Those that ought to be retained should be collected together for a supplementary code of rules, that there may be uniform procedure and all ambiguity be removed."

The third edict treats of the imperial clansmen and states:

"From the time our dynasty ascended the throne to the present our imperial clansmen have shown great talents surpassing those of ancient times. How ought all members of the clan to carefully observe the family regulations in order to shed lustre on the genealogical records!

"Now, however, the customs have become light and trifling, and those who have already taken office are all greatly affected by these habits, and do not consider how to improve themselves. Let the Chief of the Imperial Clan Court transmit this edict to all imperial clansmen, commanding them to exert themselves to abandon these old faults and vie with one another to improve themselves, that they may make an earnest effort to make themselves useful. These clansmen, who go about idle, not attending to their duties, day by day pursuing worthless aims, even to the extent of becoming bandits and deluded followers of evil societies, bent on gratifying their evil desires, are certainly a disgrace to the clan, and deserving of all contempt. Further, let the said Chief of the Imperial Clan Court increase the severity of the restrictions, and, as occasion may require, administer punishment Should any show such pleasure in violence and depravity as to become bandits and put faith in evil teachings, let them be severely punished without leniency."

THE MINES STOP OPERATIONS

Johannesburg, Aug 27.—Recent development lead to the hope that the period of banishment of loyalists from their homes to concentration camps is now at an end. Railway facilities for the transportation of civilians are increasing daily, and General Kitchener has granted 300 permits, to be issued to those refugees in greatest distress. By this means it is hoped the threatened terrible distress on the coast will be alleviated.

Although the Imperial Government is spending hundreds of thousands of pounds annually to help the Boer refugees, about £5,000 only has been devoted, through the Imperial Relief Fund, to helping destitute loyalists.

Seven mines, including the famous Bonanza, are now in operation, running altogether about 365 stamps. Those mines employ about 350 white men and more than 5,000 natives. The men on each hundred stamps require 125 truck loads of supplies a month, including foodstuffs. Other mines are being pumped out, and siding are being built from the railway to the mines

No difficulty is anticipated in obtaining a sufficient number of natives for the gradual but accelerated resumption of work. The greatest necessity is rolling stock. This at present is wholly insufficient on all the railways, and many of the trucks now in use are of obsolete types. It is necessary that several thousand modern trucks and heavy engines be obtained without delay.

Swallowing

A sword is a trick not conducive to health or longevity. But it is not more injurious than the hasty swallowing of half masticated food washed down by gulps of ice water in summer or cups of hot coffee in winter. Hasty eating is the foe of health. Sooner or later it must result in indigestion or some other form of stomach disease.

Mrs. Mary E. Lewis, of Tanner, Gilmer Co., W. Va., writes: "I will always recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets' for they cured me when doctors and other medicines failed. For fifteen years I suffered untold misery. When I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicines, I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I could not lie down to sleep, and everything I ate would almost cramp me to death. Was very nervous and could hardly walk across the room. I only weighed ninety pounds when I commenced taking these medicines six years ago; I now weigh one hundred and forty pounds, and am having better health than ever before. My friends all say they can hardly believe that I am the same person; after being sick so long, I have changed to be robust and rosy cheeked. I have taken fifteen bottles of the 'Discovery' fifteen of the 'Prescription' and fifteen of the 'Pellets.'"

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only, or if cloth binding is desired send stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A BRAVE MAN.

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

That an officer of the law could be wholly an instrument of execution was exemplified by Sheriff Turner. During twenty years of rounding up criminals of all sorts he had never once allowed personal feelings to interfere with duty. With him an order was not to be tampered with, even in the mode of executing and even if he was susceptible of such inofficial weaknesses as sympathy of indecision they never appeared on the surface. Moreover, he was a keen reader of faces and had a memory that was far-reaching and relentless.

So it came about that the man who had Sheriff Turner on his trail had cause to fear, and if there were opportunity for doubling or twisting among the labyrinth of city buildings or fastnesses o fdeep forests he took advantage of it to the uttermost and then counted himself a lucky man if he escaped.

The sheriff was in a river town working up an important case when the levee gave way and allowed the overcrowded waters of the Mississippi to leap forth in a wild resistless flood. It did not matter that he was almost upon his quarry or that a few minutes would have ended a long three months' chase. The flood was not a respecter of law or of shrewdness and determination, and he was forced back and the black waters rushed in between him and bore away his success as easily as they had torn the mighty levee from its foundations and scattered it over the fertile fields of the sugar planthtions.

But more disastrous than flooded fields or thwarted law were the objects which the mad flood bore upon its surface or drew down from, time to time into its turbulent depths. The fragments of a negro cabin, with perhaps half a dozen frightened faces peering from its unsubmerged angles, would whirl and eddy with the conflicting current, until some obstructing rock or tree would give it a violent jar, when one or all of the faces would disappear. Floating bits of wreckage of all kinds had their unwilling passengers—cats with big eyes and humped backs, domestic fowls craning their necks to keep above the swaying water, and even occasional farm animals, who frantic struggles had gained them this temporary point of vantage. Sometimes a violent upheaval of the water would throw an object toward the surface which would cause one to turn away with a shudder—even the tossing bit of roof or whirling timber could offer no succor to that inanimate hand-clinched thing now.

Sheriff Turner saw one o fthese objects for a brief second as it was borne past him on the flood and the sight drove away all consciousness of self. He was a strong man in other ways than his profession, and what was transpiring before his eyes made him hurl himself far out into the mad rush of waters and wreckage.

As he struggled back again toward land with his prize from the flood he was conscious of another man battling near him on the same errand. Several times during the afternoon he noticed him taking women and children from rafts and tossing debris, plunging into seething whirlpools after exhausted unfortunates who had been torn from their hold and clambering up banks or upon secure masses of wreckage to leave his burdens in places of safety, staggering with weariness, but stron enough to plunge in again to the rescue of someone weaker than himself. Sheriff Turner only noticed him as thei rwork brought them together. He was too busy himself for watching. But as the afternoon wore away, disclosing the man again and again, always risking his life, always steady, mechanical, self-controlled, he began to wonder and admire, as one brave man will wonder at and admire another.

And with this admiration there presently began to mingle a curious sense of recognition. He only caught momentary glimses of the strong, bearded face as the man rose from the water with someone he had rescued or plunged back again to continue his work, but these glimpses were enough. He never forgot a face and this man had crossed his memory somewhere. He could not remember how or when or whether for good or bad, but it did not matter. It would all come to him when he found leisure to turn his mind back upon the past.

And it did. That night as he was lying on a cot in a small building on the very edge of the flood he sprang suddenly to his feet with a low exclamation of relief. He had lain down exhausted, but not to sleep. Now he was strong, with eyes flashing, but steely and with lips shut and stern. He was no longer the heroic man whose life was a free offering for others, but a Nemesis of the law, mechanical, implacable, just. It had come to him, as he had believed it would, and though the strong, bearded face had crossed his memory half a decade before, and then only as one incident of a busy day, the scene returned to him now, as clear-cut and vivid as though he had just come from the court room. There was the white-haired judge upon the bench, and the arguing lawyers, and the prisoner calm, collected, pleading guilty in a voice as clear and triumphant as though acknowledging a deed of duty or valor. The beard had been blac kand glossy then and the figure slighter, but the man was the same, he was as sure of it as he was that the sun would rise in the east and set in the west. And here he was in the same building, sleeping off the exhaustion of the days battling with the flood. It was strange.

Sheriff Turner was a man of action. Ten years before he had had a warrant for this man's arrest; now he would take him officially as an escaped prisoner.

Leaving his room he walked three doors down the hall and then rapped sharply. A voice called, "Come in."

A dim light was burning, and as he crossed the room to the bedside Sheriff Turner looked at the man sharply. Yes, he had not been mistaken. A strong face like that was not often seen, and certainly was not to be forgotten.

"YYou are Clifford Waite," he said.

The man started.

"Of Orange County New York," the sheriff went on quietly. "I Arrest you for the murder of Pete Bolly eleven years ago."

"Yes, I am Clifford Waite, of Orange county, New York," he answered raising himself to a sitting posture, "and I executed the miscreant Pete Bolly, whom a bribed jury turned loose upon the community eleven years ago. And, moreover," looking the sheriff calmly in the face, "I consider it was agood gift tot he state. People tell me I have done good work—I was told that yesterday, but none of it has been of such real benefit as ridding the country of such a villian as Pete Bolly. The law itself would have done it long before had it not been for his money. You know that. But, of course," breaking off suddenly," that does not affect my case."

"No, it does not affect you rcase," coldly. "You will please get ready as quickly as possible. A train leaves here at midnight. I do not wish to make a disturbance."

"I understand," dryly. "You fear I have so many friends here it might be difficult to take me away. I think you are right. However, I will go quietly. Now I am discovered it could only be a question of a few weeks at most. I have often had a desire to go backand try to clear myself at home. If it were not for my wife——"

"Your wife," with some surprise.

"Yes, I came here without a dollar and one of the merchants gave me a position as bookkeeper without even asking for references. Later I bought him out and puts up a brick block. Five years ago I married his daughter. It will be hard for her," a slight break coming into his voice in spite of his self-control. "She believes in me thoroughly and—and——" He turned abruptly, and Sheriff Turner, remembering the scenes of the turbulent flood, stretched out his hand under a sudden impulse, then remembered his office and was himself again.

"Come, we have not time to spare," he said harshly. "You must hurry."

As they passed down the corridor there came a sudden dull roar which caused them to exchange hurried glances. Then followed a hoarse cry from somewhere outside.

"The levee is down at Viteau! Fly! Fly fo ryour lives! The flood is on us again!"

"It is a pity you recognized me." the man said regretfully. "You and I could do more here."

"Yes, we are needed here," the sheriff assented. He looked at his companion and a flush of conscious shame mantled his face. Through all his years of office he could not remember such irresolution as had been his during the last half hour. Then he threw out his hands with a sudden gesture, as though flinging consequences to the wind.

"Will you give me your word to come back when the flood subsides?" he demanded.

"Yes, if I am alive."

"Then we will go and do what we can. If we get through it all right we will meet here and go on to Orange counuty together. Now come."

The work was more dangerous than they had experienced during th eday, fo rno wit was too dark to see the black masses of wreckage until it was too late to avoid them. And the flood lasted longer. All through the night they battled with the currents and all through the next day and when at last the water began to subside it left Sheriff Turner bruised and helpless upon the bank and beside him was the man he had recognized, his strong bearded face now upturned to the sky, white and inanimate.

Presently came the sound of carriage wheels and a woman hurried forward, clasping and unclasping her hands and sobbing to herself.

"He was so good to me," she moaned, as she flung herself on her knees beside the silent form, "so good to me and to everybody." Then she raised her head and a clear light came into her eyes. "He is dead," she said softly, "but it has been good for me to have known him, good to have been his wife."

"And it has been good for me to have known him," said a voice near her "He was a brave man."

She turned quickly and then came forward and held out her hand.

"Yes, he was a brave man," she said "and you were with him. You are a brave man too. I am glad to meet you."

He took her hand almost reluctantly, an das he gazed into her eyes and saw the great sorrow there he felt thankful that it was the flood that was responsible.

WITH THE STRONG HAND

When 23 years old Mary Ellerby was sure that she would never marry. Men were well enough to talk to, to ride or row or golf or sing with, but the idea of surrendering herself to one of them to be held in marital thrall for a lifetime filled her, when she thought of it, with a shudder of loathing. She thought of it just as seldom as was possible to her, which is to say that she thought of it only when some one of her many admirers forced it upon her attention. Her manner of refusing them was characteristic of her. She did it gently, smoothly, irrevocably with as much regard for their feelings as was consonant with making her dissent unmistakable.

"No," she would say finally, when some desperate wooer had returned for the fifth time to the charge, "no; I do not love you well enough to give myself to you. I can never love you that well. Let this be the last word ou this subject between us. We will talk of something else, if you please."

Miss Ellerby was handsome, healthy, and well to do. No young woman held a better place in Stayborough society. She was popular with every male acquaintance except those with whom she had declined to mate, and the girls liked her because they understood that she would never willingly poach on any manor of theirs. Her mind was set firmly on celibacy, and she was at no pains to conceal the fact.

Richard Haven, better known as "Dick," knew this when he began his pursuit. He was a big, square-jawed, lawyer, successful in most of his cases, and he made up his mind to win her if it were humanly—man-humanly—possible. His friends predicted defeat; his enemies, of whom there were many, laughed at him. The women wished him godspeed, but predoomed him to failure. He could not say, after six mouths of assiduous courtship, that he had made any decided progress. The girl was affable, apparently glad to see him when he came, certainly no whit disturbed when he went away, gentle-mannered, entertaining and

"I feel," he said to himself, "a good deal like the latin chap who was always rolling a heavy stone up a hill and never getting it to the top. However, faint heart never won, etc. and here's for another go at the citadel."

Miss Ellerby was talking to her very dearest friend, Miss Norman, when she said tentatively:

"You know my dear, that I shall never marry."

The other merely looked as one who has heard it before and was noncommittal.

"I shall not marry for reasons well known to you, Unfortunately one cannot put these reasons as an advertisement into the morning paper, though I would like to. I have been bothered a good deal by the men and shall likely be bothered more, because they are stubborn creatures. Many of them I care nothing about, because they soon get over a disappointment, but others of them feel more deeply, and I hate to give pain. There is one in my mind now, who will be badly hurt, but I cannot help it."

Miss Norman looked at her gravely and said:

"Dick Haven, I presume."

"Yes."

"Oh, well, I am satisfied he will make a quick recovery. He is big enough and strong enough, you know. You must not take all of his passion for genuine. He used to be noted as an ameteur actor, and much of it is simulated. He is too level-headed to put his all upon any cast."

Miss Ellerby did not like the intimation that her pursuer was half sincere, but she only remarked in a brisk manner:

"Well, I can't break the rule of a lifetime for him," and went her way, which was the way of an automobile party for the afternoon.

About this time Dick Haven was striding up and down the rooms of his friend, Arthur Pym Jackson, a young minister of the Protestant Episcopal church, who ran a good deal to boxing gloves, foils French novels hid under sofa cushions, and bull terriers.

Haven's coat was off, for the men had been sparring, and his hair was rumpled as he swung one arm up and down savagely and said:

"I'ev got to have her Pym; I tell you I've just got to have her. I'm standing with one foot over the insanity line right now, and I don't want to drag the other after it."

"Well,' said the divine, between puffs of cigar smoke, "if you got to have her, why don't you take her?"

"Do what?"

"Take her!"

"Take her?"

"Yes, take her."

"Her, Her?"

"Yes, her."

"Pym," said Haven staring at him "you're a good fellow, You spar well; you are a crackerjack with the cleek; I don't know anybody whom I would rather row with, sail with or tramp across country with, but you've got one drawback as a companion and a minister; you ought ot have some sense."

"Not at all; oot at all," was the placid response. "You're the one who lacks gray matter. Listen!"

He sat upright and suffered his cigar to lie idle in his fingers.

"You want to marry Miss Ellerby; she doesn't want to marry, or thinks she doesn't. Bear in mind that I know a good deal about her; more, certainly, that she knows about herself. She plays the oran at my church. I've talked to her often and watched her oftener. She is of the musical temperament. Unknown to herself, deep in her nature are springs of sentiment that have not reached the surfae. They want only some on eto break the crust over them. I tell you that no woman of the musical temperament in all of its strength is safe from any man of decent appearance who has made love to her and wants her badly enough to asseti his rights. The musical woman needs the male to round out and perfect her understanding of music. Ask Miss Ellerby to marry you, and you will get a plain 'No' for an answer. Tell her that you are going to marry her and refuse to listen to a negative and she is yours. There never was a simpler thing—a thing more absurdly simple. I'm sorry that I told you of it, because you never would have seen it for yourself; you will be a married man in less than six months and I would a good deal rather have you a bachelor."

Haven's square jaw was set when he left his friends apartments.

"He told the truth,' he muttered. "It is absurdly simple and if it fails I shall be no worse off. She can only say 'No' after all, and the form inwhich she says it matters little."

He found Miss Ellerby at home that evening an din his left hand waistcoat pocket was a ring set with a single diamond. He walked sturdily to her side as she rose to greet him andtook her left hand.

"You know that I love you," he said gently, "and as we are to be married I have brought your engagement ring."

In another second the ring was on her finger. Then he took both of her hands. She looked at him, then at the ring, in a dazed fashion. He slipped an arm about her waist, drew her to him and held her firmly. Laying his cheek against hers, he whispered:

"It is better so, is it not, sweetheart?"

Miss Ellerby struggled faintly in silence. A hundred emotions went through her. They were so swift that she could not classify them. Shame, anger, a temptation to laugh, half a desire to cry were among them.

She tried to hold her head erect, but some magnetism seemed to draw it downward toward the man's shoulder. Again she struggled and the head sank lower. Perhaps her strongest sensation was astonishment at herself—her heart beat so and overmastering lassitude was in every vein and her head, despite her will, sank lower and lower. It rested finally. Then Haven took her chin in a broad palm, tilted it up and kissed her full on thelips.

For verification of the account of the foregoing incidents the curious may inquire of any member of the Stayborough Pallas club, the Stayborough Auto club, the Stayborough Golf club or of Rev. Arthur Pym Jackson, D.D.

THE AFRICAN RAILROAD.

London, August 27—The progress of the railway which will one day stretch from end to end of the Dark Continent is unresting, if unhasting. It is learned from Rhodesia that in the course of an interview at Bulawayo Mr. Townsend, the railway engineer recently returned from the Zambesi, is reported to have stated that the railway to the north will not stop at the Victoria Falls, but will go straight on to the rich copper mines, 800 miles beyond that point. He estimates that the coal traffic will amount to from 200,000 to 300,000 tons per annum, which would make the railway pay. The Falls would be reached in 11 months if material were obtainable, but he expects construction will take two years. Mr. Townsend further stated that there is an enormous source of power in the falls, sufficient to run trains for hundreds of miles by electricity and to supply power for coal mines and other works. All this looks hopeful.

WIRELESS SYSTEM ACROSS ATLANTIC

New York, Aug. 28.—America still leads the world in electrical invention. Machinery for Tesla's marvelous system, perfected after years of work, is just finished by the Westinghouse Company. The earth—not the air—is his medium. Wireless messages will be cheaper and quicker than cable, and absolutely secret. Even in war time one army cannot capture the dispatches of another by "tapping" the earth. Other wireless systems employ his inventions, but cannot transmit over more than 200 miles without relay. "They do not know" says Tesla's friend, "what his apparatus is capable of doing."

Wireless telegraph is only an incident in Inventor Tesla's incredible scheme for transmission of electrical energy. From his station on Long Island Sound he will send force in enormous volume underneath the sea to foreign lands. Sites have been chosen—in France, Germany and Portugal—for European receiving stations. With these as nucleus, his system will be extended till at oncircules the globe.

The great American inventor received word yesterday that the complicated apparatus he has devised for the transmission of electrical energy to all quarters of the globe is completed. Incidentally these instruments are available for the sending of telegraphic messages without the aid of wires, but this is only one item in the incredible labor which the Servian has planned his mysterious mechanisms to perform.

The preliminary tests of Tesla's system of long distance transmission will be in the sending of messages across the Atlantic. This will not be in the nature of experimentation, however, for Tesla overcame the difficulties attendant on wireless telegraph six years ago, and passed on from them to the perfection of a greater work, the sending of electrical energy across seas and continents.

His purpose, which he now looks upon as accomplished in all save actual operation, is to harness the globe with a complete chain of electrical force, dirigible to the finest imaginable degree, to be applied or withdrawn or modified at the will of one man.

It was announced at the Tesla laboratory yesterday that three stations had been arranged for on the other side of the Atlantic—one in Portugal, one in France and one in Germany. By the end of September it is expected that all the mechanism requisite to the transatlantic service will be in position, and the marvels upon which Tesla has been working will become fact, and the world, which has waited on his work, will see the first fruits of it. The apparatus which will be employed in the wireless telegraphy, and which, therefore, will be the first placed in position, is similar to that with which Tesla has for some time past been carrying on operations, save that the new plant will be much larger and more powerful than the old. Tesla is averse to talking for print about his inventions of the inventions of others. He declined yesterday to do so.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN THE COMING YEAR

London, Aug. 28.—Although over four months yet remain of the year 1901, Old Moore has already prepared his wonderful predictions for 1902, and they are now being sold in the familiar form of the penny almanack.

The war in South Africa will apparently end next January; at any rate, this seems to be the hidden meaning of the prophetic phrase, "We shall hear from South Africa tidings of really good omen." But it will be a short-lived peace. In July "we shall learn of a sudden rising in South Africa. Some of the smouldering emblems of revolt will be fanned into flame, and for a time things will look serious for the British. In the end the Union Jack will float again in peace."

Reverting to January, it is prophesied that "a King's messenger will be seen on his road from Windsor to London, involving a hasty meeting of the Cabinet, and for a time at least all the world will be in a state of expectation and suspense."

A terrible shipwreck, violent disturbances in Dublin, a marriage of great national importance, are among the events that will happen in February.

In March there will be a second Rougemont in the country—" mysterious traveller from the East, with tales of the most extraordinary character. He is nothing more than a plausible fraud." A vast improvement in an instrument of war is predicted for April, and in May the disturbers of the Church will again be active. In the same month will occur the death of "a venerable and respected nobleman, who for more years than the usual span of life has devoted himself to his Queen, his King and his country."

There will be great times from motor cars in July, and startling news from China August. General lawlessness will be rampant in Paris during September, and a big fire will break out in Scotland in October.

For November two sad events are prophised—"a beloved life will be in danger," and "a collision between two large vessels in the Channel will happen, with great loss of life."

DRIVES OUT BRITISH COAL.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 27.—The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad has invaded the foreign coal market and is now making preparations to cut even deeper into the business of the English concerns which heretofore have had a monopoly of the coal trade in France, Austria and other European countries. Great Britain is alarmed at absorption of the Marseilles trade by America, and these fears are well grounded. Since Jan. 1 the Chesapeake and Ohio has exported through Newport News to Marseilles 63,915 tons of coal, to Austria 44,747 tons, to twenty-three leading seaports in other countries, nearly 150,000 tons. These figures do not include the large quantities of bunker coal taken by foreign-bound steamers. A new line of American ships will be established between this port and Marseilles to handle coal only.

—Next Monday will be Labor Day, and the steamers City of Peterborough and Water Lily have been engaged to run an excursion to Jubilee Point.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1896, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper, to any sufferer, on receipt of two stamps.

DEATH OF MRS. SEYMOUR.

Passed Away at the Home of Her Son-in-law Mr. H. M. Moore.

Mrs. Henry Seymour, of Bobcaygeon, died last evening at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. H. M. Moore, 77 Homewood avenue. She had been ill for a long time and came to Peterborough for treatment, but the physicians were unable to help her. The deceased was 65 years of age and was highly respected. She leaves besides her husband a family of sons and daughters consisting of Mrs. Moore and Mrs. A. F. Lane of Peterborough, Mrs. Cashore of Fenlon Falls, Mrs. Wilson of Lindsay, Miss Seymour and Messrs. James and Harry Seymour at home.

The funeral will take place on Friday at Bobcaygeon.

A Treat in Store.

It is part of a manager's duty to herald his as the greatest attraction in the world, and it must be a gratification when the press and public save him that trouble by doing the proclaiming for him. Such is the case with Roland Reed's comedy, "Humbug," for its management spoke so truly of its merits that since its first production before the public they have had less and less to say, and the public more and more in laudation. "Humbug," will pay a visit to Peterborough on Sept. 6th, and if we are to believe half of the good things said of it it will amply repay all who go to see it.

The Norwood-Apsley Railway.

The proposed railway between Apsley and Norwood, to which Government subsidies were granted by the Dominion Parliament and the Ontario Legislature, is not making progress.

It was thought that the C.P.R. would undertake the work of building the line this year, but this is not to be. The Times has been advised that the big company are not ready at present to go ahead.

In the meantime the settlers in the north are becoming impatient. They are talking of sending another deputation to Montreal to wait on the C.P.R. officials, with a view to having a commencement made this year.

All Over a Cat

A lady who resides in the suburbs, and who has a penchant for cats, recently missed one of her favorites from a cage, which stood at her side door. It appears that a clerk on one of our local delivery wagons has been accused of abducting the animal. He has been notified to return it or there will be wigs on the green. The young man referred to protests that he would not take the animal as a gift, and declares that he only stopped to look at the bunch of cats as he entered to deliver groceries. It will, therefore, prove to be somewhat of an up-Hill job to fasten the blame on him. The cat referred to is said to be Brown in color, and will therefore be easily recognized.

PETERBORO CHEESE BOARD

Some Expressions of Opinion at Lindsay About Our Board.

Referring to the discussion at the last meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board in regard to the complaints against buyers not taking cheese at the price bid on the Board, Mr. Wm. Flavelle, speaking at the Victoria Cheese Board meeting at Lindsay on Monday, said he had no hesitation in saying that many of the repudiations were dishonest and without proper justification. He was glad to be able to say that such practices had not obtained a foothold on the Lindsay Board, but there was one suspicious case where the make of three factories purchased at a high price had been juggled with and refused at the price bid. He did not believe there had been sound justification for the buyer's action. On the Peterborough Board, in case of a dispute, the Board referee was called on, and if he declared the rejection unfair it saved the maker and placed the loss on th epatrons. The principle that the buyers were at liberty to reject cheese was a vicious one, and he hoped it would never be recognized on the Lindsay Board. More than that—he believed the Board should anticipate the possibility of such action being attempted, and he would advise that any buyer so offending be refused the Board privileges. Peterborough should have taken that stand. He regretted that Mr. Bailey, who was principally concerned, was not present to offer an explanation.

Mr. Clancy, salesman for Pine Grove one of the factories refused by Mr. Bailey at last sale, read a letter from a Scotch commission house to whom he had consigned the cheese refused by Mr. Bailey as being damaged. The firm stated that they liked the cheese very much, allowed a good price for it, and asked that further shipments be made at intervals.

Mr. Fitzgerald—"Peterborough prices have ruled too high all season. I haven't bough much on the Board, but have done a good business on the side in cheese refused by other buyers or withheld by factories. I have made up my mind not to go beyond my limit at any sale."

Mr. Whitton admitted that Mr. Flavelle was justified in his criticism of the practices followed on the Peterborough Board; harm was being done, and unless a change took place the confidence of the salesmen would be shaken.

Hay Fever, Germs Are Now Floating About

They are in the air everywhere, too minute to see, but just waiting for a chance to get into your lungs. Then they will play havoc with your breathing apparatus, and you'll wonder what to do. The doctor will say you had better inhale Catarrhozone, for it kills Hay Fever germs and moreover is dead certain to reach them. Catarrhozone cures every time, and absolutely prevents the disease from returning. You inhale Catarrhozone with the air breathed; it goes directly to the source of the trouble and cures it by removing the cause. At druggists, or sent with guarantee of cure, to any address for $1.00 forwarded to Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

HOME FROM THE OLD LAND

Return of Mr. Adam Stocker From a Visit to Europe.

Mr. Walter Stocker has reached home after nine weeks in the old country. It was his first visit there since he left fourteen years ago. He was accompanied by his little daughter.

A visit to Glasgow was, of course not to be overlooked, and Mr. Stocker speaks in the highest terms of the Exposition held there. He met in that city an old Peterborough friend in the person of Mr. J. B. Oke, who, he said, uses all Canadians brown. In fact, Mr. Stocker said he saw 50 per cent more than he would have had he not met Mr. Oke, the pleasure of whose company made the visit one of great enjoyment and profit. The Canadian exhibit was of special interest to Mr. Stocker. He says it was remarked upon most complimentary. It was with some pride that he saw his Canadian town represented by the Wm. English and the Peterborough Canoe companies.

Mr. Stocker remarks a peculiarity of the Glasgow Exhibition is that all fakirs, side shows and the like, with their obnoxious obtrusion upon the pockets and feelings of those attending, are conspicuous by their absence. Everything is clean, orderly, genuine, inviting, and thoroughly enjoyable.

A novel way of opening a package of food is shown on the Grape-Nuts package, where a line indicates that a slit should be made with a knife, and the package squeezed, which makes it gap enough to pour out what is needed for a meal, then the package automatically closes, preserving the contents from the moisture of the air.

As a rule, Grape-Nuts packages are not kept on hand very long in any family, but it is well to know how to keep the contents of the package in prime condition. Grape-Nuts Food is ready cooked, very crisp, and can be served immediately with a little good cream or milk. This feature is of great advantage to those who appreciate ease and convenience in preparing breakfast.

LAKE AND RIVER NEWS.

What is Going on in Steamboat Circles Big Excursion To-day.

Yesterday the Coldsprings Sunday school excurted to Jubilee Point to the number of 200, per steamer City of Peterborough.

The steamers Water Lily and Rainbow will bring 300 excursionists from Hastings to-day, under the auspices of the Methodist Sunday school of that village.

The City will take the professional and business men to Idyl-Wyld this afternoon, returning in the evening.

The Oyster Season.

The oyster season is close at hand, and within a week the Peterborough lovers of the plump and muscular bivalve will be feasting again on the choicest products of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries. Sept. 1 comes on Sunday this year, so oyster eaters must start in one day late. Local dealers are deluged with circulars from oyster houses informing them that orders should be placed at once, for the early arrivals are always limited and shipments cannot be made before Sept 2. Labor Day and the oyster year are contemporaneous this season, which is taken to signify that the consumption of the juicy bivalves will be large this year. The indications are that the market will be well supplied and that prices will not soar in harmony with meats, fruits and vegetables. Even at last year's prices, oysters will be only about one half the present price of choice cuts of meats, pound for pound, and there is no waste to the oyster.

Another Shipment of Horses.

Mr. W. J. Pearson, the well-known Montreal horse merchant, secured a load of fine animals here yesterday. Amongst the lot was a splendid pair of matched carriage horses, the finest we have seen for many a day. Mr. Pearson's well-known reputation for buying only the best animals, and paying the highest prices, secures for him the choicest stock in the country. The horses were shipped east yesterday.

Half Fare Rates.

On Monday, September 2nd, Labor Day half fare return rates will be given to and from all points on the steamers Esturion, Manita and Ogemah.

There are likely to be other names on the next honor roll.

The Royal Chorus.

The chorus under the direction of Mr. G. W. Mulligan will meet for the second practice next Tuesday evening at the Y.M.C.A. It is desired to have all the church choirs fully represented.

On Labor Day.

There will be no connection made at Burleigh Falls for Lakefield with the steamer Ogemah on Labour Day, September 2nd, and there will be no through tickets for Lakefield on that day.

OMEMEE.

Harvest is about over. Farmers who have already threshed are well satisfied with the yield.

Mr. McCarty has made a complete job, moving the Anglican church, without a jar, a distance of 200 yards, to the present new delightful site.

Jas. Graham, proprietor of the Commercial House, is able to be around again, after being confined to bed for a few days.

The lecture by Trooper Mulloy last Friday evening brought out a large attendance from the country, notwithstanding the busy time. Everyone was delighted with the lecture. The proceeds of the house, about $30, was handed to him. The Trooper was in 42 engagements, and gave a thrilling account of the many encounters he had, in one of which he lost his eyesight. He spoke in the highest praise of the Canadian Government officials.

Mr. Ramplin, organizer for the Woodmen of the World, has been here for the last week and succeeded, with the assistance of J. D. Thornton, in organizing a large and influential camp.

HIAWATHA.

A lawn party was held at the residence of Thomas Thompson, Esq., on Friday evening, 23rd inst., under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. A large number were assembled, who sat down to a bountiful repast, which was followed by a fine programme. Our pastor, Mr. Windsor, occupied the chair, in his usual happy manner. A cordial address of welcome was given by Squire Thompson. There were also addresses by Revs. Dr. Andrews and Seccombe, of Keene, interspersed with good music and recitations. The proceeds were over $19.

THE REMEDY FAILED.

How a Helpful Wife Did Not Cure Her Husband of the Tobacco Habit.

"It will only be necessary for you to drop about half a teaspoonful of the mixture into this cup of coffee each morning," the circular said, "and the taste for tobacco will gradually depart from him. He may not cease the use of tobacco immediately, but within a week he will begin to abhor tobacco if the mixture is given to him faithfully every morning."

And so the young wife sent her little $2 on and got a flagon of the tobacco cure.

"Pretty bum coffee this morning," he remarked dryly the first time she dropped the half-teaspoonful of the mixture into the cup.

"It's the same as we've been using right along," she replied, craftily.

Now, lo and behold! he was a pretty smooth proposition himself, and he had, unbeknownst to her, seen the package holding the flagon of agin tobacco mixture when it was delivered.

So after dinner that evening he produced a large bulky package of fine-cut tobacco from his pocket and took therefrom a plenteous chew of tobacco. It was the first chew he had ever taken in her presence, and she marvelled thereat, but she determined to persist with the "treatment."

"Dead rank chickory again this morning, isn't it?" he inquired at breakfast the next morning.

"Im sure it tastes the same to me," she replied.

That evening after dinner he produced a short, black clay pipe and a package of a new kind of tobacco that was as black as the ground work of a Jolly Roger.

"Thought I'd bring this old dudeen up from the office," he explained cheerfully. "It's as sweet as a nut."

Whereupon he filled the house with the aroma of punk that was strong enough to break rock.

"This grocery person who gets all of my wages is certainly doing us on the coffee game," he remarked when he tasted his cup next morning.

"Really," she said, gazing innocently at the ten-cent bunch of asters in the middle of the table. "I can't detect any difference."

"And yet there are low foreheads who don't believe that all women are actresses," said he to himself on the way to his office that morning.

That evening he brought home a box of auction stogies, and after he had smoked one of them after dinner all of the people in the neighboring flats stuffed cotton in the hall door keyholes and closed the hall transoms.

"I must persist though," thought his baffled little wife, gloomily.

"Coffee tastes like stewed gunnysack again this morning," he remarked at the next breakfast. She felt a bit sorry for him, but she was determined to use up that flagon of "agin-tobacco" if she had to chloroform him and pour it down his throat.

That evening, however, her resolution deserted her. After dinner, for the first time to her knowledge, he pulled out a package of cigarettes, lit one and began to smoke it.

She went upstairs, poured out the remaining portion of her $2 worth of agin-tobacco and carefully hid the bottle.

"Coffee's all right this morning," said he at breakfast the next day.

"Yes?" she inquired, absently.

When he had finished his dinner that evening he lighted one of his usual brand of good cigars.

"Men are mysterious to me," she thought, regarding him out of the tail of her eye.

A Competent Witness.

United States District Judge Williams, now holding court in Topeka tells a funny story. Years ago he was a district judge in Arkansas. At a certain term of court a murder trial came before him, and the most important witness for the prosecution was a colored boy only ten years old. The lawyers for the defence set out to show that the boy was too young to understand the nature of an oath, and therefore was not competent as a witness.

"Boy," said one of them severely "do you know what would happen if you swore to a lie?"

"Yes, sah. Mammy would lick me."

"Would anything else happen?"

"Deed dey would, case de devil would git me."

At this point Judge Williams leaned over his desk and said with pretended sternness: "Don't you know, boy, that I would get you, too?"

"Yes, sah. Dat's what I jus' said."—Kansas City Journal.

The Horseless Nightmare.

"Oh," she said, "I had such a terrible dream last night. It seemed that I had suddenly been deprived somehow of the power to move. All my limbs were paralyzed, and I lay right in the path of an automobile that I could see coming toward me at a terrible rate of speed, with the lamps at the sides blazing like the two eyes of some terrible monster. Nearer and nearer it came, and I, in fearful agony, tried hard to drag myself out of its way, but was unable to move. I tried to cry out so that the man who was running the automobile might either stop or turn aside and avoid running over me, but I could not make a sound. On, on it came, as if imbued with life and in a fury of frenzy. I had just given myself up for lost when"——

"Yes," he interrupted, "then you woke up. But that isn't the important part of it. By your experience we know that the horseless nightmare has arrived."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Swallowing

A sword is a trick not conducive to health or longevity. But it is not more injurious than the hasty swallowing of half masticated food washed down by gulps of ice water in summer or cups of hot coffee in winter. Hasty eating is the foe of health. Sooner or later it must result in indigestion or some other form of stomach disease.

Mrs. Mary E. Lewis, of Tanner, Gilmer Co., W. Va., writes: "I will always recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' for they cured me when doctors and other medicines failed. For fifteen years I suffered untold misery. When I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicines, I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I could not lie down to sleep, and everything I ate would almost cramp me to death. Was very nervous and could hardly walk across the room. I only weighed ninety pounds when I commenced taking these medicines six years ago; I now weigh one hundred and forty pounds, and am having better health than ever before. My friends all say they can hardly believe that I am the same person; after being sick so long. I have changed to be robust and rosy cheeked. I have taken fifteen bottles of the 'Discovery' fifteen of the 'Prescription' and fifteen of the 'Pellets.'"

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only, or if cloth binding is desired send stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ELEVEN PEOPLE KILLED, THIRTY-TWO INJURED

Explosion of the Boilers of the City of Trenton a Greater Catastrophe Than Before Annouaced

ASSIS'T ENGINEER HAD PRESENTIMENT OF DEATH

Told His Wife That There Would be an Explosion, as the Boat Was Running Too Fast—Nine People Still Missing.

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—Eleven known dead, nine missing and 32 injured is the record made by the explosion of the boilers of the steamboat City of Trenton on the Delaware River yesterday afternoon. All night long city firemen, policemen and employes of the Wilmington Steamboat Company, which owned the vessel, worked in and around the burned and blackened hull, searching for bodies of victims. Hundreds of men are dragging the river bottom with grappling irons to-day, and they will continue to do so until every person is accounted for.

Of the eleven bodies that have been recovered, ten have been identified. The identified dead are: John P. Chew of Camden, N.J., assistant engineer of the City of Trenton; Miss Elizabeth Green, Philadelphia, crushed to death; William Dunn, Philadelphia, a passenger; Arthur Lansing, 14 years old, Trenton, N.J.; James O'Connell, fireman, Philadelphia; Mott Mable, fireman, Philadelphia; August Hable, deck hand Philadelphia; James Graham, Trenton, N.J., engineer; William H. Keen, Philadelphia, passenger; James McCormick Wilmington, Del., passenger. Among the missing are Miss Ethel Stokes of Trenton and Miss Helen Briest, daughter of former Mayor John Briest of Trenton.

According to the statement of the widow of the dead Assistant Engineer John P. Chew, the man had a presentiment of death. Mrs. Chew says that before leaving home for work on Tuesday night her husband said:

"Lizzie, I may never see you again. I have a presentiment that there will be an explosion on the boat. If there is there will be no escape for me. They are running at too high a steam pressure, and if an accident should occur I and many others will be killed."

Of the thirty-two injured persons taken to the hospital attached to Philadelphia House of Correction, all are reported as doing well to-day, and it is not now believed that any of them will die.

Augustus Reinhart, an expert machinist employed by the Neafie and Levy Shipbuilding Company, builders of the City of Trenton, recently overhauled the boat's boilers. He said to-day that there was no doubt in his mind that the explosion had been due to the exhaustion of the water in the boilers. He gave it as his opinion that the boat was being run too fast, and this exhausted the water.

The boat was fifteen minutes late when she left her wharf yesterday afternoon and it is stated that much of this lost time had been made up when the explosion occurred.

NEW VERSION OF THE BIBLE

American Revision Issued After Fourteen Years Work.

THE WORD JEHONAH RESTORED

The completed American version of the Bible went into circulation through the medium of the booksellers, having been delayed fourteen years through the existence of a contract exacted by the English revisers. A long time ago the English revision companies disbanded, but the American committee continued its organization, and, so far as was possible, continued its labors. The committee has gone far beyond the revisers with whom it was formerly associated and has introduced into the text numerous changes hitherto suppressed for the sake of preserving harmonious relations.

As an instance the word "Jehovah," is substituted for "Lord" and "God," and thus, "this personal name with its wealth of sacred associations, is now restored to the place in the sacred text to which it has an unquestionable claim." The word "Sheol" has been uniformly used for "the grave," the pit and "hell." Numerous verbal changes have been made to clear up obscure places in the text.

Following are a few examples of the changes made:

English version—The sojourning of the children of Israel, which they sojourned in Egypt, etc.—Exodus 12; 40. American version—The time that the children of Israel dwelt in Egypt, etc. children of Israel dwelt in Egypt, etc.

English version—A great altar to see.—Joshua 22; 10. American version—A great altar to look upon.

It is claimed that careful examination will show that the new readings are, as a rule, more faithful to the original texts and more in accord with the present idioms, than heretofore, although many words and phrases are retained that might have been changed to the advantage of the ordinary reader for the only great object of any revision should be to gain the highest degree of accuracy in phraseology that can be understood clearly and definitely without recourse to a dictionary of archaic and obsolete words. The necessity for such a revision is apparent when one realizes the constant change in the accepted or ordinary meaning of words in quite common use.

The revision that produced what is commonly called the "Common Version" was the result of numerous revisions during many centuries, and deference was paid, as it is now paid, to current forms of speech, but in the course of 400 years many words have become changed in meaning. "Prevent" then meant to go before—I meet; now it means to hinder. "Let" then signified to hinder; now it means to permit. "Lust" then, as in German now, meant pure pleasure, joy, now it breathes vile passion.

A clergyman, in commenting upon the revised book, said:

"The book is particularly attractive because of its clean type and evenly printed pages. The text is paragraphed but alas! impertinent figures appear to indicate the verses. Long-continued custom and convenience for reference and comparison require the retention of these divisions, but why the figures should be allowed to spoil the page and divert the mind so continually is incomprehensible, when they might have been placed to equal advantage in the margins where there is ample space. Thus separated they would have been useful without being obtrusive.

The chapter figures are prominent as they should be, and upon each page are figures indicating the scope of that page, thus: Page 2 begins with chapter 1, 26 Genesis, and ends with chapter ing, in a single line of black type, to indicate its general contents. Thus, page 47: 'Judah's intercession for Benjamin. Joseph makes himself known.' The Psalms only form an exception, each Psalm having a title. There is obvious danger in such a plan, but in carrying it out the revisers have succeeded admirably, having scrupulously adhered to their rule; 'Everything that might seem to savor of questionable exegesis has been carefully avoided.'

"The paragraphing has been vastly improved. The English revisers often went to the opposite extreme of unnecessarily long paragraphs in place of the old plan of paragraphing each verse. This gave a heavy and tiresome look to certain pages. Besides the paragraphs were sometimes not more accurately formed than in the old version be a paragraph sign.

"Wherever the text falls into a poetical form it is so arranged, as in the words of Lamech (Gen. 4:25-24), Noah (Gen. 9:25-27) Isaac (Gen. 27:27-29), Esau (Gen. 27:39-40) and Jacob (Gen. 48:2-27); the longer poems as of Moses (Ex. 15:1-18; Israelites (Num. 21:17-18 27-30), Balaam (Num chaps. 23-24.) MMoses (Deut. chaps. 32-23) Deborah (Judges chap. 5) and numerous others. All of the poetical books, including the Lamentations of Jeremiah, are in appropriate form, and threfore more easily understood. The prophecies are seldom marked by poetic form.

"Great care and attention have evidently been bestowed upon the punctuation. This is always in great degree an arbitrary matter with English writers, but in case of a translation from an original that has no such marks, and where the slightest dot about a letter has special significance, it is unquestionably attended with difficulty. There is still a redundance of commas especially; upon a single page examined thirty-one would better have been absent. But the frequency of the often absurd use of the colon has in large part been done away, for which we have reason to be grateful.

"A decided improvement has also been made in the use and character of the marginal notes, which are much fewer in number, only about one-sixth of those given in the English revision, and whenever practicable each is credited to its source. Great care has also been bestowed upon the references, in preparing the list of which able scholars outside the committee rendered valuable aid. The aim has been to illustrate and elucidate passages which, either in word or in thought bear resemblance to the one under consideration. 'St.,' is omitted entirely in the running headline; it stands 'Matthew,' 'Mark,' etc. At its beginning we find simply 'According to Mark,' the same rule being applied to each book. 'The Acts' is shorn of the familiar words, 'of the Apostles.' The heading of Romans is without the designation of Paul as "the apostle." Similarly with the other Pauline epistles. The book of Hebrews is headed simply, 'The Epistle to the Hebrews,' instead of including 'of Paul the Apostle,' as heretofore. 'The Epistle of James' no longer carries the word 'general' in its title. 'The Epistles of Peter' also are shorn of the term 'general' in their titles, as are also the epistles of John and Jude. Instead of 'The Revelation of St. John the Divine,' we now have the simple heading of 'The Revelation of John.' All these may seem small matters to talk about, but a moment's reflection will show their practical and educational value.

"And now what about its general acceptance and adoption by American readers? I believe it will find favor more rapidly than did its predecessor of fourteen years ago, because a way has been made for it. Yet there are lions in the path. The vested interests of publishers and the restrictions of Bible societies stand ready to challenge it. Prejudice and ignorance and bigotry will oppose and ignore it; the world has not yet reached a general level of broadmindedness. Popular esteem for the King James version was scarcely attained in a half-century. When Jerome, the monk of Bethlehem, produced the Vulgate it was declared 'subversion of faith and impious with the inspired word of God,' and everything possible was done to discredit it. But Jerome was in advance of his time. He retorted in no unmeasured terms to his assailants, calling them 'fools,' 'stupids,' two-legged donkeys,' yet died before his work received due recognition.

"Such will not be the fate of the American revision. Nothing hitherto has approached it in actual value. The world is demanding the best things and will have them. Especially the American world is making such demand, and it has less to contend with in attaining them than we find in other countries. Americans think for themselves, and when they come to know and understand the beauties and the intrinsic value of this new and latest effort to present the Bible in the most perfect form attainable they will be satisfied with nothing else."

AN INTERESTING SPARROW FIGHT

A Terrific Encounter Between Two on a Church Roof.

A HAWK DRIVEN AWAY IN PAIN

A half dozen or more men and boys were interested witnesses of a desperate fight between two sparrows yesterday. Battles between birds of the species are not at all uncommon. The sparrow is probably the most belligerent and plucky of all the members of the feathered family, notwithstanding his diminutiveness.

This encounter was one that for punishment given and received and determination shown, is rarely equalled. Two female sparrows, evidently the mates of the combatants, were perched nearby, and by their capers apparently coached and urged to their utmost efforts their respective champions.

To add to the interest and oddity of this occurrence it took place on the roof of a church, a queer place for such avicious conflict. When the fight was over the two combatants, their bills locked, their feathers ruffled and dirty, and their heads sore and bloody, lay dead on the step of the temple where better things than fighting and killing are taught.

The battle lasted for nearly an hour. While the birds, firmly clinched, were taking one of many falls from the roof of the church to the hard ground below, a distance of fully seventy-five feet, a huge hawk soared to the pinnacle of the steeple and seated himself to gloat over the bloody scene. Hawks and sparrows are deadly enemies at best. This big fellow perhaps thought there was a feast in store for him as he saw the struggling midgets tear each other's flesh. But his ecstacy was short-lived. When the sparrows had recovered from the effects of the jolt they got by a hard tumble, they apparently discovered him, and instead of returning to the spot on the roof that they seemingly had mutually agreed upon as a battleground, both made straight for the hawk, and attacked him with all of the vigor that was left in their tired little bodies. The hawk made no pretense to withstand their onslaught. He darted off with the sparrows in pursuit. The hawk flew at a rapid rate, but the little birds were right upon him, dodging from one side to the other, under and over him and pecking him with all their might. They followed him probably a thousand feet. Then they left him and side by side returned to the church roof. Meanwhile the two female sparrows remained in their places they had chosen to witness the duel between their heroes.

The tiny birds after a short breathing spell, set up a noisy twittering, and began dancing around each other like a pair of boxers in a prize ring. They were sparring for an opening, as it were. Suddenly they went together, locked bills, and took another fall to the ground. This mode of warfare was pursued throughout the battle. The birds would take a tumble, then return to the church roof, clinch, drag each other to the edge, and deliberately tumble off. They would clasp their wings tightly to the body, and make absolutely no effort to avert the shock coming from contact with the ground below. Every time they struck it seemed that every bone in them would be broken. They must have repeated this performance twenty times. They seemed to be made of rubber and not to have a sense of pain.

This terrific warfare lasted for almost an incredible length of time, but it finally came to an end. Toward the close of the battle it was only with a decided effort that the birds could regain the roof. Throughout the fight it was plain that the object of each of the birds was to kill the other by a fall. On the last descent the birds struck the sharp edge of the lattice walk, rolled into the gutter and lay motionless. The spectators waited for them to rise again, but the end had come. On examination it was found that both were dead. Their bills were still locked, but parted easily when the birds were picked up.

When the men and boys who watched the fight approached the lifeless little fighters the female sparrows came fluttering down and set up a lively twittering and chirping. One man suggested that the crowd move back and see what the female birds would do. As soon as the party withdrew, the birds approached their dead mates, and picked at them for fully two minutes. They could not arouse them, and stood silent for a moment. Then they began a series of manoeuvres that reminded one of an Indian war dance. They hopped around the corpses in a circle for a minute or two, then faced each other, flopped their wings much like a whipped chicken, uttered a lot of what were perhaps in bird language words of sorrow and mourning, and then flew away.

INTIMIDATION IS NOW CHARGED

American Steel Co. Proceed Againt Amalgamated Association.

STATEMENT MADE BY SHAFFER

Pittsburg, Aug. 29.—The strike continues quiet and devoid of interesting features. While the strikers still express satisfaction with the prevailing conditions, the Steel Corporation is slowly but steadily increasing its forces at the plants already in operation, and are preparing to open more mills.

The report that the Amalgamated lodges were voting on a peace proposition was denied by Mr. Shaffer, who said:

"There has been no vote of any kind taken by us. The lodges may have taken votes on their own account but none has been ordered since the strike started an dno vote has been taken by the executive board. Speaking of the reported meeting at Milwaukee, called for next Sunday night, he said:

"I know nothing of the proposed meeting. The Bay View men can meet whenever they want to."

"The situation," continued Mr. Shaffer, "is unchanged."

A New Philadelphia, Ohio, despatch reports that Attorneys Bower and Buchanan, for the American Sheet Steel Company, have served an injunction through the United States Court against the Amalgamated Association at Canal Dover—for intimidating and keeping workmen from entering the rolling mill, also in holding and stopping pedestrians upon the highway.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 29.—Simon Burns, who arrived here today, announced that his plan for settling the steel strike by arbitration had been rejected by President Schwab of the United States Steel Corporation.

SHAFFER'S STATEMENT

Pittsburg, Aug. 29.—Enough men were added to the Star plant force yesterday to ensure the working of two mills a double turn, night and day. It is expected that the entire plant will be in full operation by the end of this week. The American Tin Plate Company offers the highest wages and permanent jobs, but in every case the application must be made personally, and the applicant declare himself free from all union control. The company has not as yet made the attempt to start either its Monongahela or Demmler plants. The position the officials take, it is said, is that the strike is over, so far as their dealing with the strikers as a body is concerned. They want workmen for their idle mills, and men who want work can have it for the asking at wages paid before the shut down. Mr. Shaffer declared last night that the strike, in spite of the claims of the other side to the contrary, is proceeding satisfactorily and his association is making such serious inroads on the corporation's business that it will be compelled sooner or later to come to terms. His men, he says, are firm all along the line, and are determined to stand for their rights to the end. He says the few mills that have been started are doing but little effective work. The fact that the corporation is adding to its force daily does not worry the president, because he believes them to be either unskilled or poor workmen who will be a drawback rather than a help to their employers.

The steel people have nothing to say but point to the mills at work, and the product turned out.

RUSSIA IN THE EAST.

Russia is Making an Aggressive Movement That Means Trouble

London, August 29—The news that six Russian torpedo boats from the flotilla now stationed at Ismalia hav egone up the Danube as far as Galatz seems to have called forth a good deal of uneasiness in Roumania.

These vessels appeared off Galatz on August 3, and it was perceived from the town that Russian staff officers were present on board who appeared to examine through their telescopes how the harbor of Galatz lay, as well as the site of the Roumanian harbor for warships at Cizlina, a little above Galatz. Having gone so far the vessels turned round and steamed full speed downstream till they were again in Russian waters.

The Roumanian Government was immediately informed, and, as a report goes, the Roumanian Consul at Ismalia was at once instructed to inform his Government what the Russians were doing in the Kilia arm of the Danube and off Galatz. The Consul reported, according to this account, that the Russian War Office had given orders that several war vessels should try if, and how far, they could sail up the Kilia arm of the Danube, and that six of the fourteen small vessels anchored in the Danube harbor of Ismalia were ordered to make the trial. Public opinion in Roumania is largely occupying itself with this incident and demands are being made that the Government should take measures to have the neutrality of the Danube respected by Russian war vessels, their appearance in the river being regarded as a breach of international law.

Reason in Animals.

Do animals possess reasoning power? James Kilpatrick, who lives near the the Edison Works, asserts that they do, and submits the following narrative in proof of his assertion. Says he, "I have a cat that is a great bird hunter. She has an appetite for sparrows, and spends all of her time in trying to capture unwary members of the tribe. A few days ago while sitting on the porch, I noticed the cat industriously digging in one corner of the yard. This was an unusual proceeding, so I kept my eye on her, and was surprised to see her drag a nice, fat worm out of the hole. She dug up a couple more, and then carried the wriggling bunch to the centre of the yard, where she dropped them and glided back of a post. In a minute or two a trio of sparrows spied the tempting meal and swooped down on it. That was pussy's chance. She nabbed the fattest bird of the three on the first jump. It was the slickest kind of a trick, but couldn't bear to see the bird devoured and I took it away from her. Nobody can tell me that animals can't put two and two together."

SCHLEY SIDE ALMOST READY

Preliminary Preparations For The Court of Inquiry Complete.

SCHLEY OBJEDTS TO HOWISON

Washington, Aug. 29.—The counsel of Admiral Schley has about completed the preliminary preparations of his case, which is to be presented to the court of inquiry next month. The intervening time will be occupied by Admiral Schley and his counsel in frequent consultations and in the consideration of all the questions involved in the inquiry. The counsel has examined practically all the official papers and documents bearing on the case, an dit is understood that little if anything remains for them to do at the Navy Department.

The failure to find in th eoffice of the signal corps certain despatches which they desired to secure, especially the message from Colonel Allen to General Greeley in the Spanish war, announcing that Cervera's fleet was at Santiago, is giving Schley's attorneys no concern. These despatches and many others which passed between officers of the military and naval establishments during the Spanish war are deposited in the secret archives.

Statements to the effect that records of the department bearing upon the location of Cervera's fleet in the spring of 1897 have been destroyed, are ridiculed by officers of the navy department, who say that these records can be produced on official demand. Most if not all the despatches which Admiral Schley's counsel desired to see hav ealready been published in the official reports of the Spanish war, and counsel is, therefore, fully cognizant of their contents. If there should be occasion for the production of the originals they would b eforthcoming.

So far as the navy department is concerned, the selection of Admiral Howison as a member of the board of inquiry is final. Any possible objection which the counsel of Admiral Schley may raise against Admiral Howison will have to be considered by the board itself.

The attorneys of Admiral Schley are annoyed by intimations that have been given out by som eof the over zealous friends of Schley that they, the attorneys, are getting ready to "knife" Admiral Sampson in the coming enquiry, and that they intend to "make it hot" for certain persons who ar eexpected to appear as witnesses in the case. The attorneys say the persons connected with the case on both sides are officers and gentlemen and that the procedure of the court of inquiry will be characterized by the dignity which marks the sessions of all similar bodies. Their only desire is to get at the truth, and they expect to reach it, so far as they are concerned, through examinations which, while of the most searching character, will be conducted with consideration and courtesy.

A letter from Rear Admiral Schley to the navy department in regard to its action upon the Howison matter was made public to-day by Acting Secretary Hackett. Schley says:

"While it is true that one of my counsel, Captain Parker, in reply to an inquiry made to him, did give his personal opinion of the several rear admirals upon the active and retired lists, among whom was Rear Admiral Howison, I am assured by him that he believes the Secretary misunderstood him that any one of the officers named would be perfectly satisfactory to me. Captain Parker's conversation was had at a time when nothing was known of the alleged interview as published. It was with the desire to avoid the necessity of making a formal challenge that I requested the department to lay before Admiral Howison the statement that he is alleged to have made, and thus give him the opportunity to take such action as his sense of the propriety of the occasion might suggest. I could not challenge for cause until I discovered there was a cause, and the object of my communication was to ascertain if Rear Admiral Howison had made this statement. I submit that his private utterances would affect his qualification as much as his public utterances, and my request was only to have the alleged interview submitted for his consideration."

A HOTEL TO COST MILLIONS

Plans For an Elegant Structure in New York City.

New York, August 29—Plans for a hotel to occupy the entire frontage from Forty-first to Forty-second street on the west side of Park avenue, are now being finished under the direction of the Subway Realty Company, which has purchased the ground for $2,000,000 and which intends to expend a total of over $5,000,000 in making the prospective hostelry one of the largest and best-equipped in the world.

The building will be leased to B. L. Bates, who is now proprietor of the Everett House on Union Square.

The Cause of Hay Fever.

It's a microbe that floats in the air, gets into the throat and lungs, develops rapidly, excites inflammation, etc. The cause is as simple as a thistle in the finger. Extract the thistle, away goes the pain. Destroy the Hay Fever germ—you get well. That's why Catarrhozone acts so marvellously in Hay Fever. Its fragrant vapor to you brings cure, but to the microbe death. Catarrhozone is as quick to act on these microscopic organisms as lightning. Prevents as well as cures, and is always successful. BRIGHAM YOUNG'S FIRST WIFE.

On her Way to Salt Lake in a Dying Condition.

Helena, Mont., Aug. 29—Mrs. Zina Young, the first wife of the Mormon apostle, Brigam Young, passed through this city last night in a dying condition from a stroke of paralysis, on her way to Salt Lake City.

It was her last request before losing consciousness that she be taken to her old home in Salt Lake to die. At the time the affliction overtook her she was at the home of her daughter, in the Mormon settlement, near the border, where she had gone on a visit. It was only a short time before her condition became more alarming, and in a few hours she lost consciousness. She is nearly eighty years old, and has retained her faculties wonderfully.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT IN AFRICAN COLONIES

Imperial Government Has Been Asked to Substitute it For Crown Colony Administration.

BRITISH-DUTCH INTERESTS MIGHT BE LOCALIZED

Present System, It is Claimed, Will Maintain Perpetual Agitation—Majority of Boer Prisoners Favor Peace.

London, Aug. 29.—It is understood that Lord Kitchener's proclamation does not mark the limit of the intentions of the Government regarding the South African war. It is understood that more remains behind; that the Government will, if necessary, follow up their latest proclamation by further regulations affecting, it may be, the prisoners now in Ceylon and St. Helena. It is obvious that in the 20,000 Boer captives England holds hostages for the early termination of the war, just as the Boers had powerful machinery at their disposal for the coercion of Britain when 4,000 of her sons were prisoners at Pretoria. A large majority of the prisoners, both in Ceylon and St Helena, are in favor of peace. They accept the stern arbitrament of war, and perceive that England will never be turned from her purpose by the sniping operations of a few marauding bands. Large number of the Boer prisoners are men of substance. They cling to their land d property with a tenacity not second to that of the Irish peasant or the English squire. Confiscation would reduce them to the humiliating position of "bywohners," or landless men. Confiscation, accordingly, is what they most dread.

WAR MUST SOON END.

Since Great Britain is spending vast sums solely because these marauding bands see fit to continue operations that cannot affect the result of the war, the interests of the Empire require that no means shall be neglected which can end the war. Furthermore, there is reason to believe that if the war were to continue another six months, say until march next, the irritation of Continental Governments might assume proportions which would render diplomatic intervention no improbable contingency. On those grounds very serious efforts are being made to end the war, and I shall not be surprised if pressure be brought to bear upon the prisoners. There is a desperate element which will baffle all attempts to obtain their surrender, but short of this, it will be to the interest and happiness, no less of Boer than of Briton, that hostilities should cease. Further, it is to the interest of Americans and of all other nations that the war should end, for no foreigners will be allowed to return to the Transvaal and Orange colonies until the Boer prisoners have been repatriated, a step impossible to be taken until peace is not only settled in theory but accomplished in fact. Every month that the war continues the repatriation of prisoners becomes more difficult, since destruction of property and the pressing tasks of the executive civil government of the Transvaal necessarily postpone measures which must be preliminary to the restoration of captive Boers to their own country.

DIFFICULT TIMES AHEAD.

The situation in South Africa, even when peace is established, will be one of enormous difficulty. A discontented and sullen white population, racial question smouldering, if not aflame, civil government to be built up anew and a black population conscious of their numerical superiority, and having lost much of their fear of the white man owing to the kindness with which the British soldier has treated them—all these will require attention. A strong effort is being made, under these circumstances, to obtain the consent of the Imperial Government to substitute a Federal for Crown Colony Administration. It is urged that under a responsible Federal Government the struggle between British and Dutch interests will be located, while administration by the Crown, even for a year or two, will bring the whole fabric of the Empire into the arena of South African politics. Perpetual agitation will be maintained, it is urged, so long as there is a vast Imperial audience looking on; while, on the other hand, if the various interests are left to arrange their own differences under the guidance of a judicial but sympathetic man of affairs as Governor General, then South Africa will quickly settle down. In the ranks of those who urge this view is to be found Lieutenant General Sir Andrew Clarke among the least of whose brilliant services to the Empire were a most successful record as Governor of Singapore and as our chief organizer of Imperial defences. Sir Andrew Clarke is now the representative in London of Victoria, and as such is the dozen of the Agents General of the great selfgoverning colonies. The position of the Agents General is one that has greatly advanced in importance of late years, and since there is little reason to doubt that Sir Andrew Clarke represents in a special sense not only Australian but Colonial opinion, his views on the subject will be of interest to the American public.

WERE SHOT DOWN AFTER SURRENDER

Three British Soldiers Barbarously Murdered by the Boers.

REPRISALS HAVE BEEN ORDERED

London, Aug. 29.—A despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, August 25, says:—"Sworn evidence has been brought to my notice by General Elliott that on June 6 Lieutenant Mair of the New South Wales Artillery and Privates Harvey and Blunt were shot down, after surrendering at Graspin, near Reitz. I have forwarded to Steyn and Botha copies of these statements."

The War Office has telegraphed to Lord Kitchener, as follows:—"We understand that you have not yet received satisfactory assurances respecting the murder of our wounded at Vlakfontein, in view of the occurrances referred to in your telegram of August 25, we are of the opinion that you should notify by proclamation that the members of any commando by which such an outrage is committed, who may be captured, and, after trial, proved to have been present on such occasion, will be held guilty, whether they actually committed the deed or not; that the leader of the commando will be sentenced to death, and that the other members will be punished with death or less, according to the degree of complicity."

FRENCH HARRASSING BOERS.

Pretoria, Aug. 29.—General French has columns harrassing every commando in the Cape Colony, with the exception of a few small bands in the Kenhardt district. A force of British will shortly be sent after these also. Heilborn is driving Scheeper's commando north of Willowmere and other commandoes are being forced north. They suffered heavily in crossing between the blockhouse on the Rosmead and Stormberg Railway. Several columns are operating against Commandant Kritzinger in the Wepener and Rouxville districts. Nearly every known body of Boers in the Transvaal and Orange River Colony is being actively hunted.

KRUGER MAY SEE THE CZAR.

London, Aug. 29.—Apparently the representatives of the Boer cause in Europe are still pressing in their efforts to persuade the great powers to move on their behalf. It is reported from Brussels that the journey of Mr. Leyds to Paris is closely connected with Mr. Kruger's desire to obtain an audience of the Czar during his stay in France, and The Mail is convinced that at a meeting which will take place on September 10 between the Czar and the Kaiser the circumstances of the Boer war will be gravely discussed.

CANPDIAN POLICE SUFFER SEVERFLY

Four Killed, Seven Wounded and 18 Captured at Veereniging

THE PRISONERS ARE RELEASED

London, Aug. 29. The special correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, writing from Pretoria, says:

In connection with the loss of a 7-pounder screw gun by a detachment of the South African Constabulary near Vereeniging, I have ascertained the following particulars. A post of two troops of the South African Constabulary was stationed at Hout Kop, about eight miles southwest of Vereeniging, and a patrol of 50 men (Canadians), under Captain McDonald went out, with an old 7-pounder gun to evict some Boers from a farmhouse at Turffontontein, three miles south of Hout Kop. On arriving at the farm some sixty Boers were found there. Every precaution was taken by Captain McDonald to prevent surprise, but the Boers attacked the patrol. The gun was brought into action, but before any result was obtained a body of 300 of the enemy under Dreyer, galloped up from the Rietspruit Valley and overwhelmed hte patrol. The Boers rode right through the patrol, and captured the gun—which had been mounted on wheels, and cut off several small parties of our men. Our casualties were four killed, seven wounded, and 18 taken prisoners. These were subsequently released. The Boers exposed themselves to a heavy fire at short range, and must have suffered severely. They asked for the services of a doctor. Captain McDonald killed one Boer at a range of three yards. The captured piece was an old mountain gun, nearly worn out, and the police, I believe, had no right to take it away from the post. The same gun went through the siege of Ladysmith, and could only fire—with black powder—up to a range of 2,500 yards.

Lord Kitchener has again had a narrow escape. He passed through Vereeniging on the 17th inst., on his way to Pretoria, and the train following had a narrow escape of being wrecked. When nearing Vereeniging part of the line was blown up, presumably by an observation mine. The driver was able to pull up just in time to avoid a catastrophe, the explosion occurring about one hundred and fifty yards ahead of the train. Troops were turned out from Vereeniging, and the countryside was scoured, but no Boers could be seen. So far, the dastardly act remains a mystery. It is stated that an attack was made the night before upon a block-house, and that the mine was laid during the confusion which ensued.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 30 1901

SIR WILFRID LAURIER

The Toronto Telegram, labelled "Independent" by those who know better, and that its owner was one of the Conservative members for Toronto, takes Sir Wilfrid Laurier to task for his reply to Mr. Richardson, ex-M.P. Now, the fact of the case is that Sir Wilfrid cut Mr. Richardson to pieces with the skill of an anatomist. The Manitoban M.P. complained bitterly that the Premier had not called off the dogs of war so as to save him from being unseated by the courts, when, as the sequel proved, by every dictate of duty and decency, he should have received the punishment which he did receive. If any one thing more than another shines out of this Richardson-Laurier correspondence it is this: that Mr. Richardson, as Sir Wilfrid said, wished the laws of the land to be annulled or set at naught by the very man whose chief duty it is to see that they are carried out fairly and effectually. Now, the Times is really independent and prepared to make all it legitimately can out of both parties, and we have no hesitation in applauding the Premier for his probity as well as for his skill in letter-writing. A few more such smashing replies and the era of political hypocrisy will have passed away. Well done, Sir Wilfrid!

In the meantime we would suggest to the Conservative party journals that it is poor polemics to quote a partisan friend.

THE POPE'S NARROW ESCAPE

The civilized world will be startled to learn of the narrow escape which the venerable Pope has had from death at the hands of an Anarchist assassin. It is fortunate, if it be true as our despatch states, that the circumstances were such that it was possible to keep the affair from the knowledge of the intended victim. At his advanced age, and in his delicate health the shock of realizing that a wretch bent upon his murder had only been thwarted by the quick wit of one of his guards, might have had serious if not fatal consequences.

Of all the potentates of earth one would think that this amiable old man, most truly an exemplar of peace on earth, and whose life has been marked, in the words of Lincoln "with charity for all and malice toward none," would be the last to excite the bloody instincts of those enemies of human society, the Anarchists. What could they gain by hastening the departure of a prince whose days at best can be but a few more in this world? In fact, what do they gain by assassinating any ruler or statesman? Absolutely nothing. If by chance they do kill a tyrant, who is the better for it? Such acts of themselves are the best excuse for despotism, if they do not sometimes justify it in countries infested by societies of assassination.

ANOTHER GREAT TRUST

New York, Aug. 28—The International Salt Company was incorporated at Trenton, N.J., last week with a nominal capital stock of $125,000. The actual amount of capital stock which its projectors expect to issue is estimated at $30,000,000.

Nothing indicates more clearly the growth of the trust idea for special industries or the vast capitalization which each of them will be forced to undertake to keep control of its trade and shut out competition than the formation of this new salt trust almost on the heels of the formation of an existing one, which two years ago was reputed to control 90 per cent. of the production of evaporated salt in the United States.

The older trust, whose legal name is the National Salt Company, was organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, on March 18, 1899. Now the National Salt Company, with its $12,000,000 of capital stock, is [illegible] only [illegible] of the bigger corporations. This company reported net earnings last year of $1,2[illegible],669.

It is estimated that the United States produces and uses every year about 12,000,000 barrels of evaporated salt and about 6,000,000 barrels of salt. Each barrel weighs 280 pounds. This equals 5,040,000,000 pounds, or 2,520,000 tons.

The principal sources of evaporated salt are the brine wells. New York holds a commanding place in this production with her great Warsaw district and the old Syracuse district, but there are important brine wells also in Michigan, Kansas, Ohio, Texas, and Louisiana.

There are salt mines also at Retsof, N. Y., while three are working in Louisiana, Kansas and Michigan, each of which has one.

At Salt Lake and on the Pacific coast salt is also made by evaporating the waters of the lake and ocean by exposing the waters in shallow pits as is done in Turk's Island.

The National Salt Company acquired originally the Cayuga plant at Ludlowville, the Ithaca plant at Ithaca, the Glen plant at Watkins, the Kerr plant at Watt Glen, the Bradley, Empire, Guinlock No 1, Guinlock No. 2, Hawley, and Warsaw plants at Warsaw, the Pearl plant at Pearl Creek and the Pavilion plant at Pavilion, all in this state. This gave it 90 per cent of the evaporated salt product of New York. Later it bought the United Salt Company of Ohio, with plants in Cleveland, Pomeroy and Akron and acquired by purchase or lease of 70 per cent. of the Michigan production, secured the Hutchinson-Kansas Salt Company of Kansas, and a controlling interest in the Lone Star Salt Company of Texas.

Its total production is estimated at 3,000,000 to 9,000,000 barrels of salt a year.

Since that time, however, there have sprung up many independent salt companies which it is desirable to control.

The International Salt Company is expected to absorb the National Salt Company, the Canadian Salt Company, the Retsof Mining Company, the Avery Salt Manufacturing Company, and the American Salt Company.

This would again give to the trust an almost absolute command of the production, not only in the United States but in Canada.

ALLEGED MEDICAL DISCOVERY

London, Aug. 28—The Alfred Nobel prize for the advancement of science has recently been awarded to Professor Finsen, of Copenhagen, for his origination of the method of treatment of lupus and other diseases by the use of light. Lupus is caused by tubercle bacilli, and is really skin consumption. Great ulcers appear, usually on the face. Professor Finsen places the patient under a strong electric light, which passes through a cup-shaped lens filled with blue water, and thence to the ulcers. The blue water separates the light into the violet chemical rays and the red heat rays, and lets only the violet rays pass through. These are death to the lupus microbes. The patient's eyes and the healthy parts of his skin are protected from the rays, which are very strong, by means of bandages. Smallpox and measles cases have also been successfully treated, but with the red rays, as the violet rays have an inflaming effect on such eruptions. The treatment in these cases consists in shutting the patient in a room with red glass windows and red curtains. The effect is to minimize the violence of the eruptions.

According to the Electrician, London, a department for treating lupus vulgaris by means of electric light has recently been opened at the Manchester and Salford Hospital for Skin Diseases. At present one arc lamp of about 30,000 nominal candle-power has been installed, but by an arrangement of collectors four patients can be treated at the same time. The collectors are made of Siberian rock crystal filled with distilled water. The portion of the skin being treated is compressed with two pieces of glass set in a metal frame, between which a constant stream of cold water is kept running. The pressure is to remove the blood from the skin, while the flow of water helps to further keep the skin cool. About a quarter of a square inch is treated for about 50 minutes; antiseptic ointment is then put on, and in a few days the skin is completely healed. Twenty patients can be treated each day.

According to the New York Sun, a despatch to the Daily Mail from Copenhagen says that Dr. Sophus Bang, manager of the laboratory belonging to Professor Finsen, inventor of the light cure for lupus, has constructed a special electric lamp, giving a feeble light, but which is extremely rich in chemical rays.

The despatch adds that Dr. Bang used metal instead of carbon poles. The bacteria-killing power of this lamp is ten times as great as that of an ordinary arc lamp, and a lupus patient requiring 75 minutes' treatment with the arc lamp will require only from three to five minutes' treatment with the new one, which costs only $15.

St. Petersburg, August 28—During the last twenty-five years military service has been rendered obligatory in Russia on all men from their twenty-first year. Out of about 870,000 young men reaching their majority every year some 287,000 are taken into the active army and the remainder ar einscribed partly in the reserve and partly in the second reserve, or "zapas."

The term of service is in European Russia five years in the active army, thirteen years in the reserve, and five years in the "zapas," seven years in the active army and six years in the reserve in Asiatic dominions and three years in the active army and fifteen in the reserve in Caucasia.

In case of need the Minister of War has the right of keeping the men under the college for another six months. College men, doctors and teachers are exempted and certain privileges are granted on account of education. The lowest estimate which can be made of the peace strength of the Russian army puts the number of officers at 36,000, and of the rank and file at 860,000 men, the total number being 896,000. In war the total strength is approximately 63,000 officers and 3,440,000 men, a total of 3,500,000.

A STRANGE PROCEEDING.

London, Aug. 29.—A curious story comes from Vienna. The son of a rich Jewish banker named Fleisher recently died and his body was brought with great ceremony to the synagogue for a most ornate funeral. Just before the coffin was carried out to be taken to the cemetery, the father, despite it is against the sacred rites, had it opened that he might take one more look at his son. To his horror he discovered that it was not his son at all, but a stranger. An investigation showed that through the help of some of the officials at the morgue, a poor Jewish family who had lost a son at the same time had succeeded in substituting theirs for that of the rich man "in order that their son might have a fine funeral." Late that evening after much searching the right body was found. It had been buried as a pauper.

CATCH SUPPOSED MURDERER

Deadwood, S.D., August 28 — W. H. Ward, the alleged Pluma murderer, was captured Saturday near Devil's tower, fifty miles north-west of this city. Sheriff Dolen got word that Ward was in that vicinity Friday and a telephone message late last night told the deputy sheriff here that the sheriff was returning to Deadwood with his man. Ward was perfectly willing to come without requisition papers, having been captured across the line in Wyoming. He refuses to say a word about anything pertaining to the killing of the Shepherd brothers. While feeling is very high in the matter, there will be no violence shown the man. He will have to stand trial for the murder of three men. Sheriff Dolen is bringing him overland in a buggy.

It will cure the pains and aches of the entire family and relieve a vast amount of suffering every year.

MRS. NATION ON THE STAGE

Philadelphia Pa., August 28—Carrie Nation came out of the west yesterday into the staid old city of Philadelphia and incidentally made her debut on the vaudeville stage. Her arrival was a much heralded affair. The initial appearance was made at the Grand opera house this afternoon before a large audience. Right at the start the Kansas woman balked. She arrived at the theatre and then flatly declined to appear as part of the vaudeville show. The managers had assigned her stunt to a place about the middle of the programme, but she said she wanted to be either first or last and the management after a few sharp words with her manager gave in and she was allowed to open the show. There was little applause for her and she began to talk in a strong, concise way, urging her hearers to wipe out the saloons. She then spoke of women generally and what they should do to make the public rise and wipe out saloons from the city.

Mrs. Nation was all day an object of curiosity. A large crowd hung around her hotel waiting for a chance to see her. She made an attempt to see Mayor Ash-

Women are vastly more patient than men. It is scarcely believable that a woman, suffering past all telling, can attend to business, and bend and stoop with a back whose ache is agony. And beyond all this she smiles as she bends and stoops about her customer. A man might swallow down an oath or keep back a groan, but his face would be like a thundercloud, and his voice scarcely disguise his irritation.

For women who suffer from backache, bearing-down pains, or other pains due to womanly diseases, there is no other medicine equal to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the womanly functions, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. A vegetable preparation, it cannot disagree with the weakest condition.

I also had a very bad discharge, but after taking five bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and three of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I am feeling as well as ever. It has been almost two years and I have had no return of the trouble. My friends tell me I don't look as though I ever was sick."

CONCERNING AN OFFER

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

"And so this is the end?" There was a hopeless note in his voice. She looked in the fire, avoiding his gaze.

"Yes."

"And you are doing this voluntarily?"

"Certainly—there is no one to coerce me. It is my choosing."

"Then you care nothing for me?"

"No, no—on the contrary, I like you a great deal."

"Are you in the habit of encouraging young men you merely 'like' to kiss you—remember the night on the crags in the moonlight?"

"I didn't encourage you—you made all the advances, and—and you just did it anyhow. That was what I liked—about you."

"And you no longer think my right arm was 'built for you to cuddle up in,' eh?"

"Don't." She held up her hand deprecatingly.

"That's what you said that night—and times too numerous to mention since."

"And it always had the same effect—of making you more determined and persistent."

He started and looked at her keenly. Then he moved his chair closer. She glanced at him a little apprehensively.

"Remember how the moonlight looked on the water that night and how we wished we could run hand in hand along that silvery path until we came to away off where it ended, and we would find a land where there would be nothing but blue skies and flowers and trees by day, and all nights would be moonlight—and where the waves whispering on golden sands would lull us to sleep when the mocking-bird and the moonlight and the scent of the jasmine and spice made us drowsy?"

"Yes, I remember it all Robert, but, unfortunately, we can't walk on the water, we can't go to that pretty isle, and we've got to mean world in which we pay as we go, and those who can't pay don't go."

"Ah-h, I begin to see. How much is he worth?"

"Your perception does you credit. I don't know—some absurdly large amount."

"Made it killing pigs and sheep and cows and packing up broken-down street car horses for corned beef, didn't he?"

"How do I know?"

"And has [illegible] and says 'I seen;' makes pleasant noises when he eats; wears loud clothes and tells the cost of everything—speaks of his associates as 'gents' and 'lady friends' and has promised you a house on the boulevard?"

"Who told you?"

"No one. I saw it was evident that there were great inducements besides his charming and refined personality."

"Well, I don't care."

"That is very evident. What has driven you to such a step?"

Silence.

"I say, why are you going to marry this man?"

"Oh, well—because."

"I'll bet the oracle at Delphi took lessons in ambiguity from a woman. So you don't want any love in a cottage—or flat—only on the crags—and boulevard."

"It isn't a question of what one wants in this world, Robert, but what one can get or is forced to take."

"Say, did he send a certified check with his offer? And how did his business instinct lead him to make it—so much per pound 'on the hoof,' or an advance dressed?"

"Hush up—you haven't any room to talk; you have never offered anything."

"Never had anything to offer compared with old pork chops."

"You've got youth and health and strength——"

"Especially in my right arm."

"You are very annoying at times—and a good prospect, and you come of good people and you're a jolly fellow——"

"Stock advancing rapidly—strong bull movement—pork chops and preserved hay burners declining steadily—why I'm quite a catch!"

"There are worse ones."

"Do you know—excuse personalities—that you have a deuced pretty ankle?"

She surveyed it as it rested on the fender and blushed.

"That isn't my fault."

"But if prettiness could be called a fault then I'd like to shoulder the responsibility and call it my fault. May I?"

"Really, you must have been studying Delphic utterances yourself—I don't comprehend."

He moved to the lounge where she was sitting on one end.

"Don't Robert," she said.

"You said that once or twice before, but you didn't really mean it."

"Yes, I did—I do. Stop!"

"I won't—not until you promise to marry me. We will get along alright—a flat isn't so bad and a cottage is delightful."

"It sounds nice, and I'm tempted."

"Do dearest; we'd be happy and you'd never regret it—never."

"I'll think about it——"

"No, you won't. Yes or no, right now!"

"Well—n—yes!"

And late that night at the front door she leaned out and said:

"Robert, I've changed my mind—it's no. The cottage and flat may be very nice, but—I'll take the brownstone and boulevard."

"Well, I'll be damned," said Robert as he walked down the street wondering.

"Well, old Chops may die some day—then maybe she'll take me, and she'll have all the money too. Maybe it's all right, but its devilish hard now. I hate to see her marry that beast, though."

He turned into his club.

"Party at the 'phone wants you right this minute sir!" said the porter. Robert went to the phone.

"Is that you Robert?"

"Yes, what is it?"

"I just wanted to tell you that I've changed my mind, and I can't bear the idea of losing you, and I'll never eat another pork chop as long as I live, and I'll marry you in the morning before breakfast, and I won't live in a brownstone on the boulevard, if you had it!"

"Well, I'll be da——! All right—thanks—I'll be around at 8 in the morning with the preacher, before you change your mind again."

THE SAMPSON-SCHLEY AFFAIR

Washington, Aug. 29.—Admiral Sampson was informed on the evening of July 2, at least thirty hours before Admiral Cervera made his dash from the harbor of Santiago, that the Spanish fleet would attempt to run the blockade of the United States ships of war on the following day, July 3. This intelligence was sent to Sampson by an officer of his fleet just before dark.

Sampson ignored the information and on the following morning, took the New York, his flagship; the torpedo-boat Ericsson, and the despatch-boat Hist out of the blockading line and started for Siboney to hold a conference with Shafter. The officer in question was so worried that he scarcely slept during the night of July 2, but maintained an almost unbroken vigil on the flying-bridge of his ship.

The Washington correspondent of the Chronicle is enabled to make the foregoing statements on the highest possible authority but for obvious reasons cannot publish the name of their author. It can be stated, however, that

As Sampson himself will be on the stand as a witness, he will doubtless explain why he quit the blockading line in the face of the information that he had received on the previous night. The fact that he had previously assigned to every subordinate officer every task to which was attached the slightest peril will have a strong bearing upon this particular inquiry.

GARCIA KNEW OF THE PLAN.

The records of the war department indicate strongly that Sampson had received information of the proposed flight of Cervera from General Garcia also on July 2. Garcia is dead and his testimony therefore cannot be obtained. Sampson himself knows whether the gallant Cuban gave him warning of Cervera's plans and, inasmuch as the admiral has never indicated in his reports that such was the case, it is presumed that he will deny at this time that Garcia sent him the news for which the fleet had waited patiently for more than a month. Garcia was in possession of the news on July 2, as is shown by the following extract from a dispatch to the secretary of war, which General Shafter cabled from his headquarters on July 3:

"The French Consul informed General Garcia, into whose lines he went yesterday that Admiral Cervera had stated that he would run out at ten o'clock this morning and that was the hour witnessed his departure. Cervera told such consul it was better to die fighting than blow up ships in the harbor."

There is absolutely nothing in the record to show that General Shafter was apprised of Cervera's contemplated dash until the forenoon of July 3, hence the story that Shafter communicated the news to Sampson is unsupported. On the contrary, the Chronicle's Washington correspondent has been reliably informed that Shafter did not send word to Sampson about Cervera's purpose to escape because he did not know about it until July 3. It does not follow, however, that because the news was delayed in reaching Shafter that Garcia did not communicate it direct to Sampson. His camp was close to the coast than any of Shafter's aids. He had maintained regular communication with Sampson by a code of signals furnished him by General Miles since June 6, and it is known that there was almost daily interchange of communications between Garcia and the flagship by means of wigwag signals.

KEPT THE NAVY POSTED.

Here is an extract from a letter General Garcia wrote Miles on June 2, in which he placed him in possession of the wigwag code for communicating with the navy:

"It would be of great assistance if you could have as large a force as possible in the vicinity of the harbor of Santiago and communicate any information by signals which Colonel Hernandez will explain to you, either to our navy or to our army, which will arrive before many days."

On June 6 General Miles received from Sampson a despatch stating that General Garcia regarded his suggestions as orders and that he would take immediate steps to do as the major general of the United States army directed. Garcia maintained communication with the navy up to the moment the signal service corps relieved him of the task, after Cervera's fleet had been destroyed.

If Garcia did not notify Sampson of the French consul's statement he clearly failed in his duty, but the fact remains that Sampson did receive notification of the proposed movement from an officer of his own fleet thirty hours before the battle, and that in spite of it he started for Siboney half an hour before the fighting began and was never within range of a hostile gun afterward.

ASKS FORSYTHE TO EXPLAIN.

The navy department has written a letter to Captain Forsythe asking for an explanation of the interview with him bearing on the approaching inquiry into Admiral Schley's conduct in the Spanish war published today.

A story is current to-night that Admiral Howison may be asked to be relieved from acting as a member of the court of inquiry, but the navy department declares it has heard nothing about it.

SURE OF A STRONG FRIEND.

London, August 28—The Times, in an editorial on Central and South American politics, says it is not easy for European observers to follow the obscure revolutionary movements in the Central American Republics. The point at which they interest Europe is the point where they begin to interest the United States by virtue of the Monroe Doctrine.

The United States claims to exercise a sort of moral hegemony over the minor States of Central and South America. These may learn that they have nothing to fear from the moral hegemony which the United States must exercise over their destiny, and that they have everything to gain from the friendship and good will of the most powerful and most prosperous community of the New World.

THE STEEL STRIKE

Pittsburg, Aug. 28.—Probably peace for the striking steel workers within ten days was the interesting topic in strike circles here today, but nothing definite could be learned. President Shaffer was averse to talking on the subject. Finally he said that while the report might be true he had no knowledge of it. He did not see how a settlement could be effected without the Amalgamated Association, and while some might hope for such good luck, yet in the face of gains made by the strikers he would not back down from his original position.

The steel officials reiterated their previous statements that no overtures for peace had come from the strikers and that the strike could be settled only by the return of the men to their places.

The peace proposition sent out by President Shaffer to the members of the Executive Board of the Amalgamated Association for their approval previous to the presentation to the United States Steel Corporation by the representatives of the National Civic Federation, lent color to the peace rumors, and the provisions of the plant were being discussed today by the strikers at Lindsay and McCutcheon's works.

The proposition provides for a provisional scale, not to be signed for this plant, leaving recognition of the union open. The men stated that they were prepared to return to work tomorrow under these conditions. They stated that all they would require would be that the amalgamated scale be paid, and that union men be allowed perfect liberty and no discrimination.

Notwithstanding the reports that all preparations had been made, the tin plate mill and Demmler did not resume this morning. There was much excitement in the vicinity of the plant all night, and several hundred strikers guarded the approaches to the property, but no new men appeared, and there was not the slightest disorder.

STATUS OF THE STRIKE.

Pittsburg, Aug. 28.—The rumors of negotiations for peace in the steel strike have been denied by both the Amalgamated Association and the steel officials. The American Tin Plate Company has announced that the mills in operation during the strike will be run as non-union in the future. The Tin Plate has always been a stronghold of the Amalgamated. The organized tube-makers who are out on strike, in sympathy with the Amalgamated, will receive no strike allowance from their union. They left their shops without submitting their grievances to the Executive Council.

Painters' mill—Six mills being operated and management says plenty of good material is being turned out.

Star mill—Men still at work upon two mills. No more men have entered the plants. Third turn may be put on at midnight.

Lindsay and McCutcheon mill—Several men secured. Two mills open with separate crews.

Clark and Union mills—Captain L. T. Brown says the strike is over so far as these mills are concerned. Strikers say the mills are not running full.

McKeesport—Representatives of the tub workers decided to stand by the Amalgamated officials. Demmler plant may be started this week.

The one place within this district where strikers have scored a victory is at Irondale, Ohio. At this place the American Tin Plate Company was compelled to close down its recently opened plant for lack of men to operate it. The day was full of excitement in the little village, and street fights came thick and fast for a time, until the inhabitants were wrought into a state of excitement bordering on terror. Reports from all the mills now partially operated with non-union men are to the effect that the management is making gains in its force, and as a rule time is being given towards inducing the old men to return to their places. It is said that in most cases these works had been successful. Officials of the Demmler Tin Mills have announced their intention to start that plan during the present week. It is claimed that the men to operate the mill will come from the ranks of the former employes and no men will be imported.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug 28.—The strike situation at the Crescent Mills seems to favor the Steel Corporation. Three of the six mills are in full operation. Of the six mills are in full operation. One of the mills is operated by men who are said to have left the ranks of their union brethern. Three experienced union men deserted last night. The mill officials state that more men are expected from the east within a day or two.

THE CORONATION OATH

Montreal, August 28—The Herald, the organ of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, says this evening:—

In view of the approaching date when His Majesty King Edward VII will take the coronation oath, the hierarchy of the Catholic church are taking more active steps to have their protests against certain passages of the royal pledge reach the proper authorities with a view to having them eliminated.

While in the diocese of Montreal no announcement has been made of any such steps of the church authorities, the clergy of the diocese of Quebec have expressed their desire and that of their congregations in a petition which has just been framed, and which is to be forwarded to Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies.

In an interview with a Herald representative, Mgr. Racicot, Vicar-General of the diocese of Montreal, has already stated that the authorities here are not desirous for the present of making any utterance on the subject. Further than that, Mgr. Racicot would not say. The petition of the Catholics of Quebec is not to be merely an explosion of the views and wishes of the clergy, but an expression of the opinion on the question of the members, both lay and clerical, of the Catholics of the diocese. The wording of the petition was heard in all the Quebec city churches at the different masses on Sunday and read as follows:

"Right Honorable Joseph Chamberlain, Minister of Colonies:—

"We regret that notwithstanding the energetic protests of the Catholic subjects of His Majesty you persist in retaining in the formula of the royal oath declarations which are contrary to the Catholic faith, as also to the spirit of justice and liberty which we have a right to expect from the people of England.

"This sectarian intolerance, dishonorable to England, cannot but alienate the hearts of a great number of the subjects of His Majesty. In the name of the Catholics of Canada, and in particular of the members of the parish of (name of church designated), Quebec, we declare our protest against the formula of the royal oath, and demand of the government of His Majesty the abolition of this vestige of hate and religious discord."

BOERS ARE STILL FULL OF FIGHT

London, Aug. 28—While Jas. G. Stowe, United States Consul to Cape Town, who arrived here to-day from South Africa, talked guardedly, as became his position, he said enough to bear out the general testimony that Great Britain has still a monster task in crushing the Boers.

"The South African problem is undoubtedly difficult and complicated," he said. "The topography of the country and the mobility of the Boers, whom the English columns are unable to pursue individually, render operations most difficult. The British are feeding many prisoners and providing for thousands of Boer families, all of which is very nice on the part of England. But in the meanwhile the war drags on. There is a great future for South Africa when peace is secured. The surface of her mineral wealth is scarcely scratched. Undoubtedly England is prepared to solve the problem of reunification, but when that will occur certainly no person at the Cape is able to say.

RESTOCKING THE LAKES

Dr. Alex. Bell, the popular and efficient Clerk of Burleigh, who resides at Apsley, informed The Times a few days ago that the settlers in the country around Apsley have been restocking the lakes there with bass. These fish increase very rapidly when given a chance, and the action of the settlers in thus taking the matter in their own hands, is worthy of commendation.

The Ontario Government should send up a consignment of Lake Erie bass, similar to those recently put in Stony Lake. We commend this matter to the attention of the Provincial Secretary, who will no doubt supplement the work of the settlers on the lines above suggested.

Will War on Mosquitoes.

Washington, Aug. 28.—Washington's health department is preparing to begin a coal-oil campaign against mosquitoes. Dr. Woodward recently asked for an appropriation of $25 to purchase oil with which to attack stagnant pools of water in which mosquitoes propagate. As a matter of fact the national capital is peculiarly free from this particular form of summer pest, which is all the more remarkable because of the surroundings. It has fleas that are at once voracious and lively; caterpillars that have a fondness for one's neck, and the greatest variety of bugs of all sorts to be found in any community on the continent, but the mosquito, except in certain sections, is a comparatively unknown misfortune.

INJURED IN A TROLLEY MISHAP

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 28.—Fourteen persons were injured in a collision between a Greenfield interurban car and a train on the belt railroad this morning. A freight engine with a dozen cars was approaching, and as the electric car reached the centre of the track the locomotive struck it and threw it to the side of the track. The electric car was new and of heavy construction and withstood the impact, otherwise the death list would have been heavy. The motorman and conductor were badly bruised.

MORE INSURGENTS GIVE UP

Manila, August 28.—Word was received to-day that the insurgent Colonel Loreel, with seventeen officers and thirteen men, had surrendered yesterday to Captain Brown of the Fourth infantry at Talisay. The surrender of numerous other smaller contingents last week brings the total to more than 100. Governor Taft is expected to return to Manila Friday after having appointed civil officials throughout all northern Luzon.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1895, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper, to any sufferer, on receipt of two stamps.

JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN.

—A good smart boy wanted for Times Bookstore.

—The opera season will open in Peterborough on Sept. 6th.

—The 57th Regiment will shoot at Curtis' Ranges on Labor Day

—Martin McDermott was charged with being a vagrant, and having no visible means of support. He was remanded for further hearing.

—Mr. G. C. Cox of Rochester caught 94 pounds of maskinonge in one day at Stony Lake Mr. Crower of Cleveland caught 21 bass in one day.

—Mr. James Stevenson occupied the bench again this morning in the absence of Police Magistrate Dumble, who is enjoying a holiday up the lakes.

—Who said the drummers of the bugle band couldn't beat a hard boiled egg? They can beat anything, even to carpets or the cars. Look for them on Tuesday evening next.

—Mr. Asa Choate, of Port Hope, who met with an accident Wednesday morning while driving from his beautiful home "Belmont Farm" to town, has since died of his injuries. The funeral will take place on Sunday. The late Mr Choate was a widely known gentleman and has relatives in the vicinity of Peterborough.

—Mr. M. C. Tooley, of the Queen's Hotel, has been notified that he is the winner of the Shetland pony, which was disposed of in connection with the recent Roman Catholic Pic-nic at Havelock. Mr. Tooley left last night to claim the prize.

—The Toronto Star says that Manager E. R. Wood, of the Central Canada Loan Company, has taken out a permit for the erection of a $19,000 residence in Queen's Park, south of Bloor street, Toronto. Mr. Wood is a son of Mr. John Wood, Village Clerk, Ashburnham.

THE CORDAGE COMPANY.

Tenders Asked for Buildings to be Finished 1st December.

By advertisement it will be seen that the Cordage Company are asking for tenders for the erection of the manufacturing building, store houses, boiler room and office building. Contractors may tender for the entire block or separately for the various buildings or separately for the masonry and carpenter work. As the specifications call for the contract to be completed by the 1st of December it is evidently the intention of the company to have the plant in operation next season.

Fatality at Port Hope.

While Asa Choate, of Port Hope, was driving across a bridge east of that town, his horse became unmanageable and backed up against the side of the bridge and dumped the vehicle and Mr. Choate to the rock surface about 15 feet below. When reached by those who were near by it was seen that his injuries were of a very serious nature. His hip was broken, and the main artery of his leg was severed. Little if any hopes are entertained for his recovery. Mr. Choate is about 65 years of age, and is one of the most prominent men in the district.

Harry Lithgow, a young man who resides at Port Hope, met a horrible death while stealing a ride on the bumpers of a train going to Cobourg. He in some manner fell from his position and had both legs taken off by the wheels of the moving train.

Death of Roy Cox.

Mr. an Mrs. Henry Cox, Ashburnham, have the sympathy of friends in the bereavement they have experienced through the death of their nine-year-old son, Roy, which occurred at St. Joseph's hospital. Scarlet fever was the cause of his demise. The funeral took place yesterday to Little Lake cemetery.

—Mr. Dan. Baptiste, of the firm of Robt. Dillon & Co., Toronto, is superintending the erection of the sheet metal work on the new building at the Canadian General.

—Miss Campbell, of J. C. Turnbull & Co's millinery department, has returned from New York, where she visited the leading wholesale millinery houses, and is now picking up new ideas in the Toronto wholesales.

—Mr. Henry Watt, late Manager of the Peterborough Underwear Company, left yesterday for his former home in Cohoes, New York. During his stay in town he made a host of friends, all of whom regret his leaving town.

Mr. R. H. Henderson, late of New York and Barrie, has taken the position recently vacated by Mr. H. A. Melville at F. A. Clarke's hat and fur store. Mr. Henderson has been through the Cuban war and the South African campaign.

—Mr. Fred Armstrong and Mrs. Armstrong, of London, England, are the guests of the former's father, Mr. W. H. Armstrong, Millbrook. Mr. Fred Armstrong was at one time connected with the Canadian General Electric Co.

—Mrs. W. A. Hurley, son and daughter, of Laporte, Indiana, returned home yesterday after spending several days with Mrs. Dr. Coughlan and Mrs. E. J. McCarthy in Hastings, as well as a few days with Mr. and Mrs. T. Hurley, Hunter street, town.

—Mr. Alex. Waddell, who for the past number of years has been connected with the local office of the Sun Life Insurance Company, under Mr. Hill, intends leaving on Saturday for Halifax, where he will take a more lucrative position in the employ of the company. Mr. Waddell has many friends here who will be glad to learn of his progress. He has held the position of secretary of the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church.

Prosperity Smiles Upon Him.

Lindsay Post: Mrs. J. Frances, of Dawson city, is at present visiting friends in the east ward, and will shortly be joined by her husband who has been transacting business at Ottawa. After a visit to friends in other parts of Ontario they will return to the Yukon before frost sets in. Many in Lindsay and district will remember Jack France as an expert lumberman, he having worked for local and Peterborough firms for a number of years. In August, 1897, he started out in search of wealth in the country that was at that time attracting thousands of fortune seekers from all parts of the world. On the way out he lost everything in the shape of an outfit, but he continued his journey nevertheless under trying difficulties. The first two years were not very successful, but Mrs. France followed her husband out north at the end of the second year. Finally one of Mr. France's claims began to turn out pretty well, and a second one which he has since acquired has given splendid results. This year's clean up brought him about $5,400. His claims are about 700 miles back of Dawson city, and he has about fifteen men employed at the work.

Life at Dawson appears to agree with Mr. and Mrs. France, but living is very high, $30 a hundred is the price flour commonly brings.

Mr. France is yet a young man, being only about 38 years of age. He is worth anywhere between fifty and one hundred thousand dollars, but is not satisfied with this. He will continue working his claims in which he has great faith.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION.

Many events are included in the programme of sports for next Monday at Chemong, under the auspices of Labor Union No. 9240, and the prizes are liberal. There will be races for different classes from men over 80 to girls under 8, besides baseball match, tug-of-war, bicycle race, jumping, etc. An Italian orchestra will be in attendance. Entrance fee to all events 25c., except ladies', girls' and boys' races, which will be free. Admission to the grounds free. Those who do not bring baskets can get their meals at the hotel. Bus will leave S.O.E. Hall at 9 a.m., return tickets 25c.

THE "HOOLIGANS" TOO POWERFUL.

Protestants Want More Representetives on Branch of Bishops

LORD SALISBUY IS PARTIAL

London, Aug. 29.—Lord Salisbury's ecclesiastical patronage has been exercised for so long a period of time that only five prelates now on the Bench of the Bishops were not nominated by him. The result of this prolonged stretch of patronage has been to purduce something like theological unanimity among the mitres. Resentment, not loud, but deep, among those churchmen who do not hold Lord Salisbury's views (or those of his sons) is the natural consequence. The Prime Minister is believed to be greatly influenced by his family, and his family's opinions are known to be largely moulded by those of the Bishop of Rochester—a High Churchman of much force of character. Lord Hugh Cecil, member of Parliament for Greenwick; Earl Percy, the eldest son of the Duke of Northumberland, and one or two more earnest mined and ecclesiastically inclined young men in the House of Commons exercise no small influence in church matters. They are politically known as "the Hooligans," as their affection for Catholic Anglicanism and their earnestness and sincerity of view distinguish them from the self-seeking, epicurean notoriety hunters of which the House of Commons so largely consists. These "Hooligans" are intensely—almost fanatically,—High Church. Consequently any addition to the prelacy chosen from Evangelical or Broad Church ranks excites them to frenzy.

At the present time there are three vacancies on the bench. One see—that of Durham—was once the seat of a Prince-Bishop. Although shorn of its territorial grandeur, the Bishopric of Durham is still one of the splendid prizes church preferment can bestow. The income of the see is £8,000 a year, and one of the finest medieval palaces in the kingdom. The see of Durham is seldom filled by appointment from the ranks of the inferior clergy. The usual practice is to supply the vacancy by the translation of a bishop from a less important see. Considerable—I might say intense—interest is now felt as to the line that the Premier will take in filling the vacant see of Durham. Protestantism in the Church is scarcely represented on the bench, and Protestantism accordingly is crying aloud for the grant of a representative. Dr. Welldon, until three years ago head master of Harrow, and now Bishop of Calcutta and Metropolitan of India, is at home on leave. Both his friends and his enemies are numerous, for he is a strong personality. As a close friend and college contemporary of Lord Curzon at Eton and Oxford, Dr. Welldon is supposed by many to stand a good chance of translation to Durham. He is a bachelor, a Broad Churchman and a scholar of no mean pretensions.

The appointment of an English Bishop is one of the survivals of medievalism which cannot long continue in its present form. The scandal of episcopal "elections" is a very real one, and the fact that the dawn of the twentieth century still finds England pursuing the superstitutious and irreverent folly of the dark ages in the appointment of her Bishops is an indication of the depth and substance of our national Toryism. The bishoprics now vacant—Durham, Worcester and Hereford—are the objects of vigorous ecclesiastical intrigue, and there will be much demure joy and bitter disappointment on one side or the other, according to the Prime Minister's choice. It is understood that the King is really broad-minded in these matters, and thinks that all views should be fairly represented in the Bishops' Bench in the House of Lords, but the King is too Erastian for the Parliamentary "Hooligans," and I am not at all sure that in this matter the "Hooligans" will not carry their point.

The Critical Age.

Height of vigor past—nature's power slowing down, vitality less, recuperative power less, endurance less. Stop the progress of decay, tone up the weakened nerve centres, impart vigor to the tiring brain, prepare for the crisis. A means of remarkable potency in the renewal of decreasing vigor is found in Ferrozone. It brightens up the whole being, imparts a sense of power and strength. By the use of Ferrozone, old age is pushed back twenty years. Ferrozone gives strength, vigor, endurance, vim. Your druggist has it. Get a box to-day from Ormond & Walsh.

SOULANGES CANAL.

Notice to Manufacturers of and Dealers of Cement

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tenders for Cement," will be received at this office up to sixteen o'clock on Wednesday, the 4th September, 1901, for the supply and immediate delivery of 3,600 barrels of Portland cement, at a point on the canal where directed.

In the case of firms there must be attached the actual signatures of the full name, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the same, and further, an accepted bank cheque for ten per cent of the total amount tendered for must accompany the tender! This accepted cheque must be endorsed over to the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The accepted cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By Order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary

Department of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa, 27th August, 1901

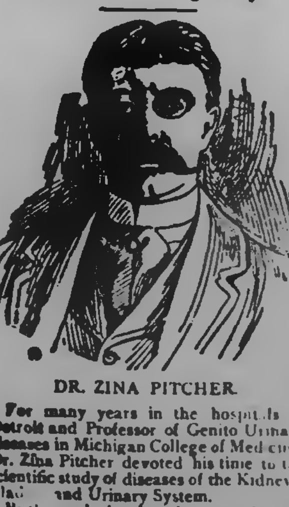
Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

Our New Reporter.

The Times had a call from a young man who wanted to go on the staff as reporter. He was told "always to be on the lookout for any touch of humor that may brighten up our columns." That night the new reporter turned in a story about a burglary in a butcher's shop which commenced, "Mr. Percy Kennedy is losing flesh rapidly these days." We fired him at once.

The Great Kidney Specialist.

The Famous Physician Who Has Made Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Diseases a Life Long Study.



DR. ZINA PITCHER.

For many years in the hospitals of Detroit and Professor of Genito Urinary diseases in Michigan College of Medicine Dr. Zina Pitcher devoted his time to the scientific study of diseases of the Kidney, Bladder and Urinary System.

By this exclusive devotion to one branch of medical investigation Dr. Pitcher was enabled to perfect a treatment for Kidney troubles that far surpasses any other remedy.

After testing it extensively in private and hospital practice and demonstrating its incomparable superiority to all other forms of treatment, Dr. Pitcher decided to give this great boon to suffering humanity at large and not confine it exclusively to the circles of his private and hospital patients.

He has placed his remedy before the public under the name of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and so confident is he of the positive curative qualities of these Tablets for backache, lame or weak back, drowsiness, headaches, pain in the loins, brick dust deposits in the urine, puffiness under the eyes, swelling of the feet and ankles, scalding, irritation, frequent rising at night, dribbling, inflammation or ulceration of the bladder, gravel, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease and Diabetes (except in the last stages), bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, constipation, puffy and pasty appearance of the face, dropsy, backache and weakness of women, urinary weakness of children and old people or any symptomatic indications of Kidney disease that to anyone suffering from any of the above troubles, who uses the Tablets faithfully, according to directions, and derives no benefit therefrom, their money will be cheerfully refunded.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists or sent by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

NICARAGUA CANAL NOT PRACTICABLE

This May Solve a Great International Difficulty.

BRITAIN AND THE STATES

Why the United States Should Complete the Panama Ditch.

Paris, Aug. 30—The Nicaragua canal is an engineering impossibility. It will never be built. The American people are the richest in money and in energy to be found in all the world, but they are not rich enough to construct a canal on the Nicaragua route.

This is the emphatic judgment of a man who may be worth listening to. It is M. Philippe Bunau-Varilla, who thus condemns the isthmian route of the great majority of the American people. Mr. Bunau-Varilla was once chief engineer of the Panama canal and under his administration a large part of the actual excavation at Panama was carried on. It is true that this engineer is an eager partizan of Panama. It is true that he is a prejudiced witness, and that he had recently made a valient though unsuccessful effort to arouse a new French sentiment and to enlist new French capital for finishing the great work with which it for years had such an important connection. At the same time it may be worth the while of America to listen to his arguments.

"I do not say that the Nicaragua canal is a physical impossibility," explained M. Bunau-Varilla. If American public opinion [illegible] upon constructing a canal [illegible], and your Congress yields [illegible] pressure and orders a beginning of the work, I predict that it will never be completed. After some years the enormity of the difficulties encountered will compel its abandonment. I predict that after hundreds of millions have been wasted in the [illegible] of realizing a [illegible] route, your country will turn to Panama and there finish the isthmian channel indicated by nature as the true and reasonable route.

"After a profound study of this entire problem I am willing to say, as an engineer who measures well his words, that it will cost 500 million dollars to open a canal through Nicaragua and that when it is opened there can be no assurance of its safety and preservation. It may be destroyed by floods. Even if kept open, its success is doubtful on account of the hazards which ships must incur in passing through it and the high rate of insurance that will be compelled to pay on account thereof.

"The difficulties of the Nicaragua route are not found in piercing the continental backbone proper. In cutting the ridge between the Pacific and Lake Nicaragua it is necessary only to make the channel seventeen miles long and [illegible], only forty-five feet above the waters of the lake, whereas at Panama the cut is forty-five miles long, and the continental backbone rises [illegible] feet above the waters of the two oceans. If vessels now had free access from the Atlantic to Lake Nicaragua and it were only necessary to find the way of carrying them in from the lake to the Pacific there would be no doubt of the advantages of the Nicaragua route. It would be infinitely preferable to the Panama project.

"But when we examine the work which must be done between Lake Nicaragua and the Atlantic we find a series of difficulties, so great that they may be fairly called physical impossibilities.

"It is necessary to construct in the bed of the river San Juan for a distance of fifty miles a channel fifteen or twenty feet deep. This bed of the San Juan is composed of sand and mud. The currents of the stream are in places very rapid. Floods are frequent. Numerous tributary streams pour into the San Juan, their waters filled with all sorts of debris. If such a channel were once excavated in the soft bed of this stream, it might be destroyed in six months. All the probabilities are it would not last a year. There could never be an absolutely safe passage for any ship, always the danger of the current breaking away those mud banks, filling the waterway and stranding the ships. Nothing except masonry of the most gigantic proportions could give a permanent and secure channel, but it is impossible to put in such work because there is no foundation for it. If once put in its bottom would be undermined by the currents and the whole thing would crumble to pieces. I have great respect for the distinguished engineers who compose the American Isthmian canal commission, and I shall be surprised if they do not point out the impossibility of successfully constructing a permanent canal in the bed of the San Juan. A canal cut through the hardest rock would be much cheaper in the end."

"Engineers know the dangers of this sort of work. And as to the feasibility of maintaining a canal of sort bed of a tortuous, rapidly flowing stream, at a depth of twenty-five to thirty-five feet, they know the story of the engineering art shows that this cannot be done. This sort of work has failed again and again, even when the depth sought was only three or four feet. Such channels invariably go to pieces. In the centre of Lake Nicaragua ships would have deep water and perhaps ample sea room in case of storms. But what shall be said of the canal, which it is necessary to dig through the shoal waters on the eastern waters of that lake for a distance of about twenty miles, between the lake proper and the San Juan? If a ship in passing through this narrow channel should be caught in one of the violent storms which rage in that country how are navigators to avert stranding and wreck in the muddy shoals which lie on either side?

"If we admit for the sake of argument that all these difficulties may be overcome there are others quite as formidable. Experience has shown that the navigation of a great ship in a narrow channel is not as easy and simple as it appears to be. Experience in the Suez canal has shown that the shortest describable radius curve is 10,000 feet, and that even in exceptional cases the minimum cannot be reduced below 8,000 feet, and this must be for navigation in calm water and without violent winds. In the Panama canal there will be twenty-three curves, of which three only are at the working minimum of 8,000 feet radius. In the Nicaragua route on account of the numerous turns and twists of the San Juan, there are to be, according to the plans of the American engineers, no fewer than eighty-two curves, and of this enormous number sixty-nine have a radius shorter than the minimum of 8,000 feet, and of these sixty-nine as many as fifty have such a small radius as 7,100 feet.

"Add to these many difficulties of handling large ships in the rapid current of the river, and the enormous discharge of flood seasons of the affluent, reaching often a total of more than 100,000 cubic feet a second, and taking into consideration also the violence of the winds which blow a large part of the year through the San Juan Valley and over Lake Nicaragua, I have no hesitation in saying that the Nicaragua canal is probably not constructible; it would soon be destroyed by natural agencies if constructed, and if opened and kept open for a certain length of time, would, on account of the great dangers of its navigation, offer small inducements to ships."

HOW GENERAL FRENCH DROVE OFF KRITZINGER

London, Aug. 30.— The accomplishment of the feat of driving Kritzinger across the Orange River by General French was a brilliant piece of work. The result is a complete disorganization of the Boer invaders of the Colony. On the night of the 9th inst. Kritzinger slept to the south of the Naauwpoort-Stormberg line, near Thebus. His forces were much scattered and demoralized. Col. Crabbe was lying the same night in close proximity to the enemy. On the night of the 11th Kritzinger himself and a few followers managed to cross the line near Thebus, while the bulk of his forces crossed at Schoombie, moving north beyond the Zuurberg.

Meanwhile Col. Gorringe had marched to Stormfontein, via Shanks, while Kritzinger, ignorant of this new danger, led his men to Roosfontein. There, on the afternoon of the 13th, they fell into Gorringe's hands, and received severe punishment. It was in this action that Commandant Cache' was mortally wounded and Kritzinger's secretary was taken prisoner.

Escaping hurriedly, the Boers marched north-west towards Transvaalkrantz, but Captains Nichalls and Sandeman were watching their movement, and during the night moved north from Steynsburg, while Col. Crabbe marched northwards from the western spur of the Zuurberg. Col. Gorringe also continued the pursuit, and caught up the enemy on the following afternoon in the Doornkloof Mountains Kritzinger himself just managed to escape. Col Gorringe, however, still followed the spoor, while Col. Crabbe moved to Tygershoek, and Captains Nickalls and Sandeman extended their forces with a wide front towards Venterstadt, in order to prevent the enemy breaking back. It was intended that this driving line, by the gradual closing in of its tough crescent formation, should finally take the form of a circle; but on the morning of the 15th Kritzinger, accompanied by remnants of his force, numbering about 100 men, crossed the Orange River at Frank's Drift. The enemy was vigorously shelled from the top of a small kopje on the north bank of the river. Many of the enemy were on foot, and all appeared to be thoroughly demoralized.

Cape Town, Aug. 30.—Two more rebels, who were found guilty by the Treason Court, have been shot at Graaf Reinet.

RURAL NATIVE LIFE ON CHINESE FARMS.

New York, Aug. 30.—Chinese farms within the limits of Greater New York are one of the curiosities offered by the Metropolis to the Sunday recreation seeker, and those to whom the unusual and bizarre are always welcome sights. On Long Island, near the Steinway road and Ninety-second street, Astoria, are three of these unique Oriental farms, each of which is to all appearance a portion of China transplanted to this side, affording one of the most picturesque sights of rural native life to be seen outside of the Flowery Kingdom itself. On the farms a typical colony of native farmers dwell in primitive huts and raise nothing but their own peculiar vegetables in their own peculiar way. The ground is tilled in the manner practiced by the Celestials a few thousand years ago, is laid out in even divisions, every square inch of the reservation being utilized as completely as if it were Wall street real estate. The farmers work with Chinese implements and while in the fields wear huge cone-shaped straw hats about the size of an ordinary umbrella. And though they practice the same methods and raise the same vegetables that were known to Confucius, they nevertheless outclass their Circassian neighbors, raising a greater quantity of produce and in a briefer period from identically the same soil. All the farming is done on the co-operative plan the output of the farms supplying the Chinese of New York with strictly native vegetables. The finest are purchased by the Chinese restaurants and the groceries in and about Mott street. All vegetables are sold by the pound, ranging from three to five cents for choice. As an American farmer the Chinaman is an undoubted success, artistically as well as productively. It is said that these Chinamen produce fully one-third more to the acre than their white neighbors.

CONTROL OF STREETS DEMANDED BY MAYORS

Representatives of Municipalities Resent Interference on Public Highways

TAXES TO BE IMPOSED ON THE PROPERTY OF THE GOVERNMENT.

Better Terms of Credit Asked for Municipalities—Government Employes Should Not be Exempt

Toronto, Aug. 30

The Union of Canadian Municipalities held an important session in the Council Chamber this morning. The members unanimously carried resolutions declaring that municipalities should have exclusive control of public highways; that property leased by governments should be taxed. That the scrap iron legislation should be altogether repealed; that a system of securing better credit terms for municipalities should be adopted; that government employees should not be exempted from taxation; and that the union protested against the questionable jurisdiction of the Railway Committee of the Privy Council to assess a portion of the cost of railway crossings on municipalities.

Only one resolution was not adopted, and it called for legislation permitting municipalities to secure coal direct from the mines and to sell it to private citizens when the ordinary market rates were excessive. Some of the members made fun of Mayor Morris, of Ottawa, the mover, and Ald. Graham, the seconder of the resolution, and several delegates characterized it as ridiculous. On motion of the Mayor of Tilsonburg, it was given the six months' hoist.

The Mayor of a little town in the Temiskaming district, named Ville Marie, sent a communication in French and Mayor Howland begged the convention to bear with him if he translated it slowly. The correspondent considered "the sources of revenue of the Federal and Provincial governments is not equitably divided." By the Act of Corporation the Federal had been granted the lion's share of the revenue, while the provinces had to be content with the share of the lamb. As a result the Federal Government had a surplus of several millions, while the provinces had insufficient funds. He suggested that the union apply to the Federal Government for a subsidy of say, $1,000,000 a year to be divided among the provinces for the aid of colonization at a per capita rate. This would give Ontario about $100,000 and Quebec $350,000, and would do much to make Canada great and prosperous. The communication was sent on to the Executive.

FULL CONTROL OF STREETS.

The first resolution brought in by the Resolution Committee was moved by Mayor Lighthall of Westmount. It provided for the full and exclusive control of streets by the municipalities, and declared that the union of Canadian municipalities would resolutely fight any invasion of their rights by legislation or otherwise.

In support of his motion, the mover referred to a condition of things in Montreal, where the railway had secured unusual rights within a radius of one hundred miles. It was an outrage. He understood the city of Toronto had the similar experience with the Bell Telephone Company.

Mayor Rumball, London, was not in hearty sympathy with the resolution and his remarks came in the nature of a shock to the union. He said he feared the resolution went too far, and if forced it would tend to block some great enterprise that would be a stimulus to the industries of the country.

Dr Mearns, Mayor of Woodstock, thought the resolution was rather obscure, but he was in sympathy with it to a certain extent. The trouble was the crown was entitled to the control of the highways. He agreed that corporations were encroaching in a manner that should not be tolerated for a single moment. He was sorry the legislators of the country appeared to hold briefs for the corporations. They should be given to understand that the eyes of the municipalities were upon them, and that the granting of extraordinary powers upon streets would no longer be tolerated.

Ald Urquhart, Toronto, pointed out that the objection raised by the previous speaker that the crown controlled the streets was not well grounded, for the highways were vested in the crown for the benefit of the municipalities.

Mayor Radenhurst, Barrie, thought the matter was a very important one, and he supported the resolution. Mayor Chant, St. Thomas, did likewise.

SCORED THE COMBINES.

Councilor Stark of Finch Township, Stowmount County, made a rattling speech. He said the combines had the upper hand, and called upon the union to teach legislators that they must acquiesce in the desires of the electors.

Acting Mayor Macrae, of St. John N.B. never expected an ideal condition, but he thought the resolution was all right.

Mayor Howland said the resolution simply declared a principle and had no law about it.

Mayor Reid, of Owen Sound, complained that his town was not too small to have felt the grip of corporations, who wanted the use of its streets.

Ald Hubbard, Toronto, wondered whether municipalities had any rights corporations were bound to observe. They should look after their own rights, and "let the other fellow do the kicking." He would like to see the resolution made the law of the land.

Ald Sheppard, Toronto demanded equity for all parties—for the people, the corporations and the municipalities—whether by law or otherwise. The people should demand, and the legislators would have to listen.

GOVERNMENT LEASES.

A resolution by Mayor Morris, of Ottawa, was carried unanimously. It provided that private property, leased by the Government should not be exempted from taxation. In Ottawa so much property was leased by the Government and rented, that the city had a positive grievance. He thought an agreement should be made providing that either the Government or the leaseholder should pay taxes on the property.

Mayor Rundle, London said the resolution did not go far enough. All property, including churches, should be assessed.

The union also adopted a resolution declaring that the whole scrap iron legislation should be repealed speedily. The mover, Mayor Morris, of Ottawa, said the Capital had suffered much from the junk assessment. The law at present was too vague.

Mayor Wood, Brantford, said, the people should stand no jollying or juggling from legislators.

Mayor Walker, Petrolea, remarked that his town got little revenue from the Bell Telephone Company, owing to the scrap iron assessment.

Mayor Daville, Aurora, favored the resolution. Another delegate thought that the courts, not the Government was the blame.

Mayor Howland's scheme to improve the credit of the municipalities throughout Canada met with favor in the eyes of the delegates, and a resolution approving of the same was sent on to the Executive which will formulate a policy for adoption.

His Worship declared that by a combination of the municipalities to secure better terms of credit, money could be secured at 3 per cent instead of 5 per cent., as at present. When it was considered that the debt of Canadian municipalities aggregated 55 million dollars, it would be seen how important a reduction would be. He estimated a saving of $1,000,000 annually would be effected. His Worship also stated that he did not despair of seeing the union with a revenue of $100,000 per annum, but he failed to elucidate where the money was to come from. The town of Tilsonburg was congratulated on being practically free from debt.

The resolution for the exemption of Government property and Government officials from taxation was passed without much discussion. Acting Mayor Macrae, of St. John, N.B., said he had received a telegram asking him to support it. Mayor Howland's resolution protesting against the practice of the Railway Committee of assessing part of the cost of railway crossings upon municipalities, without direct jurisdiction was adopted. It declared that, if necessary the matter should be taken to the highest court in the Empire.

In advocating his motion in favor of securing legislation permitting municipalities to purchase and sell coal to citizens when the market price had been excessively high for some time, Mayor Morris said that in Ottawa the local combine had put the price of coal up to $7 a ton. It was an outrage and it was time that necessity was municipalized.

Mayor White, Port Hope, thought the matter was one in which the union should proceed carefully. He hoped at its inception the union should allow nothing to go out to the world of a ridiculous character. He believed the matter was entirely outside of the objects of the association. The shortage of coal was a matter of an individual nature. Municipalities should not be encouraged to go into the retail trade business, and he protested against the resolution.

Mayor Chant, St. Thomas, said water, gas and other commodities were municipalized, and he saw no reason why the resolution should not be carried.

Mayor Rumball, London, treated the resolution very lightly. In fact, he thought it was ridiculous. Coal was no more a necessity than beef. Municipalities would do better to mind their own business.

MAYOR MEARN'S OBJECT

Mayor Mearns of Woodstock did not believe in making department stores of municipalities. He was sorry for the people of Ottawa. If they had a few patriotic citizens to go into the coal business, then wrongs could be remedied.

Ald. Urquhart spoke ably in favor of the resolution, pointing out that the city and that Glasgow, Scotland, which was away to the forefront of cities, had just purchased municipal coal yards.

Mayor Morris of Tilsonburg moved the six months' hoist, and after some further discussion it was carried by a vote of 20 to 12.

Ald. Urquhart tried to have adopted a resolution which had been sent to the Resolution Committee but which had not been reported upon. It was perhaps the most important matter mentioned at the meeting and emphasized the principle that any undertaking requiring the use of the city streets should be municipalized, but Mayor Howland did not want the matter taken up. Ald. Cox moved an adjournment, and a hearing was refused Ald. Urquhart, although he explained that he could not be present at the closing session this afternoon.

SWAYS 10,000 HEARTS

Wonderful Eloquence of the Boy Preacher Now in America.

WONDERFUL SCENES AT SERVICES

Ashbury, Park, N. J., Aug. 30.—In the Ocean Grove auditorium last night a remarkable spectacle was witnessed when Claude Hanbury Cooke, the boy evangelist, fifteen years old, and his brother, Hayden Cooke, a year or more older, preached to an audience of more than ten thousand persons.

As the auditorium was completely filled scores of persons in order to hear the boy evangelists' somewhat indistinct utterances crowded to the altar, where they knelt at the rail or sat on where they knelt at the rail or sat on the floor both inside the altar and in the aisles. Hundreds of persons stood throughout the long sermon and among those who did so, or who occupied the still more tiresome position on the floor were old men and women, whose heads, covered with scant gray hair, were bowed in reverent attention before the boy preachers.

In the first part of the meeting the boy prodigy interpreted various verses of scripture submitted to him by the congregation. In fact, his text was selected by a vote of the congregation from passages of scripture that had been suggested.

When the Rev. Thomas O'Hanlon, president of Pennington Seminary, for an denid that, in view of the fact that the all important object of the camp meeting is "How to get salvation," he would suggest the text What Shall We Do to Be Saved? this was accepted unanimously by a vote of the congregation. Without any preparation, the lad began to preach a sermon on this text. Burning words poured from his youthful mouth and the audience was entranced yb his eloquence.

To accentuate his youthful appearance, he was attired in knicker-bockers, a round jacket and a white turnover linen collar. He wore black silk stockings and patent leather shoes. He had a voice lik ea woman, and an English accent. His brother, who gave out the hymns, was in long trousers, an dwore his yellow hair "a la Fauntleroy." The boy phenomenon has been touring this country for three years, before that having preached in Manchester, his home, for one year.

Bishop James Fitzgerald, president of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting association, heard th elad preach in St. Louis, where he conducted sixty meetings and hundreds were brought to embrace religion through his efforts. The bishop was so much impressed with the English lad that he had him come to the Ocean Grove camp meeting.

How a Sprain Does Hurt!

But it isn't the pain alone that is dreaded, just think of the loss of time and wages. Sprains without number have been cured by rubbing Polson's Nerviline well into the pores of the skin surrounding the joint. No matter whether it is a sprained wrist, ankle, knee or back, just try Nerviline on it, and see how quickly it will cure. There is only one liniment that can be depended upon to cure sprains, strains and swellings, and that is Polson's Nerviline. Large bottle 25 cents.

EUROPE'S GRAIN TRADE

Sharp Rivalry Between Russia and United States.

GROWTH OF AMERICAN EXPORTS

Washington, August 30—The State Department has received from Consular Agent Harris, at Eibenstock, a report showing the extent of Germany's grain importation from Russia and from the United States. In 1897 Russia sold Germany $27,302,410 worth more of grain than did the United States, but in 1900 the United States was only $4,947,250 worth behind her European rival.

Mr. Harris says the competition between Russia and the United States to supply the non-producing grain countries of Europe will become sharper every year. New railroads and canals building in Russia will enable her to move her crops with more ease toward the German frontier than formerly, and when Austria has completed her network of canals a direct water communication from Russia to the heart of Germany will be established.

The only thing which will enable the United States in the future to compete successfully with Russia in the grain markets of Germany will be cheaper ocean freight rates.

THE TWO REPUBLICS NOW AT WAR

There Will be no Formal Declaration o[illegible] War

BUT CONFLICT ALREADY EXISTS.

Kingston, Jamaica, August 30—War already exists between Colombia and Venezuela, according to South American exiles, a leading official on the isthmus said today. "There has been no declaration of war, and there will be none," he continued, "for none is necessary. Venezuela Liberals openly aid the Colombian rebels, and now the Colombian Government, in turn, assists President Castro's enemies in their attempts to overthrow him. It is claimed that they will succeed in this, and then the Government will give attention to Nicaragua and punish President Zelaya."

The Colombian warship, General Pinzon, formerly the Namouna, is still at Sabanilla, with General Alban on board. The vessel cannot sail without more officers. When General Jeffries took her from Colon, he had only one officer under him, and this man became insane after one day out.

The condition of affairs on the isthmus is very threatening. The Liberals assert that raids along the railroad are made with the intention of inducing a foreign Government to follow and attack the raiders in their mountain stronghold. A gentleman who has just arrived from the isthmus says he visited the camp of a thousand men, who were so entrenched that a hundred times their number could not dislodge them.

The rebels still hesitate to attack Colon or Panama, on account of the scarcity of guns and ammunition. They expect a large shipment soon.

GUNBOAT AT COLON

Panama, Colombia, August 30—The American gunboat Machias arrived at Colon this evening to guard American interests on the isthmus. A German war ship is expected to arrive soon from Trinidad.

REBELS THREATEN A TOWN

Colon, Columbia, Aug. 30—A report is circulated here to the effect that the rebels now threatening the town of Boca del Torro hail from Bluefields, Nicaragua.

AS VIEWED IN PARIS.

Paris, August 30—The Matin says, on South America: The curtain will shortly rise on the Venezuela-Colombian play. It promises to be interesting. The greater part of the plot has, in fact, been provided by the United States. It is to be hoped that everything will pass off satisfactorily; that Barnum will keep his promise and not claim any authors' fees after the show, and that, as the final scene, there will not be a general fight among the spectators.

FOUR CHILDREN WERE SCALDED IN STEAMBOAT DISASTER

Philadelphia, Aug. 30.—Another body of a victim of Wednesday's steamboat disaster was recovered today from the Delaware River. It is supposed to be that of Harry Johnson, 36 years, a grocer of Hulmeville, Pa., who was on his way home from Philadelphia. He leaves a widow and five children. This makes the tenth body recovered, of which eight have been identified. Two bodies, those of a woman and a small girl, are unidentified. Nineteen are missing, and it is almost certain that all of these are dead. Of th eeight persons remaining in the hospital, two are almost certain to die. Thus the net result of the awful explosion will be in the neighborhood of thirty deaths.

PASSENGERS STATEMENT

A statement today made by Mrs. B. Grant Clapham, who was a passenger on the City of Trenton with her two daughers, Edna, aged 7, and Amanda, aged 5, establishes beyond reasonable doubt the fate of Mrs. William H. Keen, who had been reported among the missing. Mrs. Clapham was in the cabin of the steamboat when the explosion occurred. She was severely hurt and scalded by escaping steam, and became separated from her children. While making a frantic search for her little ones, Mrs. Clapham says she was accosted by Mrs. Keen, who says she was badly injured, and begged piteously for assistance. Mrs Clapham was forced to leave Mrs. Keen to search for her children. She found both of them scalded by steam, but succeeded in getting them to a place of safety, from which they were taken by the rescuers. Until today Mrs. Clapham was too much prostrated to make her statement regarding Mrs. Keen.

William H. Keen, the husband of the woman now placed in the list of known dead, took his wife and their daughter, Fanny H. Keen, 20 years of age, to the city of Trenton on a pleasure trip. He was found crushed to death in the ruins of the steamboat. The daughter was terribly burned and scalded, and the hospital physicians say she cannot recover. With the death of the daughter the entire Keen family will be wiped out of existence. Mr. KKeen was th esuperintendent of a large Philadelphia dairy.

DEPUTATION OF MILWAUKEE MEN TALK TO SHAFFER

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 30. — The most important feature presented in the steel strike today was the conference of a committee of the Bay View Amalgamated Lodge of Milwaukee and the officials of the association at the headquarters. The meeting began early and was continued for several hours. Those taking part were J. D. Hickey, an ex-official of the Bay View Lodge, and President Shaffer, Secretary Williams, and Assistant Secretary Tighe, who has just returned from the West. It is said that the Milwaukee committee was sent here by direction of a secret meeting of the lodge to look into the situation and report at a meeting to be held upon their return home. There is no certainty as to what their report will be to their lodge, but their mission, it is said, was to arrange if possible for their co-workers to resume work in the Bay View mills.

To be Repeated.

The success of the professional and business men's excursion down the river on Thursday afternoon was so pronounced that the suggestion that another trip be made was generally favored to have the second trip on Wednesday next and to extend invitations to the ladies. Tickets will be issued at the rate of $1.50 per couple and dinner will be served at Idyl Wyld.

HUMAN LIVES SISHED IN FEVER TESTS

EXPERIMENTS ARE SATISFACTORY

Havanna, August 30—Of the eight persons bitten by infected mosquitoes in connection with the experiments conducted by the Yellow Fever Board during the last three weeks, three have died. Three others who took the fever are expected to recover. One has not developed the disease. The eighth person as yet has not developed yellow fever, although it is too early to say what may happen in that case.

Surgeon Major Reed intends to continue the investigations. Major Gorgas, chief sanitary officer, says the idea of the Yellow Fever Board, was to subject to mosquito infection as many as would volunteer.

Of 16 persons bitten, all had recovered, and the theory of the Board was that, if some hundred or more persons could have been bitten with similar results, a report could have been published showing how apparently safe it was to become immune. After this had been published the entire population might have been made immune. So many cases gave mild results that the impression was created that the danger was not so great as it has turned out to be.

Thus far during August there have been two deaths from yellow fever in Havanna as compared with an average of more than fifty for the month of August during the previous eleven years. Major Gorgas regards the experiment in mosquito infection as of immense service to science.

The man who was bitten by an infected mosquito after inoculation with the serum of Dr. Caldas, the Brazilian expert, has developed what seems to be symptoms of yellow fever. The Yellow Fever Board calls the case a suspect.

PETTYPIECE DISCUSEED DRYDEN INCIDENT

Watford, Aug. 30.—H. J. Pettypiece M.P.P. in accepting the nomination of East Lambton Liberals for the Legislature, referring to the Dryden incident, said that he was the representative of East Lambton, and did not believe that his constituents desired that circumstance should deprive him of the right to exercise his judgement. He was elected to do what was right. He was very heartily in accord with the policy of the Liberal Government, to which he had given a loyal support, but he honestly believed that the action of the Minister of Agriculture in reference to acquiring an interest in a ranch in a foreign country was not in the interests of Ontario, and as a journalist he had exercised his undoubted right of giving expression to that opinion. He felt that it was consistent with his loyalty to the Government and to the Minister of Agriculture, to whose great services to the province he was willing to accord the greatest credit. He felt that he had a right to comment upon an individual action of the Minister, which he considered did not tend to promote the interest of Ontario, which Mr. Dryden in his official capacity was splendidly subserving. He did not believe that the remarks he had felt it his duty to make would in the slightest degree adversely affect the Ross Government or Mr. Ross. His platform was so broad and so good that it would take much more to influence public opinion against it. Of course the Conservative press and politicans made much of the incident, not from any interest in agriculture, but because they believed they could make party gain. They deserved no credit for the course they had taken, because they did not originate the criticism, and the sting would be taken out by their remarks, but as a supporter, and a strong supporter at that, of Mr. Dryden's policy in promoting agricultural interests, he had felt it his duty as a public servant to express his opinion against the wisdom of an individual act. Hon. Mr. Stratton also made a speech.

TORONTO GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS TO BE ILLUMINATED

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—It is practically settled that the Toronto review will take place at the Exhibition grounds instead of at the Woodbine. The Minister of Militia has yet to pass on the matter, but the Major-General commanding has decided to recommend the Exhibition grounds after full consideration of the points of advantage offered by the two sites. The fact that there is accommodation on the grounds that can be utilized for housing and comfort of men and horses, has had considerable to do with the general's decision. The general himself will command both at Toronto and Quebec.

COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED.

An official enquiry has been ordered into the loss of th esteamer Islander on the way from Skageway to Vancouver. Instructions were transmitted last night that the investigation is to take place immediately and the court is to consist of Mr. Godin, agent of the Dominion Department of Marine and Fisheries, Mr. Thompson, one of the officers of the department, and Captain Walbran of the Government steamer Quadra.

FRANCE AND THE POPE.

The Embassy to the Vatican Will Soon be Discontinued.

Paris, August 30—The news that the Budget Committee of the French Chamber proposes the suppression of the French Embassy to the Pope was received with apparent indifference at the Vatican. An influencial curia prelate remarked with a shrug that in the French [illegible] last year a similar proposal was made by the anti-clericals and was defeated by a large majority, and that the present move will meet with the same fate. It is said, however, that the fact that the committee has made the proposal this year with only one dissentient voice is a cause of great anxiety to the Holy See, which is convinced that sooner or later the embassy will be suppressed, notwithstanding the Papal efforts to keep on good terms with the ungrateful Republic, and that the loss of prestige arising therefrom will be a heavier blow to the Church than the association laws lately passed by the French Parliament.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 31 1901

SOUTH AFRI AN AFFAIRS

London, Aug. 29.— It is understood that Lord Kitchener's proclamation does not mark the limit of the intentions of the Government regarding the South African war. It is understood that more remains behind; that the Government will, if necessary, follow up their latest proclamation by further regulations, affecting, it may be, the prisoners now in Ceylon and St. Helena. It is obvious that in the 20,000 Boer captives England holds hostages for the early termination of the war, just as the Boers had powerful machinery at their disposal for the coercion of Britain when 4,000 of her sons were prisoners at Pretoria. A large majority of the prisoners, both in Ceylon and St Helena, are in favor of peace. They accept the stern arbitrement of war, and preceive that England will never be turned from her purpose by the sniping operations of a few marauding bands. Large number of the Boer prisoners are men of substance. They cling to their landed property with a tenacity not second to that of the Irish peasant or the English squire. Confiscation would reduce them to the humiliating position of "bywohners," or landless men. Confiscation, accordingly, is what they most dread.

Since Great Britain is spending vast sums solely because these marauding bands see fit to continue operations that cannot affect the result of the war, the interests of the Empire require that no means shall be neglected which can end the war. Furthermore, there is reason to believe that if the war were to continue another six months, say until march next, the irritation of Continental Governments might assume proportions which would render diplomatic intervention no improbable contingency. On those grounds very serious efforts are being made to end the war, and Ishall not be surprised if pressure be brought to bear upon the prisoners. There is a desperate element which will baffle all attempts to obtain their surrender, but short of this, it will be to the interest and happiness, no less of Boer than of Briton, that hostilities should cease. Further, it is to the interest of Americans and of all other nations that the war should end, for no foreigners will be allowed to return to the Transvaal and Orange colonies until the Boer prisoners have been repatriated, a step impossible to be taken until peace is not only settled in theory but accomplished in fact. Every month that the war continues the repatriation of prisoners becomes more difficult, since destruction of property and the pressing tasks of the executive civil government of the Transvaal necessarily postpone measures which must be preliminary to the restoration of captive Boers to their own country.

The situation in South Africa, even when peace is established, will be one of enormous difficulty. A discontented and sullen white population, racial question smouldering, if not aflame, civil government to be built up anew and a black population conscious of their numerican superiority, and having lost much of their fear of the white man owing to the kindness with which the British soldier has treated them—all these will require attention. A strong effort is being made, under these circumstances, to obtain the consent of the Imperial Government to substitute a Federal for Crown Colony Administration. It is urged that under a responsible Federal Government the struggle between British and Dutch interests will be located, while administration by the Crown, even for a year or two, will bring the whole fabric of the Empire into the arena of South African politics. Perpetual agitation will be maintained, it is urged, so long as there is a vast Imperial audience looking on; while, on the other hand, if the various interests are left to arrange their own differences under the guidance of a judical but sympathetic man of affairs as Governor General, then South Africa will quickly settle down. In the ranks of those who urge this view is to be found Lieutenant General Sir Andrew Clarke among the least of whose brilliant services to the Empire were a most successful record as Governor of Singapore, and as our chief organizer of Imperial defences. Sir Andrew Clarke is now the representative in London of Victoria, and as such is the dozen of the Agents General of the great selfgoverning colonies. The position of the Agents General is one that has greatly advanced in importance of late years, and since there is little reason to doubt that Sir Andrew Clarke represents in a special sense not only Australian but Colonial opinion, his views on the subject will be of interest to the American public.

SAMPSON-SCHLEY TROUBLE

Washington, Aug. 29—The counsel of Admiral Schley has about completed the preliminary preparations of his case, which is to be presented to the court of inquiry next month. The intervening time will be occupied by Admiral Schley and his counsel in frequent consultations and in the consideration of all the questions involved in the inquiry. The counsel has examined practically all the official papers and documents bearing on the case, an dit is understood that little if anything remains for them to do at the Navy Department.

The failure to find in th eoffice of the signal corps certain despatches which they desired to secure, especially the message from Colonel Allen to General Greeley in the Spanish war, announcing that Cervera's fleet was at Santiago, is giving Schley's attorneys no concern. These despatches and many others which passed between officers of the military and naval establishments during the Spanish war are deposited in the secret archives.

Statements to the effect that records of the department bearing upon the location of Cervera's fleet in the spring of 1897 have been destroyed, are ridiculed by officers of the navy department, who say that these records can be produced on official demand. Most if not all the despatches which Admiral Schley's counsel desired to see hav ealready been published in the official reports of the Spanish war, and counsel is, therefore, fully cognizant of their contents. If there should be occasion for the production of the originals they would b eforthcoming.

So far as the navy department is concerned, the selection of Admiral Howison as a member of the board of inquiry is final. Any possible objection which the counsel of Admiral Schley may raise against Admiral Howison will have to be considered by the board itself.

The attorneys of Admiral Schley are annoyed by intimations that have been given out by som eof the over zealous friends of Schley that they, the attorneys, are getting ready to "knife" Admiral Sampson in the coming enquiry, and that they intend to "make it hot" for certain persons who ar eexpected to appear as witnesses in the case. The attorneys say the persons connected with the case on both sides are officers and gentlemen and that the procedure of the court of inquiry will be characterized by the dignity which marks the sessions of all similar bodies. Their only desire is to get at the truth, and they expect to reach it, so far as they are concerned, through examinations which, while of the most searching character, will be conducted with consideration and courtesy.

A letter from Rear Admiral Schley to the navy dpartment in regard to its action upon the Howison matter was made public to-day by Acting Secretary Hackett. Schley says:

"While it is true that one of my counsel, Captain Parker, in reply to an inquiry made to him, did give his personal opinion of the several rear admirals upon the active and retired lists, among whom was Rear Admiral Howison, I am assured by him that he believes the Secretary misunderstood him that any one of the officers named would be perfectly satisfactory to me. Captain Parker's conversation was had at a time when nothing was known of the alleged interview as published. It was with the desire to avoid the necessity of making a formal challenge that I requested the department to lay before Admiral Howison the statement that he is alleged to have made, and thus give him the opportunity to take such action as his sense of the propriety of the occasion might suggest. I could not challenge for cause until I discovered there was a cause, and the object of my communication was to ascertain if Rear Admiral Howison had made this statement. I submit that his private utterances would affect his qualification a smuch as his public utterances, and my request was only to have the alleged interview submitted for his consideration."

THE STEEL STRIKE

Pittsburg, Aug. 29.—The strike continues quiet and devoid of interesting features. While the strikers still express satisfaction with the prevailing conditions, the Steel Corporation is slowly but steadily increasing its forces at the plants already in operation, and are preparing to open more mills.

The report that the Amalgamated lodges were voting on a peace proposition was denied by Mr. Shaffer, who said:

"There has been no vote of any kind taken by us. The lodges may have taken votes on their own account but none has been ordered since the strike started an dno vote has been taken by the executive board. "Speaking of the reported meeting at Milwaukee, called for next Sunday night, he said:

"The situation," continued Mr. Shaffer, "is unchanged."

A New Philadelphia, Ohio, despatch reports that Attorneys Bower and Buchanan, for the American Sheet Steel Company, have served an injunction through the United States Court against the Amalgamated Association at Canal Dover for intimidating and keeping workmen from entering the rolling mill, also in holding and stopping pedertrians upon the highway.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 29. — Simon Burns, who arrived here today, announced that his plan for settling the steel strike by arbitration had been rejected by President Schwab of the United States Steel Corporation.

SHAFFER'S STATEMENT

Pittsburg, Aug. 29.—Enough men were added to the Star plant force yesterday to ensure the working of two mills a double turn, night and day. It is expected that the entire plant will be in full operation by the end of this week. The American Tin Plate Company offers the highest wages and permanent jobs, but in every case the application must be made personally, and the applicant declare humself free from all union control. The company has not as yet made the attempt to start either is Monongahela or Demmler plants. The position the officials take, it is said, is that the strike is over, so far as their dealing with the strikers as a body is concerned. They want workmen for their idle mills, and men who want work can have it for the asking at wages paid before the shut down. Mr. Shaffer declared last night that the strike, in spite of the claims of the other side to the contrary, is proceeding satisfactorily and his association is making such serious inroads on the corporation's business hat it will be compelled sooner or later o come to terms. His men, he says, are firm all along the line, and are determined to stand for their rights to hte end. He says the few mills that have been started are doing but little effective work. The fact that the corporation is adding to its force daily does not worrry the president, because he believes them to be either unskilled or poor workmen who will be a drawback rather than a help to their employers.

The steel people have nothing to say but point to the mills at work, and the product turned out.

RUSSIA IN THE EAST.

London, August 29—The news that six Russian torpedo boats from the flotilla now stationed at Ismalia hav egone up the Danube as far as Galatz seems to have called forth a good deal of uneasiness in Roumania.

These vessels appeared off Galatz on August 3, and it was perceived from the town that Russian staff officers were present on board who appeared to examine through their telescopes how the harbor of Galatz lay, as well as the site of the Roumanian harbor for warships at Cizlina, a little above Galatz. Having gone so far the vessels turned round and steamed full speed down stream till they were again in Russian waters.

The Roumanian Government was immediately informed, and, as a report goes, the Roumanian Consul at Ismalia was at once instructed to inform his Government what the Russians were doing in the Kilia arm of the Danube and off Galatz. The Consul reported, according to this account, that the Russian War Office had given orders that several war vessels should try if, and how far, they could sail up the Kilia arm of the Danube, and that six of the fourteen small vessels anchored in the Danube harbor of Ismalia were ordered to make the trial. Public opinion in Roumania is largely occupying itself with this incident and demands are being made that the Government should take measures to have the neutrality of the Danube respected by Russian war vessels, their appearance in the river being regarded as a breach of international law.

The Happy Home.

Happiness must be founded on health. Where there is ill-health there will surely be unhappiness. The happiness of many a home has received its downfall at the table, spread with rich and dainty foods. The first symptoms of disease of the stomach are ignored as being disagreeable but not dangerous. Presently dyspepsia or some other form of disease fastens on the stomach.

At any stage Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. But the cure is quicker if the "Discovery" is used in the earlier stages of disease. If you have any symptoms of diseased stomach use "Golden Medical Discovery" and be cured.

"I feel that I would be doing an injustice to you if I did not send you a statement of my case," writes Mrs. David W Guice, of Hamburg, Franklin Co., Miss. "I had liver complaint and indigestion. Everything that I ate disagreed with me. I suffered all the time with swimming in my head; heart beat too fast; my feet and hands were cold all the time. Did not sleep well at all. Was able to get about but very little. I commenced to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' in May, 1897, and by December I could begin to get about very well. Have been doing my work ever since. Feel better than I have for several years."

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages. Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place, no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News o. July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for not securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.

New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American News-paper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American news-papers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity, it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print forty eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed. A first early step in advance was his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Kidney Specialist.

The Famous Physician Who Has Made Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Diseases a Life Long Study.

DR. ZINA PITCHER.

For many years in the hospitals of Detroit and Professor of Genito Urinary diseases in Michigan College of Medicine, Dr. Zina Pitcher devoted his time to the scientific study of diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary System.

By this exclusive devotion to one branch of medical investigation Dr. Pitcher was enabled to perfect a treatment for Kidney troubles that far surpasses any other remedy.

After testing it extensively in private and hospital practice and demonstrating its incomparable superiority to all other forms of treatment, Dr. Pitcher decided to give this great boon to suffering humanity at large and not confine it exclusively to the circles of his private and hospital patients.

He has placed his remedy before the public under the name of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and so confident is he of the positive curative qualities of these Tablets for backache, lame or weak back, drowsiness, headaches, pain in the loins, brick dust deposits in the urine, puffiness under the eyes, swelling of the feet and ankles, scalding, irritation, frequent rising at night, dribbling, inflammation or ulceration of the bladder, gravel, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease and Diabetes (except in the last stages), bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, constipation, puffy and pasty appearance of the face, dropsy, backache and weakness of women, urinary weakness of children and old people or any symptomatic indications of Kidney disease that to anyone suffering from any of the above troubles, who uses the Tablets faithfully, according to directions, and derives no benefit therefrom, their money will be cheerfully refunded.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists or sent by mail [illegible] The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

NEW VERSION OF THE BIBLE

The completed American version of the Bible went into circulation through the medium of the booksellers, having been delayed fourteen years through the existence of a contract exacted by the English revisers. A long time ago the English revision companies disbanded, but the American committee continued its organization, and, so far as was possible, continued its labors. The committee has gone far beyond the revisers with whom it was formerly associated and has introduced into the text numerous changes hitherto suppressed for the sake of preserving harmonious relations.

As an instance the word "Jehovah," is substituted for "Lord" and "God," and thus, "this personal name with its wealth of sacred associations, is now restored to the place in the sacred text to which it has an unquestionable claim." The word "Sheol" has been uniformly used for "the grave," the pit, and "hell." Numerous verbal changes have been made to clear up obscure places in the text.

Following are a few examples of the changes made:

English version—The sojourning of the children of Israel, which they sojourned in Egypt, etc.—Exodus 12; 40. American version—The time that the children of Israel dwelt in Egypt, etc. children of Israel dwelt in Egypt, etc.

English version—A great altar to see.—Joshua 22; 10. American version—A great altar to look upon.

It is claimed that careful examination will show that the new readings are, as a rule, more faithful to the original texts and more in accord with the present idioms, than heretofore, although many words and phrases are retained that might have been changed to the advantage of the ordinary reader for the only great object of any revision should be to gain the highest degree of accuracy in phraseology that can be understood clearly and definitely without recourse to a dictionary of archaic and obsolete words. The necessity for such a revision is apparent when one realizes the constant change in the accepted or ordinary meaning of words in quite common use.

The revision that produced what is commonly called the "Common Version" was the result of numerous revisions during many centuries, and deference was paid, as it is now paid, to current forms of speech, but in the course of 400 years many words have become changed in meaning. "Prevent" then meant to go before or meet; now it means to hinder. "Let" then signified to hinder; now it means to permit. "Lust" then, as in German now, meant pure pleasure, joy; now it breathes vile passion.

A clergyman, in commenting upon the revised book, said:

"The book is particularly attractive because of its clean type and evenly printed pages. The text is paragraphed, but alas! impertinent figures appear to indicate the verses. Long-continued custom and convenience for reference and comparison require the retention of these divisions, but why the figures should be allowed to spoil the page and divert the mind so continually is incomprehensible, when they might have been placed to equal advantage in the margins, where there is ample space. Thus separated they would have been useful without being obtrusive.

The chapter figures are prominent as they should be, and upon each page are figures indicating the scope of that page, thus: Page 2 begins with chapter 1, 26 Genesis, and ends with chapter ing. in a single line of black type, to indicate its general contents. Thus page 47: 'Judah's intercession for Benjamin, Joseph makes himself known.' The Palms only form an exception, each Psalm having a title. There is obvicious danger in such a plan, but in carrying it out the revisers have succeeded admirably, having scrupulously adhered to their rule; 'Everything that might seem to savor of questionable exegesis has been carefully avoided.'

"The paragraphing has been vastly improved. The English revisers often went to the opposite extreme of unnecessarily long paragraphs in place of the old plan of paragraphing each verse. This gave a heavy and tiresome look to certain pages. Besides the paragraphs were sometimes not more accurately formed than in the old version 'be a paragraph sign.

"Wherever the text falls into a poetical form it is so arranged, as in the words of Lamech (Gen. 4:25-24), Noah (Gen. 9:25-27) Isaac (Gen. 27:27-29), Esau (Gen. 27:39-40) and Jacob (Gen. 48:2-27); the longer poems as of Moses (Ex. 15:1-18; Israelites (Num. 21:17-18 27-30), Balaam (Num. chaps. 23-24.) Moses (Deut. chaps. 32-33) Deborah (Judges chap. 5) and numerous others. All of the poetical books, including the Lamentations of Jeremiah, are in appropriate form, and therefore more easily understood. The prophecies are seldom marked by poetic form.

"Great care and attention have evidently been bestowed upon the punctuation. This is always in great degree an arbitrary matter with English writers, but in case of a translation from an original that has no such marks, and where the slightest dot about a letter has special significance, it is unquestionably attended with difficulty. There is still a rebundance of commas especially; upon a single page examined thirty-one would better have been absent. But the frequency of the often absurd use of the colon has in large part been done away, for which we have reason to be grateful.

"A decided improvement has also been made in the use and character of the marginal notes, which are much fewer in number, only about one-sixth of those given in the English revision, and whenever practicable each is credited to its source. Great care has also been bestowed upon the references, in preparing the list of which able scholars outside the committee rendered valuable aid. The aim has been to illustrate and elucidate sages which, either in word or in thought bear resemblance to the one under consideration. 'St.' is omitted entirely in the running headline; it stands 'Matthew,' 'Mark,' etc. At its beginning we find simply 'According to Mark,' the same rule being applied to each book. 'The Acts' is shorn of the familiar words, 'of the Apostles' The heading of Romans is without the designation of Paul as "the apostle." Similarly with the other Pauline epistles. The book of Hebrews is headed simply. "The Epistle to the Hebrews,' instead of including 'of Paul the Apostle,' as heretofore. 'The Epistle of James' no longer carries the word 'general' in its title. 'The Epistles of Peter' also are shorn of the term 'general' in their titles, as are also the epistles of John and Jude. Instead of 'The Revelation of St. John the Divine,' we now have the simple heading of 'The Revelation of John." All these may seem small matters to talk about, but a moment's reflection will show their practical and educational value.

"And now what about its general acceptance and adoption by American readers? I believe it will find favor more rapidly than did its predecessor of fourteen years ago, because a way has been made for it. Yet there are lions in the path. The vested interests of publishers and the restrictions of Bible societies stand ready to challenge it. Prejudice and ignorance and bigotry will oppose and ignore it; the world has not yet reached a general level of broadmindedness. Popular esteem for the King James version was scarcely attained in a half-century. When Jerome, the monk of Bethlehem, produced the Vulgate it was declared 'subversion of faith and impious with the inspired word of God,' and everything possible was done to discredit it. But Jerome was in advance of his time. He retorted in no unmeasured terms to his assailants, calling them 'fools,' 'stupids,' two-legged donkeys,' yet died before his work received due recognition.

"Such will not be the fate of the American revision. Nothing hitherto has approached it in actual value. The world is demanding the best things and will have them. Especially the American world is making such demand, and it has less to contend with in attaining them than we find in other countries. Americans think for themselves, and when they come to know and understand the beauties and the intrinsic value of this new and latest effort to present the Bible in the most perfect form attainable they will be satisfied with nothing else."

AN INTERESTING SPARROW FIGHT

A half dozen or more men and boys were interested witnesses of a desperate fight between two sparrows yesterday. Battles between birds of the species are not at all uncommon. The sparrow is probably the most belligerent and plucky of all the members of the feathered family, notwithstanding his diminutiveness.

This encounter was one that for punishment given and received and determination shown, is rarely equalled. Two female sparrows, evidently the mates of the combatants, were perched nearby, and by their capers apparently coached and urged to their utmost efforts their respective champions.

To add to the interest and oddity of this occurrence it took place on the roof of a church, a queer place for such vicious conflict. When the fight was over the two combatants, their bills locked, their feathers ruffled and dirty, and their heads sore and bloody, lay dead on the step of the temple where better things than fighting and killing are taught.

The battle lasted for nearly an hour. While the birds, firmly clinched, were taking one of many falls from the roof of the church to the hard ground below, a distance of fully seventy-five feet, a huge hawk soared to the pinnacle of the steeple and seated himself to gloat over the bloody scene. Hawks and sparrows are deadly enemies at best. This big fellow perhaps thought there was a feast in store for him as he saw the struggling midgets tear each other's flesh. But his ecstacy was short-lived. When the sparrows had recovered from the effects of the jolt they got by a hard tumble, they apparently discovered him, and instead of returning to the spot on the roof that they seemingly had mutually agreed upon as a battleground, both made straight for the hawk, and attacked him with all of the vigor that was left in their tired little bodies. The hawk made no pretense to withstand their onslaught. He darted off with the sparrows in pursuit. The hawk flew at a rapid rate, but the little birds were right upon him, dodging from one side to the other, under and over him and pecking him with all their might. They followed him probably a thousand feet. Then they left him and side by side returned to the church roof. Meanwhile the two female sparrows remained in their places they had chosen to witness the duel between their heroes.

The tiny birds after a short breathing spell, set up a noisy twittering, and began dancing around each other like a pair of boxers in a prize ring. They were sparring for an opening, as it were. Suddenly they went together, locked bills, and took another fall to the ground. This mode of warfare was pursued throughout the battle. The birds would take a tumble, then return to the church roof, clinch, drag each other to the edge, and deliberately tumble off. They would clasp their wings tightly to the body, and make absolutely no effort to avert the shock coming from contact with the ground below. Every time they struck it seemed that every bone in them would be broken. They must have repeated this performance twenty times. They seemed to be made of rubber and not to have a sense of pain.

This terrific warfare lasted for almost an incredible length of time, but it finally came to an end. Toward the close of the battle it was only with a decided effort that the birds could regain the roof. Throughout the fight it was plain that the object of each of the birds was to kill the other by a fall. On the last descent the birds struck the sharp edge of the lattice walk, rolled into the gutter and lay motionless. The spectators waited for them to rise again, but the end had come. On examination it was found that both were dead. Their bills were still locked, but parted easily when the birds were picked up.

When the men and boys who watched the fight approached the lifeless little fighters the female sparrows came fluttering down and set up a lively twittering and chirping. One man suggested that the crowd move back and see what the female birds would do. As soon as the party withdrew, the birds approached their dead mates, and picked at them for fully two minutes. They could not arouse them, and stood silent for a moment. Then they began a series of manoeuvres that reminded one of an Indian war dance. They hopped around the corpses in a circle for a minute or two then faced each other, flopped their wings much like a whipped chicken, uttered a lot of what were perhaps in bird language words of sorrow and mourning and then flew away.

Don't Allow Operation for Cancer

There is a simpler, safer and more effective Method of Treatment:

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A., in a paper he read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May 1895, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of Cancer recently, and with one exception all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent Surgeon, should make any one suffering from cancer, hesitate before submitting to operation and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new Constitutional remedy, which cures Cancers, Tumors and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time, builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of this treatment, in a plain, sealed wrapper, to any sufferer, on receipt of two stamps.

—A lady's jacket, picked up on Aylmer street, is in the police station, awaiting an owner.

—The Duke of York is to visit Port Hope on Tuesday, Oct. 15th. The Council will have to make preparations for the reception.

—Two cases were heard before Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday, in which profane and abusive language was charged. The cases were dismissed with a warning to the offenders.

—From June 15th to Aug. 17, there were 1060 registrations at the Craig House, Lakefield. This shows how rapidly the fame of the back lakes are extending.

—If old prophecies speak true, we are to have an exceptionally long and cold winter. The crop of beechnuts and butternuts has not been so prolific for many years, and according to the old saying, this is an infallible indication of a hard spell.

—At the Canadian General Electric Company's works yesterday, Mr. Cooper, one of the contractors, had one of his thumbs very badly smashed. Dr. Young was summoned, and it was found necessary to amputate the injured thumb. Dr. Moher assisted in the operation.

—In addition to the new gate houses that have been errected on the G.T.R. the fence around the grass patch between the station house and Charlotte street has been taken down and it adds very considerably to the appearance of the surroundings.

—The entrance to the second floor of the opera house is being changed from the arcade to the two small vacant stores between the Bell Telephone Co's office and the G. T. R. ticket office. This will necessitate only one turn before arriving at the third floor, and will be a much appreciated improvement.

—Warden Fitzgerald, and Councillor Anderson of the Peterborough County Council, Mr. John Belcher, County Engineer, and Councillor Leith of the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland, yesterday drove out to the Douglass bridge on the boundry between North Monaghan and Cavan for the purpose of letting the contract for the approaches of the new bridge which is being built there.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION.

Many events are included in the programme of sports for next Monday at Chemong, under the auspices of Labor Union No. 9240, and the prizes are liberal. There will be races for different classes from men over 80 to girls under 8, besides baseball match, tug-of-war, bicycle race, jumping, etc. An Italian orchestra will be in attendance. Entrance fee to all events 25c., except ladies', girls' and boys' races, which will be free. Admission to the grounds free. Those who do not bring baskets can get their meals at the hotel. Bus will leave S.O.E. Hall at 9 a.m., return tickets 25c.

An Amusing Incident.

Thursday week an amusing incident took place on the Port Hope morning train. A lady in town was going east to visit friends and had wound her alarm clock so that she would not miss the train. For some reason it did not go off. She caught the train just the same, taking the clock along in her valise. The car was pretty well crowded when Franklin was reached and in the next seat to the Lindsay lady was a portly "drummer" enjoying a "nap." Just as the train whistled for the station the alarm clock went off with a tear, and the commercial traveller came to a sitting posture, yelling "All right! I'll be down in a minute!" The incident furnished much amusement for the passengers excepting the drummer and the owner of the clock.

THE PHILIPPINE VICTOR.

A Vienna Interview With Surprising Statements About Grants' Military Successes.

New York, August 30—Army officers will be interested to know that the officer who really broke down the insurrection in the Philippines is General Frederick Dent Grant. This is the statement of the Reichswehr, a newspaper of Vienna, whose editor had an interview with General Grant in Vienna, July 31. General Grant's "daring feats of arms," the editor says, rapidly made his name one of the most popular in the United States Officers serving in the Philippines will be glad to hear that on that date, according to this interview, there were neither robber bands nor men in arms against the United States. The following was General Grant's account of himself as related in the Vienna paper.

"I do not speak about myself willingly. I was always a soldier. If I have achieved any success in the Philippines I owe it partly to my experience in fighting Indians in the West twenty years ago. This experience was very valuable because the war in the Philippines was a guerrilla war and lasted only three months. That was partly due to the excellence of our splendid sharp-shooters, who had also learned the business in the West. These brilliant riflemen frequently put me in the position of being able to take strong positions with little or no loss.

"The duties of war, be it said, are not new to me. As a boy I took part in a civil war from 1861 to 1865 by the side of my father, and hardly missed a battle during that time. I was once wounded in the leg."

To those acquainted with General Grant's army record this will read amusingly enough. Doubtless it is due to General Grant's imperfect German or the Reichswehr's editor's imperfect English.

Death of an Old Resident.

Mr. Wellington Boyce, an old resident of Smith, died on Saturday last at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Jonathan Branch. Mr. Boyce with his wife, was out camping at Little Mud Lake when he was suddenly taken ill and had to be conveyed to Mr. Branch's house. In spite of all that medical aid could do he passed peacefully away. Mr. Boyce was in his 71th year. A wife, two sons and seven daughters survive his loss. All the members of the family are married save one son, Mr. Wesley Boyce, who remains at home. The funeral took place from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Branch, on Aug. 29. The remains were interred in Lakefield cemetery.

The Last Concert.

There was a good turn out last night at the band concert in the park, it probably being the last of the season. A splendid programme was rendered.

NATURE NEEDS

Find that in

GRAPE-NUTS.

HOW TO BUILD A BODY

One of the most important discoveries of late is the application of the right kind of food to rebuild the lost substances of the body, thrown off by the daily, nervous work of Americans.

Careful investigation by experts in food and dietetics has brought out the fact that albumen, which is contained in various foods, is acted upon by phosphate of potash, not such as obtained in drug stores, but such as is found in certain parts of the field grains in most minute particles, arranged in Nature's laboratory, not man's.

The part of the grains containing phosphate of potash is used in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts food, therefore the active, nervous, pushing brain worker can feed the body with food that goes directly to the rebuilding of the broken down gray matter in the brain, solar plexus and nerve centres all over the body, with the result that the individual who refreshes and rebuilds the body with proper material of this sort, obtains a definite result, which he can feel and know of, and which is apparent to his friends.

A vigorous brain and nervous system is of the greatest importance to any business man or brain worker.

EXHIBITION PARK CHOSEN FOR THE PARADE

Ottawa, Aug. 30.—A Gobeil, Deputy Minister of Public Works, who has just returned from Quebec, says that the ancient capital's welcome to the royal party will be a magnificent one. Arrangement have been made for bonfires to blaze on fifty eminences around Quebec on the night of the arrival of their Royal Highnesses. These bonfires will be composed of logs having in their center combustible materials, and will be forty or fifty feet high. A rocket will be sent up from Quebec, and at this signal the bonfires will burst into flame. The spectacle will be viewed by the royal party from the bastion of the Citadel.

Achitect Curry of the Public Works Department of Ontario has been here consulting with Chief Architect Ewart with reference to decorations at Toronto. It is thought that the General Postoffice in Toronto will receive the most attention, and the probability is that it will be illuminated by electricity in the same manner as the Parliament buildings here; that is, the main entrance and all the windows in the front of the structure will be strung with electric lights. The likelihood also is that Venetian masts and banners displayed here will afterwards be sent on to be used in Toronto.

$50 and Costs

Wm. Mein, bartender at the City hotel, was charged in Police Court yesterday with having, on July 20 sold intoxicating liquor to an Indian. The offence was committed about a month ago, and a charge was laid against Mein. He was found guilty by the Police Magistrate, but appealed to the county Judge. The appeal was allowed and the conviction quashed on the ground that the information did not disclose an offence against the Indian Act, in not alleging that the liquor was not for use under direction of a physician, and that the information not having been amended at the trial when objected to, could not then be amended.

However, a new information was at once laid and Mr. J. Haverson, of Toronto, solicitor for the Licensed Victuallers' Association, appeared for the defence. He held that in the rush of business on the afternoon of the 20th it would not have been impossible for the bartender to have overlooked the presence of Indians among the customers. He had, moreover, refused to sell them a bottle of whiskey. Mr Haverson held that there was not sufficient evidence to convict.

Police Magistrate Dumble held differently and imposed a fine of $50 and $3.75 costs.

County Crown Attorney Wood constructed the prosecution.

Bought a Farm in Manitoba.

The Hartney (Man.) Star of August 16th has the following reference to the purchase by Mr. J. C. Turnbull, of Peterborough, of a farm in that district.

"Mr. F. W. Henry has decided to retire from farming for the present and has disposed of his fine section of land near Hartney, for the sum of $21 an acre. The purchaser is Mr. John C. Turnbull, who will take possession of the property next spring. Eight years ago Mr. Henry purchased this fine farm at eight dollars an acre, and besides the rise in the value of the land, which has been nearly $1,000 a year, Mr. Henry has had a good crop nearly every season. On the occasion, when the crop was better than usual, the products of the farm yielded some $10,000 for the year. On the farm are kept about 26 working horses, and a small herd of 20 cattle. Considerable fencing has been done on the place, and brick residence, the barn and other buildings are roomy and attractive, and Mr. Turnbull may be congratulated on securing so beautiful and valuable a property in so fine a district."

BOERS GUNS HERE.

Peterborough May Secure One or More of These Weapons

Mr. J. H. McClellan has made application, we understand, for one or more of the Boer guns which are soon to be sent to Canada from South Africa. Some time ago the Canadian Government applied to the Imperial authorities for some of the guns to be located at different points in Canada. A cable has just been received from the British Government stating that a distribution of the guns will be made, but that the War Office is not yet ready to make the distribution. When the time for the distribution arrives Canada will not be forgotten.

SCHLATTER GOES TO PRISON.

The Alleged Healer Sentenced For Three Months.

New York, August 30—Francis Schlatter, who posed as a "divine healer" not very long ago, and succeeded in attracting a great deal of attention, was arraigned in the Harlem Police Court this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and was sent to Blackwell's Island for three months by Magistrate Zeller.

He was arrested this morning at One Hundred and Forty-fourth Street and Broadhurst Avenue on complaint of Mrs Elizabeth Muller, janitress of the house in which Schlatter lived. According to the story Mrs. Muller told in court, Schlatter and his wife have been separated for some time, she refusing to live with him because he drank so heavily.

The Third Dragoons.

SOULANGES CANAL.

Notice to Manufacturers of and Dealers of Cement

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tenders for Cement," will be received at this office up to sixteen o'clock on Wednesday, the 4th September, 1901, for the supply and immediate delivery of 3,600 barrels of Portland cement, at a point on the canal where directed.

In the case of firms there must be attached the actual signatures of the full name, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the same, and further, an accepted bank cheque for ten per cent of the total amount tendered for must accompany the tender. This accepted cheque must be endorsed over to the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The accepted cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By Order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary
Department of Railways and Canals,

LORD STRATHCONA LIKELY TO RESIGN

Such is the Impression in London.

WILL RETURN TO CANADA

And May Be Appointed to the Joint High Commission

AS SUCCESSOR TO LORD HERSCHELL

His Appointment Would Be Very Popular With Canadians.

London, Sept. 2—It is generally believed here that Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal who has been Canadian High Commissioner here since the retirement of Sir Charles Tupper in 1896, to accept the leadership of the Conservative party in Canada, will resign his position before returning to London from Canada in November.

The statement that Lord Strathcona contemplates investing heavily in the construction of a fast steamship line between Canada and the mother country should he not be able to induce some of the big steamship companies to move in this direction is not credited here. His visit to Canada has nothing to do with this question.

Manchester, Sept. 3—The Guardian understands that Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, the Canadian Commissioner to Great Britain, will probably succeed the late Lord Herschell as head of the British members on the Joint High Commission.

HSW LIFE GOES IN COLD ALASKA

Interesting Letter From the Frozen North.

LIVES RISKED FOR GREED OF GOLD

The following letter is from Mr. James R. Johnston, an old Peterborough boy, who has spent several years in the frozen north. He writes as follows:

The winters here are very severe, and the last one is said by the natives to be the worst they have seen during the past twenty years. So many poor unfortunates lost their lives, and many others are maimed for life. Three men were brought into the hospital here by the Government reindeer teams from the trails leading to the "Kuskokwim." They are three gold miners, and were on a stampede for the "new gold fields," when they were caught in a snow-storm and severely frozen. One man lost both hands at the wrist, another all his fingers and both thumbs, and the third lost both his feet. They are a pitiful sight to look at, especially when the nurse is feeding them at meal time, and it is sad to hear them talk about their plans for the future.

The people on the outside of Alaska will never conceive, even if told ever so vivid a narrative about the Alaskan gold miners experience, what hardships and privations he endures. No matter how cold the day might be, or how far the distance to a newly reported "find" might be, or how faint their chances of ever getting there might seem, as long as there is a rumor afloat that there is gold, gold, there, away they go; it draws them like the magnet draws steel, and never for one moment do they stop to consider the risk of life involved in rushing about through such a treacherous country in the middle of winter.

If these three poor unfortunates had all the gold ever taken out of this country, and a claim to all ever taken out in the future, don't you think they would gladly buy back what they lost for the whole of it, if they could? Yes indeed, they would, and many times they have said so during the past few weeks.

No doubt miners will take out many million dollars' worth of gold in this country within the next twenty years, as there are hundreds of miles of unknown land, but no amount of money taken out will pay par value for the cost of lives, limbs, harships endured, etc., in producing this precious yellow metal.

There are many men in this country to-day who have been here the past four years, and, almost physical wrecks they still continue their search for gold. They are haunted with fanciful dreams of wealth in the form of nuggets and gold dust hidden somewhere in this frozen land waiting for them to come and find it. Of course there are a few men who have made fortunes in Alaska. Just think, two men out of every three hundred that come here "strike it rich." (Taken from statistics). The others are either made poor or physical wrecks.

Now to tell you a little about St. Michael in Alaska, where I spent a year. There is a brand-new hospital there. There are two companies of soldiers of the Seventh U. S. Infantry stationed at the fort. The head-quarters staff of the Department of Alaska, which is commanded by Brigadier General Randall is there also. It is a very dismal place, this St. Michael, and all one can see is nothing but ice and snow. No place to go to pass the time and the novelty of seeing the country has long died out. I would not have missed seeing it for a great deal, yet no money would ever induce me to pass my life here.

The natives here are the Eskimos, and they are a filthy class of people. Men, women, children and dogs living all in one little hut built out of moss and drift wood timber with a window made out of a very thin skin of some animal. Their cooking utensils are very ancient, being made out of stone. They have no dishes, but a large wooden bowl in which fish, seal, and all kinds of game are placed at once. This they all sit around on the floor and eat out of it with their fingers.

I soon tired of St. Michaels, and came to Dawson, which is much better. I occasionally see my old friend, George Kincaid here. George is doing well, and is one of those splendid, whole-souled fellows who makes friends wherever they go.

I get The Times regularly every week, and it is like a letter from home. Give my regards to Bob McKee, George Hatton, W. D. Parker, William Snowden, Billy Leck and all the boys, not forgetting the great family journal. quenses.

GOLDEN TREASURE THAT WENT DOWN WITH THE ISLANDER

SEATTLE, September 3rd.

M. W. Brumbauer, of Portland, Ore., had $14,000 in gold dust in his satchel, but promptly abandoned it.

D. H. Hart, of Klondike, had $40,000 in gold dust, which he abandoned when he jumped into the last boat.

M. M. Manlin, of Winnipeg, dropped his satchel, containing $4000, and a friend left $3000 behind.

Another Klondiker, whose name is not given, is reported to have taken his portmanteau, containing $40,000 in gold dust, from the purser and jumped from the sinking steamer to a boat, which he failed to reach. Both the man and his treasure sank.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY

Lakefield News—The "Essie and Jessie," a demure looking yacht belonging to Judge Hudspeth of New York, ran away on Stony Lake on Friday last, creating quite a hue and cry round the neighborhood of Boshink. The facts of the case appear to be as follows:—The yacht, which is run by alcoh—vapour power, was in charge of the engineer who was at that time the only one on board. This individual in jumping from the boat to the shore happened to touch the valve of the engine and set the craft in motion again. Away she went careering madly over the lake, missing rocks by a hairsbreadth and indulging in a series of eccentric manoeuvres more suggestive of a witch's frolic than a damsel comporting herself with modesty and refinement. The engineer's feelings may be better imagined than described. The alarm was at once given, canoes were hastily manned and a pursuit of the giddy creature instituted. The rocks re-echoed with the cries of the pursuers. After a long and stern chase, rendered finally successful only by the lowering of the power in the engine the craft was captured, with no damage to herself, but a considerable lack of breathing power in the lungs of the pursuers. The incident reminds one irresistibly of the pursuit of the House boat by the aristocratic shades in Hades save that in this case there were no ladies on board the vessel to lend a tinge of romance to the incident.

SAW OOM PAUL KRUGER

Baltimore Tourists Return From a Trip to Europe.

"One of the unexpected incidents of the trip," said Dr. Eager, "was the pleasure of seeing President Kruger. We found him in a hotel at Rotterdam in Holland. He seems a remarkable man and was greeted with joyous acclamations by the people as he drove away from the hotel. He is exactly like his picture in appearance. He is rather heavy set and walks with a stoop. One of our party managed to get into his room and from his secretary received the message, "We shall win."

"On July 9 we had a snowballing match while driving over the Alps in Switzerland. At one place our carriage passed between two walls of snow ten feet high, while down in the valley we could see snowdrifts probably fifty feet high."

The World Needs Nerve.

Needs it in business, in the study, in the household. Irritability, weakness, lack of strength—the blue feeling—why they just tell you that you lack nerve. You'll use Ferrozone? My, what an appetite you'll get. How quickly the color will return to your cheeks, how buoyant you will feel. Work, of course you'll work, for you will enjoy it. That is, if you will use Ferrozone. It gives nerve strength, muscular endurance, and invigorates the brain splendidly. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

ANOTHER NEW PEST

It Has been Discovered Just Lately—Goes for Sugar Beets.

Some of our exchanges a few days ago drew attention to the fact that a new insect pest had appeared. Its particular task is to destroy sugar beets as quickly as possible. The other day George Veale, of 9th line, West Zorra, brought into the Tavistock Gazette office, two lively black beetles, about half an inch in length. The head is small and the body large in proportion to the insect's size. On Monday morning Mr. Veale was taking a walk through his patch of Mangels, and he noticed the new insect enemy at work. The leaves were stripped off in many places. The sugar beet suffers much as does the mangel. Paris green was applied, and on Tuesday morning there was no sign of Messrs. Bug, but whether the rain washed them off, or whether the poison made them turn up their toes, it is difficult to say. It may be worth while for farmers to look over the sugar beet and mangels.

When the Baby Cries at Night

there is a cause for it. Perhaps it is gas on the stomach, may be cramps or diarrhoea. Don't lose sleep, anticipate such contingencies by always keeping handy a bottle of Polson's Nerviline. Just a few drops in water given inwardly, then rub the little one's stomach with a small quantity of Nerviline, and perfect rest is assured for the night for both mother and baby. You may not need Nerviline often, but when you do need it you need it badly. Get a 25c. bottle to-day.

A SUBMARINE BOAT FIRM.

Bridgeport, Conn. Sept. 2.—The Lake Submarine Torpedo Boat Company which was recently incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey with a capitalization of $1,000,000, has decided to establish in this city a large steel ship-building plant for the manufacture of submarine boats of the Lake type, which has already attracted attention from the Governments of the world.

Simon Lake, of this city, formerly of Elizabethport, N. J., is the inventor of the new type of submarine craft, which he claims to be superior to all others, and th efirst submarine torpedo boat which has attained a state of perffection. He is president of the company which has offices at 11 Broadway, New York. There is both Bridgeport and New York capital invested in the company. Contracts have been made with the Pacific Iron Company o fthis city, fo rthe construction of the first boat, which is to be built at once for demonstration before the United States Navy, before which it will enter in competition with the Holland submarine boat. Its capabilities, as represented to the Government are: To descend safely to a depth of 150 feet; to travel on the surface or with conning tower awash or at any desired depth within the above limit (150 feet) or on the bottom; diving compartments to enable divers to leave or enter the vessel; ample living quarters for officers and crew, with cooking, heating, and sleeping facilities; sufficient fuel carrying capacity to make a continuous run of 1,500 knots on the surface, with speed of about ten knots, storage battery capacity sufficient for a submerged run of 50 miles on one charge of the batteries; means for recharging the batteries; three torpedo expulsion tubes, two at the bow, and one at the stern.

From its New York offcesi the company is now in communication with several foreign Governments, for which it is expected to construct boats. Recently a representative of the British Government was in the city inspecting a model of the Lake boat. A commission from Holland is expected in this country to compare th erelative merits of the Holland and Lake types of boats.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

Adventists Believe the Franco-Turkish Trouble is a Sign of It.

Oswego, N.Y., August 30—The annual camp meeting of the Seventh Day Adventists of New York State begins here to-day with about 600 persons from all parts of the States in attendance. The camp is in charge of Elder J. B. Thompson, of Rome. John S. Whitmore, a prominent Adventist, declared to-day that the Franko-Turkish troubles were signs that the end of the world was approaching. He said that the difficulties between these two nations would result in a general European war, the destruction of the Turkish Empire, and world-wide suffering, ending with the second coming of Christ. He bases his belief in his prophecies on Daniel, 12th chapter, 1st and 2nd verses.

Baltimore, August 30—The Rev. Dr. John H. Eager, pastor of the Seventh Baptist church, has returned from a ten weeks' tour of Europe. He was accompanied by his son, J. Howard Eager, who is a student at the John Hopkins University. They travelled with a party of fifteen.

LAKEFIELD BOY PROMOTED

And is Banquetted by his Friends at White Horse, B. C.

We clip the following from the White Horse Star, Y. T., which refers to Mr. C. E. Strickland, formerly of Lakefield. His many friends here will be pleased to learn of his promotion.

"A few days ago Mr. C. E. Strickland, accountant in the White Horse branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, received notice from headquarters that he had been transferred to the Dawson Branch, which meant, reading between the lines, that he had been promoted to a more responsible position in the service of that institution.

As soon as the news became generally known, the friends of Mr. Strickland determined to give a farewell entertainment in his honor, and at the same time present him with a substantial token of their regard. A committee was appointed and invitations issued for a dance in the Athletic Club hall, and in response a large crowd assembled Wednesday night at the rooms of the Club to take part in an event, which, to Mr. Strickland, will long remain a cherished memory.

About 11.30, Mr. Robert Lowe, president of the North Star Athletic Club, of which Mr. Strickland has been one of the most prominent members ever since its inception, stepped on the floor and in behalf of the club and Mr. Strickland's friends, said: "It is with pleasure at our young friend's promotion, but with profound regret at his early departure from our midst, that I address you to-night. Mr. Strickland since his advent among us, has endeared himself to everyone with whom he has come in contact, by his gentlemanly conduct, and his strict attention to the various duties, which he has been called upon to perfrom both as an employe of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and as an active and indefatigable worker in the Athletic Club. While we are pained at the necessity of his departure, we recognize and are pleased that in his new field of labor he will have a wider scope for the advancement to which his exceptional abilities entitle him, and while he will doubtless make many warm friends in Dawson he will have none who will be more pleased to hear of his success in life than those he leaves in White Horse. On behalf of the Athletic Club I wish to extend to Mr. Strickland our sincere thanks, and feel that it is in a great measure owing to his untiring efforts that the club has reached its present state of prosperity."

Mr. Lowe then introduced Mr. J. W. Nay, Cashier of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who read the following address:

"DEAR MR. STRICKLAND:—A few of your friends in White Horse, having learned that you are about severing your connections with the Bank of Commerce here, and that your work is being recognized by a substantial promotion to the Dawson office, take a God speed.

"During your residence in White Horse, you have always by your courteous and kindly manner, endeared yourself to those who came in contact with you socially, as well as your position in the bank of which you are an employe.

"Our earnest wish is that you will meet with a full measure of appreciation as you have had with us.

We beg you to accept this [illegible] and contents as a small evidence of our good wishes and ask you to remember us as your friends.

"White Horse, July 24th, 1901."

In response to the above Mr. Strickland advanced and evidently very much affected, said that he deeply appreciated the honor conferred upon him upon the eve of his departure, and that a great many of the happiest hours of his life had been spent in company with his friends at White Horse. He had never lived in a place where he had made so many warm and congenial friends, and was in hopes that in the course of time he might be enabled to return and again make his abode with them. He could not find words to convey the grateful and warm feelings that were in his heart towards his friends in White Horse.

Ice cream and cake were then served after which dancing was resumed and continued till about one o'clock.

ADRIFT IN CHESAPEAKE BAY.

Fired by the Foote in Practice and Has Not Been Seen Since.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 3.—A Whitehead torpedo is float about somewhere in Chesapeake Bay, terrorizing tugmen and the few navigators thereabouts who have heard of the errant destroyer. It was fired by the torpedo boat Foote yesterday while she was practicing near Middle Ground Light in the bay, and not found afterward. It is loaded, but has no war head, and experts say, can, therefore, not be exploded by contact. A tugman said today that nobody is likely to try the experiment, and he will give it as wide berth as a Mississippi steamboat does a raft. The same torpedo went adrift last year, but finally turned up on the beach at Cape Hatteras, nearly 100 miles distant.

Here Medical Science Fails

to cure rheumatism, and all the time you suffer dreadfully, why don't you get a bottle of Polson's Nerviline, and try that? Rub it into your stiff joints, sore arms, lame back, bent shoulders—wherever the pain is. Nerviline has cured plenty of people in this way, and that ought to be proof enough that it will cure you too. It is an unusually strong liniment that cures rheumatism in unusually quick time. Best household liniment known. 25 cents.

LABOR DAY WELL OBSERVED

Business Was Suspended and Large Numbers Enjoyed Themselves at Chemong.

TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES WERE INADEQUATE

Many Staid in Town Because They Could Not Get Carriage to the Park—Speeches by Hon. J. R. Stratton and Others. Sports Were Successful.

A very large crowd took part yesterday in the first annual celebration of Laboe Day at Chemong Park, under the auspices of Labor Union No. 9240, the local branch of the international Federation of Labor. The demonstration was well managed, with the exception that the facilities for transportation were inadequate. A train of busses went out in the morning according to announcement, all heavily loaded. Many, however, expected that the busses would be running all day. In fact it was announced that a second lot would start at one o'clock, and both sides of Hunter street, between the post office and George street were lined with a waiting crowd at that hour. At about half past one a single bus drove up and carried away a few ladies who were waiting. Two o'clock came and went and as the afternoon wore on the disappointed ones gradually returned to their homes. There were a good many holders of tickets among those unable to get transportatoin. No doubt the management will make arrangements to refund the price to them.

Besides the 'busses run by the Union there were private conveyances in great number, and of endless variety, from the bicycle to the lumber-wagon.

Out at the Park, everything was merry as a marriage bell. The dancing pavilion was one of the principal centers of attraction for the young people. Children enjoyed themselves on the merry-go-round. The small steamer with the large and weird whistle made trips around the lake at short intervals throughout the day, and carried a goodly crowd on every trip. There were entries for nearly every event on the long programme of sports. Some of the athletes showed no little prowess and others of the events were of an amusing nature.

For the bicycle race, from Hunter and George streets to the Park there were only three starters, and each of them got a prize, Mr. James Kendrey, M.P., having donated cash for three prizes of $2.50, $1.50 and $1. Hall and Peace, second and third prize winners respectively, were far behind when De Roucher, winner of the first prize, arrived at the Park.

For the men's race of 100 yards the substantial prize of a ton of coal, valued at $6.50, was given by the McClellan Company. The winner was George Taylor. The second prize, a half cord of hardwood donated by Mr. J. Fitzgerald, was won by Mr. Ford.

In the old men's race, Mr J. Montgomery showed himself as light-footed as a lad, and won th efirst prize, a pair of boots, donated by Mr. R. Neill. The second prize, ten pounds of beef, given by H. P. Kennedy, was carried off by Mr. Mitchell.

Gray hairs won honors from youth in the step-dancing contest, the aged and agile Mr. Cronan making his feet fly in a way that amazed the spectators and won for him the second prize $1.50 cash. The first prize, $2.50, was won by Mr. Houlihan, the third, $1, by Mr McMillan. These prizes were donated by Mr. W. H. Meldrum.

Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, who have been wedded 42 years and who look as if their long voyage on the sea of matrimony has been a peaceful and placid one, were awarded the sack of flour donated by Mr. McAllister for the oldest married couple on the grounds.

One of the most interesting events of the day was the baby show. Messrs. Snowden, White and Overend donated $2 each to the finest baby boy and the finest baby girl on the grounds. Mr. William Taylor was prevailed upon to act as judge and advanced to do his duty with the air of a soldier going into battle. The mothers were ranged upon a bench, each with a cherub in her lap. The judges duties were complicated by the fact that some of the mothers were also very pretty, but he performed his task well and showed that he knows a thing or two about babies. Edith May Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Taylor, was declared the finest girl baby, and Raymond Pogue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Pogue, the champion boy. Contrary to the result said to be usual in such cases, there was no protest against the judgment. The mother whose babe became fretful at the wrong moment smiled kindly at the winners and showed herself a good loser.

The baseball match was won by the Auburns by a score of 7 to 6. A full list of the sporting events will be published tomorrow.

The speeches in the afternoon were very brief. The chair was occupied by Mr. Wm. Henry, President of the Union, and the speakers were Hon. J. R. Stratton, and Mr. Heyd, barrister, of Toronto, Rev. J. C. Davidson, Mr. J. J. Hartley and Mr A. J McClellan of Peterborough. Mr. Stratton had to catch the 5.45 train for Toronto and spoke only a few minutes felicitating the labor men upon their organization and touching upon the Legislature in promoting the welfare of working people. At the end of the speech making cheers were given for the King, for Mr. Stratton and for Mr. McClellan.

A WORTHY INSTITUTION

Great Kindness Shewn the Young Women's Christian Association.

The Stanley Piano Company remembered the Y.W.C.A. while on their excursion. The Y.W.C.A. wish to thank the Stanley Piano Company for their kind thoughtfulness, in giving the amount they made at their excursion to the extension of the Y.W.C.A. work in our town. We are happy to say that the prospects for this work are bright—The Hon. Senator Cox is now having the rooms on George street put in order, so that we may have them furnished and ready for our new secretary, Miss Dickson. We shall be very grateful for anything that anyone may be pleased to give us towards furnishing these rooms, either from individuals or societies. We need curtains and rugs, comfortable chairs, tables and lounges, pictures etc. We wish to make an earnest appeal to you, for "The times are very evil." There is great need for work among the young women of our town, every young woman is somebody's sister, somebody's daughter. Will you help to provide a comfortable home for those who are away from home and lonely? Any donations that may be given before the rooms on George street are in order, may be left at the Y.W.C.A. rooms on Brock street.

A Submarine Fighter.

Rome, Sept. 3—The trials of the new submarine war vessel Delfino, carried out by the Ministry of Marine, have been most satisfactory. It is provided with a "cleptoscope," invented by the Italian engineers, Russo and Laurenti. The "cleptoscope" is an instrument which permits a submarine, navigating below the surface, to have a view of the whole horizon while it is under water. French submarines employ for this purpose, for the Gymnote, a Daudendard periscope, and for the Gustave Zede the periscope invented by Mangini Laussedat. This instrument, however, possesses a very serious drawback. In the first place, it is very bulky, which renders it visible from a long distance, and it has only a very limited field of vision—three or four degrees at most. The Russo-Laurenti cleptoscope, according to the Tribune, gives a wide panorama.

Obituary.

Mr. Wellington Boyce, an old resident of Smith, died on Saturday of last week at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Jonathan Branch. Mr. Boyce, with his wife, went out camping at little Mud Lake, when he was suddenly taken ill and had to be conveyed to Mr. Branch's house. In spite of all that medical aid could do he passed peacefully away. Mr. Boyce was in his 74th year. A wife, two sons and seven daughters survive his loss. All the members of the family are married save one son, Mr. Wesley Boyce, who remains at home. The funeral took place from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Branch, on August 26th. The remains were interred in the Lakefield cemetery.

THE APSLAY RAILWAY

The C. P. R. Has Decided Not to Proceed With the Work.

The Norwood Register confirms the reports published by the Times a few days ago regarding the Norwood and Apsley Railway.

The prospects for the construction of the proposed railway are at present rather gloomy. The project has received a sudden cold dip by the receipt of a letter from Mr. Shaughnessy, president of the C.P.R., in which that gentleman states that having had reports on the country through which the road would go, and the cost of the construction—although the subsidies had been granted—the Company do not wish to proceed with the work at present.

This is rather disappointing, not only to the directors and Mr. Pearce, who has worked so energetically and successfully to further the enterprize, but to the people interested in the building of the road.

When the subsidies from the Provincial and Dominion governments, amounting to $6,500 a mile, were secured, and after the C.P.R.'s engineer had gone over the route of the proposed line it was felt that there was not much doubt as to the road being built. In fact, it was expected that the line would have been under survey now and the construction under survey now and the construction work pushed this fall, so as to have the road ready for the summer tourist trade next year.

This tourist traffic was to receive special attention and the owners of the boats plying on the lakes as well as tourists from various points were delighted with the prospect, and the convenient and rapid service the road would afford was the one topic of conversation at the lake this season.

The Crown Corundum Mine people were also counting on the railroad, and it is said were prepared to agree to make heavy shipments weekly over the road.

A request has been made to Mr Shaughnessy to meet a deputation to discuss the matter, and it is hoped that this may result in a change of the decision reached by the C.P.R., a decision which came as a big surprise to all concerned in promoting the project.

A POLITICAL PRIZE.

For the Explanation of the Difference Between the Present Policies of the Political Parties

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Aug. 30—Ex-Mayor Andrews, one of the Conservative leaders here, in a letter to the press, says:—

"In view of the fact that there has been recently great effort to encourage the young men of the country to form clubs in support of the great principles of the two political parties in Canada, the Conservative-Liberal and the Liberal-Conservative, it would be interesting and very instructive both to the young men of Canada whose political opinions are not yet matured to have the chief fundamental differences in the present policies of these parties well defined. Accordingly I will offer the sum of $100 as a prize to the first person who will give a satisfactory explanation of any radical difference between the present policies of these parties, the answers to be sent within a month. The reward of $100 is open to the world."

PETERBOROUGH. SEPTEMBER 3 1901

THE CORONATION OATH

A Quebec parish has lodged a vehement and threatening protest against the resolve of the British Government to retain some of the more salient features of the coronation oath. An offer of compromise had been made to Roman Catholics, but they were not satisfied with it—in fact even more dissatisfied than before—hence the resolve to leave things practically as they were.

We would respectfully suggest to the French parish of Quebec that if it took note of the practical tolerance of the British Empire, and left the theoretical to look after itself, it would have more and better scope for its efforts. Old France has just expelled all incorporated Catholic clerical bodies, the decree being aimed as usual at the Jesuits particularly. The effect of the drastic measure is that numbers of the French orders are betaking themselves to England, to the England of the wicked Coronation oath—and to Canada. If Catholic France has found by repeated experiences the need of protecting itself by a severe measure, actually put in force to the great loss and injury of orders of charity and others, why fly into a passion over a merely formal coronation oath. We believe that the French government is actuated by unjust motives in some of its relations with the French orders, and we believe that the coronation oath is an echo of a less tolerant age, but all the same a threat is too serious a way of looking at the English side of the question, in view, as we say, of England's tolerance in admitting the expelled orders to her territory and protection; and we think that a less violent and more polite method of dealing with the oath question would have been productive of a sweeter peace than this ill-considered protest of a little French-Canadian parish. Civilization has periods of retrogression or atavism, or harking back, as it were, and we seem to be in one of those periods at the present time. Take it easy, however, we would say, and by your actions, which shall speak louder than your words, show that you invite that toleration which you may then deserve.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL

Paris, Aug. 30—The Nicaragua canal is an engineering impossibility. It will never be built. The American people are the richest in money and in energy to be found in all the world, but they are not rich enough to construct a canal on the Nicaragua route.

This is the emphatic judgment of a man who may be worth listening to. It is M. Philippo Bunau-Varilla, who thus condemns the isthmian route of the great majority of the American people. Mr. Bunau-Varilla was once chief engineer of the Panama canal and under his administration a large part of the actual excavation at Panama was carried on. It is true that this engineer is an eager partizan of Panama. It is true that he is a prejudiced witness, and that he had recently made a valiant though unsuccessful effort to arouse a new French sentiment and to enlist more French capital for finishing the great work with which he for years had such an important connection. At the same time it may be worth the while of America to listen to his arguments.

"I do not say that the Nicaragua canal is a physical impossibility," explained M. Bunau-Varilla. If American public opinion insists upon constructing a canal at Nicaragua, and your Congress yields to this pressure and orders a beginning of the work, I predict that it will never be completed. After some years the enormity of the difficulties encountered will compel its abandonment. I predict that after hundreds of millions have been wasted in the impracticable Nicaragua route, your country will turn to Panama and there finish the isthmian channel indicated by nature as the true and feasible route.

"After a profound study of this entire problem, I am willing to say, as an engineer who measures well his words, that it will cost 500 million dollars to open a canal through Nicaragua and that when it is opened there can be no assurance of its safety and preservation. It may be destroyed by floods. Even if kept open, its success is doubtful on account of the hazards which ships must incur in passing through it and the high rate of insurance that will be compelled to pay on account thereof.

"The difficulties of the Nicaragua route are not found in piercing the continental backbone proper. In cutting the ridges between the Pacific and Lake Nicaragua it is necessary only to make the channel seventeen miles long and rising only forty-five feet above the waters of the lake, whereas at Panama the cut is forty-five miles long, and the continental backbone rises 325 feet above the water of the two oceans. If vessels now had free access from the Atlantic to Lake Nicaragua and it were only necessary to find the way of carrying them in from the lake to the Pacific there could be no doubt of the advantages of the Nicaragua route. It would be infinitely preferable to the Panama project.

"But when we examine the work which must be done between Lake Nicaragua and the Atlantic we find a series of difficulties, so great that they may be fairly called physical impossibilities.

"It is necessary to construct in the bed of the river San Juan for a distance of fifty miles a channel fifteen or twenty feet deep. This bed of the San Juan is composed of sand and mud. The currents of the stream are in places very rapid. Floods are frequent. Numerous tributary streams pour into the San Juan, their waters filled with all sorts of debris. If such a channel were once excavated in the soft bed of this stream, it might be destroyed in six months. All the probabilities are it would not last a year. There could never be an absolutely safe passage for any ship, always the danger of the current breaking away those mud banks, filling the waterway and stranding the ships. Nothing except masonry of the most gigantic proportions could give a permanent and secure channel, but it is impossible to put in such work because there is no foundation for it. If once put in its bottom would be undermined by the currents and the whole thing would crumble to pieces. I have great respect for the distinguished engineers who compose the American Isthmian canal commission, and I shall be surprised if they do not point out the impossibility of successfully constructing a permanent canal in the bed of the San Juan. A canal cut through the hardest rock would be much cheaper in the end."

"Engineers know the dangers of this sort of work. And as to the feasibility of maintaining a canal of soft bed of a tortuous, rapidly flowing stream, at a depth of twenty-five to thirty-five feet, they know the story of the engineering art shows that this cannot be done. This sort of work has failed again and again, even when the depth sought was only three or four feet. Such channels invariably go to pieces. In the centre of Lake Nicaragua ships would have deep water and perhaps ample sea room in case of storms. But what shall be said of the canal, which it is necessary to dig through the shoal waters on the eastern waters of that lake for a distance of about twenty miles, between the lake proper and the San Juan? If a ship in passing through this narrow channel should be caught in one of the violent storms which rage in that country how are navigators to avert stranding and wreck in the muddy shoals which lie on either side?

"If we admit for the sake of argument that all these difficulties may be overcome there are others quite as formidable. Experience has shown that the navigation of a great ship in a narrow channel is not as easy and simple as it appears to be. Experience in the Suez canal has shown that the shortest describable radius curve is 10,000 feet, and that even in exceptional cases the minimum cannot be reduced below 8,000 feet, and this must be for navigation in calm water and without violent winds. In the Panama canal there will be twenty-three curves, of which three only are at the working minimum of 8,000 feet radius. In the Nicaragua route on account of the numerous turns and twists of the San Juan, there are to be, according to the plans of the American engineers, no fewer than eighty-two curves, and of this enormous number sixty-nine have a radius shorter than the minimum of 8,000 feet, and of these sixty-nine as many as fifty have such a small radius as 7,100 feet.

"Add to these many difficulties of handling large ships in the rapid current of the river, and the enormous discharge of flood seasons of the affluent, reaching often a total of more than 100,000 cubic feet a second, and taking into consideration also the violence of the winds which blow a large part of the year through the San Juan Valley and over Lake Nicaragua, I have no hesitation in saying that the Nicaragua canal is probably not constructible; it would soon be destroyed by natural agencies if constructed, and if opened and kept open for a certain length of time, would, on account of the great dangers of its navigation, offer small inducements to ships."

CHINESE FARMS IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 30.—Chinese farms within the limits of Greater New York are one of the curiosities offered by the Metropolis to the Sunday recreation seeker, and those to whom the unusual and bizarre are always welcome sights. On Long Island, near the Steinway road and Ninety-second street, Astoria, are three of these unique Oriental farms, each of which is to all appearance a portion of China transplanted to this side, affording one of the most picturesque sights of rural native life to be seen outside of the Flowery Kingdom itself. On the farms a typical colony of native farmers dwell in primitive huts and raise nothing but their own peculiar vegetables in their own peculiar way. The ground is tilled in the manner practiced by the Celestials a few thousand years ago, is laid out in even divisions, every square inch of the reservation being utilized as completely as if it were Wall street real estate. The farmers work with Chinese implements and while in the fields wear huge cone-shaped straw hats about the size of an ordinary umbrella. And though they practice the same methods and raise the same vegetables that were known to Confucius, they nevertheless outclass their Circassian neighbors, raising a greater quantity of produce and in a briefer period from identically the same soil. All the farming is done on the co-operative plan the output of the farms supplying the Chinese of New York with strictly native vegetables. The finest are purchased by the Chinese restaurants and the groceries in and about Mott street. All vegetables are sold by the pound, ranging from three to five cents for choice. As an American farmer the Chinaman is an undoubted success, artistically as well as productively. It is said that these Chinamen produce fully one-third more to the acre than their white neighbors.

DEADLY EXPERIMENTS

Havanna, August 30—Of the eight persons bitten by infected mosquitoes in connection with the experiments conducted by the Yellow Fever Board during the last three weeks, three have died. Three others who took the fever are expected to recover. One has not developed the disease. The eighth person as yet has not developed yellow fever, although it is too early to say what may happen in that case.

Surgeon Major Reed intends to continue the investigations. Major Gorgas, chief sanitary officer, says the idea of the Yellow Fever Board, was to subject to mosquito infection as many as would volunteer.

Of 16 persons bitten, all had recovered, and the theory of the Board was that, if some hundred or more persons could have been bitten with similar results, a report could have been published showing how apparently safe it was to become immune. After this had been published the entire population might have been made immune. So many cases gave mild results that the impression was created that the danger was not so great as it has turned out to be.

Thus far during August there have been two deaths from yellow fever in Havanna as compared with an average of more than fifty for the month of August during the previous eleven years. Major Gorgas regards the experiment in mosquito infection as of immense service to science.

The man who was bitten by an infected mosquito after inoculation with the serum of Dr. Caldas, the Brazilian expert, has developed what seems to be symptoms of yellow fever. The Yellow Fever Board calls the case a suspect.

—If old prophecies speak true, we are to have an exceptionally long and cold winter. The crop of beachnuts and butternuts has not been so prolific for many years, and according to the old saying, this is an infallible indication of a hard spell.

LOVE

Lives only in the present. Nature throws a glamor around youth and maiden, so that although they saw misery and marriage walking hand in hand in every home in the world they would fondly believe that they could marry and defy misery.

Young women should be taught to prepare for marriage. They should understand how to preserve their womanly health through the functional changes of maternity. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the most effective medicine for the preservation of womanly health and the cure of womanly diseases. It regulates the periods, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It prepares the womanly organism for maternity and makes the birth hour practically painless.

"My wife was afflicted with uterine trouble for several years," writes Mr. J. C. Day, of Little Britain, Lancaster Co., Pa., "and in November, 1898, the doctor said she had a miscarriage. He treated her for about two months or so, but there was but little improvement. I wrote you after she had commenced to take 'Favorite Prescription' and you told us to get 'Golden Medical Discovery' also. She took six or seven bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and two of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and got out of bed and was able to attend to her household work."

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington, (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for not securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.

New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world. The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity, it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1886, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed. A first early step in advance was his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Kidney Specialist.

The Famous Physician Who Has Made Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Diseases a Life Long Study.

DR. ZINA PITCHER.

For many years in the hospitals of Detroit and Professor of Genito Urinary diseases in Michigan College of Medicine, Dr. Zina Pitcher devoted his time to the scientific study of diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary System.

By this exclusive devotion to one branch of medical investigation Dr. Pitcher was enabled to perfect a treatment for Kidney troubles that far surpasses any other remedy.

After testing it extensively in private and hospital practice and demonstrating its incomparable superiority to all other forms of treatment, Dr. Pitcher decided to give this great boon to suffering humanity at large and not confine it exclusively to the circles of his private and hospital patients.

He has placed his remedy before the public under the name of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and so confident is he of the positive curative qualities of these Tablets for backache, lame or weak back, drowsiness, headaches, pain in the loins, brick dust deposits in the urine, puffiness under the eyes, swelling of the feet and ankles, scalding, irritation, frequent rising at night, dribbling, inflammation or ulceration of the bladder, gravel, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease and Diabetes (except in the last stages), bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, constipation, puffy and pasty appearance of the face, dropsy, backache and weakness of women, urinary weakness of children and old people or any symptomatic indications of Kidney disease that to anyone suffering from any of the above troubles, who uses the Tablets faithfully, according to directions, and derives no benefit therefrom, their money will be cheerfully refunded.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists or sent by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

MUNICIPAL REFORM

Toronto, Aug. 30

The Union of Canadian Municipalities held an important session in the Council Chamber this morning. The members unanimously carried resolutions declaring that municipalities should have exclusive control of public highways; that property leased by governments should be taxed. That the scrap iron legislation should be altogether repealed; that a system of securing better credit terms for municipalities should be adopted; that government employees should not be exempted from taxation; and that the union protested against the questionable jurisdiction of the Railway Committee of the Privy Council to assess a portion of the cost of railway crossings on municipalities.

Only one resolution was not adopted, and it called for legislation permitting municipalities to secure coal direct from the mines and to sell it to private citizens when the ordinary market rates were excessive. Some of the members made fun of Mayor Morris, of Ottawa, the mover, and Ald. Graham, the seconder of the resolution, and several delegates characterized it as ridiculous. On motion of the Mayor of Tilsonburg, it was given the six months' hoist.

The Mayor of a little town in the Temiskaming district, named Ville Marie, sent a communication, in French and Mayor Howland begged the convention to bear with him if he translated it slowly. The correspondent considered "the sources of revenue of the Federal and Provincial governments is not equitably divided." By the Act of Corporation the Federal had been granted the lion's share of the revenue, while the provinces had to be content with the share of the lamb. As a result the Federal Government had a surplus of several millions, while the provinces had insufficient funds. He suggested that the union apply to the Federal Government for a subsidy of say, $1,000,000 a year to be divided among the provinces for, the aid of colonization at a per capita rate. This would give Ontario about $400,000 and Quebec $350,000, and would do much to make Canada great and prosperous. The communication was sent on to the Executive.

FULL CONTROL OF STREETS.

The first resolution brought in by the Resolution Committee was moved by Mayor Lighthall of Westmount. It provided for the full and exclusive control of streets by the municipalities, and declared that the union of Canadian municipalities would resolutely fight any invasion of their rights by legislation or otherwise.

In support of his motion, the mover referred to a condition of things in Montreal, where the railway had secured unusual rights within a radius of one hundred miles. It was an outrage. He understood the city of Toronto had the similar experience with the Bell Telephone Company.

Mayor Rumball, London, was not in hearty sympathy with the resolution and his remarks came in the nature of a shock to the union. He said he feared the resolution went too far, and if enforced it would tend to block some great enterprise that would be a stimulus to the industries of the country.

Dr Mearns, Mayor of Woodstock, thought the resolution was rather obscure, but he was in sympathy with it to a certain extent. The trouble was the crown was entitled to the control of the highways. He agreed that corporations were encroaching in a manner that should not be tolerated for a single moment. He was sorry the legislators of the country appeared to hold briefs for the corporations. They should be given to understand that the eyes of the municipalities were upon them, and that the granting of extraordinary powers upon streets would no longer be tolerated

Ald Urquhart, Toronto, pointed out that the objection raised by the previous speaker that the crown controlled the streets was not well grounded, for the highways were vested in the crown for the benefit of the municipalities.

Mayor Radenhurst, Barrie, thought the matter was a very important one, and he supported the resolution. Mayor Chant, St. Thomas, did likewise.

SCORED THE COMBINES.

Councilor Stark of Finch Township, Stowmount County, made a rattling speech. He said the combines had the upper hand, and called upon the union to teach legislators that they must acquiesce in the desires of the electors.

Acting Mayor Macrae, of St. John N.B. never expected an ideal condition, but he thought the resolution was all right.

Mayor Howland said the resolution simply declared a principle and had no law about it.

Mayor Reid, of Owen Sound, complained that his town was not too small to have felt the grip of corporations, what wanted the use of its streets.

Ald Hubbard, Toronto, wondered whether municipalities had any rights corporations were bound to observe. They should look after their own rights, and "let the other fellows do the kicking." He would like to see the resolution made the law of the land.

Ald. Sheppard, Toronto, demanded equity for all parties—for the people, the corporations and the municipalities—whether by law or otherwise. The people should demand, and the legislators would have to listen.

GOVERNMENT LEASES

A resolution by Mayor Morris, of Ottawa, was carried unanimously. It provided that private property leased by the Government should not be exempted from taxation. In Ottawa so much property was leased by the Government and rented, that the city had a positive grievance. He thought an agreement should be made providing that either the Government or the leaseholder should pay taxes on the property.

Mayor Rundle, London said the resolution did not go far enough. All property, including churches, should be assessed.

The union also adopted a resolution declaring that the whole scrap iron legislation should be repealed speedily. The mover, Mayor Morris, of Ottawa, said the Capital had suffered much from the junk assessment. The law at present was too vague.

Mayor Wood, Brantford, said, the people should stand no jollying or juggling from legislators.

Mayor Walker, Petorlea, remarked that his town got little revenue from the Bell Telephone Company, owing to the scrap iron assessment.

Mayor Daville, Aurora, favored the resolution. Another delegate thought that the courts, not the Government was the blame.

Mayor Howland's scheme to improve the credit of the municipalities throughout Canada met with favor in the eyes of the delegates, and a resolution approving of the same was sent on to the Executive which will formulate a policy for adoption.

His Worship declared that by a combination of the municipalities to secure better terms of credit, money could be secured at 3 per cent instead of 5 per cent., as at present. When it was considered that the debt of Canadian municipalities aggregated 55 million dollars, it would be seen how important a reduction would be. He estimated a saving of $1,000,000 annually would be effected. His Worship also stated that he did not despair of seeing the union with a revenue of $100,000 per annum, but he failed to elucidate where the money was to come from. The town of Tilsonburg was congratulated on being practically free from debt.

The resolution for the exemption of Government property and Government officials from taxation was passed without much discussion. Acting Mayor Macrae, of St. John, N.B., said he had received a telegram asking him to support it. Mayor Howland's resolution protesting against the practice of the Railway Committee of assessing part of the cost of railway crossings upon municipalities, without direct jurisdiction was adopted. It declared that, if necessary the matter should be taken to the highest court in the Empire.

In advocating his motion in favor of securing legislation permitting municipalities to purchase and sell coal to citizens when the market price had been excessively high for some time, Mayor Morris said that in Ottawa the local combine had put the price of coal up to $7 a ton. It was an outrage and it was time that necessity was municipalized.

Mayor White, Port Hope, thought the matter was one in which the union should proceed carefully. He hoped at its inception the union should allow nothing to go out to the world of a ridiculous character. He believed the matter was entirely outside of the objects of the association. The shortage of coal was a matter of an individual nature. Municipalities should not be encouraged to go into the retail trade business, and he protested against the resolution.

Mayor Chant, St. Thomas, said water, gas and other commodities were municipalized, and he saw no reason why the resolution should not be carried.

Mayor Rumball, London, treated the resolution very lightly. In fact, he thought it was ridiculous. Coal was no more a necessity than beef. Municipalities would do better to mind their own business.

MAYOR MEARN'S OBJECT

Mayor Mearns of Woodstock did not believe in making department stores of municipalities. He was sorry for the people of Ottawa. If they had a few patriotic citizens to go into the coal business, then wrongs could be remedied.

Ald. Urquhart spoke ably in favor of the resolution, pointing out that the city and that Glasgow, Scotland, which was away to the forefront of cities, had just purchased municipal coal yards.

Mayor Morris of Tilsonburg moved the six months' hoist, and after some further discussion it was carried by a vote of 20 to 12.

Ald. Urquhart tried to have adopted a resolution which had been sent to the Resolution Committee but which had not been reported upon. It was perhaps the most important matter mentioned at the meeting and emphasized the principle that any undertaking requiring the use of the city streets should be municipalized, but Mayor Howland did not want the matter taken up. Ald. Cox moved an adournment, and a hearing was refused Ald. Urquhart, although he explained that he could not be present at the closing session this afternoon.

HOW GENERAL FRENCH DROVE OFF KRITZINGER

London, Aug. 30.— The accomplishment of the feat of driving Kritzinger across the Orange River by General French was a brilliant piece of work. The result is a complete disorganization of the Boer invaders of the Colony. On the night of the 9th inst. Kritzinger slept to the south of the Naauwpoort-Stormberg line, near Thebus. His forces were much scattered and demoralized. Col. Crabbe was lying the same night in close proximity to the enemy. On the night of the 11th Kritzinger himself and a few followers managed to cross the line near Thebus, while the bulk of his forces crossed at Schoenbie, moving north beyond the Zuurberg.

Meanwhile Col. Gorringe had marched to Stormfontein, via Shauka, while Kritzinger, ignorant of this new danger, led his men to Roosfontein. There, on the afternoon of the 13th, they fell into Gorringe's hands, and received severe punishment. It was in this action that Commandant Cache' was mortally wounded and Kritzinger's secretary was taken prisoner.

Escaping hurriedly, the Boers marched north-west towards Transvaalkrantz, but Captains Nichalls and Sandeman were watching their movement, and during the night moved north from Steynsburg, while Col. Crabbe marched northwards from the western spur of the Zuurberg. Col. Gorringe also continued the pursuit, and caught up the enemy on the following afternoon in the Doornkloof Mountains Kritzinger himself just managed to escape. Col Gorringe, however, still followed the spoor, while Col. Crabbe moved to Tygershoek, and Captains Nickalls and Sandeman extended their forces with a wide front towards Venterstadt, in order to prevent the enemy breaking back. It was intended that this driving line, by the gradual closing in of its rough crescent formation, should finally take the form of a circle; but on the morning of the 15th Kritzinger, accompanied by remnants of his force, numbering about 100 men, crossed the Orange River at Frank's Drift. The enemy was vigorously shelled from the top of a small kopje on the north bank of the river. Many of the enemy were on foot, and all appeared to be thoroughly demoralized.

Cape Town, Aug. 30.—Two more rebels, who were found guilty by the Treason Court, have been shot at Graaf Reinet.

BOERS GUNS HERE.

Mr. J. H. McClellan has made application, we understand, for one or more of the Boer guns which are soon to be sent to Canada from South Africa. Some time ago the Canadian Government applied to the Imperial authorities for some of the guns to be located at different points in Canada. A cable has just been received from the British Government stating that a distribution of the guns will be made, but that the War Office is not yet ready to make the distribution. When the time for the distribution arrives Canada will not be forgotten.

Perfect Manhood

Is rightly yours; but if you are not the man you should be, if you are losing your energy, your Vital force, memory, annoyed by Varicocele, shrunken parts, and feeling if you don't care what happens, you are suffering from Lost Vitality; it creeps upon men unawares; do not deceive yourself or remain in ignorance while you are being dragged down by this disease, no matter what the cause may be, whether early abuse, excess, or overwork and business cares, the results are the same; premature loss of strength and memory, emissions, impotency. Varicocele and shrunken parts. OUR LATEST METHOD TREATMENT WILL CURE YOU. We guarantee it as a positive cure for these conditions; it is the outcome of years of experience; it equalizes the circulation, stops all drains, thereby vitalizes the parts, restoring them to their normal condition and make the man of you as nature has intended. Do not be misled by so-called Specialists and Institutes. Read the following facts:

1. We do not accept an incurable case for treatment.
2. Each time you call you see Dr. Goldberg personally. He has 18 Diplomas, etc., which should be sufficient guarantee to his abilities. All other chronic, private and Blood Poison Specialists either have some doctor in charge of their office or have an assistant to doctor you.
3. We are doing business on our own reputation, not of our predecessor.
4. Our records show more actual cures than all the other Specialists combined.
5. You need pay nothing until you are convinced that you are thoroughly cured.

OUR LATEST METHOD TREATMENT GUARANTEED TO CURE

Varicocele and Stricture without cutting, Stretching, or loss of time; also Blood Poison, Chronic, Nervous, Impotency, Kidney, Liver, Bladder, Stomach, Female and Rectal Troubles. CONSULTATION FREE. Call or write for blank for home treatment. BOOK FREE. Hours 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sundays, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

DR. PITCHER'S

BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS

(Formula of Zina Pitcher, M. D, Late Professor of Materia Medica and Genito Urinary Diseases, Michigan College of Medicine, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A)

Dr. Pitchers' Backache Kidney Tablets are the quickest and surest relief for Backache and Kidney troubles, and can show more evidence to that effect than all other advertised remedies combined. Dr. Pitcher stakes his reputation on these tablets for Backache and Kidney troubles, and will not allow them to be advertised as a "jack of all trades" medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Bevan of Port Hope says: "Thirteen years ago I fell and injured my back, and since then have known little comfort with backache and Kidney troubles. I have tried all kinds of medicines and seen many physicians, but got no help until I began the bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets that I got from R. Deyell, druggist. They have done me a world of good. I feel stronger; the dizziness and pain is gone, and I cannot tell you how pleased I am, and everyone else says the same of them. They are just what everyone wanted. I hope others will use them and get well.

PETERBOROUGH SEPTEMBER 3 1901

JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN.

—Schools reopen today.

—Oysters are now in season.

—The annual organization meeting of the Peterborough Rugby Club will be held in the Oriental Hotel tomorrow evening.

—All the newest designs in photography from the Pan-American at G. E. Whiten's. See his latest photographs in colours.

—At the convention of the Ancient Order of Foresters at Hamilton, it was resolved to hold the High Court meeting of 1903 in Peterborough.

—Bro. C. C. Lyman, of Brockville, who at one time resided in Peterborough, is the present Grand Master of the I.O.O.F. for Ontario. The past year has been a very successful one for the order, the gain in membership in Ontario alone being 1,195. The order is now in successful operation under 27 different flags.

—The royal chorus will meet for practice tomorrow night at 7.45 o'clock. Any singer wishing to join will be given an opportunity to do so up till Wednesday night, when the roll will be closed and handed in to the authorities. After that none will be admitted. Mr. Mulligan is delighted with the quality of the voices already enrolled. A number will be given to each, which will admit to the grand stand at Toronto.

—The grand concert which the 57th Regiment band propose to give at a near date to raise funds to purchase saxaphones to improve and strengthen the reed section, promises to be a great success. Liberal prizes have been donated by merchants to be given as premiums to ticket holders. The concert will be given in the Charlotte street rink, Mr. W. G. Ferguson having kindly given the use of the rink free of charge.

—Miss Hettie Taylor, who has been spending the summer with Mrs. W. H. Hill at Chemong, captured a twelve and half pound 'lunge at the lake. Miss Taylor and Mrs. Hill were in a skiff when the former hooked the big fish. Just as it reached the side of the boat it shook free of the hooks, but its jump for freedom was into the boat and not into the lake. Miss Taylor pluckily seized it, and is now receiving congratulations on her capture.

New Minister For Norwood.

At a meeting of representatives of the congregations of the Norwood, Havelock and Dummer Baptist Churches, a unanimous call was extended to Rev. J. E. Hawkins, B. A., B. Th., Paris, to become the pastor of this mission. It is understood that the call will be accepted and that the rev. gentleman will enter upon his labors on the last Sabbath in September. The Rev. A. W. Torrie, the present pastor, intends returning to college to complete his course and will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday, Sept. 22.

Mr. Hawkins goes to his new duties very highly recommended by Chancellor O. C. S. Wallace, of McMaster University; Professor Farmer, W. E. Morton, Superintendent of Home Missions, and C. J. Cameron, Ph. L. The date of the ordination and induction service will be announced later.

An Old Pioneer Gone.

One of the oldest and most respected residents of this district passed away on Sunday morning, in the person of Mr. Henry Sherin, at the ripe old age of 81 years.

The deceased came to Canada 79 years ago, and made his home in Emily township, where he resided until 21 years ago, when he removed to Peterborough, where he resided ever since.

Mr. Sherin was a consistent member of the Methodist Church, and was greatly esteemed and respected.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock p.m., from the family residence, Smithtown Hill, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Mis. Carson of the Y. W. C. A

The members of the Sunshine Society are requested to be in attendance at the rooms of the Y.W.C.A. this evening at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of meeting Miss Carson.

PERSONAL.

—Mr. John Green, barrister, has returned from a visit to American centres.

—Miss Lillian Rush left yesterday for Ottawa, where she will attend the Normal College to qualify for Kindergarten work.

—The Rev. J. G. Potter arrived home Saturday and occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's Sunday morning and evening.

—Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rector of St. John's, has returned from his vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pentland and children left Saturday morning for Buffalo and the Pan-American.

—Mr. G. H. Williamson, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., spent Labor Day in Beamsville. He will be accompanied upon his return Wednesday evening by Mr. Horace Ayers, the new physical director of the Y.M.C.A.

—The friends of Ald. John Sawers will regret to learn of his illness from typhoid fever. He is now at Nicholls hospital, where he was conveyed upon his arrival from Stony lake, where he was enjoying an outing.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Spencer, of Palestine, Texas, are the guests of Mrs. Spencer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. L. Hughes, Park street. Mr. Spencer is representing the International and Great Northern Railway of Texas. He was formerly train despatcher of the G.T.R. here, but left Peterborough in 1897.

Catarrh for twenty years and cured in a few days.—Hon. George James, of Scranton, Pa., says: "I have been a martyr to Catarrh for twenty years, constant hawking, dropping in the throat and pain in the head, very offensive breath. I tried Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. The first application gave instant relief. After using a few bottles I was cured. 50 cents.—5

Spray Your Trees.

An Otonabee farmer when in this office the other day, was telling his experience with spraying. He has a number of plum trees. One day he started to spray them, but was called away when his task was but partially finished. He turned the job over to someone else, who grew weary in well-doing. At other times during the year the result was about the same. The trees nearest the house were the trees most carefully sprayed. This is the result.—The first tree come at has about two bushels of plums; the last tree about six plums. There is a gradual decrease in the yield, varying as did the spraying.

Death of James Campbell

James C. Campbell died on Sunday at the home of his mother, 376 Brock street, in the 25th year of his age. The deceased was a son of the late Thomas Campbell, formerly a leading business man of Keene. His illness began about a year ago, following an attack of the grip. He spent some time at Gravenhurst, but failed to improve, and on returning home slowly declined until death ensued. Prior to his illness he was employed at Richard Hall & Sons. He was highly esteemed by a wide circle of relatives and acquaintances.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 1 o'clock from the family residence to the cemetery at Keene.

LOOK TO your food. The perfect food is Grape-Nuts

MORE BOXES OF GOLD

And Many Greenbacks

To secure additional information directly from the people, it is proposed to send little boxes of gold and greenbacks to persons who write the most interesting, detailed and truthful descriptions of their experience on the following topics.

1. How have you been affected by coffee drinking and by changing from coffee to Postum.

2. Do you know any one who has been driven away from Postum because it came to the table weak and characterless at the first trial?

3. Did you set such a person right regarding the easy way to make Postum clear, black, and with a crisp, rich taste?

4. Have you ever found a better way to make it than to use four heaping teaspoonsful to the pint of water, let stand on stove until real boiling begins, then note the clock and allow it to continue easy boiling full 15 minutes from that time stirring down occasionally? (A piece of butter about the size of a navy bean, placed in the pot will prevent boiling over.)

5. Give names and account of those you know to have been cured or helped in health by the dismissal of coffee and the daily use of Postum Food Coffee in its place.

6. Write names and addresses of 20 friends whom you believe would be benefited by leaving off coffee. (Your name will not be divulged to them).

Address your letter to the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., writing your own name and address clearly.

Decision will be made between October 30th and November 10th, 1901, by three judges, not members of the Postum Cereal Co., and a neat little box containing a $10 gold piece sent to each of the five best writers, a box containing a $5 gold piece to each of the 20 next best writers, a $2 greenback to each of the 100 next best, and a $1 greenback to each of the 200 next best writers, making cash prizes distributed to 325 persons.

Almost everyone interested in pure food and drink is willing to have their name and letter appear in the papers, for such help as it may offer to the human race. However, a request to omit name will be respected.

Every friend of Postum is urged to write and each letter will be held in high esteem by the company, as an evidence of such friendship, while the little boxes of gold and envelopes of money will reach many modest writers whose plain and sensible letters contain the facts desired, although the sender may have but small faith in winning at the time of writing.

Talk this subject over with your friends and see how many among you can win prizes. It is a good, honest, competition and in the best kind of a cause.

Food Experts Decide That Delicious

MALT BREAKFAST FOOD

Is The Only Scientific Health Food.

While a number of manufacturers of cereal foods are making the most extravagant claims for their productions, the manufacturers of Malt Breakfast Food after having submitted their popular grain food to the most noted experts for analysis, are positive that they are supplying to the public the only true and nourishing health cereal manufactured. No other breakfast food in Canada has at presnet such an enormous demand as Malt Breakfast Food. It is the only grain food free from the stomach-irritating properties present in other foods. It is recommended by the best physician. All Grocers sell it.

INDIAN RIVER.

—Miss Kindred, of Zion, is visiting her cousin, Miss Lillian Duff, at present.

—The noise of the threshing machine can be heard before dawn these last few days.

—Mr. John Duff, who went to Scotland a few months ago, has returned and reports a pleasant trip.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. Minore left for a couple of weeks stay at the Pan-American at Buffalo.

—One of uor most prmoinent young men in the person of William Allen has gone to Toronto to join the police force of that place.

—A mishap occured to the wheel belonging to Mr. Jas. Duff, on Friday last. It appears that Mr. Duff in company with two of his gentlemen friends went out for a wheel and when going down the hill at the cheese factory Mr. Duff's wheel became unmanageable and ran into the one ridden by Mr. Campbell, breaking his front rim into splinters, and doing considreible damage to the hind wheel and Mr. Campbell's bicycle. Jas. escaped with little injury other than a broken toe and a general shaking up.

WESTWOOD

—Mrs. J. Caldwell and daughter, Miss Phoebe, are visiting friends in Peterborough.

—Messrs. Ed. McMillen and Chas. Blake have purchased the blacksmithing business of Mr. W. Cook, of Norwood. We wish them every success in their undertaking.

—The Asphodel Council met in the town hall here on Monday for the transaction of business.

—A very sad event took place in our village on Tuesday, Aug. 20th, in the death of Oliver Wilson, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Breckenridge, aged 17 months and 2 weeks. The child was sick but a short time and death was quite unexpected. The funeral took place on Thursday, to the Westwood cemetery, six little boys acting as pallbearers: Gordon Brackenridge, Kenneth Robb, Eddie Sargent, Fred. Doherty, Geo. Cook, and Sidney Warr.

Bronchitis Suffers Act Foolish

act foolishly. If they improve ever so little when the fine weather comes, they relax effort and drift back into the old condition which if possible becomes more chronic. Hit bronchitis hard in the summer and you'll get rid of it and drive it right out of the system. In winter it is almost impossible to do this. Inhale Catarrhozone regularly. It's a dead sure thing on bronchitis. It goes into the most minute air cells of the lungs, bathes all parts of the bronchial tubes with its healing, germ-destroying vapor, and cures every time. Highly endorsed by all competent druggists and doctors. 25c and $1.00.

A Sunday Alarm.

Worshippers in some of the churches were disturbed by an unusually clamorous alarm of fire on Sunday evening. The blaze, however, was only a small one, at the back of J. J. Turner & Sons, and was promptly subdued by the fire department. Considerable damage was done by water and smoke.

WAR IN BRAZIL NOW LOOKED FOR

Rioting in Rio Janeiro and Many People Shot Down.

BAD MEAT WAS SOLD--A REVOLUTION IMMINENT

It Looks as Though all the Great Southern Continent Would be at War—Uncle Sam's Opportunity to Exercise Monroe Doctrine.

New York, Sept. 4—A revolution in Brazil formidable enough to overthrow the government of President Campos Salles is foreshadowed in advices received in this city yesterday from Pernambuco.

Troubles have been accumulating in that country for seven years, growing out of the heavy burden of debt incurred in putting down the rebellion of 1893-94, begun by Admiral Mello and continued by Admiral Saldanha da Gama. It is not even known how much was expended during that period, and probably it will never be known.

Matters steadily went from bad to worse. The protracted commercial and industrial depression growing out of the national debt and aggravated by extraordinary taxes brought on lack of employment. Greatly restricted trade, business embarrassments and increased cost of living. Discontent everywhere was the inevitable consequence and the Campos Salles government became unpopular, though it began with the united support of the whole country.

RIOTS IN RIO JANEIRO.

But the present crisis has been precipitated by events of secondary importance. There were riots in Rio Janeiro a few weeks ago over an attempt of a tramway company to make a slight increase in fares. Under the orders of the Minister of Justice and the Interior, Senor Epitacio Pessoa, and his subordinate, the Chief of Police, the police fired upon the people, and killed several, most of them inoffensive spectators. The riots continued, however, and the company was compelled to restore the old fares.

An error made by the same Ministry to secure new regulations for the higher schools also proved unpopular and sent the students into the ranks of the Opposition.

BAD MEAT SOLD TO PUBLIC.

On top of all this came an exposure of serious scandals in connection with the supply of the national capital with fresh beef under the supervision of this same Minister. It has proved that diseased meat had been sold to the public and that the municipal and sanitary officers, charged with the service of inspection, had accepted bribes to pass the meat.

Excitement then rose to fever heat. The Minister of Justice and the Interior. The Chief of Police, the Municipal Medical Inspector, and the Director of the Medical School, resigned. The Minister of Finance, Dr. Joaquin Murtinho, is expected to resign also.

The President has been attacked by several Rio Janeiro newspapers, for having merchandise, imported for his private use, passed through the Custom-House free of duty.

In view of all these things there are reasons for believing that Brazil's affairs are approaching a new and very serious crisis.

PRINCE CHUN DEFIES KAISER

The Prince May Not Bring The Chinese Apology.

SOME TROUBLE IS EXPECTED.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—Prince Chun, the Chinese envoy bearing the apology for the murder of Baron Von Ketteler, is arousing the wrath of Emperor William to a high pitch. Chun and his suite are still dawdling at Basis, Switzerland, making all kinds of excuses for their procrastination. Some of these would be almost comical if they were not fraught with such serious eventualities.

Advices to the Lokal Anzeiger and private despatches indicate that it is doubtful if Prince Chun will come to Berlin with the apology unless such additional pressure or punishment is brought to bear on his government that the Chinese emperor will stop his dilatory tactics. The exasperating delay of Chun is on a line with the tardiness shown by Chun in carrying out any of the terms of the protocol forced upon it by the ministers of the powers.

Emperor William's ire is especially aroused by the report that Prince Chun said the reason he did not wait to grovel before the kaiser, as required was because that is a special honor reserved for the emperor of China and would involve a recognition of William's equality. The language Emperor William is credited with having used when he learned that Chun classed him as an inferior of his yellow-skinned master was robust, rumbling and expressive

A little hair-splitting is being done by Chun about the working of the apology. In his speech to the kaiser Chun had it all framed up to say in his suave oriental way: "The Chinese government regrets that Baron Von Ketteler was killed." But Emperor William does not wait to hear such euphonious language. He has dictated this harsh, grating form: "The Chinese government begs pardon for the murder of the German minister, Baron Von Ketteler."

The Chinese in Basel are trying to give the case international importance by emphasizing the fact that one of the dignitaries selected for the prostration was made a baronet by Queen Victoria, while another has the cross of the Legion of Honor.

MOVEMENTS OF ROYALTY.

Czar, King Edward and Kaiser in Eyes of the World

London, Sept. 4.—The movements and relations of the royal figures on the European stage make up the bulk of the news at midnight. It is reported from Copenhagen that the Czar and King Edward will not meet at Fredensberg, as has been previously announced. If this rumor be confirmed, it will not be proof that anything has gone amiss, but merely that it has been inconvenient to shorten the King's stay at Homburg and impracticable to alter the Czar's engagement at Dantzic. The Czar, while on good terms with the King and the German Emperor, must consider hearings of the dual alliance and give preference to France in ceremonial visits. He is not likely to single out England for a deliberate affront, and there is no evidence that he intends to do so.

The Russian press is more hostile to Germany than to England, and this is an indication that the German Emperor rather than Edward VII would be sighted if the Czar were looking for an opportunity to discriminate against either power.

DO PLANTS THINK?

A Balm of Gillead Tree, Which Sought Richer Ground.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have been a reader of The Times for some years past, and find much to interest and instruct me. I was specially interested in an item, "Do Plants Think?" as it had been a question of discussion with an old friend fifty years ago. I sent him the item, and, knowing how precious first-hand observation are to the naturalist, I inclose his reply. Respectfully yours,

J. B. MAHEW.

The inclosure is as follows:

I read the article to which you referred in The Times with real interest and as it referred to a subject that I have taken some pains to investigate it was the more interesting to me. I have seen many things tending to confirm the idea that I entertained early in life, that plants are sentient things. I will relate one thing that came under my observation a few years ago. You perhaps remember the Balm of Gilead tree that stood by the spring, some forty feet east of the house. It had grown to be a foot in diameter, with large top branches. It had an abundant supply of water, but seemed to desire a richer soil, and it started for the ship piles which was a rich accumulation of vegetable mould about 40 feet away, and in about five years it reached the coveted treasure. I will tell you how: It sent out a root in that direction, and once in about eight feet, at the commencement of each season, it would send up a shoot to the surface, as if to investigate or to locate the object of its desire, and, having reached it, it has held possession ever since. If plants do not reason as well as think they have an instinct that, as it is God given, is in and of itself a world of wonder.

FIND TWO MEN MURDERED.

Steward and Head Waiter of Fashionable Golf Club Slain.

New York, Sept. 4.—The bodies of David Scott and John Stevens, the one steward and the other head waiter of the Siwanoy Golf club, were found today in a room which they occupied in the attic of the clubhouse on the outskirts of Yonkers. They had been murdered with a butcher knife, which was found on the floor of the room and this had been repeatedly plunged into them, as many as a dozen cuts being found by the physicians. The men were negroes, and Warner Simms, a colored waiter, is held on supicion of knowing something of the murder, while Frank Dunnington, another negro who called at the clubhouse yesterday looking for work, is under detention.

The police found in the room the steel portion of a putter. It had on it, blood and hair. This putter, the police claim, belonging to Simms. The handle was found downstairs and it had the name "Simms" on it. The cash box, which was in the keeping of Scott, cannot be found. It contained about $150.

Simms says he believes burglars entered the house after searching below stairs, ascended to the attic and tried to rob Scott and Stevens and that one of them was awakened and the burglar used the knife.

The Siwanoy Golf club is a very exclusive organization and its membership includes 250 of the fashionable residents of Yonkers.

Why Catarrhozone Cures Catarrh

Because it is carried by the air you breathe to diseased parts, because it destroys the germ life that maintains the diseased condition, because it powerfully stimulates the mucous membrane to its normal action, because through its oxydizing power it burns up rapidly the old tissue and stimulates the formation of new healthy tissue. Catarrhozone is an absolute specific for Catarrh in every form, and never fails to cure. Catarrhozone is the only remedy sold with a guarantee, At all dealers, 25c. and $1.

YOUNG BOER SHOT A DUTCH MAID

Additional Particulars of Wreck of the British Train.

THE CAPE REBELS REVOLT

Pretoria, Sept. 3.—Additional particulars of the wrecking of the Pietersburg British train north of Pretoria, are to the effect that as soon as the explosion occurred the Boers opened fire from the banks into the armoured trucks, killing ten and wounding 17 men. Lt.-Col. Vandelour gallantly stepped on a platform to direct his men, and was shot point blank, and killed. A Dutch nurse-maid was shot deliberately by a young Boer who knew her. The Boers took all the passengers' valuables and money, and even their boots, and then burned the train.

London, Sept. 3.—The report of Capt. Reichman, who was the United States military attache with the Boers, states that the Irish-American ambulance originally consisted of 53 men. On their arrival at Pretoria 46 of them threw away their Red Cross badges and took up Mausers.

London, Sept. 3.—An experienced officer yesterday stated that he suspected Kruger was not far from the truth when he asserted that 12,000 Cape rebels had revolted

Cape Town, Sept. 3.—It is stated that all the Boers in the re-concentration camps, numbering upward of one hundred thousand, will be deported to garrisoned towns, where food is more readily available.

BUYING BRITISH BRAINS.

American Capitalists Organize to Aid English Inventors

London, Sept. 3—The English commercial world is not leaving a single stone unturned in its endeavor to compete with the American movement about to be started for the purpose of giving better opportunity to English inventors.

In the past a man bringing out a new patent was not assisted in any way, but was rather hindered by the conservative attitude of people who were afraid to look at anything new. It is hoped that the new organization, which will be prepared to make all necessary tests and experiments, will act as a spur to the inventive genius of the country.

I was informed to-day by a representative of the H. C. Brown Company, the biggest patent manufacturers in London, that while there was no lack of inventors, it was almost impossible to get managers or capitalists to look at or test new inventions. Said he:

"We make specimen patents for inventors in all countries, but our experience has shown us that the most useful inventions during the last few years have come from America. In nearly every case the American patent is not so much an invention as an improvement upon the existing article. This is one of the strongest points of the American inventor. He is quick to see how and where a thing can be improved.

"There have been more English inventions, pure and simple, comparatively speaking, than American during the year, but only one in 1,000 is ever taken up in this country, while in America probably one in every 100 is turned to account.

"There are not so many German inventions as people suppose. Germany's patents principally take the forms of toys and lighter articles. America leads the world because of its opportunities, not because its inventive genius is greater than that of England."

DR. COULTER GETS A DECREE

Interlocutory Judgment in Celebrated Case Over Oronhyatekha's $5,000

New York Sun, Sept. 4. — Dr. C. L. Coulter has obtained an interlocutory judgment compelling Oronhyatekha, head of the Independent Order of Foresters to restore $5,000 to the treasury of that organization.

While the suit was brought in the name of Dr. Coulter, it was not in his own interest, except as a member of the great body of Foresters and despite the fact that the action was in the interest of the organization, its official representatives were joined with Oronhyatekha as defendants.

Dr. Coulter's action was based on the payment of $5,000 to Oronhyatekha for special services in connection with the planning and building of the Foresters' Temple in Toronto, which cost nearly $1,000,000. Dr. Coulter showed that under the constitution of the Order Oronhyatekha, as Supreme Chief Ranger, received a salary of $10,000 a year. He asserted that the extra payment of $5,000 was a mere gift, for which there was no authority.

The action was brought in the Supreme Court of New York County. The defendants fought it on the grounds that the plaintiff had no legal capacity to sue, that the court had no jurisdiction, and that the Order should have been made a plaintiff instead of a defendant. Justice McLean decided against them on every point.

Dr. Coulter also has sued Oronhyatekha and John McGillivary, Supreme Secretary of the Foresters, for the return of his patents, which he alleges he transferred to them under an agreement which they failed to carry out, and for $100,000.

BRISTOL GIRL SAVED HER DOLL

Bristol, Pa., Sept. 3—Three Bristol people were on the ill-fated City of Trenton when her boiler exploded. Frank Lewis had his little girl with him, and she was sitting by his side fondling a doll when the explosion came. "I was thrown 10 or 15 feet out of my seat," said Mr. Lewis to-day, "and was stunned for an instant. My first thought was for my daughter, and after searching in the wreckage I found her, the little doll clasped closely to her breast. We were taken off in a boat and escaped injury, except for some painful bruises.

Winder Johnson, a well-known real estate broker, was one of the sufferers. He reached home Wednesday night, badly scalded about the face and head. Mr. Johnson saved one woman from drowning, but his strength gave out and he had to be assisted in reaching shore.

MRS. EDDY IS NOW A STAR

Head of Christian Science at a Fair Opening

RECEIVES A BIG OVATION

And Has a Heartier Welcome Than is Accorded to the State Governor

The Address Which She Made is Characteristic of the Wonderful Woman—Richly Dressed

Concord, N.H., Sept. 3.—Gov. Chester B. Jordan and Mother Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, shared honors to-day in attracting to the State Fair Grounds in Concord 20,000 people.

It was Governor's Day and the State Executive and his military staff arrived in the afternoon, receiving a hearty reception from the big concourse. Mrs. Eddy came a short time later and her welcome was even more demonstrative than that accorded to Gov. Jordan.

The news of her visit had been spread far and wide, and many Christian Scientists came from near-by States and from points as far west as Chicago. Two special trains from Boston bearing a delegation over a thousand strong arrived at noon.

The most prominent visitors were assigned to a reserved section in the grand stand, and long before Mrs. Eddy's arrival every seat of the 4,000 available was occupied and the aisles were crowded to a degree which compelled the management to close the gates.

Mrs. Eddy was ceremoniously conducted to the grounds at 2.45 p.m. She was seated in a Victoria drawn by a handsome team of bays and driven by a liveried coachmen. A mounted squad of marshals and a squad of police in command of Chief-of-police Locke met Mrs Eddy's carriage at the gate and acted as her escort while she remained within the grounds.

Accompanying Mrs. Eddy were Judge and Mrs. Ewing, of Chicago.

Probably no woman of eighty on the grounds was gowned more richly or more strikingly than Mrs. Eddy. Her costume was of silver-gray color, made of soft, filmy material. She wore a hat of white illusion and carried a big white parasol with a black border. She held in her hand a long white lace scarf. Her countenance was glowing, her cheeks were flushed, and thousands remarked upon her extremely youthful appearance.

As her carriage was driven on the track a cheer went up from the crowds of her followers and the enthusiasm continued until the prancing bays were halted in front of the grand stand, where Mrs. Eddy was received by the fair officials.

George H. Moses welcomed her to the grounds, saying: "In behalf of the Concord State Fair Association I bid you welcome and tender you the freedom of these grounds."

Mrs. Eddy bowed her acknowledgements and Judge Ewing also spoke briefly.

She witnessed the ascension of Aeronaut Stevens, and was startled when high in the air he was shot in a baloon from a cannon. The baloon and cannon fell across the main feed wire of the electric lighting plant, disabling the plant and also Concord's electric lighting service. While attempting to repair the break Harry Quint, a lineman, was fatally shocked, his body falling to the ground. About the same time William Sheehan, twelve years old, who was walking on the track near by, was killed by a train.

Gov. Jordan, who preceded Mrs. Eddy, paid her a high tribute and spoke especially of her act in commissioning a local merchant to supply shoes to every deserving boy and girl who should apply on Children's day.

"I want to say that supplying the needs of 200 children was a kindly act, and a Christianity that prompts a deed of such generosity is not a bad Christianity to have," said Governor Jordan.

HUSBAND DRUGGED

Then Mrs. Hanrahan Fled When Young Man's Condition Was Discovered.

Dunkirk Depot, N.Y., Sept 3—John Hanrahan, recently married, has been forcibly detained for three months by his wife in a small room in a boarding house in this city. Yesterday a search was made in the absence of the wife, and Hanrahan was found lying, stupified, on a cot. He was under the influence of some strong drug, thought to be knockout drops

Hanrahan was removed to his father's home. His face was covered with a bushy beard of several months' growth. The young man was haggard and so changed in appearance that his friends did not recognize him.

A few months ago Mrs. Hanrahan gave out information that he had gone to Pittsburg, and every now and then she would tell friends she had received a letter from John, and hoped soon to join him. Nothing was thought of this until Hanrahan was seen several times late at night in the boarding house yard, led about by his wife.

He was enfeebled and his actions were automatic. The young man's father proceeded to investigate. He went to the house, but was refused admittance by the wife. He then sought the police, and with their assistance found his son, who recognized no one. His wife was seen boarding a train in the Union station, and has fled.

Hanrahan, after his marriage, refused to live with his wife. It is thought that his wife resorted to drugs to keep him.

Doctors say Hanrahan has been drugged continuously for several months. It is feared that his mind is weakened, and that he will never recover from the effects of the drug.

Mr. A. W. Brodie, formerly of the Peterborough and later of Hespeler Woollen mills, has applied to the town of Streetsville for a $4,000 bonus to go into the woollen manufacturing business in that place.

SUING EMPLOYES FOR DAMAGES

Taffvale Railroad Seek to Recover £20,000 from Railway Servants

MAY RUIN THE UNION FUND

Swansea, Wales, Sept. 3.—A commotion was caused at to-day's session of the Trades Union Congress by the action of some employers in endeavoring to recover damages under the House of Lords' decision of July 22 last from labor organizations for picketing by their members. A delegate from Blackburn was served with a writ yesterday restraining him, and the members of the Blackburn branch of the Weavers, Winders and Warpers' Association from picketing, Pamster and Moore's works, where a strike is now in progress. Damages and costs were claimed. Besides this suit the Taff Vale Railroad is suing the Amalgamated Society of Railroad Servants for £20,000 damages incurred as a result of the strike of 1900. These suits will be strenuously defended, but their seriousness puts in the shade almost every other topic of discussion.

UNION FUNDS THREATENED.

President Bowerman to-day devoted the principal part of his address to this topic, declaring that union fund were threatened with demolishment, and that the position was intolerable. He said the parliamentary committee favored an alteration of the constitutions of the unions, with the object of minimizing their liability to action.

The Chronicle to-day supports this view, maintaining that no association of workingmen can stand long against such litigation and that if the decision regarding picketing in final then any unscrupulous capitalist will have his employees at his mercy and "the working classes will sink back again into an unorganized and impotent crowd."

RAJAH HAS A GAY TIME

Rule of Jodhpur Doing Paris and Other Capitals

Paris, Sept. 4.—The most picturesque visitors in Paris are the Maharajah of Jodpur and his suite, who are on their first visit to Europe. They have been doing the German watering places and Switzerland for their health's sake, and now are seeking Paris for a good time.

The Maharajah, who is 22 years old, saw snow for the first time on the Eger Glacier. He thinks St Peter's, in Rome the greatest building he ever saw, but Paris the gayest city. He is fond of horses, and prefers the race course to the Louvre with its art.

The boulevards and the ladies have caught the Maharajah's fancy, and he likes to dine in swagger restaurants where crowds assemble. He has also made several excursions to the Montmartre region and got into one little cheap resturant last night, where the habitures, who did not care if he was a Maharajah with millions of jewels, resented his presence and made it uncomfortable for him.

Jodhpur remains for several months and then goes to England to see the King.

SHOT WOMAN WHO LEFT HIM.

Objected to Housekeeper Returning to Her Husband.

New York, Sept. 3.—Lenhard Murcet a furniture mover, of No. 457 East One Hundred and Forty-ninth street, lay in wait for and shot Mrs. Annie Stenwold, 38 years of age, of No. 229 East One Hundred and Fifty-ninth-st. at Courtlandt avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, this morning, and himself wounded in a struggle with Frank Stenwold, the woman's husband, who with her little daughter was accompanying her.

According to the police, Frank Stenwold went away a year and a half ago, leaving his wife and child at his home, No. 229 East One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street. Shortly after his departure Mrs. Stenwold went to the house of Lenhard Murcet, where she remained until yesterday in the capacity of housekeeper. Receiving word yesterday morning that her husband was about to return, she announced to Murcet her intention of coming back to her own house. Murcet objected, but she went home. Today he lay in wait for her to secure vengeance for going away.

MARRIED ON HIS DEATH BED

Quartermaster of the Newark Passed Away a Few Hours Later.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 3—Quartermaster Joseph Matthews, of the United States cruiser Newark, who was married yesterday to Miss Eva May Sain of Camden, shortly before undergoing an operation, died early to-day at the hospital here.

Matthews had recently returned from the Philippines. He came here for a brief vacation, and while bathing last Sunday dived from the board walk into two feet of water. His head struck the sand and his spine was badly injured.

Matthews was engaged to marry Miss Sain and, on being informed that he was not likely to survive the operation, he sent for his fiancee and the pair were married.

Applications Pouring in

Applications for land grants are being received daily at the Toronto Parliament Buildings from veterans. The Fenian Raid men are the chief applicants, and some difficulty is being experienced in ascertaining who are really entitled to the grants. There seems to be a common opinion that all who received the Fenian Raid medals are entitled to land grants, which is not the case by any means. Many of the applications are very peculiar. One company from Montreal and another in Chicago have sent in applications for grants, while one Ontario company, which was not formed until after the raid, have some notion that they are veterans of that famous squabble. Several peculiar points have arisen, but no action will be taken with regard to them as yet. A special meeting some time in the future will clear up all these debatable points. There is two years' time in which to settle all claims. Nothing will be done hurriedly.

CANADIAN-AUSTRALIAN FAST STEAMSHIP LINE

An Australian Now in Canada Endeavoring to Interest the Government.

A LARGE TRADE MIGHT BE DEVELOPED BY IT

Hon Mr. Mulock Interviewed Yesterday, and the Other Members of the Administration Will be Seen.

Toronto, Sept. 3. Mr. J. Owen Cox, of Sydney, New South Wales, is in Canada for the purpose of impressing upon the Dominion authorities the importance of establishing a fast steamship service between this country and Australia. He is the representative of extensive shipping interests in Australia and is largely involved in the Federal Steamship Navigation Company, which has developed an enormous business during the past couple of years between England and Australia and South Africa.

Mr. Cox arrived in Toronto on Saturday. Yesterday he held a conference with Hon. Mr. Mulock at the latter's farm at Aurora, relative to the establishment of the service and other matters pertaining to the development of trade between the two countries. He will likely go to Ottawa this week to speak to Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the subject.

To a Press representative Mr. Cox stated that the people of Australia wanted to trade more with Canada than at present; they felt that the American shipping laws were a direct attack on the shipping interests of Australia, and made it utterly impossible for Australian lines to compete against American lines. For this reason a very strong feeling has sprung up in Australia and New Zealand against America. What Australia would like to see was a direct trade between Canada and that country.

GOODS MISREPRESENTED.

It was simply astonishing the amount of Canadian manufactured articles having American parts for Australia and styled "American." This should not be. It was a gross injustice to Canada, and a delusion to Australians. As a result everything Canadian was submerged in the name "American," very little was known of Canada in Australia or New Zealand. Some of the most prominent men of the country expressed themselves as ignorant of the fact that Canada had a trade representative there. It was different with the United States and some other countries, that were looking for trade. Their representatives were at every public function of importance, and spoke on behalf of their countries. That was what Canada needed. An energetic consul with assistants stationed in the principal centres of trade would accomplish a great deal. They could keep the manufacturers of Canada posted on all that was being imported and for whom it was consigned, so that importers could come in touch with the manufacturers.

BIG PAPER TRADE.

There was a large importation of paper in Australia from the United States. There was no reason why Canada should not supply that. He was told that the steel industry was developing in the eastern section of Canada. If so, there would be no limit to the demand for that product there. He was in a position to know that the New Zealand Government were interested in extending their railway system to a very large extent within the next few years, and they would have to import all the material. The same applied to Australia. If efforts were made, this trade could be secured to Canada. But Canadians would have to be on the alert if they intended capturing the trade, because Americans were getting in there in a surprisingly energetic manner. The trouble was that Canadians did not seem to push for trade that was awaiting them there.

Mr. Cox stated that Mr. J. J. Ward, Postmaster-General and Minister of Railways in New Zealand, and Mr. Barton would strongly support a subsidy for a Canadian steamship service, and he was sure the Minister of Australia would do likewise. A subsidy from Canada was all that was wanted to make the service an accomplished fact. With this trade could be developed rapidly, and Canadians would be sure to find in their brother colonists a people whose commercial relations they would always cherish.

TWO VERY LITTLE PEOPLE

Fatma With a Head the Size of an Orange and His Sister Smaun.

London, Sept. 4.—Nineteen years old and nineteen inches high. Such are the age and stature of Fatma, the famous East Indian dwarf. His weight is thirteen pounds. Smaun is his little sister. She is one year younger and one pound lighter. These creatures are veritable pigmies and quite different from some dwarfs, in that their members are in proportion to their size. Fatma's head is about the size of an orange and his arms are the size of broomsticks. In fact, he is a man in miniature, with none of the false proportions of infants.

Gas on the Stomach

Result of imperfect digestion, pressing up against the heart, it excites alarming symptoms. Instant relief is afforded by taking half an hour after the meal, ten drops of Polson's Nerviline in a little sweetened water. Nerviline aids digestion, expels the gas and imparts a sense of comfort. Nerviline is good for lots of other things, and wise people keep a 25c. bottle in the house for rheumatism, cramps, neuralgia, toothache, etc. Try it.

A Good Idea

"Most women hate to spend new money," said an observant salesman, in one of our large stores, to The Times the other day, "I haven't the faintest idea why this should be so, but I've noticed it often right here in the store. A woman will make a purchase and will pull out her purse to pay the bill, but if she happens to have to part with a clean, crisp note in making up the amount she looks greatly annoyed. I've seen women with fat wads of bright, brand-new bills, flustered when they came to pay for purchases, because they hadn't sufficient old money to meet the charges. They would dig out the contents of their purses and stow the crisp notes to one side, and if they couldn't scrape up the sum, in a few cases I've known them to go out without buying. Others will give utterence to little feminine exclamations of dismay, and will hastily pay for the articles selected in the new money. Then they will march off with quite a show of indignation, just as if they had been inveigled into spending the money. I know one man who always takes his salary home in beautiful, clean bills. He has caught on to this peculiarity of the sex, and he says it saves him all kinds

Dizzy Performance on a Flagpole

New York, Sept. 3.—Citizens on Third avenue have been treated to the spectacle of a man "cutting capers" that would startle a monkey, on a big wooden ball affixed to a flagstaff two hundred and fifty feet above the ground. The man was "Steeple Paul" who has made himself notorious by essaying dizzy climbs in the metropolis and at other points in the State. In the present instance, while the crowd which soon collected below held its breath at the sight, "Steeple Paul" sat upright on the ball with legs and arms outstretched and slowly turned round a number of times exactly as he might have done had he been only three feet above ground. Then while the wind blew and made the pole sway slightly to and fro the climber deliberately rolled a cigarette, and, holding it in the hollow of his cap, struck a match in the wind and lighted it. At length, after seemingly having satisfied his penchant for conspicuity, Mr. Paul "shinned" down the pole to return later on with a brush and paint with which he proceeded to work on the staff and pole in a sensible way.

MANY STRANGE AFRICAN CLAIMS

Constantinople, Sept. 3.—Munir Bey, Turkish Ambassador to France, wired the Porte on Saturday that he had strong hopes that a settlement of the Franco Turkish difficulty would be reached which would preserve the dignity of both Governments. M. Delcasse, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, on the contrary, wired M. Bapst councillor of the French Embassy, categorical instructions to take no steps to show that the relations between the two countries were modified.

ONE MARRIAGE LAW.

Glasgow, Sept. 3.—Mr. Justice Phillimore read a paper at the International Law Association meeting here on marriage laws.

His lordship held that nations should arrive at one uniform law. Race, religion and history combined to create differences. The ceremony should be civil, and performed by an officer. Marriage was a matter of law, not religion.

LAST OF A BRITISH STAMP.

London, Sept. 3.—Philatelists will soon be able to add the British 4 1-2d stamp to their collections of "extinct species."

The demand for such stamps is very small, and the authorities have decided not to issue any more to postmasters after the end of August. The stocks in hand may be used until all are sold.

ITALIANS WITH NERVE.

London Sept. 3.—There have been many strange claims presented before the South African Compensation Committee, but perhaps the most brazen is that of an Italian named T. Jonio. The amount of his demand was $19,000, one thousand being for clothing and toilet articles left at Johannesburg when he fled at the entrance of the British. As Jonio had worked most of the time for the Boers against the British his claim was disallowed.

THE LIGHT CURE.

Copenhagen, Sept., 3.—Dr. Sophus Bang, the manager of the laboratory belonging to Professor Finsen, the famous inventor of the light cure for lupus has constructed a special electric lamp, giving a feeble light, but one extremely rich in chemical rays.

In this lamp Dr. Bang has used metal instead of carbon poles. The result is that he has obtained chemical rays and bacteria-killing power ten times as great as can be got from the ordinary electric arc-lamp.

The discovery will prove of the greatest importance in the treatment of disease by light. A lupus (tubercular) patient who now requires treating for seventy-five minutes at each operation will only require from three to five minutes' treatment, with the new lamp. The lamp is, moreover, comparatively vry cheeap, costing only about £3, so that every doctor will be able to possess one. It can, moreover, be fitted to any ordinary electric light installation.

GOLF.

The Peterborough golf team journeyed to Port Hope on Monday, and were defeated as usual, with, of course, the usual explanations. Come, Peterborough, wake up! Dissensions are doing no good to the game here.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 3 1901

MR FESSENDEN AND MR. BLUE

The efficient headmaster of our Collegiate Institute has fallen foul of Mr. Blue and his census estimates. He likens the mathematical conclusions of Mr. Blue to the statements of the English curate who remarking the poor attendance at service said that he believed that not one in ten—nay, not one in five of the people of the parish attended church, being, as Mr. Fessenden says, a plain misconception of the curate regarding the value of figures, since it was evident that he thought that not one in five was a worse state of affairs than not one in ten. We are under the painful necessity of agreeing with the curate's figures in preference to those of our esteemed principal. One-fifth being a larger number than one-tenth it was quite right of the curate to say that it was a worse state of affairs for not one in five to attend than for not one in ten. If a clergyman stands up in the pulpit and addresses his congregation to this effect:—"Dearly beloved, brethren and fellow-citizens. You are a bad lot, not one in ten—nay, not one in five—of you attend church," would it not disclose as the curate intended a more frightful state of affairs than to say "not one in five—nay, not one in ten of you attends church." If one-fifth be greater than one-tenth then it is worse for one fifth to stay away from church than for one tenth. We submit the statement for Mr. Fessenden's investigation and approval. Of course it may all have been a mistake of the Review's proofreader, who would not know the difference between going to church and staying away.

THE SMITH'S FALLS CASE

Whether or not the two Reverend and pious Protestant clergy were guilty of visiting a place of ill-fame, it is to our mind unnecessary to inquire. They admit that they registered their names falsely, and what more does anyone want in proof of their duplicity. This sleek and sly hypocrisy is more damnable than all the other sins of the long calendar of misdeeds credited to erring humanity. Two men walk into an hotel and place a lie on the books. Then they walk out together, but one of them disappears, of which the other, according to his own statement, thought nothing whatever. Who believes this? If the court of trial does not strip "the cloth" off the backs of these two clerical sinners, it will be considered particeps criminis, and why not? A more miserable instance of folly and what shall we say, has seldom occurred.

THE APSLAY RAILWAY

The Norwood Register confirms the reports published by the Times a few days ago regarding the Norwood and Apsley Railway.

The prospects for the construction of the proposed railway are at present rather gloomy. The project has received a sudden cold dip by the receipt of a letter from Mr. Shaughnessy, president of the C.P.R., in which that gentleman states that having had reports on the country through which the road would go, and the cost of the construction—although the subsidies had been granted—the Company do not wish to proceed with the work at present.

This is rather disappointing, not only to the directors and Mr. Pearce, who has worked so energetically and successfully to further the enterprize, but to the people interested in the building of the road.

When the subsidies from the Provincial and Dominion governments, amounting to $6,500 a mile, were secured, and after the C.P.R.'s engineer had gone over the route of the proposed line it was felt that there was not much doubt as to the road being built. In fact, it was expected that the line would have been under survey now and the construction under survey now and the construction work pushed this fall, so as to have the road ready for the summer tourist trade next year.

This tourist traffic was to receive special attention and the owners of the boats plying on the lakes as well as tourists from various points were delighted with the prospect, and the convenient [illegible] rapid service the road would afford was one topic of conversation at the lake this season.

The Crown Corundum Mine people were also counting on the railroad, and it is said, were prepared to agree to make heavy shipments weekly over the road.

A request has been made to Mr. Shaughnessy to meet a deputation to discuss the matter, and it is hoped that this may result in a change of the decision reached by the C.P.R., a decision which came as a big surprise to all concerned in promoting the project.

A WORTHY INSTITUTION

The Stanley Piano Company remembered the Y.W.C.A. while on their excursion. The Y.W.C.A. wish to thank the Stanley Piano Company for their kind thoughtfulness, in giving the amount they made at their excursion to the extension of the Y.W.C.A. work in our town. We are happy to say that the prospects for this work are bright—The Hon. Senator Cox is now having the rooms on George street put in order, so that we may have them furnished and ready for our new secretary, Miss Dickson. We shall be very grateful for anything that anyone may be pleased to give us towards furnishing these rooms, either from individuals or societies. We need curtains and rugs, comfortable chairs, tables and lounges, pictures etc. We wish to make an earnest appeal to you, for "The times are very evil." There is great need for work among the young women of our town, every young woman is somebody's sister, somebody's daughter. Will you help to provide a comfortable home for those who are away from home and lonely? Any donations that may be given before the rooms on George street are in order, may be left at the Y.W.C.A. rooms on Brock street.

Two Years Abed.—"For eight years I suffered as no one ever did with rheumatism; for two years I lay in bed; could not so much as feed myself. A friend recommended South American Rheumatic Cure. After three doses I could sit up. To-day I am as strong as ever I was."—Mrs. John Cook, 287 Clinton street, Toronto.—2 Sold by H. H. Edmison.

SAW OOM PAUL KRUGER

"One of the unexpected incidents of the trip," said Dr. Eager, "was the pleasure of seeing President Kruger. We found him in a hotel at Rotterdam in Holland. He seems a remarkable man and was greeted with joyous acclamations by the people as he drove away from the hotel. He is exactly like his picture in appearance. He is rather heavy set and walks with a stoop. One of our party managed to get into his room and from his secretary received the message, 'We shall win.'

"On July 9 we had a snowballing match while driving over the Alps in Switzerland. At one place our carriage passed between two walls of snow ten feet high, while down in the valley we could see snowdrifts probably fifty feet high."

THE END OF THE WORLD.

Oswego, N.Y., August 30—The annual camp meeting of the Seventh Day Adventists of New York State begins here to-day with about 600 persons from all parts of the States in attendance. The camp is in charge of Elder J. B. Thompson, of Rome. John S. Whitmore, a prominent Adventist, declared to-day that the Franko-Turkish troubles were signs that the end of the world was approaching. He said that the difficulties between these two nations would result in a general European war, the destruction of the Turkish Empire, and world-wide suffering, ending with the second coming of Christ. He bases his belief in his prophecies on Daniel, 12th chapter, 1st and 2nd verses.

Baltimore, August 30—The Rev. Dr. John H. Eager, pastor of the Seventh Baptist church, has returned from a ten weeks' tour of Europe. He was accompanied by his son, J. Howard Eager, who is a student at the John Hopkins University. They travelled with a party of fifteen.

A POLITICAL PRIZE.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Aug. 30—Ex-Mayor Andrews, one of the Conservative leaders here, in a letter to the press, says:—

"In view of the fact that there has been recently great effort to encourage the young men of the country to form clubs in support of the great principles of the two political parties in Canada, the Conservative-Liberal and the Liberal-Conservative, it would be interesting and very instructive both to the young men of Canada whose political opinions are not yet matured to have the chief fundamental differences in the present policies of these parties well defined. Accordingly I will offer the sum of $100 as a prize to the first person who will give a satisfactory explanation of any radical difference between the present policies of these parties, the answers to be sent within a month. The reward of $100 is open to the world."

ADRIFT IN CHESAPEAKE BAY.

Norfolk, Va., Sept 3.—A Whitehead torpedo is floating about somewhere in Chesapeake Bay, terrorizing tugmen and the few navigators thereabouts who have heard of the errant destroyer. It was fired by the torpedo boat Foote yesterday while she was practicing near Middle Ground Light in the bay, and not found afterward. It is loaded, but has no war head, and experts say, can, therefore, not be exploded by contact. A tugman said today that nobody is likely to try the experiment, and he will give it as wide berth as a Mississippi steamboat does a raft. The same torpedo went adrift last year, but finally turned up on the beach at Cape Hatteras, nearly 100 miles distant.

A SUBMARINE BOAT FIRM.

Bridgeport, Conn. Sept. 2.—The Lake Submarine Torpedo Boat Company which was recently incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey with a capitalization of $1,000,000, has decided to establish in this city a large steel ship-building plant for the manufacture of submarine boats of the Lake type, which has already attracted attention from the Governments of the world.

Simon Lake, of this city, formerly of Elizabethport, N. J., is the inventor of the new type of submarine craft, which he claims to be superior to all others, and the first submarine torpedo boat which has attained a state of perffection. He is president of the company which has offices at 11 Broadway, New York. There is both Bridgeport and New York capital invested in the company. Contracts have been made with the Pacific Iron Company of this city, for the construction of the first boat, which is to be built at once for demonstration before the United States Navy, before which it will enter in competition with the Holland submarine boat. Its capabilities, as represented to the Government are: To descend safely to a depth of 160 feet; to travel on the surface or with conning tower awash or at any desired depth within the above limit (150 feet) or on the bottom, diving compartments to enable divers to leave or enter the vessel; ample living quarters for officers and crew, with cooking, heating, and sleeping facilities; sufficient fuel carrying capacity to make a continuous run of 1,500 knots on the surface, with speed of about ten knots, storage battery capacity sufficient for a submerged run of 50 miles on one charge of the batteries; means for recharging the batteries; three torpedo expulsion tubes, two at the bow, and one at the stern.

From its New York offices the company is now in communication with several foreign Governments, for which it is expected to construct boats. Recently a representative of the British Government was in the city inspecting a model of the Lake boat. A commission from Holland is expected in this country to compare the relative merits of the Holland and Lake types of boats.

THE GHOST

Of our boyhood resolved itself to an old tree when we had courage to examine it. Manhood has its ghosts, which, to the man who has courage to confront them, prove to be as harmless as the ghosts of boyhood. One of the ghosts which scare a great many people is the ghost of lung disease. But experience shows this ghost to be very harmless. In cases almost innumerable "weak" lungs have been made strong, obstinate coughs stopped, and bronchial affections cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. And these cures have been wrought in many cases after the doctor had said—"There is no help for you." Don't give in to the superstition of a past age. Give the "Golden Medical Discovery" a fair and faithful trial. It always helps. It almost always cures.

"When I commenced taking your medicine eighteen months ago, my health was completely broken down," writes Mrs. Cora L. Sunderland, of Chaneyville, Calvert Co., Md. "At times I could not even walk across the room without pains in my chest. The doctor who attended me said I had lung trouble, and that I would never be well again. At last I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I bought a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' took it, and soon commenced to feel a little better; then you directed me to take both the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the 'Favorite Prescription,' which I did. Altogether I have taken eighteen bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' twelve of the 'Favorite Prescription,' and five vials of 'Pellets.' I am now almost entirely well, and do all my work without any pain whatever, and can run with more ease than I could formerly walk."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A CONTENTED WOMAN'S JOURNAL

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

I have decided to-day to become contented, whatever my earthly lot. I have been so discontented lately that any change will be welcome. And has not Shakespheare said:

My crown is in my heart, not on my head;
Not deck'd with diamonds and Indian stones,
Not to be seen—my crown is call'd content;
A crown it is that seldom kings enjoy.

So I am going to be contented and wear my unseen crown upon my heart, knowing that few kings enjoy a like privilege.

Fate has made me the only relative off a business brother. Now at the very start in order to explain, if not justify my discontent, this is not in the least what I should have apportioned for myself. I am not even determined that I should have selected a brother as a solitary relative, but if I had, he should have been a distinguished, university bred person, cultured to his finger tips and president of Harvard, not less, and given to entertaining the greatest litterateurs of the day. What destiny has chosen for me in the shape of Tom is a handsome, weel-groomed, ordinary business man, devoted to the manufacture of silver-plated tableware. The Creighton knives and spoons and forks are the best in the market, as Tom is certainly the very dearest fellow in the world even though I say I should not have selected him for a brother if I were ordering one. Nor would I have chosen Orton as a place of residence, preferring rather to reside at Cambridge with my presidential brother.

Orton is a mass of factory chimneys, which spell out the word commerce every day in the week except Sunday. I have never seen Cambridge, but I imagine it a cloistered, ivy-clad colony of ancient buildings faithfully guarding all the traditions of culture.

And so here is the problem which destiny has set me, and which I can solve only by putting my invisible crown firmly on my heart.

Orton has one salient advantage being given over to commerce, it is commercially situated: it is a seaport town. There is a distinct profit for a person who loves sunsets and moon rises; for a bit out of the town where the factories have not yet penetrated there is a superb stretch between the salt meadows and the sea. One can walk directly into the very heart of the sunset—the changing, mysterious heart of the sunset which has always had a strange fascination for me. What a wonderful picture I saw there the other evening as I took my solitary stroll along the "loud-sounding" sea! It was extreme low tide the sand flats lay in long, dark-brown reaches amidst tranquil pools of water which reflected faithfully the thousand brilliants colors of the west. Far out at the sea the waves were breaking in a white line against the dark, sharp lines of the sand. A whole some tang of salt was in the air which blew in freshly across the wide expanse of delicat esapphire-tinted sea. The sun had disappeared behind a bank of rose-colored clouds and no words of mine can express the glorious symphony of golds and purples and scarlets and pale green and radiant blues which changed and deepened and brightened in the sky and threw itself down into the peaceful beauty of the salt pools among the long stretches of black sand. Such things must be seen to be appreciated, but no one can look upon such divine loveliness without becoming a better man. I felt as if I had been in church and heard the angels singing. When the last triumphant note of color had died away in the deep sky and night was settling down tranquilly over the sea and the meadows I turned back again toward Orton with a feeling that my heart and that all Orton couldn't my crown was very firmly ledged upon shake it off.

All Orton was probably too busy to try. The factory chimneys were all standing thick and tall and black against the opal sky exactly as I had last seen them when I turned my back upon them for the sunset and forgot them. Little golden tails of fire were flickering and darting from their mouths, and I felt a great and sudden compassion for the thousand toiling men and women who were there at work in those grim, gaunt buildings, so far away from the glories of the sunset. I felt all the sorrier because I knew if by some sudden caprice on the part of the boss a holiday might be theirs, they would not waste it in tamely walking along the meadows by the sea at sunset, but would fly to the bargain counter among the haunts of men. What would they do with my leisure, my well-to-doness, my certainty of an excellent dinner at the end of my long walk, my solitude, my books, my thoughts? Not one of my beloved ideas would they adopt, and as I looked at the thousand dancing little tongues of flame I seemed to see the toil and sorrow and loss of all those who were less fortunate than I, but who would never know it, and the lust for gold seemed to write itself all over the sky in those flickering flames and to cry down the glorious wonder of the great sun which had set.

I felt of my crown in order to make quite certain that it was still in my heart, and then I fell into line between the rows of prosaic houses and went prosaically home to dinner. It is so much easier to be prosaic when the sun has gone down and darkness is upon the land, so I was not so shocked as I might have been when Tom told me triumphantly that the silver business was booming awfully and that an order for 3,000 spoons had just come in from Chicago.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place, no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advretiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. in attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity, it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but show their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1886, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed. A first early step in advance was his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

HOW LIFE GOES IN COLD ALASKA

The following letter is from Mr. James R. Johnston, an old Peterborough boy, who has spent several years in the frozen north. He writes as follows:

The winters here are very severe, and the last one is said by the natives to be the worst they have seen during the past twenty years. So many poor unfortunates lost their lives, and many others are maimed for life. Three men were brought into the hospital here by the Government reindeer teams from the trails leading to the "Kuskokwim." They are three gold miners, and were on a stampede for the "new gold fields," when they were caught in a snowstorm and severely frozen. One man lost both hands at the wrist, another all his fingers and both thumbs, and the third lost both his feet. They are a pitiful sight to look at, especially when the nurse is feeding them at meal time, and it is sad to hear them talk about their plans for the future.

The people on the outside of Alaska will never conceive, even if told ever so vivid a narrative about the Alaskan gold miner's experience, what hardships and privations he endures. No matter how cold the day might be, or how far the distance to a newly reported "find" might be, or how faint their chances of ever getting there might seem, as long as there is a rumor afloat that there is gold, gold, there, away they go; it draws them like the magnet draws steel, and never for one moment do they stop to consider the risk of life involved in rushing about through such a treacherous country in the middle of winter.

If these three poor unfortunates had all the gold ever taken out of this country, and a claim to all ever taken out in the future, don't you think they would gladly buy back what they lost for the whole of it, if they could? Yes, indeed, they would, and many times they have said so during the past few weeks.

No doubt miners will take out many million dollars' worth of gold in this country within the next twenty years, as there are hundreds of miles of unknown land, but no amount of money taken out will pay par value for the cost of lives, limbs, harships endured, etc., in producing this precious yellow metal.

There are many men in this country year. There is a brand-new hospital to-day who have been here the past four years, and almost physical wrecks they still continue their search for gold. They are haunted with fanciful dreams of wealth in the form of nuggets and gold dust hidden somewhere in this frozen land waiting for them to come and find it. Of course there are a few men who have made fortunes in Alaska. Just think, two men out of every three hundred that come here "strike it rich." (Taken from statistics). The others are either made poor or physical wrecks.

Now to tell you a little about St. Michael in Alaska, where I spent a there. There are two companies of soldiers of the Seventh U. S. Infantry stationed at the fort. The head-quarters staff of the Department of Alaska, which is commanded by Brigadier General Randall is there also. It is a very dismal place, this St. Michael, and all one can see is nothing but ice and snow. No place to go to pass the time and the novelty of seeing the country has long died out. I would not have missed seeing it for a great deal, yet no money would ever induce me to pass my life here.

The natives here are the Eskimos, and they are a filthy class of people. Men, women, children and dogs living all in one little hut built out of moss and drift wood timber with a window made out of a very thin skin of some animal. Their cooking utensils are very ancient, being made out of stone. They have no dishes, but a large wooden bowl in which fish, seal, and all kinds of game are placed at once. This they all sit around on the floor and eat out of it with their fingers.

I soon tired of St. Michaels, and came to Dawson, which is much better. I occasionally see my old friend, George Kincaid here. George is doing well, and is one of those splendid, whole-souled fellows who makes friends wherever they go.

I get The Times regularly every week, and it is like a letter from home. Give my regards to Bob McKee, George Hatton, W. D. Parker, William Snowden, Billy Leck and all the boys, not forgetting the great family journal, quenses.

LAKEFIELD BOY PROMOTED

And is Banquetted by his Friends at White Horse, B. C.

We clip the following from the White Horse Star, Y. T., which refers to Mr. C. E. Strickland, formerly of Lakefield. His many friends here will be pleased to learn of his promotion.

"A few days ago Mr. C. E. Strickland, accountant in the White Horse branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, received notice from headquarters that he had been transferred to the Dawson Branch, which meant, reading between the lines, that he had been promoted to a more responsible position in the service of that institution.

As soon as the news became generally known, the friends of Mr. Strickland determined to give a farewell entertainment in his honor, and at the same time present him with a substantial token of their regard. A committee was appointed and invitations issued for a dance in the Athletic Club hall, and in response a large crowd assembled Wednesday night at the rooms of the Club to take part in an event, which, to Mr. Strickland, will long remain a cherished memory.

About 11.30, Mr. Robert Lowe, president of the North Star Athletic Club, of which Mr. Strickland has been one of the most prominent members ever since its inception, stepped on the floor and in behalf of the club and Mr. Strickland's friends, said: "It is with pleasure at our young friend's promotion, but with profound regret at his early departure from our midst, that I address you to-night. Mr. Strickland since his advent among us, has endeared himself to everyone with whom he has come in contact, by his gentlemanly conduct, and his strict attention to the various duties, which he has been called upon to perfrom both as an employe of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and as an active and indefatigable worker in the Athletic Club. While we are pained at the necessity of his departure, we recognize and are pleased that in his new field of labor he will have a wider scope for the advancement to which his exceptional abilities entitle him, and while he will doubtless make many warm friends in Dawson he will have none who will be more pleased to hear of his success in life than those he leaves in White Horse. On behalf of the Athletic Club I wish to extend to Mr. Strickland our sincere thanks, and feel that it is in a great measure owing to his untiring efforts that the club has reached its present state of prosperity."

Mr. Lowe then introduced Mr. J. W. Nay, Cashier of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who read the following address:

"DEAR MR. STRICKLAND:—A few of your friends in White Horse, having learned that you are about severing your connections with the Bank of Commerce here, and that your work is being recognized by a substantial promotion to the Dawson office, take ad-God speed.

"During your residence in White Horse, you have always by your courtous and kindly manner, endeared yourself to those who came in contact with you socially, as well as your position in the bank of which you are an employe.

"Our earnest wish is that you will meet with a full measure of appreciation as you have had with us.

We beg you to accept this poke and contents as a small evidence of our good wishes and ask you to remember us as your friend.

'White Horse, July 24th, 1901."

In response to the above Mr. Strickland advanced and evidently, very much affected, said that he deeply appreciated the honor conferred upon him upon the eve of his departure, and that a great many of the happiest hours of his life had been spent in company with his friends at White Horse. He had never lived in a place where he had made so many warm and congenial friends, and was in hopes that in the course of time he might be enabled to return and again make his abode with them. He could not find words to convey the grateful and warm feelings that were in his heart towards his friends in White Horse.

DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS

(Formula of Zina Pitcher, M. D Late Professor of Materia Medica and Genito Urinary Diseases, Michigan College of Medicine, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A)

Dr. Pitchers' Backache Kidney Tablets are the quickest and surest relief for Backache and Kidney troubles, and can show more evidence to that effect than all other advertised remedies combined. Dr. Pitcher stakes his reputation on these tablets for Backache and Kidney troubles, and will not allow them to be advertised as a "jack of all trades" medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Bevan, of Port Hope says: "Thirteen years ago I fell and injured my back, and since then have known little comfort with backache and Kidney troubles. I have tried all kinds of medicines and seen many physicians, but got no help until I began the bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets that I got from R. Deyell, druggist. They have done me a world of good. I feel stronger; the dizziness and pain is gone, and I cannot tell you how pleased I am, and everyone else says the same of them. They are just what everyone wanted. I hope others will use them and get well.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are put up in wooden bottles, with green wrapper bearing the portrait and signature of Z. Pitcher, M.D. Each bottle contains 50 tablets, price 50 cents per bottle. Manufactured by The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

—A meeting of the Board of Managers of the Young Women's Christian Association will be held at the rooms, Brock street, on Wednesday afternoon, the 4th inst. A full attendance is requested.

After to-day the Steamer Sunbeam will discontinue her regular trips connecting with the Steamer Ogemah at Burleigh, and after Saturday, September 7th, the Steamer Ogemah will discontinue her daily trips between Bobcaygeon, Chemong and Burleigh.

LOST, somewhere between the corner of Sherbrooke and Aylmer streets and the Young Women's Christian Association, Brock street, via Aylmer street, a lady's silver watch, open face, carved case, no chain. Finder will please leave the same at the Y. W. C. A., Brock street.

—The barns and outbuildings on the farm of Lieut.-Col Greer, of East Colborne, were destroyed by fire last week. They contained all of this season's crops, and the loss is therefore quite heavy. Lt.-Col. Greer is the commanding officer of the 40th Northumberland Regt. of Infantry, and his many friends here and elsewhere will sympathize with him in his loss.

—By a recent amendment to the Voters' List Act, anyone who will be twenty-one within thirty days from the date fixed for hearing appeals to the county judge is entitled to have his name placed on the voters' list. This applies to both town and townships. Every young man who can qualify under this new regulation should see that his name is not left off.

Your Nerves are Weak

You sleep badly. Appetite variable. You eat but gain no strength. Morning tiredness makes you wish it were night. When night comes refreshing sleep is hard to obtain. You're run down. Your blood is thin and watery. Your nerves have grown weak, the thought of effort wearies you. You need Ferrozone; it makes blood—red, strong blood. An appetite? You'll eat everything and digest it too Strength? That's what plenty of food gives. Ferrozone gives hope, vigor, vim endurance. Use Ferrozone and get strong. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

A Big Saving

Yesterday a man who had six children attending school purchased nearly $12 worth of books at The Times Bookstore. He said he saved at least two dollars in buying them from us. Our goods are not only the cheapest, but are the best, for many of the lines are of our own manufacture. This is the spot for bargains. Times Bookstore.

UNNATURAL FLESH

Reduced by Leaving off Coffee and Using Postum Food Coffee.

"I have used coffee many years; in fact, ever since I was a child, until a few months ago I became satisfied that it hurt me,—caused the miserable drowsy feeling and the bloated condition of my body. I was very fleshy all the time, unnaturally fleshy.

Since I left off drinking coffee and use Postum Food Coffee, the effect has been wonderful. I feel like a different person. The bloating has all gone. I am very much thinner and more natural in shape, have a better appetite and do not feel sleepy and drowsy as before. I shall never use any more regular coffee.

When I first tried Postum, I was not satisfied with it, but decided that the fault must be my own, for so many people used Postum and liked it that I knew there was some trouble in my preparation of it, so I examined the directions carefully and found that I should boil it long enough to bring out the flavor and the food value. When I prepared it right, it was elegant and I am more than pleased with the delicious beverage I have for breakfast every morning." Mrs. E. M. Pope, 1158 23d St., Detroit, Mich.

Trading Stamps.

We give trading stamps with every ten cent purchase of school books. Times Bookstore.

Yesterday The Times Bookstore had a big rush for school books. The fact that these goods are sold cheaper, in many cases, much cheaper by us, is a substantial reason for this. Our stock of school supplies is complete, and will be sold at bargains. Be sure and give us a call. Times Bookstore, Market block

Horticultural Society.

The annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society will be held in the Market Hall on Thursday afternoon and evening, Sept 5th. Band will be in attendance. Admission 15 cents. There will be a fine display of flowers, fruits, roots, etc and it is well worth a visit.

A meeting of the School Board was called for last evening, but there was no quorum, and no business was transacted.

VOTERS' LIST, 1901

Municipality of the Township of Dummer, County of Peterborough.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that I have transmitted or delivered to the persons mentioned in Sections five and six of the Voters' Lists Act, the copies required by said sections to be so transmitted or delivered of the list, made pursuant to said act, of all persons appearing by the last revised Assessment Roll of the said municipality to be entitled to vote in the said municipality at elections for members of the Legislative Assembly and at municipal elections; and that said list was first posted up at my office, at Warsaw, on the twenty-third day of August, 1901, and remains there for inspection.

Electors are called upon to examine the said list, and if any omissions or other errors are found therein, to take immediate proceedings to have the said errors corrected according to law.

Dated this twenty-fourth day of August 1901.

[illegible]
Clerk of the said Municipality.

FINDS CAUSE FOR WAR VENEZUÈLA'S POSITION

Great Excitement in Venezuela Over The fast Approaching Conflict

FORMAL DECLARATION OF WAR NOW CERTAIN.

Hostile Acts of Colombia Commented on by Ministry—Bocas Del Toro Besieged by the Colombian Insurgents.

Caracas, Venezuela, Sept. 5.— The Official Gazette to-day published the memorandum of the minister of foreign affairs to all friendly nations, explaining the complaints made by Venezuela against Colombia. The case is considered to be a casus belli. There is much comment and excitement.

Colon, Colombia, Sept. 5. — Delayed three days by the censor.—Bocas del Toro, 140 miles west of Colon, is virtually beseiged by the liberals, or insurgents. They number at least 200 and, as already cabled, occupy Provision island, which is opposite the town and commands the entrance to the harbor. They are fairly well armed, possessing two small modern cannon, as well as plenty of ammunition, and are commanded by a Nicaraguan. Among them are many Nicaraguan and Costa Rican liberals.

For more than a month the liberals have been threatening the town. About a fortnight ago they improved their position on Provision island, about a mile and a half from Bocas del Toro, which also is on an island and the opposing forces have occasionally exchanged shots, although, with the exception of one Jamaican wounded, there have been no casualties.

EACH SIDE FEARS TO MOVE

The liberal position is strong, and the situation is likely to remain as it is until one side or the other makes an attack. Such an action would subject the attacking party to the severe fire of their opponents, as it would be necessary to pass from Bocas del Toro to Provision island, or vice versa, in small open boats. Neither side is inclined to take this risk. The liberals profess to believe that a proclamation of the present situation would result in a withdrawal of the government force from Bocas del Toro. Counting reenforcements the government has about 170 men there and the town can only be reached by very light draught steamers through roundabout channels.

Martial law prevails in Bocas del Toro. The authorities have stopped communication with other ports except Colon. They have stopped local fishing and forbidden passage along the streets after 8 o'clock at night. Foreigners claim that the measures adopted for harbor supervision materially injure commerce. Two Germans were sent to jail for expressing their views too freely in a cafe and it needed the intervention of the German consul to effect their release.

THREATEN TO CALL GUNBOATS.

The United States, French, British and German consular agents in Bocas del Toro told the Colombian commander there that if the severe harbor restrictions interrupting commerce were not abated they would call for gunboats. These representations resulted in a limited improvement in harbor conditions.

The local trade, which has been chiefly in bananas sent to the United States is virtually dead. Fruit steamers from Mobile and New Orleans are getting partial cargoes, the disturbed conditions preventing work on the plantations. The foreign element predominates in the town—Americans, Germans, British and Chinese, in the order named. The United Fruit Company of Boston owns many banana plantations in the neighborhood.

The United States consular agent in Bocas del Toro has made an urgent appeal to the United States consul in Colon to send a gunboat. Commander Sargent of the United States gunboat Machias is fully informed of the situation and if this does not improve shortly the Machias will probably proceed to Bocas del Toro. The liberals of Provision island say the presence of the Machias will not alter the situation, as they have in no way interfered with or injured foreigners and the government alone is responsible for the restrictions laid upon commerce.

Many houses in Bocas del Toro continually fly American, German, British and French flags to denote the nautrality of their occupants. The Colombian government considers that the measures taken there have been made necessary by the exigencies of the case.

MANY LABORERS OUT OF WORK.

Berlin, Sept. 6.—A private dispatch from Colon says many laborers are being discharged from the coal mines and industrial establishment owing to declining business. The men discharged are mostly Italians and Poles, who are returning home in troops. The weekly decrease in the miners' wages owing to cutdowns amounts to 400,000 marks.

WAITING FOR REENFORCEMENTS.

Washington, Sept. 6.—In a mail report to the state department from Panama, dated Aug. 21, United States Consul General Gudger says there has been no change in political conditions on the isthmus since Aug. 12. Both of the contending parties appear to be intent on recruiting and reenforcing and are awaiting developments. The revolutionists on the railroad lines, he says, are still making depredations on Chinamen.

SITUATION IN CARACAS SERIOUS.

New York, Sept. 5.—Francis B. Loomis, former United States minister to Venezuela, but now minister to Portugal, was a passenger on the Vaderland, arriving here today. In response to an inquiry he said:

"The last news I received from Caracas was when I arrived here to-day. It was a letter from a friend, but was written some time ago. In the letter my friend, who is a prominent business man in Caracas, says that the situation at the time of writing was most serious."

Mr. Loomis said he had returned to this country to attend to some important personal business and that he would return to Libson within a short time.

WAR WITH RUSSIA NOT IMPROBABLE

Public Mind in Britain Being Prepared For it.

HOT DOCUMENTS BEING ISSUED

London, Sept. 4—We must strive for a final settlement with Russia or gird ourselves for a fight," bluntly declares Sir Rowland Blennerhassett, a Government official.

In language less startling, but equally significant, the Times says Great Britain must decide whether it is "compatible with our interests, commercial and political, to allow a foreign power like Russia to establish itself on the Persian Gulf. Possibly it may be expedient to purchase political peace by the surrender of commercial interests which might cost too much to defend. But if we are resolved to defend them we must not wait until it is too late to declare our intentions and take action."

Synchnonous publications examining Russian and British relations at widely separated standpoints are interpreted as indicating that the public is being prepared for the announcement by the Government of a firm policy toward Russia.

Frederick Greenwood, an acute, far-seeing observer of foreign affairs, analyzes in the Daily Mail to-day some recent Blue Books on Chinese affairs, particularly the facts concerning the Russian seizure of the Pekin-Shanhaikwan Railroad, "Count Lamsdorff," he says, "finds no difficulty in telling our Government in the plainest language permitted by diplomacy that if it does not like the Russian arrangements in Manchuria, for example, it is at liberty to resent them in any way it pleases. Russia is not disposed to explain but is quite prepared to fight."

The simultaneous publication of these Blue Books and Lord Kitchener's despatches showing the unfitness of many of the recruits will throw light each on the other, Mr. Greenwood thinks, the Government "deliberately desiring to let the patient know how he stood in relation to Russia, and his state of military unpreparedness, so that he may prepare, not to die, but to rouse and help the doctors in his own behalf."

One daily has been trying to get up a scare on the subject of Great Britain's overwhelming deficiency in submarine boats. Among the alleged sins it attributes to the Admiralty is that of allowing the United States to secure this week a submarine invention which the Admiralty declined even to examine, method of warfare. The invention was and which is likely to revolutionize that examined and declined by the Admiralty, was submitted to the United States Naval Attache, Commander Glover, and forwarded by him, in the usual routine, to Washington. The indorsement accompanying it and the opinion of other naval experts render it highly improbable that the invention will receive any more consideration from the Navy Department at Washington than from the British Admiralty, which is getting Holland boats ready for launching. It is probable that five Holland boats will be ready for launching before crews are secured for them.

SERVANT EMPLOYERS' UNION

Chicago, Which Gave Birth to the Servant Girls Union, Now Launches Another Idea

Chicago, September 4—Mrs. Charles Henrotin, a prominent club woman of this city, proposed at a meeting of the Working Women's Association of America to-night that the mistresses of servant girls should organize. The obect of this union, she said, would not be to antagonize the Servant Girls' Union, but to determine with them the rules to be observed.

"I believe," said Mrs. Henrotin to-day, "that the interests of employers will be best served by the formation of both associations. Improvement in conditions will certainly come by such a course. It will be better for the girl and better for the women who hire them. The question is more than one of wages. I would have all women who employ maids eligible to membership in the union which I propose."

Union mistresses will be asked to employ union girls, and union girls will be asked to submit their cards to union employers. In this way complete cooperation will be secured, and both maids and mistresses will, it is claimed, have more satisfactoin than has ever been possible under the old system of hiring the girl who will promise to do most work, and going to work where there are no children and plenty of afternoons off.

PRINCE CHUN YIELDS AT LAST

Chinese Envoy Bears the Apology to Berlin.

THE ORDEAL IS OVER AT LAST

Ceremonial Audience Was Accorded the Chinese Prince.

ALL MINISTERS PAY ATTENTIONS

Vifitors Make a Pretense of Preparing to Return to Pekin.

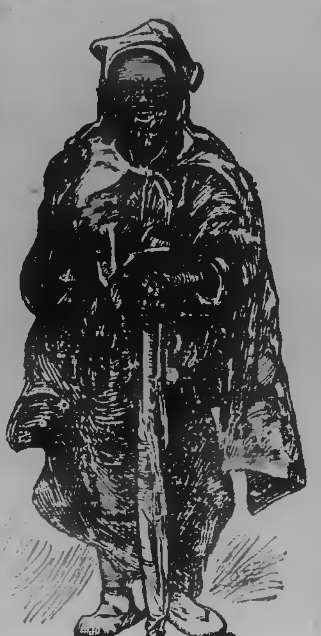
Berlin, Sept. 5.—Pince Chun, after having kept Emperor William in a fidget for several days, has at last yielded to the inevitable and at 11 o'clock yesterday started for Berlin to make the apology for the murder of Baron Von Kettler.

The wily Chinese diplomat, however, succeeded in having the requirements of his mission reduced to an almost farcical formality. He did not have to do any bowing and scraping and was received in state, almost as an honored guest. Chun has bluffed Emperor William into softening all the harsh terms laid down for himself and the members of his suite.

WAS RECEIVED IN HONOR.

About the extent of the Oriental's humiliation was his urbanely voicing the expression of the Chinese government for the murder of Von Kettler. After that brief ordeal will be a round of wine dinners, receptions and other functions and probably a tour in triumph of all the European courts.

Chun and his companions were gloating tonight over the concessions made to them. Before the train started for Berlin a member of the suite gave out an official and inspired statement that Emperor William had decided to waive the ceremony of kowtowing and that the only persons to be received by him in ceremonial audience would be Prince Chun and Ying Chang. The member of the mission in question said also that the mission would remain in Berlin for a fortnight and had received and accepted invitations from the British, Italian, American, Belgian and Japanese governments.



PRINCE CHUN.

The crowing joke was perpetrated by Prince Chun yesterday morning. He gave orders for preparations to be made to start for Berlin at 11 o'clock tonight but soon afterward countermanded them. He caused to be circulated various stories as to his intentions. One was that he was going to return to Pekin at once, and another was that he would make a tour of the other European capitals while awaiting for Emperor William to recede from the conditions His Majesty has laid down for the ceremony of apology for the murder of Baron Von Kettler. Later the message from the Kaiser changed his attitude.

FRENCH QUIT IMPERIAL CITY.

Paris, Sept. 5.—M. De Laressar, Minister of Marine, has received a dispatch from Pekin announcing that the French have formally handed over the Palace of Ancestors and Imperial city to the Chinese plenipotentiaries and that only one French battalion remains in the old French quarter.

Pao-Ting-Fu and other points adjacent that were occupied by the French have been evacuated, the dispatch says, after salutes to the tricolor from Chinese regulars.

MRS. NATION'S "FAKING"

Smashes Two Glasses in a Saloon to Oblige a Yellow Newspaper.

New York, Sept. 4.—The Commercial Advertiser of last evening said:

Mrs. Nation engaged this morning in some smashing or "hatchetation," as she calls it, for the benefit of some reporters and artists for sensational newspapers. Such a tame affair, it was that the police declined to arrest her.

She went to police headquarters at 10.15 a.m. accompanied by a reporter for a sensational newspaper, and said that she wanted to see Devery. The deputy commissioner had not arrived. The young reporter, who was managing her performance, had a talk with his editor over the telephone, and then had a private conversation with Mrs. Nation, who apparently fell in with his suggestions. Meanwhile arrangements had been made for a raid with the owner of a Mulberry street saloon not far from headquarters. A couple of whiskey bottles containing some reddish liquor were placed on the bar, together with a glass of beer and a whiskey glass. When Mrs. Nation, escorted by the reporter and followed by a crowd of several hundred persons, entered the saloon, the bartender was washing glasses and the owner of the place was standing near by with a cigar in one corner of his mouth and a smile at the other.

Mrs. Nation walked up to the bar, exclaiming "Oh horrors! What is this stuff?" She seized the glass of beer and held it aloft, posing for the artists. The bartender made a "bluff" at stopping her, but it was only a bluff." Finally she let the glass fall, amid the cheers of the crowd.

"Have a drink, Carrie," said the bartender, pouring out a glass of the red stuff.

Mrs. Nation took the glass, held it up, looked around at the artists and the crowd, smiled, posed thus for several minutes, and let the glass fall. She repeated this performance a number of times.

Inspector Cortright, who had heard that Mrs. Nation had started on a smashing tour, sent a policeman after her. When the policeman reached the saloon he found that the smashing was prearranged and that all damage was to be paid for. So he simply dispersed the crowd and Mrs. Nation started down Mulberry street with her "yellow" escort.

53 FILIPINOS KILLED.

Many Commands in English Heard in Native Ranks During Fight.

Manila, Sept. 4.—Col. Gracias, two other officers and fifty men were killed in the recent engagement, lasting three hours, in Batangas Province between Capt. Harry C. Hale, with a detachment of the Twentieth Infantry, and the insurgent leader Gonzalez.

Many deserters and renegades were seen and heard giving commands in English.

Everything points to the early capture or surrender of Miguel Malvar, the insurgent leader. When either event occurs everything will be favorable to the establishment of permanent peace.

Each day shows an increasing number of surrenders and captures in all the disaffected districts.

ANOTHER POLAR FAILURE

The Russian Attempt to Reach the North Pole a Fizzle

New York, Sept. 5.—Very few of those who have some knowledge of the character of the ice fields of the polar ocean felt any confidence in the success of the attempt of the Russian Government to have its ice-breaking steamer Ermak force a passage to the North Pole. The announcement, therefore, that the enterprise has failed caused no surprise. The news of the failure was brought by the captain of the steamer Frithjof, who escorted the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition to its first base of operations. He reported that he met the Ermak returning from its fruitless errand.

Details of the effort are naturally lacking, and they must be waited for until the return of Admiral Marakoff, the commander; but these will be mainly interesting as demonstrating the extent of the power of the famous Russian ice-breaking vessel. The Ermak was constructed for the sole purpose of crushing a pathway for merchant ships through the heavy ice which obstructs most of the Russian harbors for many months in the year. In this work the ship was eminently successful. Of enormous strength, it could resist almost any amount of outside pressure. On account of massive construction and heavy bows, terrific blows can be dealt by "butting," and after each assault the bows can be lifted and the whole weight of the vessel used to crush the weakened ice.

A vessel of this character could probably keep the ice in the Russian harbors broken sufficiently to permit practically uninterrupted navigation, and it could most likely carve a pathway for many miles through some of the Arctic icefields in midsummer, when no thaw set in. The interesting point will be to learn to what extent this was done. An ordinary whaler, will "butt" its way through rotten ice eight or ten feet thick but the far Northern fields beyond the cruising grounds of these craft are supposed, in many cases to exceed twenty-five feet, and it is this which certainly has been too much for the Ermak.

"LIBERTY" STILL THE CRY

Two New Parties Forming in the Philippines.

Manila, Sept. 4—Two new political parties are forming, Senor Paterno heading Pono and Senor Pubad the other. Both favor the ultimate independence of the Philippines.

Senor Paterno proposes that the members of the Congressional party who came on the transport McClellan to examine into affairs in the Philippines be awarded medals bearing on one side the Goddess of Liberty and on the other the inscription, "Home Rule for the Philippines."

Tomorrow Dr. Pardo de Tavera, Benito Legardo and Jose Luzuriaga will take the oath of office as members of the Philippine Commission. The American members, with their secretaries, have been assigned to the following administrative departments: Mr. Worcester, Department of the Interior; Mr. Wright, Department of Commerce and Police; Mr. Ide, Department of Finance and Justice, and Mr. Moses, Department of Public Instruction.

WRECK DUE TO WILD 17-MILE DASH

Down Approach to Mountain at a Rate of 100 Miles an Hour

MANY PERSONS WERE INJURED

Kalispel, Mont., Sept. 4.—It is now known that forty-one lives were lost in the collision on the Great Northern Railway at Nyack, thirty miles west of here, Friday night. More than a dozen persons were injured and several of these probably will die.

The catastrophe, it is now believed, was due to leaky air-brakes. A freight train of twenty-eight cars, drawn by two locomotives, stopped at Essex and the foremost engine went ahead to take water, leaving the helper engine to hold the train, which was standing on a grade forming part of the approach to the Rocky Mountains. The helper engine then set the air-brakes on the train and steamed away to coal up.

BEGAN TO SLIP DOWN

Conductor Matthews was in the little railway station getting his orders, and his two brakemen were with the engines. As the air leaked out and the brakes loosened the heavy train began slowly to slip backward down the grade.

Frantic efforts were made by the telegraph operator to get news along the line to clear the track, but the time was too short. The train steadily gained in speed until it reached a momentum of probably 100 miles an hour, dashing headlong over sharp curves that trains under control just creep around.

Just pulling out of Nyack was the Limited Express, No. 3, including day cars and sleepers, and Assistant General Superintendent P. T. Downs's private car. The latter was the last car of the train. In it were Supt. Downs and his son, Kirk T. Downs, twenty-one years old.

AROUND CURVE WITH A ROAR

Those aboard the passenger train had no warning of the impending disaster until the wild train, with all its twenty-eight cars still intact, burst with a roar around a sharp curve a short distance back, after its wild dash down seventeen miles of steep grade. It jumped a split switch which should have turned it to a side track and continued down the main track.

Just before it struck the express the swaying freight train struck a caboose and a day coach on a siding, wrecking them. Fire immediately started from the oil lamps in the caboose, but it was two hours and a half before the flames reached the main wreck.

Meanwhile frantic efforts were made to get out the dead and injured. The wreck was piled high and wedged into almost helpless confusion, and in spite of superhuman efforts the flames burst through the wrecked cars before the work was completed.

When the crash came Supt. Downs and his son were at supper. Both were killed, probably instantly. Their bodies were seen, but it was impossible to reach them before the flames enveloped the wreckage of their car. J. H. Blair, colored, cook in Mr. Downs's car, was taken out alive, but dead in a few minutes.

Immediately ahead of the private car was a coach containing about fifty railroad laborers, all Scandinavians. Nearly all of them were so pinned in that they could not be reached, and burned to death before the eyes of the spectators. As the poor fellows saw the flames approaching and realized that they could not be saved many of them begged to be killed outright at once to save them from the agony of death by fire.

None of the passengers were injured.

Mr. Downs and his son left Seattle Monday in the private car with their guests, Lieut. Victor Blue, U. S. N., and his wife. They accompanied their guests as far east as Minot, N. Dak., and were returning home when the wreck occurred.

STEALS FOR HER CHILDREN

Touching Scene When a Mother is Arraigned in Court For Theft.

New York, Sept. 4.—Mrs. Josephine Olszwki was arraigned to-day in Jersey City before Justice Hoos on a charge of shoplifting, having been in prison since Saturday night for stealing three pairs of socks, and three pairs of stockings, all worth 63 cents, from a Newark avenue store.

On a front seat in the court room awaiting her arraignment were a gaunt, hungry looking man, and a pale barefooted boy. The man was the woman's husband, and the boy her 11-year-old son Frank.

As soon as the woman was arraigned the boy started toward her. The woman espied him, and, running from the open pen, clasped him in her arms, and then drew from beneath her much-worn shawl two loaves of bread, which she handed to the boy, whispering meanwhile in his ear. The boy hurried out of the courtroom. The bread was her prison fare, saved for her starving family. The woman admitted the charge against her, but said she was forced to steal, as her family was penniless, without food, and with no prospect of obtaining any. Her five children, she said, were starving, and her husband despondent. Justice Hoos found her guilty, but suspended sentence.

FIVE TRAIN ROBBERS HELD UP EXPRESS

Train Brought to a Standstill, and Engineer Was Forced to Give up Engine.

ESCAPED WITH THE ENGINE AND ALL THE BOOTY

Safe Blown up With Dynamite—Most Daring Scheme Carried Into Successful Execution.

Texarkana, Tex., Sept. 4.—No. 1 cotton belt passenger train, in charge of Conductor Armstrong and Engineer Henderson, was held up and robbed last night near Eylau, four miles south of Texarkana.

The train was flagged by one of the robbers, who forced the fireman to go back and cut off the mail and express car, and returning forced the engineer to give up the management of his engine. One of the robbers ran the engine, mail and express cars about a mile away and forced the express messenger to open his car. The robbers then blew open the safe with dynamite, securing it is said, a very large amount of booty. The exact amount is withheld by the railroad and the express people, but it is known that a very large shipment was made on this train.

The robbers next cut off the engine from the mail and express cars, and, forcing Engineer Henderson to get off, they took the engine, in charge of the robber-engineer, and went south at full speed. At 1.40 o'clock this morning the engine had not been found. No passengers were molested, though they were badly frightened.

PLOT WAS SUCCESSFUL.

The robbers were evidently in possession of all facts concerning this particular shipment of money together with a schedule of the train, as their scheme was successful in every respect. A suspicious character was seen to board the head end of the train in leaving Texarkana. Railroad employes here are confident that the robbery was committed by railroad men from the manner in which they cut off the cars and handled the engine. The gang numbered five.

The spot selected for the robbery was well adapted for this kind of work, being very wild and heavily timbered. The conductor and several passengers walked back to Texarkana, a distance of four miles. The sheriff and posse have been summoned to go in pursuit of the robbers. At this hour the passenger train stands in two pieces with the engine's whereabouts unknown.

UNCLE SAM'S BARGAIN.

He is Very Much Dissatisfied Over the Philippine Business.

Washington, Sept. 4.—The Philadelphia Record says:—Our Republican statesmen have been beguiling the people of the United States with the promise that we are to get back from the Phillipines, through an immense an dprofitable trade with those islands, the money which they have cost us. So far, however, this has proven an erroneous calculation.

Of the total importations into the Philippines of goods valued at $18,000,000 during seven months ended January 31 last Europe furnished $9,000,000, or one-half; Asia more than $7,000,000 and the United States less than $1,500,000. The currents of established trade cannot be easily deflected; but it must be admitted htat if we were furnishing all the exports to the Philippines instead of the beggarly fraction shown by these figures th eislands woul dstill prove a very bad bargain as a commercial investment. As it is, we seem to have acquired a very costly an dunprofitable piece of real esatte.

A True Brain Food

must replace the feeling of lassitude and mental tiredness by clearness and strength of mind. Not that it goes directly to the brain. That were foolish. The true brain food must be carried by rich, red blood. If mental fatigue worries and alarms you, look not to the brain but the stomach and assimilative organs. No remedy yet discovered possesses the marvellous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases. Ferrozone does not stimulate the brain into a fitful glow, but by improving digestion, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating assimilation, giving new strength to the heart, it sends a stream of red vitalizing blood to the brain. Thus it is a true brain food. Ferrozone is sold by Ormond & Walsh.

The Royal Choir.

Over eighty vocalists were present at the practice at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday night, and the various selections were taken up in most energetic spirit. In another month the choir shall have become most efficient under Mr. Mulligan's direction.

LOVE GROWN COLD.

The Jealous Lover Shoots a Rival Then Puts a Bullet in His own Breast.

Walpole, Mass., Sept. 4. — Two men were shot and seriously wounded here this afternoon as the outcome of a quarrel between Fred L. Jenks, a mill machinist, and Myra Belle Spear, a young woman with whom he had been keeping company. Jenks thought that Miss Spear did not care for him as much as formerly and by way of emphasizing a protest he threatened to shoot her. Charles Maier, of Norwood, saw the infuriated man point a revolver at the girl and when he grappled with Jenks the latter shot him in the body, the bullet entering four inches below the heart. Jenks then shot himself near the heart. He is not expected to live, but there is a slight chance that his victim may recover. Jenks is 30 years of age and a veteran of the Spanish war.

The Asthmatic's Agony

Wakeful nights, suffocating sensations, difficult breathing. Who can describe it? This disease, partly nervous, partly congestive, partly the result of microbic irritation, is no longer treated by nauseous, stomach-destroying drugs, but by Catarrhozone, that destroys the microbe, relieves congestion and relaxes the nervous irritability that renders breathing so difficult. The medication is carried by the air you breathe to the very seat of the disease, and removes at once the cause. The great discovery is known as Catarrhozone. Its influence upon Asthma is simply marvellous. Catarrhozone prevents as well as cures, and is the only remedy guaranteed to cure. Your money back if it fails. Two sizes at all dealers, 25c. and $1.00.

SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY.

About $350,000 of the Needed $500,000 Capital Has Been Subscribed.

Hamilton, Sept. 4—Mr. Patrick Hefferman, of Walkerton, who together with Mr. Miles Hunting, of this city, is organizing a sugar beet industry, left for Walkerton on Saturday last, and will return to Hamilton some day this week. Of the $500,000 necessary for the establishment of the factory about $350,000 has been raised in Toronto, and it is expected that the balance will be easily raised in Hamilton. Some of the city capitalists who were interested in the scheme sent a man to Michigan to report on the progress of similar institutions established there recently, and he has returned with a most satisfactory report, which will be submitted at a meeting to be held during the week. Mr. Hefferman has stated that the farmers are now offering to make contracts for many acres of sugar beets more than the proposed factory could handle, and that instead of there being any difficulty to secure the 6,000 acres, 10,000 could be obtained. The prospects of the new company look particularly bright.

Pain in the Back

makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes, in one night. Polson's Nerviline gives a complete knockout to pain in the back, for it penetrates through the tissues, takes out the soreness and pain, invigorates tired muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nerviline cures quickly because it is stronger, more penetrating, more highly pain-subduing than any other remedy. Don't suffer another minute, get Nerviline quick, and rub it in, for sure as you were born it will cure you. 25c.

Dutch Offer to Chase Boers.

London, Sept. 4—A despatch from Middleburg to the Times says the approach of mid-September has had the effect of drawing a sharp line between the two parties among the Cape Colony Dutch. A few of them have joined the fighting burghers in consequence of exasperation at Lord Kitchener's latest proclamation, but others have thrown in their lot with the British. Last week the British authorities received two offers on the part of the Dutch inhabitants of Cape Colony to raise special corps to hunt Boer rebels.

Scheeper's recent dash into the southwest corner of Cape Colony is regarded as unimportant.

An Interesting Address

Rev. J. G. Potter gave an interesting address last night on the Winona Bible Conference in St. Andrew's Sunday school Hall. There was a fair attendance.

POPULATION AND HAPPINESS

We never could see that population meant happiness. A big family is a very questionable source of enjoyment either to a man or to a nation. To the nation it may be a source of pride, but what is pride? Over-crowding and under-crowding seem to be the problems of existence. The former is forced upon certain quarters by the laws of nature; the latter is a craze developing in the minds of people who think that we are not going ahead if we are not shouting and boasting from year's end to year's end about something. Surely this is all a fallacy. A happy family of two or three, the product of true love, well situated for gaining the necessaries of life—that is, upon good land, close to good water, is nearer a true ideal than a lot of children beyond the power of the father to bring up properly, and a source of frightful suffering and worry to the poor progenitrix—to wit: the mother. Nature has laid a heavy burden upon women, securing it upon their shoulders by the ties of sexual instinct and natural love. If they should be willing to forego the pleasures of begetting and nourishing, whose business is it but theirs? It is nonsense to say that a duty is laid upon them of perpetuating the race. This is all a mere metaphysical phantasy which the "stern measure of events" declares to be unwise and unfair. If it is wrong for a woman to cease bearing, it is wrong for her to refuse the offer of a husband. In fact the logical conclusion of all this fifth-rate "stuff" is that marriage-mongers should be at every corner ready to seal the bonds for every man who takes it into his head to claim a wife. The "wife" must not, forsooth, refuse, since it is her "duty" to bring up a numerous (as numerous as possible) brood to the glory of the Creator. It also follows from the same rate of argument, that since the materials are ready and evidently provided for the purpose, it is the duty of all concerned to get to work at producing families at once, and keep on till nature calls a halt. "A quiet nook and a quiet brook and love with reason pure," for us, if you please, and down with religio-theological-commercial fads and fancies

THE FAST SERVICE

Toronto, Sept. 3.—Mr. J. Owen Cox, of Sydney, New South Wales, is in Canada for the purpose of impressing upon the Dominion authorities the importance of establishing a fast steamship service between this country and Australia. He is the representative of extensive shipping interests in Australia and is largely involved in the Federal Steamship Navigation Company, which has developed an enormous business during the past couple of years between England and Australia and South Africa.

Mr. Cox arrived in Toronto on Saturday. Yesterday he held a conference with Hon. Mr. Mulock at the latter's farm at Aurora, relative to the establishment of the service and other matters pertaining to the development of trade between the two countries. He will likely go to Ottawa this week to speak to Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the subject.

To a Press representative Mr. Cox stated that the people of Australia wanted to trade more with Canada than at present; they felt that the American shipping laws were a direct attack on the shipping interests of Australia, and made it utterly impossible for Australian lines to compete against American lines. For this reason a very strong feeling has sprung up in Australia and New Zealand against America. What Australia would like to see was a direct trade between Canada and that country.

It was simply astonishing the amount of Canadian manufactured articles leaving American ports for Australia and styled "American." This should not be. It was a gross injustice to Canada, and a delusion to Australians. As a result everything Canadian was submerged in the name "American," very little was known of Canada in Australia or New Zealand. Some of the most prominent men of the country expressed themselves as ignorant of the fact that Canada had a trade representative there. It was different with the United States and some other countries, that were looking for trade. Their representatives were at every public function of importance, and spoke on behalf of their countries. That was what Canada needed. An energetic consul with assistants stationed in the principal centres of trade would accomplish a great deal. They could keep the manufacturers of Canada posted on all that was being imported and for whom it was consigned, so that importers could come in touch with the manufacturers.

There was a large importation of paper in Australia from the United States There was no reason why Canada should not supply that. He was told that the steel industry was developing in the eastern section of Canada. If so, there would be no limit to the demand for that product there. He was in a position to know that the New Zealand Government were interested in extending their railway system to a very large extent within the next few years, and they would have to import all the material. The same applied to Australia. If efforts were made, this trade could be secured to Canada. But Canadians would have to be on the alert if they intended capturing the trade, because Americans were getting in there in a surprisingly energetic manner. The trouble was that Canadians did not seem to push for trade that was awaiting them there.

Mr. Cox stated that Mr. J. J. Ward, Postmaster-General and Minister of Railways in New Zealand, and Mr. Barton would strongly support a subsidy for a Canadian steamship service, and he was sure the Minister of Australia would do likewise. A subsidy from Canada was all that was wanted to make the service an accomplished fact. With this trade could be developed rapidly, and Canadians would be sure to find in their brother colonists a people whose commercial relations they would always cherish.

MARRIED ON HIS DEATH BED

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 3—Quartermaster Joseph Matthews, of the United States cruiser Newark, who was married yesterday to Miss Eva May Sain of Camden, shortly before undergoing an operation, died early to-day at the hospital here.

Matthews had recently returned from the Philippines. He came here for a brief vacation, and while bathing last Sunday dived from the board walk into two feet of water. His head struck the sand and his spine was badly injured.

Matthews was engaged to marry Miss Sain and, on being informed that he was not likely to survive the operation, he sent for his fiancee and the pair were married.

MRS. EDDY

Concord, N.H., Sept. 3—Gov. Chester B. Jordan and Mother Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, shared honors to-day in attracting to the State Fair Grounds in Concord 20,000 people.

It was Governor's Day and the State Executive and his military staff arrived in the afternoon, receiving a hearty reception from the big concourse. Mrs. Eddy came a short time later and her welcome was even more demonstrative than that accorded to Gov. Jordan.

The news of her visit had been spread far and wide, and many Christian Scientists came from near-by States and from points as far west as Chicago. Two special trains from Boston bearing a delegation over a thousand strong arrived at noon.

The most prominent visitors were assigned to a reserved section in the grand stand, and long before Mrs. Eddy's arrival every seat of the 4,000 available was occupied and the aisles were crowded to a degree which compelled the management to close the gates.

Mrs. Eddy was ceremoniously conducted to the grounds at 2.45 p.m. She was seated in a Victoria drawn by a handsome team of bays and driven by a liveried coachman. A mounted squad of marshals and a squad of police in command of Chief-of-police Locke met Mrs Eddy's carriage at the gate and acted as her escort while she remained within the grounds.

Accompanying Mrs. Eddy were Judge and Mrs. Ewing, of Chicago.

Probably no woman of eighty on the grounds was gowned more richly or more strikingly than Mrs. Eddy. Her costume was of silver-gray color, made of soft, filmy material. She wore a hat of white illusion and carried a big white parasol with a black border. She held in her hand a long white lace scarf. Her countenance was glowing, her cheeks were flushed, and thousands remarked upon her extremely youthful appearance.

As her carriage was driven on the track a cheer went up from the crowds of her followers and the enthusiasm continued until the prancing bays were halted in front of the grand stand, where Mrs. Eddy was received by the fair officials.

George H. Moses welcomed her to the grounds, saying: "In behalf of the Concord State Fair Association I bid you welcome and tender you the freedom of those grounds."

Mrs. Eddy bowed her acknowledgements and Judge Ewing also spoke briefly.

She witnessed the ascension of Aeronaut Stevens, and was startled when high in the air he was shot in a baloon from a cannon. The baloon and cannon fell across the main feed wire of the electric lighting plant, disabling the plant and also Concord's electric lighting service. While attempting to repair the break Harry Quint, a lineman, was fatally shocked, his body falling to the ground. About the same time William Sheehan, twelve years old, who was walking on the track near by, was killed by a train.

Gov. Jordan, who preceded Mrs. Eddy, paid her a high tribute and spoke especially of her act in commissioning a local merchant to supply shoes to every deserving boy and girl who should apply on Children's day.

"I want to say that supplying the needs of 200 children was a kindly act, and a Christianity that prompts a deed of such generosity is not a bad Christianity to have," said Governor Jordan.

THE UNION SUED

Swansea, Wales, Sept. 3.—A commotion was caused at to-day's session of the Trades Union Congress by the action of some employers in endeavoring to recover damages under the House of Lords' decision of July 22 last from labor organizations for picketing by their members. A delegate from Blackburn was served with a writ yesterday restraining him and the members of the Blackburn branch of the Weavers, Winders and Warpers' Association from picketing Panister and Moore's works, where a strike is now in progress. Damages and costs were claimed. Besides this suit the Taff Vale Railroad is suing the Amalgamated Society of Railroad Servants for £20,000 damages incurred as a result of the strike of 1900. These suits will be strenuously defended, but their seriousness puts in the shade almost every other topic of discussion.

UNION FUNDS THREATENED.

President Bowerman to-day devoted the principal part of his address to this topic, declaring that union funds were threatened with demolishment, and that the position was intolerable. He said the parliamentary committee favored an alteration of the constitutions of the unions, with the object of minimizing their liability to action.

The Chronicle to-day supports this view, maintaining that no association of workingmen can stand long against such litigation and that if the decision regarding picketing is final then any unscrupulous capitalist will have his employees at his mercy and "the working classes will sink back again into an unorganized and impotent crowd."

FIND TWO MEN MURDERED.

Steward and Head Waiter of Fashionable Golf Club Slain.

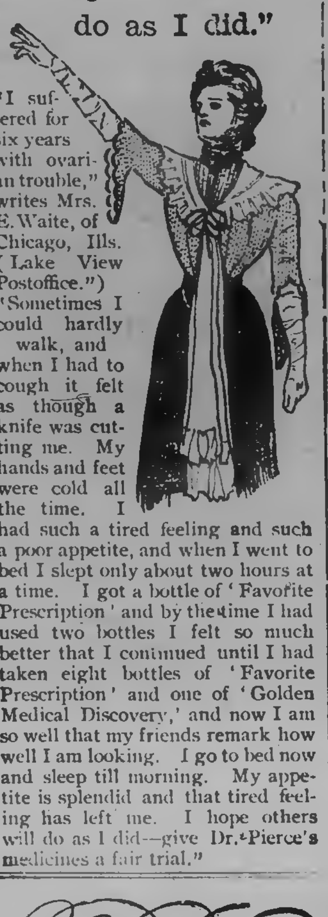
New York, Sept. 4.—The bodies of David Scott and John Stevens the one steward and the other head-waiter of the Siwanoy Golf club, were found today in a room which they occupied in the attic of the clubhouse on the outskirts of Yonkers. They had been murdered with a butcher knife, which was found on the floor of the room and this had been repeatedly plunged into them, as many as a dozen cuts being found by the physicians. The men were negroes, and Warner Simms, a colored waiter, is held on suspicion of knowing something of the murder, while Frank Dunnington, another negro who called at the clubhouse yesterday looking for work, is under detention.

The police found in the room the steel portion of a putter. It had on it, blood and hair. This putter, the police claim, belonging to Simms. The handle was found downstairs and it had the name "Simms" on it. The cash box, which was in the keeping of Scott, cannot be found. It contained about $150.

Simms says he believes burglars entered the house after searching below stairs, ascended to the attic and tried to rob Scott and Stevens and that one of them was awakened and the burglar used the knife.

The Siwanoy Golf club is a very exclusive organization and its membership includes 250 of the fashionable residents of Yonkers.

"I hope others will do as I did."



"I suffered for six years with ovarian trouble," writes Mrs. E. Waite, of Chicago, Ills. (Lake View Postoffice.) "Sometimes I could hardly walk, and when I had to cough it felt as though a knife was cutting me. My hands and feet were cold all the time. I had such a tired feeling and such a poor appetite, and when I went to bed I slept only about two hours at a time. I got a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription' and by the time I had used two bottles I felt so much better that I continued until I had taken eight bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now I am so well that my friends remark how well I am looking. I go to bed now and sleep till morning. My appetite is splendid and that tired feeling has left me. I hope others will do as I did—give Dr. Pierce's medicines a fair trial."

A COSMOPOLITAN CELEBRATION

SHORT STORY FOR THE DAY.

On the evening of the third of July the dining-room of "Der Gipfel" hotel in the Austrian Tyrol was filled with a large company of tourists. The orchestra was playing the latest Vienna favorites and the little army of waiters was silently executing intricate manoeuvers under the stern eye of the generalissimo of the diningroom, the head-waiter. A little group of Americans occupied a table at the upper end of the room, where a fine view of the mountains was to be had and the music of the orchestra was softened by distance.

"I don't believe it was the attraction of gravity that brought us together," laughed little Miss Allard on the first evening when they had discovered their common allegiance to the stars and stripes.

"Much more likely it was our specific gravity," said Dr. Newton. "We have been forced to the top by the greater weight of the surrounding sea of wisdom."

"Huh," exclaimed Ned Armstrong. "the sea of wisdom is a pretty rocky solution, I think, and the Americans would be at the top of anything, anyway."

"A noble and patrotic sentiment, my son," laughed Dr. Newton. "It does you credit and ably and succinctly states what we all feel."

"Aw, quit joshing!" said Ned, with an angry blush.

"Edward, will you never learn to speak English correctly" said Mrs. Armstrong, with a sigh.

"No, ma. I prefer American straight" said Ned, defiantly.

Mrs. Armstrong turned with the hopeless look of an American parent to her neighbor, remarking. "You have had the advantage of educating Ethel in England, so you do not appreciate my difficulties, Mrs. Burton."

"No, my trials have not been the same," said Mrs. Burton. "But," she continued, lowering her voice, "while I do not wish to encourage Ned in his insubordination, I really find him refreshing. We are going home in the fall and I shall place Ethel in some girls' school and make a good American of her."

"I really think I'm a pretty good American now," said Ethel, brightly. "Mummy has somehow made New York seem home, though I have only been there once."

"It will really be home soon," said Mrs. Burton "Sir Percival's lands were entailed, you know, and pass to a younger brother."

There was such a note of gladness in her voice that Mrs. Armstrong repressed the consolatory words she felt were really due.

"Mees Ethel is ver' preety, vether she is Englise or Americaine," said the little Frenchman, who had attached himself to the American group, turning to his neighbor, Miss Burnett.

"Your eye for beauty is certainly cosmopolitan," laughed Miss Burnett. "Yesterday it was the little Austrian peasant and the day before the swarthy Russian countess."

"And before zat and all ze time it ees you. You should not blame me for admiring lofely faces. You are yourself a devotee of beauty. You vorship at her shrine, but you shoose ze dried skin, how you call him, leather?—and I, me I prefer the fresh."

Miss Burnett laughed merrily. "Don't stigmatise my digging into old handicrafts as a liking for dried skin. I should prefer reproducing the beautiful flesh tints you admire, but since I cannot do that I must content myself with designing medieval bric-a-brac and stamping griffens and eagles into leather."

"Speaking of eagles," interrupted Ned to-morrow is the day old baldhead screams, and I don't suppose that there's as much as a firecracker around these diggings."

"I'm afraid not," said Dr. Newton with a smile; "you'll have to content yourself with being a good Austrian tomorrow,"

"Oh, hang it!" exclaimed Ned. "I wish I was home. The old gang will be out at Stony Brook and there'll be a brass band and speeches on the common, and maybe a parade and firecrackers all day and lemonade and popcorn, and everybody will have company out from town, and there'll be fireworks in the evening and ice cream and — Oh, cracky, I haven't seen a kernel of popcorn the whole length of Europe. These guys don't know what's good. I wish I was home," he groaned, tragically.

"Do tell me about popcorn," cried Ethel. "Mummy has never mentioned it."

"Me, also, I desire to know vet' mooch pop—vat you call him?" said the Frenchman.

While Ned was vainly trying to explain that corn is not really meant for chicken feed and that there is a variety which pops open when subjected to heat and which is especially adapted to small boys, Dr. Newton was saying to Miss Allard: "Do you remember the Fourths we used to spend at Minnetonka, Jessie? How I carted out tons of explosives and how Mrs. Gibson used to protest and laugh about it?"

"Yes, Aunt Madge was mortaly afraid of a firecracker, but she liked children to enjoy themselves, so she suffered a cheerful martyrdom every Fourth."

"Was it really as bad as that?" asked the doctor. "What brutes we boys were, and how long ago it all seems! Do you remember how we used to set off all our fireworks early and then go out in the boat to watch those going up from the other cottages along the shore?"

"Of course I do, Tom. And the long, lazy hours next day, when we were all tired out and lay in hammocks while you read to us! Those were good old times, and we never dreamed we two would talk it all over away off here in Austria, after you had worked so long in Bonn, Heidelberg and Vienna that they seem like home to you and I had tried my voice before every master, from Berlin to Naples. How the old group scattered! Phil in South Africa, Fred in Nome, Florence in Kansas City and Nellie—dear, little Nellie—there, Tom, I must go to my room. Good night.

The American group was rather silent as the members gathered on the veranda to watch the last sunset flush dying out beyond the mountains, which called forth the raptures of the other tourists, as they have called forth the raptures of tourists generation after generation.

"I don't seem to care for the mountains to-night," said Miss Burnett. "I'd rather have one glimpse of the muddy old Missouri than all the mountains of Europe."

"The Missouri," said the Frenchman, "is that at your gret San Louis?"

"Yes, the Missouri home, ugly as it is; I'd love to see it to-night."

"Ah, you Americans are 'ever' fond of 'ome. Me, I, too, vould lof 'ome—mais—I am a royalist. La belle France is not a kind home to royalists."

The silence which followed the whimsical words with their touch of sadness was abruptly broken by Ned's clear voice calling, "Oh, I say, Doc, see what I've got. Dolly's a brick, no mistake."

Dr. Newton gave a glance at the contents of the package Ned had just received from the village postoffice and then marched the boy off to a corner of the veranda for a further inspection of the treasure. The Frenchman was called into consultation for an animated half hour. To Mrs. Armstrong's great surprise Ned announced that he was going to bed early. As he raced down the hill he called bak: "Don't you forget, Doc—5 o'clock!"

Just before the guests of Der Gipfel were prepared for their morning excursion to watch the sunrise the American girls were awakened by a startling explosionn on the balcony outside. A second series of explosions followed by the sound of falling cans caused them to exclaim simultaneously, "Fire crackers!" Laughing and wondering, they dressed hurriedly and stepped out on the balcony. A sour-visaged servant was brushing up the torn red wrappings, but the unmistakable odor of firecrackers had not been dispelled.

Ned, the doctor and the Frenchman were in the garden below, eagerly waving tiny American flags. With cries of delight the girls descended the stairs just as Ethel came running up, wide-eyed and excited over her first Fourth of July celebration. Urged on by Ned's vociferous exhortations to hurry, Mrs. Armstrong soon joined the group on the way to the outlook rock, where, with a tiny anvil, a salute was fired to the small silken banner floating from a sapling, just as the sun lighted up the surrounding peaks with bars of red and gold.

The good-natured musicians had been prevailed upon by the enthusiastic Frenchman to attempt a rendition of "Yankee Doodle."

As the halting notes died away, Miss Allard stepped to a rocky platform and turned her face to the rising sun, while her beautiful voice rang forth in the stirring words of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

One by one the other tourists had gathered to hear the song and a hush fell upon the company as the beautiful notes ceased echoing from the mountains.

"Now 'America,' said Dr. Newton, eagerly. The American group took up the hymn with uncovered heads, the English guests joined in with "God Save the King," while the Germans, catching the spirit of the occasion, took up the air with the words of their own national anthem.

"Ah, it is mos' beautiful; mos' cosmopolitan," exclaimed the Frenchman "I should so lof your country, Miss Burnett, I shall come to it in the autumn; to New Orleans, which shall remind me of the old times when France was great in all the world; to San Louis, a reminder of our great king—and to you, if you will let me!"

"Come," said Miss Burnett, simply.

"I am homesick, Jessie," Dr. Newton was saying as he drew Miss Allard apart from the company or tourists. "I want to go home—and take you with me, dear."

"Ah, Tom, to take me home; I should love to go with you."

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.

R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,

President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington, (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

• • • • •

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advretiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June, New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity, it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.

New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it support it, and hurrah for it

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others following his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.

JOS. H. HANNEN,

Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,

General Passenger Agent,

Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

PRINCE CHUN DEFIES KAISER

Berlin, Sept. 4.—Prince Chun, the Chinese envoy bearing the apology for the murder of Baron Von Ketteler, is arousing the wrath of Emperor William to a high pitch. Chun and his suite are still dawdling at Basis, Switzerland, making all kinds of excuses for their procrastination. Some of these would be almost comical if they were not fraught with such serious eventualities.

Advices to the Lokal Anzeiger and private dispatches indicate that it is doubtful if Prince Chun will come to Berlin with the apology unless such additional pressure or punishment is brought to bear on his government that the Chinese emperor will stop his dilatory tactics. The exasperating delay of Chun is on a line with the tardiness shown by Chun in carrying out any of the terms of the protocol forced upon it by the ministers of the powers.

Emperor William's ire is especially aroused by the report that Prince Chun said the reason he did not wait to grovel before the kaiser, as required was because that is a special honor reserved for the emperor of China and would involve a recognition of William's equality. The language Emperor William is credited with having used when he learned that Chun classed him as an inferior of his yellow-skinned master was robust, rumbling and expressive.

A little hair-splitting is being done by Chun about the working of the apology. In his speech to the kaiser Chun had it all framed up to say in his suave oriental way: "The Chinese government regrets that Baron Von Ketteler was killed." But Emperor William does not wait to hear such euphonious language. He has dictated this harsh, grating form: "The Chinese government begs pardon for the murder of the German minister, Baron Von Ketteler."

The Chinese in Basel are trying to give the case international importance by emphasizing the fact that one of the dignitaries selected for the prostration was made a baronet by Queen Victoria, while another has the cross of the Lagion of Honor.

MOVEMENTS OF ROYALTY.

Czar, King Edward and Kaiser in Eyes of the World

London, Sept. 4.—The movements and relations of the royal figures on the European stage make up the bulk of the news at midnight. It is reported from Copenhagen that the Czar and King Edward will not meet at Fredensberg, as has been previously announced. If this rumor be confirmed, it will not be proof that anything has gone amiss, but merely that it has been inconvenient to shorten the King's stay at Homburg and impracticable to alter the Czar's engagement at Dantzic. The Czar, while on good terms with the King and the German Emperor, must consider hearings of the dual alliance and give preference to France in ceremonial visits. He is not likely to single out England for a deliberate affront, and there is no evidence that he intends to do so.

The Russian press is more hostile to Germany than to England, and this is an indication that the German Emperor rather than Edward VII would be sighted if the Czar were looking for an opportunity to discriminate against either power.

YOUNG BOER SHOT A DUTCH MAID

Pretoria, Sept. 3.—Additional particulars of the wrecking of the Pietersburg British train north of Pretoria, are to the effect that as soon as the explosion occurred the Boers opened fire from the banks into the armoured trucks, killing ten and wounding 17 men. Lt.-Col. Vandelour gallantly stepped on a platform to direct his men, and was shot point blank, and killed. A Dutch nurse-maid was shot deliberately by a young Boer who knew her. The Boers took all the passengers' valuables and money, and even their boots, and then burned the train.

London, Sept. 3.—The report of Capt. Reichman, who was the United States military attache with the Boers, states that the Irish-American ambulance originally consisted of 53 men. On their arrival at Pretoria 46 of them threw away their Red Cross badges and took up Mausers.

London, Sept. 3.—An experienced officer yesterday stated that he suspected Kruger was not far from the truth when he asserted that 12,000 Cape rebels had revolted.

Cape Town, Sept. 3.—It is stated that all the Boers in the re-concentration camps, numbering upward of one hundred thousand, will be deported to garrisoned towns, where food is more readily available.

RAJAH HAS A GAY TIME

Paris, Sept. 4.—The most picturesque visitors in Paris are the Maharajah of Jodpur and his suite, who are on their first visit to Europe. They have been doing the German watering places and Switzerland for their health's sake, and now are seeking Paris for a good time.

The Maharajah, who is 22 years old, saw snow for the first time on the Eger Glacier. He thinks St Peter's, in Rome, the greatest building he ever saw, but Paris the gayest city. He is fond of horses, and prefers the race course to the Louvre with its art.

The boulevards and the ladies have caught the Maharajah's fancy, and he likes to dine in swagger restaurants where crowds assemble. He has also made several excursions to the Montmartre region and got into one little cheap restaurant last night, where the habitues, who did not care if he was a Maharajah with millions of jewels, resented his presence and made it uncomfortable for him.

Jodhpur remains for several months and then goes to England to see the King.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggrivated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps, Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

HEALTHY SCHOOLMA'AM

Found Out How to Feed Herself

Many school teachers at the end of their year's work, feel thoroughly exhausted and worn out, physically and mentally. The demand upon the nerves and brain of a teacher is unusual and unless they are well fed and fed upon properly selected food, it is natural that they should run down.

A little woman teacher at Globeville, Mich., who has been teaching regularly for a number of years, has always found herself thoroughly exhausted at the end of the session, until within the last year she has made use of Grape-Nuts Food with the result that she closed the year as a robust, healthy, strong, vigorous woman, having gained in weight from 90 pounds to 124, her nerves strong, face bright and cheery, and really a wonder to all her friends, who constantly comment on her color and strength. She knows exactly to what the change is attributed, for in the years past, living on ordinary food, she had almost broken down before the school year closed, whereas since using Grape-Nuts, this change has been brought about; evidence prima facie of the value of Grape-Nuts Food for rebuilding the brain and nerve centres.

PETERBOROUGH CHEESE BOARD

A Lively Meeting and Lengthy Discussion The Sales.

It was alleged at the last sale of the Board, that certain buyers had refused to accept the cheese of several factories, for no apparent good cause, and the discussion then was supposed to have finally disposed of the then existing mis-understanding between buyers and salesmen. However, when Chairman Drummond declared the proceedings opened Mr. Switzer, the salesman of the East Emily factory, stated that had a grievance which he wished to make known to the Board and receive such redress, as in the opinion of the Board they might extend to him. He then proceeded to give a history of East Emily's connection with the Peterborough Board. They had joined it in preference to the Lindsay Board because it was the mor easily attended an dfurther because it was reputed to be the banner Board of the Dominion. They belonged to it for 18 months during which time he had offered for sale the cheese of the East Emily factory. Last year he was well pleased with the manner in which the business of the Board was conducted, but so far this season he was disappointed. Indeed, he had come to the conclusion that when the late Mr. Cluxton passed away, the Board had sustained a great loss, because in the deceased gentleman's time when a buyer attempted to over-step the rules of the Board he was very quickly called down.

Continuing the salesman referred to an incident that he alleged had occurred since the last meeting of the Board between Mr. Bailey and himself. In short it was the same old story of Mr. Bailey having rejected cheese with no apparent good reasons. Mr. Switzer went very minutely into the difficulty, reciting at length what he claimed were the facts of the case. The East Emily maker had taken samples of the cheese afterwards to Mr. Wrighton, the inspector and that gentleman passed the samples as all right. However, Mr. Bailey when spoken to afterwards, said that Mr. Wrighton was not a competent judge. The speaker was prepared to make affidavit to all he had just recited. He then asked permission to read from the Lindsay Post an account of some discussion that took place at the last meeting of the Lindsay Board, in which Mr. Bailey's conduct was criticised. This was an endeavour on the part of the speaker to show that Mr. Bailey had been in the habit of using salesmen on the Lindsay Board in the same manner as the speaker claims, to have been used. However, the reading of the article was objected to on the ground that Mr. Bailey was not at the meeting of the Lindsay Board in order that he might defend himself.

Mr. Thomas Blezard did not think the time of the Board should be so taken up. If the salesman of the East Emily factory had a grievance he should formulate it in a more explicit manner and not spend so much valuable time.

Mr. Bailey, who had all this time waited very calmly, protested that the reading of the newspaper account should not be allowed. What Mr. Flavelle had said concerning him was false and he would meet him on his own ground.

Mr. Cook thought that the article should not be read. Then Mr. Bailey proceeded to reply to the charges of Mr. Switzer. He, (Mr. Bailey) at the last meeting of the Board had bought thirteen factories and it would be very extraordinary, indeed, if he should single out the Emily factory. Why did he not cull factories that he had bought at 9 1-2 cents instead of the East Emily factory at 9 7-16? He took every cheese in the thirteen factories, excepting the East Emily cheese and that was because they were not fit to take.

Mr. Bailey then went on to relate his conversation with the cheese-maker and the salesman and the objectionable condition that the cheese were in when he called. The cheese maker had admitted to him that they were not fit to take. He dealt fairly, squarely and above board with the East Emily factory, he contended. Why did they not bring the inspector out to the factory instead of bringing in perhaps the best of a few plugs? Mr. Bailey also said that he was called a liar by Mr. Switzer.

The East Emily salesman desired to bring matters to a climax, and moved the expulsion of Mr. Bailey from the Board.

Then Mr. Bailey grew defiant. He invited anyone to second the motion, and for the president to put the question to the members. If they thought it was in the interest of the Board that he should be expelled, very well. They had got better prices during the time he was on the Board than they might otherwise have received.

Mr. John Riddell, the secretary of the Board, spoke a few calm words. He thought that what mistakes had already occurred could not be rectified. However, they should do better in the future. The Peterborough Board had in the past been spoken of, as the banner Board of the Dominion, but such good opinion would no longer exist if evil practices were to be continued.

Mr. Middleton, another salesman whom Mr. Switzer contended also had a grievance against Mr. Bailey, made a few remarks, after which an agreement was arrived at; Mr. Wrighton and an inspector appointed by Mr. Bailey will inspect the cheese of the East Emily factory, and Mr. Bailey will abide by their decision, and take the cheese, providing there is no more than twenty per cent. not good.

After some further discussion, in which salesmen and buyers took part, the sale of the Board was proceeded with.

Mr. Switzer's motion to expel Mr. Bailey, did not get a seconder.

The following buyers were in attendance: Messrs. Bailey, Whitton, Wrighton, Rollins, Cook, Fitzgerald, Kerr and Cluxton.

The following factories boarded:

The bidding opened at 9c by Mr. Rollins; Mr. Fitzgerald went 9 1-8 and Mr. Whitton 9 1-1c.

He took Keene Shearer, Villiers, Westwood Lang and Ormond. Mr. Fitzgerald went 9 1-8, but Mr. Cook followed at 9 3-16, calling Norwood Melrose Abbey, which accepted. He then offered 9 1-8 for urfther selections. No one cared to go any higher and Mr. Cook called Central Smith, Cavanville, Fraserville, Bensfort and Otonabee Union, all of which refused. Mr. Rollins went 9 1-8, calling Warminster, North Smith, Warsaw, Oakdale, Daisy D., Pine Grove, Maple Leaf, Young's Point, North Dummer, Cedardale, Stoney Lake, South Burleigh. They accepted.

Mr. Fitzgerald called 9 1-8, but Mr. Bailey went 9 3-16. He picked up Bensfort, Frazerville, Otonabee Union, Mount Pleasant and Myrtle.

Cavanville sold to Mr. Cook at 9 3-16.

Mr. Bailey at 9 1-8 took Fleetwood, Oak Leaf, Missing Link. Peterborough refused and Central Smith refused.

Mr. Rollins pulled in Trewern at 9 1-8. East Emily went to Mr. Cook at 9 1-8. Central Smith and Buckhorn to Mr. George Fitzgerald at 9 1-8. Indian River to Mr. Bailey at 9 1-8 and Ballyduff at Belleville inspection to Mr. Whitton at 9 1-6.

A HORRIBLE DEATH

A Young Man Literally Steamed to Death in Railway Smash

The Times is in receipt of a copy of the Arizona Journal, giving an account of the death of Engineer Robert Pentland, a nephew of Dr. Pentland and Mr. R. B. McKee, of Peterborough. The particulars of the sad occurrence are given as follows:

Misfortunes are said never to come singly, and this adage seems to be exemplified at the present time in the case of the S. F., P. & P. Railroad. Right on the heels of the accident near the Point of Rocks, which sent an engineer and fireman to the country hospital ten days ago, came several washed out bridges, and as a result of a rock slide last evening, about 100 yards north of the P. & E. Junction, Fireman George Stover lies dead in an undertaker's shop, and Engineer Robert Pentland lies at the Mercy hospital, scalded from head to feet, and hovering between life and death.

Engineer Pentland has of late been in charge of the engine attached to the construction train on the cut off, and last night was on his way to the Prescott shops with it for repairs, intending to take out another engine this morning. In addition to the fireman, Conductor Beck Detwiler was on the engine, which was running light. Just after rounding a curve into a side cut north of the P. & E. Junction, the engine ran into a pile of rocks which had slid on the track, and although it was running at a low rate of speed as it was approaching the station, the monster engine was thrown completely on its side, with its top hanging over the embankment. Conductor Detwiler, who was standing on the steps of the engine, ready to alight and register at the P. & E. Junction, either jumped or was thrown to the ground by the sudden contact of the engine with the rocks, and escaped unhurt.

Engineer Pentland and Fireman Stover were not so fortunate, and went over with the engine. The sudden jar to the engine broke the steam pipes, and before the engineer and fireman could crawl out they were almost cooked by the escaping steam. They, however, succeeded in getting out without assistance, and walked to the section house, about a quarter of a mile this side of the P. & E. Junction, where they were placed on a hand car and brought to the Mercy hospital in Prescott. Engineer Pentland's parents, who reside in Prescott, were immediately notified and went to the hospital and remained with him during the night, caring for him and assisting the physician and nurses in dressing his wounds, which are of a very serious nature, and may yet prove fatal.

Since the above was put in type death has claimed another victim from the result of the wreck, Engineer Robert Pentland dying at noon to-day. The suffering of both men are said to have been terrible and death came to them as an angel of mercy.

The death of Engineer Pentland has caused a general gloom and feeling of sadness in the town, as he was an exceptionally circumspect young man, and was universally beloved by all who knew him. Coming here with his parents when quite a small boy, he grew to manhood in the town and was industrious, temperate and frugal. His untimely death is a severe blow to his aged parents and brothers and sisters, and while the sympathy goes out to them in their sad bereavement it cannot compensate them for their terrible loss, or heal the wounded hearts.

In addition to his friends and relatives in Prescott, who are overwhelmed with grief at his sudden death, the news will come as a shock to one in a far off eastern city, whom he expected to lead to the altar within less than two months, and who left here some time since to prepare for the anticipated happy event.

Both of the deceased young men belonged to the Red Men, and Fireman Stover also belonged to the Knights of Pythias. The former order will conduct the funeral of the remains of Engineer Pentland, while the Knights of Pythias have taken charge of those of Fireman Stover."

Store Improved.

Mr. Dickson Davidson, the popular and progressive proprietor of the old established Ormond & Walsh drug store, is having the store overhauled and greatly improved. It will be refitted with hardwood fittings throughout, and will, when completed, be one of the nobbiest and most complete drug stores in the province.

Fire on Sherbrooke Street

Fire was discovered last night between 5 and 6 o'clock in the kitchen of a double house on Sherbrooke street occupied by Andrew David and Charles Guy. The blaze has made considerable headway and an alarm was turned in while the neighbors started to carry out the furniture from the dwelling. The flames were subdued, however, soon after the arrival of the firemen, and not much damage was done.

KRUGER DIRECTS WAR FROM HIS RETREAT

The Ex-President Plans and Prays Alternately When Not Sleeping.

BRITAIN MAY DEMAND HIS EXPULSION AT ONCE

He Is Being Closely Watched and the Order to Go May Come at Any Time.—His "Cabinet" Will Also Have to Move.

London, Sept. 6.—That Kruger is placing himself in a position that may jeopordise his freedom, is apparent. It is no longer denied that he is planning and plotting against Britain, and just how long this country will permit this to continue, is now a live question. There is a growing feeling here that Britain should demand an explanation from the netherland government as to why she permits Kruger and his Lieutenants to direct the war from that country.

The Hague, Sept. 5.—It is so difficult to find Hilversum on the map of Holland that one might easily infer was an extremely small place. In fact it is a small place commercially, but from a social viewpoint it is one of the most important places in Holland Here as at the Hague, the rich Hollanders have their homes, and Hilversum is a very attractive summer resort. It is so distinctly Dutch, however, that one has difficulty in finding an inhabitant who speaks English.

Casa Cara is the name of the house where Kruger lives. It is on the Trompenberg road, and quite a distance from Hilversum. It is, in fact, a boarding house where the Ex-president of the South African Republic has taken up his headquarters and where, with his Cabinet he conducts the affairs of the South African Republic.

STILL A POLITICAL POWER.

A London Mail correspondent wires: If anyone has the idea that Kruger is out of the political running since his establishment in Europe, he would be quickly disabused by a visit to Hilversum, especially if he had my good fortune and was admitted to conversation with the old man and his Council. The little country house which harbors the Transvaal leaders is the centre of a widespread political activity, whose ramifications take in England, Central Europe, South Africa, and even America.

Seated in his study at Hilversum, with his big Bible and his brierwood pipe in front of him, the old man is in touch with the Boer cause and the Boer interests all over the world. Working in the next room is the Cabinet, which, under the Ex-president, directs the whole European policy of the Transvaal, and even the general movements of the war. The Chief of Service, Mynheer C. van Boeschoten, with the assistants, E. J. Bok and P. A. van Veen, as well as the former Chief of Police of Johannesburg, Mynheer Bredell, control a minutely-organized system of information and direction which makes Hilversum for the moment as active and important a diplomatic centre as any in the world.

HAS A SECRET SERVICE.

With the aid also of the Bureau, in Brussels, of which Dr. Leyds retains the control, there has been established between the President and the Generals in the field a series of means of communication which keeps the English War Office in prepetual astonishment, Repeatedly has come from Hilversum news of English disaster which it had been decided in London to stifle; repeatedly the English have been disagreeably surprised to discover from Boer tactics in the field that Generals Botha and De Wet must have had private knowledge of secret decisions of the English War Office or of its cable communications of English generals.

The "Cabinet" at Hilversum is, in fact, a wonderfully organized Secret Service Bureau. Nothing escapes it. Its emissaries, bearing dispatches from the President, penetrate into the heart of the country, and its spies and other agents in the Transvaal reach Hilversum from the scene of action by ways which defy all the preventive measures the English can adopt. While the writer was with President Kruger there arrived Mr. Beerans and Mr. Pameyer, two important functionaries, bringing important communications from the front. How did they get through? The Portuguese are supposed, probably with reason, to be in the pay of the English; why do they not stop the Transvaal agents? That is one of the secrets of the Cabinet; but one thing is certain, that they do not.

STIRS UP TROUBLE IN EUROPE.

An important part of the work of the Cabinet is that performed in England itself by the judicious manipulation of political undercurrents there. Boer agents, working by all kinds of secret means, under the special direction of Dr. Leyds himself, are engaged perpetually in striving to create a public opinion against the waging of the war.

Through the liberal newspapers facts and figures are circulated tending to discourage the mass of the people or to make them ashamed of the methods of subjugation employed. The lecture platform is largely used also for the same purpose. Several leaders of the Irish Revolutionary party have lent effective aid in this way as also by the more indirect device of proclaiming in Ireland itself a kind of boycott of the English army; the recruiting sergeants that used to make such liberal hauls of good fighting flesh and blood in the Green Isle are beginning to find their efforts and eloquence wasted as a direct result of this move. The numerous pro-Boer meetings organized among the Irish in America have received their first impulse from the Cabinet in Europe, which takes good care to be in close touch with the born enemies of the English wherever they are to be found.

SWORN FOE TO POMP.

This efficient secret service bureau presents outwardly a very simple appearance. Its daily deliberations take place in a plainly furnished office room at Hilversum, communicating with the President's private study. Everything in fact is arranged on the simplest scale round the Ex-president. He is a sworn foe to all pomp and pretension and his characteristic is shown clearly in the furnishing of the apartments occupied by himself and his staff, as well as in the details of his daily life. He is of course treated with the utmost reverence by all who come in contact with him, but there is no more outward shown around him than is seen in the case of any ordinary Dutch pater-familias in the neighborhood.

The house he lives in with his suite is a plain comfortable Dutch home and apart from his own personal peculiarities the daily course of life there is absolutely ordinary. When he is not engaged in transacting business directly with his cabinet he passes his time in his study or in the garden summer house, in company with his pipe and his bible, smoking, reading, meditating.

He goes to bed in the Transvaal fashion, very soon after sundown, he rises two or three times at regular fixed intervals during the night and remains up smoking and reading for half an hour or an hour, walking about his bed room in a dressing gown.

DUTCH GIVE HIM SYMPATHY.

Although they have the greatest respect and sympathy for Kruger, the people of Hilversum are not overwhelmed by the honor of his presence among them. They take off their hats as he passes, but they have confirmed to his wishes in the matter of refraining from any demonstrations since the first reception extended to him. In their sympathy for him they find themselves in harmony with all their fellow countrymen.

A WESTERN OPINION.

How the Trent Canal Is Regarded by a Western Paper.

This Trent Valley canal is one of the most palpable frauds that has ever been inflicted upon long-suffering people by their Parliamentary representatives. It has been a sink hole for good money for many generations, and outside of the few who have been directly benefited by that expenditure it is not now, and never will be of any value. The sooner it is dropped the better, on the principle that the first loss is the least loss. Had the millions that have already been expended in it been given to assist young Canadians to make homes for themselves on the prairies of the North-West they would have yielded the country thousands for every farthing of benefit that the Trent Valley canal will ever afford.

GRAIN BEING MARKETED.

Wheat Shipments Far Ahead of This Time Last Year.

Winnipeg, Sept. 66 —The reports show that grain is being marketed very freely. The wheat shipments east are far ahead of those up to this period of last year, but the movement is not by any means general yet. The thousands of cars are distributed throughout Manitoba, to be ready for wheat when they are required. Weather turned showery, and likely will delay threshing operations a little.

R L S AS BANK TELLERS

Chicago Makes Innovation and the Cashier Is Satisfied.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—The Royal Trust Company's Bank has dismissed thirteen young men tellers in the savings department and substituted thirteen young women. Mr. Black, the cashier, said,—

"We do not take the girls because we want to displace the men. Our boys are a good lot of willing workers, but we find that the girls do the work in the savings department better. We have not considered putting any of them in the commercial line.

"They get the same pay the men do, and are satisfactory, because they keep regular hours and are willing to work hard with trifles. They like to work here, and we like to have them."

THE BOTTOM REACHED.

The Cement Work at the Power House Now Begun

The work of excavating for the foundation of the power house at Nassau has been completed, and the building will now begin. Yesterday the huge pump emptied the enormous basin preparatory to starting the cement work.

This has been a tedious job, and gave contractor Moss and his efficient staff plenty of play for their ingenuity in keeping the water down. The walls will soon rise up, and when once above high water mark, the work will be easy, and will progress rapidly.

LOST $500,000 IN POKER GAME

First Magnate Paid $25,000 to Draw Card to a Flush.

AND HE GOT THE PASTEBOARD

New York, Sept. 5.—Just a cool half a million dollars was what changed hands in the big poker game played by Pittsburg millionaires during their journey across the Atlantic on the Deutchland.

It is said that the money went two ways, and that the $500,000 profits on the trip were divided by William I Mustin, president of the Pittsburg Stock Exchange, and J. A. Chambers, president of the Window Glass Trust, but they won it from other trust magnates.

All the members of the game were Pittsburgers, and they went about it in a business-like way. Someone suggested a poker game on the first day out, and before they bought chips they discussed the matter philosophically. They knew that poker had charms to make a man miss his meals and lose his sleep. As all of them had as many millions as they needed for one lifetime, they decided it would be better to lose money than food or sleep, and so the game was arranged.

The discussion was conducted in a manner entirely parliamentary. To have seen the magnates deliberating over the matter one might have thought they were merely arranging to take out a New Jersey charter for a company to control one of the necessities of life, instead of arranging the details of a poker game.

HOURS FOR THE GAME.

A committee on rules was appointed, and its report was that no matter how the game stood it should begin at 2 p.m., each day and continue until 6 p.m. There was to be an interval of two hours for dinner and then the game was to be resumed at 8 p.m., and continue until the stroke of 12.

All agreed to this, and the games were stopped at midnight in the middle of a pot.

The plan was to divorce the game from all forms of dissipation. All they needed was the excitement of winning and losing money. They succeeded.

The "big game" was the centre of attraction for all passengers on the ship and at times one could not get within ten feet of the game, and according to George McFarlane, who was one of the spectators, "They took the bridle off and let her run."

Incidentally, between the games, the players found recreation in betting in the pools on the day's run. Some of the pools amounted to $10,000 and one of them reached the enormous figure of $12,000.

Sitting in the game were James A. Chambers, W. I. Mustin, D. L. Gillespie, Frank Moore, M. K. McMullin and A. M. Fox.

W. I. Mustin is declared to have won the biggest pot of the game. There was $90,000 in it, and he showed his nerve by paying $25,000 cash to draw one card to fill a four flush, but he had a "hunch" that it would be good.

It was a big jack pot. Mustin got first cards and found a pair of queens. He opened it for a generous sum. Gillespie had two pairs and wanted to make it a personal engagement between the opener and himself. He raised it as far as he thought Mustin would stand.

SAW THE RAISE—RAISED AGAIN.

To his surprise McMullin, who held three aces, not only saw the raise, but more than doubled it. The other players fought shy until it came to Moore, who was dealing. He held a pat straight, and added to the wagers already made.

By the time it got back to Mustin, the play was figured out, and he was told it would cost $25,000 to draw cards.

He had a pair of queens—one of them a club. He also held a jack, ten and nine of clubs. This gave him a four straight flush open on both ends. He took the chance that "there always a club on top" and put up the money.

WINNIPEG NOT SATISFIED

Royal Party Will be There Only Five or Six Hours.

Winnipeg, Sept 5.—Many citizens are greatly disappointed at what they term the "turndown" Winnipeg is receiving in connection with the royal visit. Winnipeg is the fourth city of the Dominion and the capital of Western Canada, and the five or six hours arranged for Their Royal Highnesses to remain here is not considered sufficient.

The train by which the royal party travel will be divided into two sections. The first will have on board the suite of the royal party, newspaper men and others, while the Duke and Duchess and the high Canadian representatives accompanying them will travel by the second.

THE COLUMBIA WILL RACE SHAMROCK II.

Defender of Two Years Ago Will Again Enter Contest.

THE FIRST TIME ON RECORD

Newport, R. I., Sept. 5.—The Columbia, the boat which lowered the [illegible] of the first Shamrock in the international races of 1899, has been chosen to defend the America Cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger, Shamrock II. The first race of the series this year will be sailed on Saturday September 21st, and the Columbia will immediately be prepared for the contest. Mr. E. D. Morgan, head of the syndicate which controls her, has already ordered another suit of canvas.

This is the first time in the history of the America Cup that a yacht has been chosen to defend the much coveted trophy on more than one occasion, and it only bears out the oft-repeated statement of British experts that the Herreschoffs were reaching their limit.

There can be no doubt of the wisdom of the committee in charge of the trial races in deciding upon the older boat as the defender, in preference to the Constitution. The new boat has behaved in the most erratic way ever since she was launched. Constant alterations of her sail plan made matters worse rather than better, and with the boat in but an experimental stage, sadly in need of tuning-up but two weeks from the international races the judges had no alternative but to bar her out. Some good yachtsmen are still of the opinion that the new boat would have beaten Columbia if she had only found herself in time.

Three trial races were sailed prior to the selection of the Columbia, but only two were finished. The first one was won by Columbia in a fresh breeze with over four minutes to spare. The second also went to the Columbia on time allowance by 17 seconds, although Constitution covered the course in 51 seconds less time. Out of a total of nineteen races between the two boats, Columbia won eleven. The majority of Constitution's wins were in very light weather.

As to the outcome of the approaching races American yachtsmen are very apprehensive, and admittedly so. Mr J. C. Spears, historian of the American Navy, has said nothing was more certain than that the cup was as good as lost if they had to rely on the Columbia. The yachting expert of the New York Journal and many others have expressed the same opinion. A few members of the New York Yacht Club have actually placed their bets on the Shamrock at even money. Contrasted with these conditions is the fact that Sir Thomas Lipton and all connected with the Shamrock are certain of victory.

The showing of the challenger in American waters has been a revelation. She crossed the ocean with few British yachtsmen believing in her ability to "lift" the cup, and the impression that she was not very dangerous spread to this side of the water. Everything has been changed since then, and those who have followed her recent performances are satisfied that will be hard to beat let it blow hard or blow low. One New York paper said yesterday that the manner in which she travelled in light winds would have disgraced the Constitution, and she certainly is no laggard in a blow. Altogether the coming races promise to be of an intensely exciting character.

EMBALMERS IN SESSION

Twenty-nine Undertakers are Taking the Course.

The eighth annual session of Dr. Myer's College of Embalming commenced on Monday in the I.O.F. rooms in the Temple Building, Toronto, and will continue until to-night. The college is the outcome of a scheme fathered by E. J Humphrey for a number of years. Every minute of the session is taken up with practical work, no business meetings being held. Large crowds attend the lectures and demonstrations, and take great interest in the proceedings. There are 28 undertakers in attendance, and each one, after serving a term in the school, is given a diploma.

Those in attendance are: Z. C. Poole E. J. Humphrey, J. M. Taylor, S. A. Sheer, Charles Connors and B. D. Humphrey of Toronto; A. I. Mills, Murichville; Miss Helen M. Reevely, Chester; E T McConkey, Stroud; A McKay, Wyoming; C Pugh, Woodville; N J Boyd, Mitchell; William Brophy, Goderich, M B Morrison, Trenton; G S Henderson, Lakefield; W R Neely, Brandford, G H. Penet, Shelburne; A Rutherford, Burford; J B Davy, Carberry, Man.; Otto Kaldflush, Lewiston; S F Reid, Kingston; W H Willson, Georgetown; J McMillan, Rosencath; W P Dyment, St. Mary's; GJ Carscallen, Napanee.

BRITAIN'S MISTAKEN POLICY

The Kindness Shewn the Boers Has Prolonged the War and Was the Cause of Losing Many Lives.

Cape Town, Sept. 5.—The British soldier is the chief sufferer by the humanity of his countryman living in ease and plenty at home. His generals, obeying orders from the War Office, have made it clear to him that Boer property is sacred. Hence he has starved in a land of plenty. The eggs and the chickens, the pigs and the milk, were left for the commandos of the enemy. For months General Rundle's men, hungry and ragged and footsore, tramped the eastern part of the Orange River Colony, and the farms of the burghers in the field were as safe from pretty thieving as the farms of Devonshire. "How honorable," said the humanitarian, and he never thought that the enforced selfrestraint of Tommy Atkins was responsible for the terrible sick lists which have been such a melancholy feature of the war. He starved to please the sentimental humanitarian, and in too many cases he died for it. What did it matter? England's reputation for magnanimity was preserved.

Even the enemy's sticks were respected. It was at Senekal, half empty because the burghers were out on commando, and the men, after a hard day's march in which the sight of a tree or a shrub was an event, were sent out to collect fuel to cook their meat ration. There were plenty of wooden fences and trees in the town, but these were not to be taken on pain of imprisonment. A party of Royal Mounted Rifles, most of them unarmed, in their fruitless search for fuel, fell into an ambush, and five were shot dead. In Senekal itself British soldiers wandered up and down the streets collecting refuse in their helmets and handkerchiefs, the Dutch women grinning and jeering at them from the windows. Over and over again when the man have been on short rations a full meal has been ordered for Boer prisoners, and over and over again the men, exhausted and hungry, have had to march on foot while Boer prisoners were being conveyed by us in British carts and wagons.

McKINLEY PAYS A VISIT TO THE CANADA BUILDING

American Pres. Inspects Exhibits of Dominion

EXTENDS AN OPEN HAND

Nations Are Commercial Competitors, Cut Not Commercial Enemies.

HE COUNSELS PEACE, NOT WAR

Buffalo, Sept. 5.—President McKinley is a visitor at the Pan-American Exposition today. He was introduced by President Milburn on the Esplanade, and replied, in part, as follows:

"To the commissioners of the Dominion of Canada and the British colonies, the French colonies, the republics of Mexico and of Central and South America, and the commissioners of Cuba and Porto Rico, who share with us in this undertaking, we give the hand of fellowship and felicitate with them upon the triumphs of art, science, education and manufacture which the old has bequeathed to the new century. Expositions are the timekeepers of progress. They record the world's advancement. They stimulate the energy, enterprise and intellect of the people, and quicken human genius. They go into the home. They broaden and brighten the daily life of the people. They open mighty storehouses of information to the student. Every Exposition, great or small, has helped to some onward step. Comparison of ideas is always educational, and as such instructs the brain and hand of man. Friendly rivalry follows, which is the spur to industrial improvement, the inspiration to useful invention and high endeavor in all departments of human activity. It exacts a study of the wants, comforts and even the whims of the people, and recognizes the efficiency of high quality and low prices to win their favor. The quest for trade is an incentive to men of business to devise, invent, improve and economise in the cost of production. Business life, whether among ourselves, or with other peoples, is ever a sharp struggle for success. It will be none the less so in the future. Without competition we would be clinging to the clumsy and antiquated processes of farming and manufacture and the methods of business of long ago, and the twentieth would be no further advanced than the eighteenth century. But though commercial competitors we are, commercial enemies we must not be.

LIVE IN HARMONY.

"Let us ever remember that our interest is in concord, not in conflict, and that our real eminence rests in the victories of peace, not those of war. We hope that all who are represented here may be moved to higher and nobler efforts for their own and the world's good, and that out of this city may come not only greater commerce and trade for us all, but more essential than these, relations of mutual respect, confidence and friendship, which will deepen and endure.

"Our earnest prayer is that God will graciously vouchsafe prosperity, happiness and peace to all our neighbors, and like blessings to all the peoples and powers of earth.

After the address the President was escorted to the Stadium, where he reviewed the column of troops. After the review he went first to the Canada building, and after inspecting the exhibits there, visited the agricultural building. President McKinley then called upon the commissions from Honduras Cuba, Chili, Mexico, Porto Rico and Ecuador in the buildings erected by these countries.

THE KING HAS A THROAT TROUBLE

It Is Not Cancor, But Requires Constant Treatment.

HIS MAJESTY IS VERY NERVOUS

Special to The Times.

New York Sept. 5.—I. N. Ford cables the Tribune as follows from London:

Disturbing rumours about the King's health have been in the air for many weeks, but it has not been possible to separate the wheat from the chaff. The most trustworthy account which I have received from those in touch with the court leaves little ground for doubt that the King has been nervous about the condition of his throat and suspicions that his sister's fate might be in store for him. Specialists have examined his throat, while he has been in Homburg, and they have confirmed the previous diagnosis that there is no evidence of cancer.

DISEASE OF THE THROAT

There is, however, some disease of the throat, which requires constant watching and treatment. My informants state that the King has been warned against mental excitement, and that his medical advisers objected strongly to his going to his sister's death bed, on the ground that the emotion and intensity of grief would be dangerous. There is a court theory that while the throat is not now in a cancerous state, it may become so under the influence of mental depression and excitement. This foreboding was doubtless reflected in the pessimism pervading England. No alarmist at court suggests that the coronation will be interrupted by the decline of the King's health.

SALISBURY WILL NOT RETIRE.

Equally trustworthy information enables me to confirm the previous account of Salisbury's health and political plans. He is decidely better than he was in the spring, and carries his public burdens easily, and has no intention of offering his resignation to the King.

THE WALKER HOUSE.

This Popular Toronto Hotel Adds to Its Efficiency.

For many years the Walker House has been the popular hotel for people from this section of the country who frequent the Queen City. It has enjoyed the reputation of being one of Toronto's leading and favorite hotels, and that its present management are determined to keep it in the front rank is evinced by the extensive alterations and improvements which have been made this season. An additional storey has just been completed with 41 rooms, 12 of which are fitted with baths, while 16 toilets have been added. The rooms throughout have all been handsomely and elaborately furnished with new furniture, carpets, etc. The management propose to further expend $5,000 on remodeling the lower portion of the hotel.

The Walker House occupies a most commanding position on the corner of York and Front Streets, within easy distance of the Union station and Yonge Street wharf. Its dining-room overlooks Toronto Bay, and is admittedly the coolest and most airy in the city. The cuisine of the Walker House is first-class in every respect, and the courtesy and efficiency of its staff has served to make it one of the most popular hostelries on the continent. Mr. T. M. Bayne, the genial manager of the Walker House, is an old commercial traveler, who is most assiduous in his efforts to provide for the comfort and welfare of his guests. Mr. Bayne was for a time connected with a large mercantile establishment in Toronto, and is well and favorably known throughout the Dominion. The Walker House was established in 1874 by Mr. David Walker, the present proprietor, and has always been conducted in a manner to reflect credit not only on the management, but the city as well.

SPECIAL BY CABLE AND LETTER

Period of Sunshine in England Is Greater Than Usual.

FRENCH MONKS IN ISLE OF WIGHT

London, Sept. 6.—The figures obtained from the sunshine recorders show that in all districts of the British Isles the sunshine this year has greatly exceeded the average. The most highly favored district has been Northwest England, the sunny hours being more than 180 in excess of the normal. In South England the average has been surpassed by over 150 hours, while East England has had 130 hours more than usual. The excess in Northeast England has been over 160 hours, and in East Scotland it has been 120 hours, and over 100 hours in North Scotland. But of all places, probably the metropolis has been most favored, for here, since Jan. 1, there have been 1,056 sunny hours, or no less than 204 above the average.

EIGHTY FRENCH MONKS

London, Sept. 5.—The Isle of Wight is to have a serious addition to its population, but a class that does not "increase and multiply" in the Scriptural sense. Eighty Benedictine monks expelled from France, find their place of refuge in Appuldurcombe, in what is undoubtedly one of the best country houses on the island. It lies near Wroxall, and the visitor to Ventor, on his way from Ryde, passes within view of it from the railway. The Isle of Wight's recent Roman Catholic tradition are mostly concerned with the Simeons and the Wards. Sir John Simeon, at one time its Parlimentary representative, was a recruit of Rome, as was also W. G. Ward, of Weston Manor, the well-known philosophical writer. Both were friends, as well as neighbors, of Tennyson, who gave the MS. of "In Memoriam" to Simeon, and whose works include some "Lines" addressed to Ward.

CURIOUS CONCIDENCE.

London, Sept. 6.—A curious and pathetic concidence occurred in connection with the melancholy suicide of Mr. Robert Shone. As he lay dead and yet undiscovered with a bullet through his head an actor-manager, with whom he had long been associated, was looking through the contents of his safe and came upon a forgotten manuscript — play by Mr. Shone. Its title was "Suicide Up-to-Date."

SOCIALIST INTERVENTION.

Brussels, Sept. 5.—The International Socialist Bureau has received a number of replies to inquiries it has been making as to the intervention on the part of the Socialists in the South African war. Mr. Hyndman, of the Socialist Democratic Federation, London, expresses the opinion that the proposed intervention would have no result, the trade unions bein scarcely inclined to start a general strike. M. Fanquez, Switzerland, and Signor Enrico Ferri, Italy, expressed the same opinion.

CONDITIONS IN LABRADOR

Persons Dying With no Means of Obtaining Medical Aid.

St. John's Nfld., Sept. 6.—Dr. Grenfell, superintendent of the mission to Deep-Sea Fishermen, now operating in Labrador, publishes an article exposing the medical deficiencies of that part of Labrador which is under Canadian jurisdiction.

He asserts that in Bradore he found an imbecile girl, 9 years old, tied in dog harness when her relatives were not able to watch her. He found people dying from cancer, dropsy and scurvy who never had seen a doctor. He found no hospital near, no regular steam service to Gaspe or Quebec and no means by which the people could procure medical or surgical treatment.

MR THOMAS BLEZARD

How the Member for East Peterboro Was Turned Down.

A FEW FURTHER FACTS

It Is Doubtful if the Veteran Member Will Stay Turned Down.

Many Persons, While They Think Highly of Mr. Anderson, Mr. Blezard's Successor, Feel Hurt — A Party Convention May Be Called to Reconsider the Matter

Some time ago The Times announced that it was possessed of information that showed that Mr. Blezard had been turned down in East Peterborough—that a cut-and-dried typewritten programme of resolutions had been sprung upon the Liberal Convention, and that Mr. Blezard had been dropped without the ordinary courtesy of a renomination. We said that in our opinion it was not right to deprive an old and valued public servant of the courtesy of a renomination, since it really meant a vote of want of confidence in him. In fact to a sensitive mind it is the last and deepest stab of ingratitude. The Examiner, smarting under our direct and plain-spoken words, replied—but what a reply! It was a confused and guilty jumble of abstractions, and nothing more.

To this we replied challenging our contemporary in so many words to make good its denial of our statements, and its furious charges of lying and mis-statement on our part. We made the challenge clear and plain, because we felt that the vindication of Mr. Blezard was at stake, and we at least will not desert an old friend when the tide of ingratitude has set in against him. But we are of opinion that the constituency at large is not ungrateful to Mr. Blezard, notwithstanding the actions of lukewarm friends and ill-disguised enemies.

Mr. Blezard did us the honor of paying us a visit in our sanctum the other day. We asked him straight, "Why didn't you run again, Mr. Blezard?"

"I didn't get the chance," he said, with a hearty laugh. "They didn't give me an opportunity, of saying either yes or no."

We submitted to him the statements we had made concerning his turning—down. He confirmed our statements out of his own mouth in every particular. He told us other things which we are not at liberty to make use of bearing on the same question. He did not wish to make capital for the Conservatives. He suspected their condolences and doubted their sincerity. We ourselves have spoken to many Conservatives, however, and can assure Mr. Blezard that they were piping hot over his ill-treatment. They considered Mr. Anderson a comparatively easy man to beat in comparison with the old war-horse of the East, who had so many scalps already in his belt, and whose popularity has placed him term after term at the head of the poll. Men who have voted for him so long would also hesitate to mark their ballots against him, no matter how they regarded the Ross government and their policy. Why, then, we ask again, was Mr. Blezard turned down? Come Mr. Examiner let us have the truth. We will venture to say that from what we know if the Liberal Convention should meet again and renominate Mr. Blezard for his old position he would be elected without opposition, so strongly does the entire East Riding, Grit and Tory, feel over this Tammany triumph. Mr. Blezard's kind words to us, we do not take altogether personally. We feel that we represent every man who takes a pride in his country and in the traditions of his own ancestral manhood. This agitation has served to redeem in our eyes to a large extent the wrong inflicted, since it has served to show Mr. Blezard that the people at large have faith in him still, and that he has lost none of the high opinion in which he has been held from the first. We feel conscious also of having forestalled the attempt to bury Mr. Blezard in obloquy and oblivion. In a few years otherwise the cause of his dismissal would have become a matter of uncertainty, and the rising generation could only argue over what their fathers had known for a certainty. Time would then naturally furnish new issues and to the name of Blezard would attach an illdefined reproach

FRANCE AND TURKEY

The breaking of the diplomatic relations between France and Turkey is not necessarily a prelude to hostilities, but unless the Sultan gives way and meets the wishes of the French government, it is not easy to see how war can be prevented. A rupture of this nature cannot be very prolonged, for France could hardly stand by and see her claims flouted by the Sultan. National dignity would compel her to make some attempt to enforce them. A naval demonstration would be the most natural thing, but if the Sultan is prepared to take the risk of that, he may be prepared to go further and conclude to take the risk of an attempt to close the Dardanelles, and this would mean war immediately. Means may be found to prolong the life of "the Sick Man," and doubtless the influence of European Courts will be directed to that end. Europe is not ready to administer upon the estate, and so the effort will be to keep the moribund empire in existence as long as possible. We do not know that the powers will ever be any readier to dispose of the Turkish question than they are now, but there is always a chance that something will turn up to ease the situation. At any rate it is the invariable policy of European governments to put off an evil day and it will be a very evil day when it becomes necessary to decide the future of Turkey.

The fragmentary story which comes from Constantinople does not indicate why France has chosen this particular moment to urge Turkey to settle certain claims. They are not new. They do not stand alone, for every other government, almost, in Europe has a long list of accounts, which the Sublime Porte ought to settle. France seems to have sought to precipitate a crisis. Possibly one reason may be that as Great Britain's hands are occupied to some extent in South Africa, it may be considered an auspicious moment to deal with the Turkish question.

ANOTHER POLAR FAILURE

New York, Sept 5.—Very few of those who have some knowledge of the character of the ice fields of the polar ocean felt any confidence in the success of the attempt of the Russian Government to have its ice-breaking steamer Ermak force a passage to the North Pole. The announcement, therefore, that the enterprise has failed caused no surprise. The news of the failure was brought by the captain of the steamer Frithjof, who escorted the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition to its first base of operations. He reported that he met the Ermak returning from its fruitless errand.

Details of the effort are naturally lacking, and they must be waited for until the return of Admiral Marakoff, the commander; but these will be mainly interesting as demonstrating the extent of the power of the famous Russian ice-breaking vessel. The Ermak was constructed for the sole purpose of crushing a pathway for merchant ships through the heavy ice which obstructs most of the Russian harbors for many months in the year. In this work the ship was eminently successful. Of enormous strength, it could resist almost any amount of outside pressure. On account of massive construction and heavy bows, terrific blows can be dealt by "butting," and after each assault the bows can be lifted and the whole weight of the vessel used to crush the weakened ice.

A vessel of this character could probably keep the ice in the Russian harbors broken sufficiently to permit practically uninterrupted navigation and it could most likely carve a pathway for many miles through some of the Arctic icefields in midsummer, when ro thas set in. The interesting point will be to learn to what extent this was done. An ordinary whaler will "butt" its way through rotten ice eight or ten feet thick but the far Northern fields beyond the cruising grounds of these craft are supposed, in many cases to exceed twenty-five feet, and it is this which certainly has been too much for the Ermak.

SERVANT EMPLOYERS' UNION

Chicago, September 4—Mrs. Charles Henrotin, a prominent club woman of this city, proposed at a meeting of the Working Women's Association of America to-night that the mistresses of servant girls should organize. The object of this union, she said, would not be to antagonize the Servant Girls' Union, but to determine with them the rules to be observed.

"I believe," said Mrs. Henrotin to-day, "that the interests of employers will be best served by the formation of both associations. Improvement in conditions will certainly come by such a course. It will be better for the girl and better for the women who hire them. The question is more than one of wages. I would have all women who employ maids eligible to membership in the union which I propose."

Union mistresses will be asked to employ union girls, and union girls will be asked to submit their cards to union employers. In this way complete cooperation will be secured, and both maids and mistresses will, it is claimed, have more satisfaction than has ever been possible under the old system of hiring the girl who will promise to do most work, and going to work where there are no children and plenty of afternoons off.

Store Improved.

Mr. Dickson Davidson, the popular and progressive proprietor of the old established Ormond & Walsh drug store, is having the store overhauled and greatly improved. It will be refitted with hardwood fittings throughout, and will, when completed, be one of the nobbiest and most complete drug stores in the province.

MRS. NATION'S "FAKING"

Smashes Two Glasses in a Saloon to Oblige a Yellow Newspaper.

New York, Sept 4.—The Commercial Advertiser of last evening said:

Mrs. Nation engaged this morning in some smashing or "hatchetation," as she calls it, for the benefit of some reporters and artists for sensational newspapers. Such a tame affair, it was that the police declined to arrest her.

She went to police headquarters at 10.15 a.m. accompanied by a reporter for a sensational newspaper, and said that she wanted to see Devery. The deputy commissioner had not arrived. The young reporter, who was managing her performance, had a talk with his editor over the telephone, and then had a private conversation with Mrs. Nation, who apparently fell in with his suggestions. Meanwhile arrangements had been made for a raid with the owner of a Mulberry street saloon, not far from headquarters. A couple of whiskey bottles containing some reddish liquor were placed on the bar, together with a glass of beer and a whiskey glass. When Mrs. Nation, escorted by the reporter and followed by a crowd of several hundred persons, entered the saloon, the bartender was washing glasses and the owner of the place was standing near by with a cigar in one corner of his mouth and a smile at the other.

Mrs. Nation walked up to the bar, exclaiming "Oh horrors! What is this stuff?" She seized the glass of beer and held it aloft, posing for the artists. The bartender made a "bluff" at stopping her, but it was only a bluff. Finally she let the glass fall, amid the cheers of the crowd.

"Have a drink, Carrie," said the bartender, pouring out a glass of the red stuff.

Mrs. Nation took the glass, held it up, looked around at the artists and the crowd, smiled, posed thus for several minutes, and let the glass fall. She repeated this performance a number of times.

Inspector Cortright, who had heard that Mrs. Nation had started on a smashing tour, sent a policeman after her. When the policeman reached the saloon he found that the smashing was prearranged and that all damage was to be paid for. So he simply dispersed the crowd and Mrs. Nation started down Mulberry street with her "yellow" escort.

SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY.

About $350,000 of the Needed $500,000 Capital Has Been Subscribed.

Hamilton, Sept. 4—Mr. Patrick Heffernan, of Walkerton, who together with Mr. Miles Hunting, of this city, is organizing a sugar beet industry, left for Walkerton on Saturday last, and will return to Hamilton some day this week. Of the $500,000 necessary for the establishment of the factory about $350,000 has been raised in Toronto, and it is expected that the balance will be easily raised in Hamilton. Some of the city capitalists who were interested in the scheme sent a man to Michigan to report on the progress of similar institutions established there recently, and he has returned with a most satisfactory report, which will be submitted at a meeting to be held during the week. Mr. Heffernan has stated that the farmers are now offering to make contracts for many acres of sugar beets more than the proposed factory could handle, and that instead of there being any difficulty to secure the 6,000 acres, 10,000 could be obtained. The prospects of the new company look particularly bright.

The Asthmatic's Agony

Wakeful nights, suffocating sensations, difficult breathing. Who can describe it? This disease, partly nervous, partly congestive, partly the result of microbic irritation, is no longer treated by nauseous, stomach-destroying drugs, but by Catarrhozone, that destroys the microbe, relieves congestion and relaxes the nervous irritability that renders breathing so difficult. The medication is carried by the air you breathe to the very seat of the disease, and removes at once the cause. The great discovery is known as Catarrhozone. Its influence upon Asthma is simply marvellous. Catarrhozone prevents as well as cures, and is the only remedy guaranteed to cure. Your money back if it fails. Two sizes at all dealers, 25c. and $1.00.

If a woman is physically miserable and mentally unhappy, the child she bears will, in face and form, as well as in disposition, reflect her own condition. Every woman who anticipates motherhood ought to think of this and be a fairy godmother to her own child, endowing it with health, beauty, and a happy disposition.

The mental misery of the prospective mother is in general the result of her physical condition. She is nervous, her appetite fails, she cannot sleep. Restore her appetite, quiet her nerves and give her sleep and she becomes a new woman.

"It has made a new woman of me," is the constant testimony of women who have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces refreshing sleep. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"During the first month, when I looked forward to maternity, I could not keep anything on my stomach," writes Mrs. H. C. Anderson, of South Britain, New Haven Co., Conn. "Was so weak that I went to bed on the 28th of June and never got up till the first of August. I tried different doctors, but with little benefit. I read about many being helped by using your medicine, so I thought I would give it a trial. I began to take your 'Favorite Prescription' in November, and I had a nice little baby girl in February following. My baby weighed over eight pounds. I was only ill for about one hour, and got along nicely during confinement. Was up and dressed on the eighth day. I never had the doctor with me at all; just the nurse and one or two friends. My friends thought I was sick a very short time. This makes my second child. With the first one I did not take 'Favorite Prescription.' The little one lived just about two months, and she was sick all the time. This last baby is as plump and healthy as any mother could wish."

FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Caracas, Venezuela, Sept. 5.—The Official Gazette to-day published the memorandum of the minister of foreign affairs to all friendly nations, explaining the complaints made by Venezuela against Colombia. The case is considered to be a casus belli. There is much comment and excitement.

Colon, Colombia, Sept. 5. — Delayed three days by the censor.—Bocas del Toro, 140 miles west of Colon, is virtually besieged by the liberals, or insurgents. They number at least 200 and as already cabled, occupy Provision island, which is opposite the town and commands the entrance to the harbor. They are fairly well armed, possessing two small modern cannon, as well as plenty of ammunition, and are commanded by a Nicaraguan. Among them are many Nicaraguan and Costa Rican liberals.

For more than a month the liberals have been threatening the town. About a fortnight ago they improved their position on Provision island, about a mile and a half from Bocas del Toro, which also is on an island and the opposing forces have occasionally exchanged shots, although, with the exception of one Jamaican wounded, there have been no casualties.

The liberal position is strong, and the situation is likely to remain as a tie until one side or the other makes an attack. Such an action would subject the attacking party to the severe fire of their opponents, as it would be necessary to pass from Bocas del Toro to Provision island, or vice versa, in small open boats. Neither side is inclined to take this risk. The liberals profess to believe that a proclamation of the present situation would result in a withdrawal of the government force from Bocas del Toro. Counting reenforcements the government has about 170 men there and the town can only be reached by very light draught steamers through roundabout channels.

Martial law prevails in Bocas del Toro. The authorities have stopped communication with other ports except Colon. They have stopped local fishing and forbidden passage along the streets after 8 o'clock at night. Foreigners claim that the measures adopted for harbor supervision materially injure commerce. Two Germans were sent to jail for expressing their views too freely in a cafe and it needed the intervention of the German consul to effect their release.

The United States, French, British and German consular agents in Bocas del Toro told the Colombian commander there that if the severe harbor restrictions interrupting commerce were not abated they would call for gunboats. These representations resulted in a limited improvement in harbor conditions.

The local trade, which has been chiefly in bananas sent to the United States is virtually dead. Fruit steamers from Mobile and New Orleans are getting partial cargoes, the disturbed conditions preventing work on the plantations. The foreign element predominates in the town—Americans, Germans, British and Chinese, in the order named. The United Fruit Company of Boston owns many banana plantations in the neighborhood.

The United States consular agent in Bocas del Toro has made an urgent appeal to the United States consul in Colon to send a gunboat. Commander Sargent of the United States gunboat Machias is fully informed of the situation and if this does not improve shortly the Machias will probably proceed to Bocas del Toro. The liberals of Provision island say the presence of the Machias will not alter the situation, as they have in no way interfered with or injured foreigners and the government alone is responsible for the restrictions laid upon commerce.

Many houses in Bocas del Toro continually fly American, German, British and French flags to denote the neutrality of their occupants. The Colombian government considers that the measures taken there have been made necessary by the exigencies of the case.

MANY LABORERS OUT OF WORK.

Berlin, Sept. 5.—A private dispatch from Colon says many laborers are being discharged from the coal mines and industrial establishment owing to declining business. The men discharged are mostly Italians and Poles, who are returning home in troops. The weekly decrease in the miners' wages owing to cutdowns amounts to 400,000 marks.

WAITING FOR REENFORCEMENTS.

Washington, Sept. 5.—In a mail report to the state department from Panama, dated Aug. 21, United States Consul General Gudger says there has been no change in political conditions on the isthmus since Aug. 12. Both of the contending parties appear to be intent on recruiting and reenforcing and are awaiting developments. The revolutionists on the railroad lines, he says, are still making depredations on Chinamen.

SITUATION IN CARACAS SERIOUS.

New York, Sept. 5.—Francis B. Loomis, former United States minister to Venezuela, but now minister to Portugal, was a passenger on the Vaderland, arriving here today. In response to an inquiry he said:

"The last news I received from Caracas was when I arrived here to-day. It was a letter from a friend, but was written some time ago. In the letter my friend, who is a prominent business man in Caracas, says that the situation at the time of writing was most serious."

Mr. Loomis said he had returned to this country to attend to some important personal business and that he would return to Lisbon within a short time.

LOVE GROWN COLD.

Walpole, Mass., Sept. 4. — Two men were shot and seriously wounded here this afternoon as the outcome of a quarrel between Fred L. Jenks, a mill machinist, and Myra Belle Spear, a young woman with whom he had been keeping company. Jenks thought that Miss Spear did not care for him as much as formerly and by way of emphasizing a protest he threatened to shoot her. Charles Maier, of Norwood, saw the infuriated man point a revolver at the girl and when he grappled with Jenks the latter shot him in the body, the bullet entering four inches below the heart. Jenks then shot himself near the heart. He is not expected to live, but there is a slight chance that his victim may recover. Jenks is 30 years of age and a veteran of the Spanish war.

WAR WITH RUSSIA NOT IMPROBABLE

London, Sept. 4—We must strive for a final settlement with Russia or gird ourselves for a fight," bluntly declares Sir Rowland Blennerhassett, a Government official.

In language less startling, but equally significant, the Times says Great Britain must decide whether it is "compatible with our interests, commercial and political, to allow a foreign power like Russia to establish itself on the Persian Gulf. Possibly it may be expedient to purchase political peace by the surrender of commercial interests which might cost too much to defend. But if we are resolved to defend them we must not wait until it is too late to declare our intentions and take action."

Synchronous publications examining Russian and British relations at widely separated standpoints are interpreted as indicating that the public is being prepared for the announcement by the Government of a firm policy toward Russia.

Frederick Greenwood, an acute, far-seeing observer of foreign affairs, analyzes in the Daily Mail to-day some recent Blue Books on Chinese affairs, particularly the facts concerning the Russian seizure of the Pekin-Shanhaikwan Railroad. "Count Lamsdorff," he says, "finds no difficulty in telling our Government in the plainest language permitted by diplomacy that if it does not like the Russian arrangements in Manchuria, for example, it is at liberty to resent them in any way it pleases. Russia is not disposed to explain but is quite prepared to fight."

The simultaneous publication of these Blue Books and Lord Kitchener's despatches showing the unfitness of many of the recruits will throw light each on the other, Mr. Greenwood thinks, the Government "deliberately desiring to let the patient know how he stood in relation to Russia, and his state of military unpreparedness, so that he may prepare, not to die, but to rouse and help the doctors in his own behalf."

One daily has been trying to get up a scare on the subject of Great Britain's overwhelming deficiency in submarine boats. Among the alleged sins it attributes to the Admiralty is that of allowing the United States to secure this week a submarine invention which the Admiralty declined even to examine, method of warfare. The invention was and which is likely to revolutionize that examined and declined by the Admiralty, was submitted to the United States Naval Attache, Commander Glover, and forwarded by him, in the usual routine, to Washington. The indorsement accompanying it and the opinion of other naval experts render it highly improbable that the invention will receive any more consideration from the Navy Department at Washington than from the British Admiralty, which is getting Holland boats ready for launching. It is probable that five Holland boats will be ready for launching before crews are secured for them.

PRINCE CHUN YIELDS AT LAST

Berlin, Sept. 5.—Prince Chun, after having kept Emperor William in a fidget for several days, has at last yielded to the inevitable and at 11 o'clock yesterday started for Berlin to make the apology for the murder of Baron Von Kettler.

The wily Chinese diplomat, however, succeeded in having the requirements of his mission reduced to an almost farcical formality. He did not have to do any bowing and scraping and was received in state, almost as an honored guest. Chun has bluffed Emperor William into softening all the harsh terms laid down for himself and the members of his suite.

WAS RECEIVED IN HONOR.

About the extent of the Oriental's humiliation was his urbanely voicing the expression of the Chinese government for the murder of Von Kettler. After that brief ordeal will be a round of wine dinners, receptions and other functions and probably a tour in triumph of all the European courts.

Chun and his companions were gloating tonight over the concessions made to them. Before the train started for Berlin a member of the suite gave out an official and inspired statement that Emperor William had decided to waive the ceremony of kowtowing and that the only persons to be received by him in ceremonial audience would be Prince Chun and Ying Chang. The member of the mission in question said also that the mission would remain in Berlin for a fortnight and had received and accepted invitations from the British, Italian, American, Belgian and Japanese governments.

The crowning joke was perpetrated by Prince Chun yesterday morning. He gave orders for preparations to be made to start for Berlin at 11 o'clock tonight but soon afterward countermanded them. He caused to be circulated various stories as to his intentions. One was that he was going to return to Pekin at once, and another was that he would make a tour of the other European capitals while awaiting for Emperor William to recede from the conditions His Majesty has laid down for the ceremony of apology for the murder of Baron Von Kettler. Later the message from the Kaiser changed his attitude.

FRENCH QUIT IMPERIAL CITY.

Paris, Sept. 5.—M. De Laresmar, Minister of Marine, has received a dispatch from Pekin announcing that the French have formally handed over the Palace of Ancestors and Imperial city to the Chinese plenipotentiaries and that only one French battalion remains in the old French quarter.

Pao-Ting-Fu and other points adjacent that were occupied by the French have been evacuated, the dispatch says, after salutes to the tricolor from Chinese regulars.

Pain in the Back

makes life miserable. Can it be cured? Yes, in one night. Polson's Nerviline gives a complete knockout to pain in the back, for it penetrates through the tissues, takes out the soreness and pain, invigorates tired muscles, and makes you feel like a new man. Nerviline cures quickly because it is stronger, more penetrating, more highly pain-subduing than any other remedy. Don't suffer another minute, get Nerviline quick, and rub it in for sure as you were born it will cure you. 25c.

An Interesting Address

Rev. J. G. Potter gave an interesting address last night on the Winona Bible Conference in St. Andrew's Sunday school Hall. There was a fair attendance.

UNCLE SAM'S BARGAIN.

He is Very Much Dissatisfied Over the Philippine Business.

Washington, Sept. 4.—The Philadelphia Record says:—Our Republican statesmen have been beguiling the people of the United States with the promise that we are to get back from the Philippines, through an immense and profitable trade with those islands, the money which they have cost us so far, however, this has proven an erroneous calculation.

Of the total importations into the Philippines of goods valued at $18,000,000 during seven months ended January 31 last Europe furnished $9,000,000, or one-half; Asia more than $7,000,000 and the United States less than $1,500,000. The currents of established trade cannot be easily deflected; but it must be admitted htat if we were furnishing all the exports to the Philippines instead of the beggarly fraction shown by these figures th eislands would still prove a very bad bargain as a commercial investment. As it is, we seem to have acquired a very costly and unprofitable piece of real esatte.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.

R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,

President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

• • • • •

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world. The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1880, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong." but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.

New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it. support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD.

Advertising Manager for Sapolio—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.

JOS. H. HANNEN,

Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

DR. PITCHER'S

BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS

(Formula of Zina Pitcher, M. D
Late Professor of Materia Medica and Genito Urinary Diseases, Michigan College of Medicine, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A)

Dr. Pitchers' Backache Kidney Tablets are the quickest and surest relief for Backache and Kidney troubles, and can show more evidence to that effect than all other advertised remedies combined. Dr. Pitcher stakes his reputation on these tablets for Backache and Kidney troubles, and will not allow them to be advertised as a "jack of all trades" medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Bevan of Port Hope says: "Thirteen years ago I fell and injured my back, and since then have known little comfort with backache and Kidney troubles. I have tried all kinds of medicines and seen many physicians, but got no help until I began the bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets that I got from R. Deyell, druggist. They have done me a world of good, I feel stronger; the dizziness and pain is gone, and I cannot tell you how pleased I am, and everyone else says the same of them. They are just what everyone wanted. I hope others will use them and get well.

For Young Women.

The regular monthly board meeting of the Young Women's Christiann Association was held on Wednesday afternoon Sept. 4th. For the first time the noon Sept. 4th. For the first time the board met in the new rooms on George street, and although the only furnishings consisted of a few chairs and a small table, it was a very pleasing occasion for all present.

Miss Carson, the Dominion field worker of the Young Women's Christian Association, presided at the meeting. One of the principal items of interest, was the decision of the Board that a junior department should be formed, in view of the large number of girls who responded to the invitation to meet Miss Carson at the Y. W. C. A. rooms, Brock street, on Tuesday afternoon, and who so enthusiastically declared their readiness to enter such a department.

MMiss Agnes I. Dickson, B. A., the new secretary, was present, and was warmly welcomed by the members of the board.

It was decided that the public dedication of the building as a Young Women's Christian Association, should take place about the end of September.

All the members present were delighted with the large, bright, airy rooms, the walls and ceilings of which are so artistically decorated, and look forward most hopefully to the time when it shall be a fully equipped Association Home for all young women whether residents of our town or strangers.

We trust it may be but a short time, until the friends who have manifested such deep interest in the Young Women's work will see this hope realized.

Watch for press notices of the dedication services, and for fall prospectus.

Mr. Kemp's House Burned

At 3 o'clock this morning an alarm of fire was sent in for a house on the south end of Roumaine street, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Kemp.

The brigade was promptly on hand, but was unable to do anything owing to lack of water. Most of the furniture was saved.

The fire is supposed to have been started by a sparks from an engine passing near by dropping a spark on the barn and the flames then spread to the house.

AN INDIAN RIVER WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Emma Walker and Mr. Chas. Manly

On Wednesday afternoon last a very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Peter Walker, Indian River, when his charming daughter, Emma, the youngest of the family, was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. Manley.

The bride was prettily attired in a dress of cream cashmere, and carried a boquet of white carnations. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Annie Walker, who was becomingly attired in blue organdie, and also carried a bouquet of carnations, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Frank Manley.

Mendelsshon's wedding march was rendered by Miss Annie Duff as the wedding party entered the parlor. After the ceremony, which was performed by Dr. Andrews, of Keene, the guests sat down to a sumptuously served dinner, after which the young couple took the 4.30 train for Buffalo and points west. On their return they will take up residence in Otonabee.

The numerous and costly presents which they received testify the esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Manley are held. The Times extends its congratulations.

DIED IN WISCONSIN.

Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, Sister of Mrs J. Devlin, of Peterborough

A letter received yesterday by M. W. J. Devlin, harness maker, town, conveyed the sad intelligence of the death of his sister, Mrs. John Fitzgerald. Mr. Devlin, it will be remembered, returned some weeks ago from Black Creek, Wis., whither he had gone on a visit to his sister, who was then in failing health.

The late Mrs. Fitzgerald was the only daughter of the late John Devlin, of Otonabee, and left in 1870 with her husband for Wisconsin, where they have since resided. Her husband died about three years ago. She was the mother of a family of eleven children, five of whom are deceased. The remaining members of her family were around her when she passed to her eternal rest on Friday evening, after the last rites of the church had been administered to her. The remains were interred at Battle Creek alongside those of her husband.

Bowmanville Fair.

The Times received a very polite invitation to the Bowmanville fair, which takes place on the 12th and 13th instant. We understand. This has become a great stock show, and competition is very keen in all departments down to poultry. This year several animals will appear in the show ring for the first time. Stockmen have been on the lookout since last year and a number of choice animals have been brought into the district. Several buyers from a distance are coming to get stock animals. Radical changes have been made in the prize list—some popular new features introduced. Last year this was called the Model Fair. The directors are doing all in their power to make it still more worthy of this designation this year. Prize lists may be had from M. A. James, Secretary, Bowmanville, with whom entries must be made on or before Tuesday 10th inst. Return tickets at single fare good from Wednesday p.m. up to Saturday night.

Who is Jim Stabler?

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—Will you please tell me through the columns of your widely-read newspaper, if a man calling himself Jim Stabler, has authority to annoy people on Chemong lake, claiming that he is a fishery inspector? I heard of one case where he took $5 from a party, as hush money for fishing on Sunday.

Now, Sir, I venture to say that if Mr. Nicholls, the regular inspector, studied his own interests, and the interests of the Government who pay him, he will at once secure a more worthy representative. Stabler is after the "stuff" every time, Sunday or week day, and it is not wise to subject innocent people to his authority, if he has any.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am, etc,

A VICTIM.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY

A Frightened Horse Takes to the Sidewalk on George Street.

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night a horse belonging to Mr. John Seyell, of Otonabee, took fright at the corner of George and Brock streets and dashed down the sidewalk making a tremendous clatter and spreading consternation among pedestrians as well as business men whose windows were imperiled. The buggy crashed against store fronts and also struck and slightly damaged George Paxman's bicycle. At the corner of Hunter and George streets a collision with an electric pole put an end to the animal's wild career, and he fell to the sidewalk and was secured. One wheel of the buggy was demolished, the harness were broken and the horse itself was scratched but not seriously injured.

SHOOT AND BURN A NEGRO.

Members of an Alabama Mob Avenge Attack on a Young Girl.

Troy, Ala., Sept. 6.—Bill Fourney, alias Bill Hilliard, a negro charged with assaulting Miss Wilson at Chestnut Grove, was shot and his body burned by a mob near the scene of his crime to-day.

Miss Wilson, who is 16 or 17 years of age, and the daughter of Dr. Carroll, about 12 years of age, were on their way to school at Chestnut Grove, just across the line in Coffee county, when they were overtaken by the negro. He seized Miss Wilson, whose little companion ran away. The negro fired his pistol at the fleeing girl, but missed her. She raised an alarm and soon a posse was in pursuit of the negro. When they reached the scene of the crime they found Miss Wilson unconscious and terribly bruised in the face and about the head.

The posse tracked the negro to his home, where he was found in bed, saying he was sick. The little girl identified him and he was then lynched. Miss Wilson is in a precarious condition.

THE HORTICULTURAL SHOW

Market Hall Thronged Last Evening With Flower Lovers

The annual exhibition of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society took place in the Market Hall yesterday. In the evening, the band was in attendance and a continuous procession of visitors marched in and out and to and fro within the hall, making an animated scene. There was a very nice display of fruits and vegetables besides floats and flowers. The total number of entries was 183.

Ald. Batten Injured.

Yesterday morning Ald. Jos. Batten, chairman of the Property Committee of the Town Council, while on a step ladder in the Market Arcade, fixing something in connection with one of the doors, fell, and was somewhat badly cut about the face. He is, however, we are pleased to say, able to be about.

Barns Destroyed

On Tuesday evening the barns of Mr. John Lancashire, who resides on the base line, Otonabee, were destroyed by fire, together with their contents, which included this year's crops. This is the second time Mr. Lancashire has suffered by fire within two years, and much sympathy is being felt for him, as there is only a small insurance. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

BIRDSALL

Mr. Jno Lancaster while helping put up the straw carries of the threshing machine met with a serious accident having his nose broken and otherwise injured. We are glad to say, he is progressing favorably.

Miss Ruth Birdsall left on Tuesday to attend the High School at Norwood.

Mrs. George Lancaster arrived home on Saturday after spending a few days with friends at Keene.

Many of our young people attended the K. C. Clubs excursion to Orillia.

Mrs. J. Eaton, of Ottawa, spent last week at "Bellevue Cottage" the guest of Mrs. Calder.

Mrs. Calder and family, left on Wednesday, after spending the latter part of the summer at "Bellevue Cottage," for their home in Toronto.

Mrs. Birdsall, of Peterborough, was the guest of Mrs. J. Lancaster, last Saturday.

Fraser Bros., of Hastings, are putting a metalic roof on Mr. Davidson's new house.

The Misses M. Birdsall and N. Huycke are spending this week at Toronto and Buffalo. Miss Blodgett, of Centreton accompanied them.

Mr. Geo. Lancaster, of Bobcaygeon, is spending a holiday with Mr. John Lancaster of Villers.

Many of our local sportsmen spent Monday on the Lake.

Messrs. T. Fraser, C. Fowlds and Cooke, of Hastings, spent Sunday and Monday on the Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Eaton, of Norwood, and Miss Blezard, of Villiers, spent Sunday at the residence of F. Birdsall.

Mr. F. Birdsall is attending a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Central Conservative Assembly at Toronto, he will likely visit the Industrial Exhibition and the Pan-American before returning.

Mr. Benard Thomas left on Wednesday for Toronto on a visit to the Industrial Exhibition.

The Saturday trips of the steamer "Rainbow" to Peterborough have been a decided success this season.

Miss White is again teaching in school section No. 12, Asphodel.

The bridge known as Birdsall bridge on the river road to Hastings is in a very bad condition.

Will Witness a Baseball Match

A baseball match at Montreal between the Montreal and Toronto Eastern league clubs will be witnessed by the Duke of York during his visit to Canada. Last night Mr. J. A. Clark, secretary-treasurer of the Montreal Baseball Club, arrived in Toronto from Montreal and made arrangements with the Toronto club for the game. The Torontos play in Montreal on September 19, 20, and 21, in the closing series of the Eastern League season, and Friday, September 20, is the date set by Major Maude, private secretary to the Governor-General as the occasion of His Royal Highness' presence on the Montreal ball park. Mr. Clark received a telegram from Major Maude last evening approving the date. The Toronto ball club will join with the Montreal club in making the grounds as attractive as possible for the day.

which years would perpetuate and the fancy of future electors would magnify. There would have been none to rise and say: "Tom Blezard left a name above reproach. He died an honored man, high in the esteem and love of his fellows." We say that had we not exposed this infamous business there would have been none to speak so, and be believed, since the tell-tale records of the convention in this regard preserve an ominous and suspicious silence. He who would bring tears to the eyes of a descendant of Tom Blezard would have had the support of the misdeeds of this convention. But now—and we say it, we hope with becoming modesty—it is known from one end of this district to the other that the turning down of Mr. Blezard was the work of designing enemies or hypocritical friends, and not the just punishment of any guilt on his part. Whatever the Liberals of the little clique may have done towards him to injure and malign him, one thing is certain that faithful heart of Mr. Blezard will always keep him loyal to the Liberal cause. Neither a desire of revenge nor the pardonable irritation of an abused man can alter his fealty nor estrange him from a constituency which he has loved not wisely but too well.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY FALLS VICTIM TO BULLETS OF A DESPERADO

Appalling Termination of "President's Day" at Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo.

THE THIRD AMERICAN PRESIDENT TO BE SHOT DOWN

The News Spreads and the Consternation of the People Cannot be Depicted--New York State in a Fit of Perfect Frenzy--President Had Just Returned From a Trip to Niagara Falls--The Would-be Assassins Real Name is Leon Czalgosze, not Nieman, as Reported.

Buffalo, Sept. 6.

President McKinley was shot this afternoon in the Temple of Music, on the Pan-American grounds. The bullets took effect in his stomach. He was conveyed to the hospital where he now lies in a precarious condition. His assailant was arrested but is not yet identified. The greatest excitement prevails.

DESCRIPTION OF THE SHOOTING.

Buffalo, Sept. 7.

The President was in a cheerful mood and was enjoying to the full the hearty evidences of good will which everywhere met his gaze. Upon his right stood John G. Melbum, of Buffalo, President of the Pan-American Exposition, chatting with the President and introducing to him special persons of note who approached. Upon the President's left stood Mr. Certelyon. It was shortly after four o'clock when one of the throng which surrounded the Presidential party, a medium sized man of ordinary appearance and plainly dressed in black approached as if to greet the President. Both Secretary Certelyon and President Malbum noticed that one of the man's hand was swathed in a bandage or handkerchief. He worked his way through the stream of people up to the edge of the dias until he was within two feet of the President. President McKinley smiled, bowed and extended his hand in that spirit of geniality the American people so well know, when suddenly the sharp crack of a revolver rang out loud and clear above the hum of voices, the shuffling myriad of feet and the vibrating waves of applause that ever and anon swept here and there over the assemblage. There was an instant of almost complete silence like the hush that follows a clap of thunder, a momentary silence that ensues after the discharge of a bomb shell. The President stood stood stock still, a long look of hesitancy, almost of bewilderment, on his face. Then he retreated a step while a pallor began to steal over his features. Then came commotion. With the leap of a tiger three men threw themselves forward as with one impulse, and sprang towards the would-be assassin. Two of them were United States Secret Service men who were on the lookout and whose duty it was to guard against just such a calamity, as had then befallen the President and the nation, and the third was a negro who had only an instant previously grasped in his dusky palm the hand of the President. As one man the trio hurled themselves upon the President's assailant and in a twinkling he was borne to the ground, his weapon wrested from his grasp, and strong arms pinioned him. An attempt was made to lynch the prisoner, but the police succeeded in getting him out of the grounds and locked up. There is great excitement here, the streets in front of the newspaper offices being crowded with anxious people. Assailants name Fred Nieman and said to be from Detroit. He has resided in Buffalo for a week on Broadway.

LATER.

Buffalo Sept. 7, 5 a.m.

The police have just learned that the real name of the would-be assassin is Leo Czolgosze.

NEWS DISBELIEVED IN THE WASHIGTON.

Washington, Sept. 6.

The news of the shooting of President McKinley, which reached here first through the medium of the Associated Press Friday afternoon, caused a tremendous sensation. So frequent have rumors of this sort been put afloat in recent years, for stock jobbing purposes, that the general disposition was to with hold full acceptance of the story of the news but when it was confirmed a feeling of deep gloom and profound sorrow spread over the city for Mr. McKinleys delightful personality has endeared him to the citizens of Washington apart from the official class in a degree that rarely has been equalled. It was sometime before the full force of the blow was appreciated, the people were stunned and they could not respond at once and fully comprehend the extent of the great disaster that had fallen on the country and themselves. The special newspapers began to appear, the carriages rushed madly through the streets and crowds of people began to gather from all quarters of the city around the newspaper bulletin boards. The telephone system of the city was simply paralyzed for a time and so many were the calls upon the news offices and upon the officials who might be supposed to have knowledge of the details of the shooting and the operators were overwhelmed. A reporter for the Associated Press carried to the White House the first bulletin announcing the shooting of the President. The executive mansion was reached about 4.25, and at that time all its few inmates were in total ignorance of the tragedy in which their chief had just played so serious a part. A policeman patrolled up and down under the portico as usual, but his serene countenance intimated that he was totally ignorant of the affair. Inside there were few to receive the news. The most prominent personage there being a telegraph operator, Assistant Secretary Prunden who has been in charge of the White House having left his office for the day, and had his subordinatse. The telegraph operator, two watchmen at the doors and the policemen on guard outside and the faithful colored servant Uncle Jerry were the only persons about the mansion.

Washington, Sept. 6.

They learned with great satisfaction the fact that when the President left Washington he was in the most robust health and excellent spirits and that he bade all an affectionate farewell. It was recalled also that Mrs. McKinley said these circumstances had much to do with the President's condition, later on when he left here he was accompanied by Mrs. McKinley's secretary, Certelyon, Dr. Rixey and Mrs. McKinley's nurse. The force at the White House since the President's departure has been in constant communication with him and while he has conducted most of the business of his office at his home in Canton, the majority of the papers with which he had to deal have been prepared in Washington and forwarded through the White House clerical force. All reports received from him by officials here were cheerful and high spirited.

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.

Postmaster General Charles Henry Smith was greatly affected by the news of the shooting of President McKinley and expressed himself as shocked beyond measure. He immediately wired to Washington and Buffalo for further particulars than the early news despatch contained. Mr. Smith said he hoped the President's injuries might not prove so serious as was at first intimated.

New York, Sept. 6.

Immediately upon the receipt of the news of the shooting of the President, steps were taken to call a meeting tonight of all the great financial interests to devise measures to protect the stock market.

PRESIDENT McKINLEYS CONDITION

10.40 p.m.—The President is rallying satisfactorily and is resting comfortably.

10.50 p.m.—Temperature 100.4, pulse 124, respiration 24.

2.25 a.m.—The President is free from pain, and resting well. Temperature 100.2, pulse 120, respiration 24.

4.30 a.m.—President is very weak and is growing uneasy, but is suffering no pain. Temperature 100.4, pulse 123, respiration 25.

BIOGRAPHY OF PRESIDENT McKINLEY

William McKinley was born in Niles, Ohio, Jan. 29, 1843. On his fathers side his ancestors were Scotch—Irish; his forefathers came to America 150 years ago. When he was 9 years old his family moved to Poland, Ohio, where he entered a seminary and pursued his studies until he was 17. In 1860 he was sent to college at Meadville, Pa., but he left before graduation on account of ill health. When the civil war broke out in 1861 he was a clerk in the Poland postoffice. He enlisted as a volunteer private in the 23rd Ohio Infantry, June 1, 1861. He served only three months as a private. One promotion followed another and when the war ended McKinley had the rank of Adjutant-General. During his four years in the army he frequently distinguished himself both by personal bravery and sagacious leadership. He was mustered out July 26, 1865, and returned to Poland, where he studied law. He soon entered politics, and in 1876 was elected to Congress, in 1877 he sought re-election but was defeated. In 1880, however, he was again elected to Congress. In 1882 he was reelected by the narrow majority of eight votes. He continued in Congress until 1889 when he became leader of the House and McKinley tariff bill brought his name prominently before the country at large. In 1891 he was elected Governor of Ohio. At the Republican National Convention in St. Louis in June, 1896, he was nominated for President and he was elected over Bryan on the silver issue, by an enormous majority. Last year he was re-elected over the same opponent. He married in 1871 Miss Ida Saxton. Tradition has it that they used to meet on the way to their respective churches, she to teach in the Presbyterian and he to superintend the Methodist Sunday school. Two daughters were born to them but both were lost in childhood.

SKETCH OF FORMER ASSASSINATIONS

It is a somewhat startling reflection that a living generation has witnessed the fall of three Presidents of the United States by assassination. In both the previous cases, as in that McKinley, the President, was shot on an occasion of festivity.

On the evening of the 14th of April, 1865, President Lincoln occupied a box in Ford's Theatre, Washington. An actor named John Wilkes Booth entered the box and shot Mr. Lincoln through the head. The President died almost instantly. Booth sprang to the stage, and in doing so his foot caught in a curtain and he fell and broke his leg. He made his way to the side door of the theatre, however, stabbing a man who attempted to stop him and, mounting a horse that awaited him, galloped south. He was surrounded a few days later in a barn. On his refusal to surrender the barn was set on fire and Booth then came out and was shot and mortally wounded. This assassination was the result of a conspiracy of Southern sympathizers. Several persons, including a woman, were hanged for complicity.

On the 2nd of July, 1881, President Garfield was passing through the waiting room of the Baltimore depot at Washington, on his way to attend the commencement exercises of Williamstown University. He was arm in arm with James G. Blaine. A man named Charles Jules Guiteau, a disappointed office seeker, fired two shots at the President from behind. One shot passed through his coat sleeve and the other entered his back. Garfield was conveyed to the White House and afterward to the sea shore. He lingered until the 19th of September and then passed away. Guiteau was hanged a few months later. He was a lawyer of shady reputation and had before shown eccentricity that amounted to madness. No other person was involved with him in the crime.

Of the seven men chosen by popular vote for the Presidency since the Civil War—Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Cleveland, Harrison and McKinley—three have been victims of the assassin's bullet. Two other men, Johnson and Arthur have sat in the President's chair, succeeding from the Vice-Presidency through the death of Lincoln and Garfield. Cleveland is now the only ex-Presidnet living. The Republican party has held the Presidency in all but eight of the last forty years, but with the exception of McKinley there is no living Republican who has occupied the President's chair.

JAPANESE EAGER TO FIGHT RUSSIANS

Bishop McKim Says That Her Objection to Borrow Is Obstacle.

BETTER FLEET; A LARGES ARMY.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 6.—Bishop John McKim, of Tokio, Japan, chairman of the Executive Board of Foreign Missions of the Episcopal church is visiting his brother here. When interviewed, he said:

"Japan is exceedingly anxious to fight Russia. Of the people of the Mikado's realm nineteen-twentieths are eager to fight and if it were not for Japan's foolish pride about borrowing money, she could win in a struggle with Russia.

"Japan's fleet is much superior to that of Russia in the eastern waters. Japan's army is larger and is made up of braver and more intelligent men than those composing Russia's forces in China and Manchuria. I think, however, that if Japan does not fight Russia very soon her chances of winning will deteriorate. Russia at present has no coaling station near Japan, but in two years the Siberia railway will be completed and the forces of the Czar will then be in a much better position to war against Japan and kindred eastern powers.

"Japan is very much opposed to the partition of China, and is especially desirous that Russia shall not secure a foothold in the Empire, for the Japanese authorities well know that Corea in such an event would soon go as Manchuria went and Russia would be impregnable in a position enabling the Czar to dictate to Japan.

"Japan is anxious for the accomplishment of an alliance between America, England and itself."

DUKE OF YORK WILL PASS BY

Future King Not to Visit the United States.

REASONS GIVEN FOR SO DOING

Washington, Sept. 7.—The department of state has requested the managers of the pan-American exposition at Buffalo to refrain from inviting to their big show the duke and duchess of York, the future king and queen of Great Britain.

Diplomatic reasons are assigned as the cause for the department's request, but what these may be can be explained only by Secretary Hay, who is absent in New Hampshire. The explanation of the unusual procedure of the department most generally accepted in Washington is that the secretary of state received formal notice from the British embassy that the duke and duchess would not cross the line from Canada into the United States during their approaching visit to the dominion Therefore, when Director General Buchanan of the pan-American exposition communicated to the state department his purpose to formally invite the future kind and queen of England to visit the exposition and politely requested the good offices of the department of state, Secretary Hay promptly informed him the invitation would be ignored and that it ought not to be sent.

WILL STAY ON ENGLAND SOIL

The itinerary of the royal travelers as fixed by the foreign office in London will keep the duke and duchess on English soil. This fact was communicated to the British embassy in Washington several weeks ago, and by the British charged affairs to the state department. It was not known till that communication reached the department whether the son and daughter-in-law of King Edward VII would pay a visit to the United States before sailing for home.

The department was also informed in an inofficial way that the sole purpose of the world-girdling tour of the duke and duchess would be to enable them to visit all of Great Britain's colonies and possessions and that they had carefully avoided even the semblance of visits to other countries. To have begun such visits would have created diplomatic complications of more or less seriousness.

WOULD ANNOY OTHER NATIONS

MICHAEL DAVITT ON THE BOER WAR

Irish Leader Talks to the Press in Washington.

HIS TREASONABLE WORDS.

The Great Hater of England Says That the Boers Will Yet Win

His Words are not Regarded Seriously by Those Who Know Davitt's History Home Rule for Ireland.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Michael Davitt, the well known Irish leader, and one of the most vigorous advocate of Home Rule for Ireland, is visiting his sister here. He talks freely about the Boer War and other public affairs in Great Britain. Mr. Davitt will remain in Washington for a week, when he will go to Pittsburg, where he will deliver an address on September 10 He will return to England the last of the month

Mr. Davitt declares that most of the people of England are opposed to a continuation of the war against the Boers. "If there were no gold mines in Johannesburg," says Davitt, "there would be no war. The majority of the English people are beginning to realize that the whole affair was a gigantic and costly blunder."

Mr Davitt spent eight months among the Boers, visiting their cities and armies, and his observations lead him to believe that the Boers will never be conquered by the British.

The British are in power only along three principal lines of railway, and occupy Pretoria. They have to stick close to their lines or be cut up by the Boers. The Transvaal is about as large as France, and in the vast territory Boer rule is supreme.

LIKE AMERICAN HISTORY.

"The situation," said Mr. Davitt, "might be likened to the peroid in American history when the British occupied your cities and Washington's army was in camp at Valley Forge. Yet in the Transvaal the British are not even as well off as they were during your Revolutionary War. On the other hand, ultimate victory for the Boers by following Washington's plan of warfare may not be possible, because there are not so many Boers as there were American patriots. At the beginning of the war there were only 250,000 men, women and children in the Transvaal and Orange Free State. How many remain now can only be estimated.

CHANGE IN POPULAR SENTIMENT

Recurring to the feeling among the British people, Mr. Davitt said there has been a marked change in public sentiment during the past twelve months in favor of a settlement with the Boers. The opinion among the English people was divided into four classes: First, those who believe the Government should be supported whether right or wrong; second, those who feel humiliated, and think the military prestige of the United Kingdom should be re-established, third, those who think the Government blundered getting into the war, and who believe practical independence should be given the Boers; and fourth, those who detest the war as a crime, and believe it should be terminated for the credit of the British Empire.

But as the present Ministry has three more years in which its policy may be continued Mr. Davitt does not think that policy will undergo any radical change, unless the Emperor of Russia, for instance, should intimate to King Edward that he would like to see the struggle in South Africa ended. Even the result of such an expression might not terminate the war. Intervention by Russia or France was the only means for effecting that, and he does not believe that is probable.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND

Mr. Davitt believes that the Boer war will be the means of promoting Home Rule for Ireland: "I am satisfied," he said, "that the evolution of events now in progress will result in giving Home Rule to Ireland. When the Boer war is over the English people will see it will be to their advantage to give Ireland such a government as Canada has. If the Boer army of 30,000 men and a total Boer population of about 200,000 people could give England so much trouble, the question arising is, What would she experience in a war with one of the great Powers? This view will come to the English people, and as a matter of expediency they will want more justice for Ireland in order to reduce the danger from that country while ruled as at present. For myself, I have enlarged my claim. I was satisfied to have Home Rule, but when I saw what a fight the Boers could make against England, I declared that I wanted independence for Ireland. Independence for Ireland would not injure England, but will really safeguard her interests. Within sixty miles of England, and as a small independent power, she could never be hostile. I firmly believe that independence would be an element of strength to the British empire should it become involved in a war with one of the great Powers.

THE BRITISH SOLDIERS SHOT DOWN LIKE RATS

How the Boers Treated British Soldiers Who Fell into Their Hands.

SCORES OF MEN WERE PRACTICALLY MURDERED

How a Train Was Captured—The Soldiers Aboard Had no Chance for Their Lives.

Dr. Fred Carron, with the British forces in South Africa, writing from Beaufort West Cape Colony, under date July 25, 1901, to his brother, in Brockville, says:—

I am sorry I could not write you for last mail, but we have been so busy that I really did not have the time; the most I could have done would only have been a few words at best. The old adage that there is "always a calm after a storm," is well exemplified—reversed—in our case, as the past month has been very quiet in hospital circles, and I was beginning to settle down to an easy time, but I had an early and rude awakening. The Boers had another head dance and held up a troop train about three miles from Nelsport (23 miles from Beaufort), about one o'clock a.m. last Saturday. This train, 509, generally carries troops, and on this occasion had over 100 federals en route to join their several regiments up country. They chose a narrow part of the road on a stiff up-grade with fairly high banks on either side; placing boulders on the track, it was not difficult to bring the train to a standstill. The first intimation that the sleeping troops had was the rattle and clang of rifles, splintering of wood and the groans of the injured. Of course it was considered that part of the road was comparatively safe, and consequently those not on guard were endeavoring to snatch a few winks of sleep and keep as warm as possible, as they were in open trucks. It was bitterly cold. Malan and Scheepers, who were in command of the attacking party, had 30 men on each side of the train and 30 in front, as Malan himself acknowledged afterwards to the doctor who was on board, so I think there were fully that many, if not more. The guard was in the after truck and was composed of 12 man and a sergeant, only one of whom was left standing after the first volley. It was simply murder, as the men were shot down like rats in a trap. Most of the casualties occurred in the truck and three coaches which were attacked, because as soon as a man appeared in front of a lighted window, he was picked off quite easily by those outside, as they offered splendid targets. Of course there was a rush for outside, and many were shot while climbing over the side or through the windows and taken. Altogether they had a pretty hard quarter of an hour. The Tommies got in a little work, but they were nearly all raw recruits, and had just come out, some to their death, and others to be maimed for life in a scrap where they had not even a chance to defending themselves, much less showing what they were made of. The game was soon up, and the Boers had possession of everything. They ransacked the train, collecting all the rifles and anything else they fancied, but were frightened away before finishing it properly, by the armored train which very accidentally happened along. In fact, they were in such a hurry that they were obliged to leave the rifles behind, but managed to fire the train first, which was a complete wreck. At the round up, it was found that there were three killed eighteen dangerously wounded and four whose wounds were not necessarily serious. One Boer saved the hangman a job by dying. Shortly after the fight we got an urgent wire for an ambulance train, and soon had them into the hospital. They were in pretty bad shape, as the Boers had used all kinds of bullets and some of the fractures were terrible, simulating in many instances the wounds made by fragments of shell or sharpnel. Three of us were operating until we could hardly stand, only dressing the most serious that night, and finishing the next day. Two have since died, one from wound in abdomen, the other from common fracture of upper arm with severed Brachial artery. There were all kinds and conditions of wounds. Some of the men were wounded three or four times and had miraculous escapes. One was shot in each thigh, calf and foot, each bullet escaping the principal arteries. Another had a bullet in the side of his head, escaping death by about 1-16th of an inch, but the details would not interest you I am sure.

On the 23rd we had a wire from Gen. French to proceed to Karubosch with ambulance for Major Rundle, who was injured in a brush with the Boers about 70 miles from here. We got as far as Nelsport and found they had brought him up in a Cape cart. Poor fellow, I am afraid he is done for, as the bullet (Lee-Enfield) passed through back part of his head, causing paralysis of the right side and loss of speech. We trephined last night and he is resting comfortably, but it is a question whether death would not be preferable to the condition he will be in if he does recover.

So you see we have not had much time to let the grass grow under our feet. We are doing everything that can possibly be done for them, and they are nearly all resting comfortably, though I would not be surprised if we lose a couple more yet. There are three cases in my ward in which the bullet cannot be located, but I intend to leave them alone until we get a Roentgen Ray apparatus, or send them down to Wynberg to be skiographed. The Boers were only thirty yards away when firing began, and directed it at an upward angle, so as not to injure those on the opposite side. The air brake was cut in several places, so that it would have been impossible to move the train if there had been no obstruction on the track, so that unless it had been heavily guarded, the troops did not stand much chance in the dark, and even then the loss would have been heavy, as the bullets pass through almost everything. The truck that carried the guard was not burned, and I saw it at Nelsport station afterwards. It is like our coal cars with 3-foot sides. It was simply riddled with bullets from end to end. There is not a place that a man could stand or kneel without being hit. The side doors are of iron and it did not seem to stop a bullet any more than brown paper. The truck frames were perforated as if with a drill, the holes are so clean, and even the car wheels did not escape. Several bullets were embedded in the metal so as to be flush with the presenting surface. Some holes were as large as our old Snider bullets, and I have a Martini-Henri bullet of soft led that was picked up beside the wreck, and I could easily account for the fearful wounds inflicted. One of our killed must have been struck by such a bullet, as it entered the back of his head and blew the left half of his face off.

Lt. Day was in charge of the train, and was held up by Scheepers, who ordered him to take off his leggings. The Boers have taken a great fancy to our pigskin leggings, but he told him if he wanted them he could take them off himself. Scheepers then ordered one of his men to take them off for him. He took all his money but gave him back some silver for running expenses. Day also got Malan to have his overcoat returned, as he had nothing to put on, and I think that during the palaver he must have got too cheeky, as Malan told him he thought a 35-mile walk would do him good. Fortunately he was prevented from carrying out this threat by the timely arrival of the armored train. Day was in my tent for dinner on Monday, so I got all particulars of the fight pretty accurately. There were 200,000 rounds of ammunition on the train which the Boers missed, and it went up in fireworks. They would be disappointed when they would find that out, as they certainly would. Their intelligence department is, I think as perfect as our own. They seem to know every move made, and in fact, at times, some that are proposed. (They knew the officers' names on this train).

The doctor who brought in Major Rundle had an interview with Scheepers on the road to Nelsport. He had a patient at a farm house, when a Boer commando rode up headed by Scheepers. They were treated with every respect, and he asked the doctor to see a couple of his sick, presenting him with a pony before leaving, for his kindness. He says he can play the game for the next twenty years, and he really has succeeded in eluding our forces so far with remarkable success. What we want here is a few hundred of our western boys turned loose on their trail and never give them a minute's rest till they round them up. I think the boys would find they did not understand the first principle of the game and begin to think that the sooner they began to fold their uniforms and get out the better for them, if they wished to die a natural death with their scalps on. This brings the war a little nearer home to us as it has been the most serious collision we have had with the Boers for some time.

Well, Jim, although I might go on for some time giving you sketches of Malan and his gang, I think this will sufficiently tire you for the time being as I am quite sure the outside world is sick of the name Boer and South African war, except those who are intimately associated with it. I may say, in conclusion, that there does not appear to be any end as yet, as they have pretty well overrun the Colony. What the outside operations are I do not know as all Cape papers are proscribed in this district. I am in excellent health and much pleased with my position here.

EDITORIAL NOTES

If the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain takes the advice of this great family journal, of which he no doubt is a constant reader, he will demand the extradition gang from Holland. With Kruger and gang from Holland. With Kruger and Leyds out of the way, we fancy the war would soon peter out.

Probably the Chinese special envoy to Germany thinks it sufficient to be prostrated with grief.

The Turkish ambassador is anxious that the Franco-Turkish dispute should not impair the dignity of either government. We don't know about France, but we don't think the Sublime Porte is in the least likely to lose any.

The reports of Boer train-wrecking operations and robbing of passengers are beginning to read very much like the ordinary holding-up operations by train robbers in the States.

The leader who orders ten thousand men on strike takes big chances. If he does it because of the wrongs of the ten thousand he will have sympathy, even if he fail. But there is a mental disease called megalomania, to which labor leaders are somewaht subject, and which makes their personal aggrandizement as important as the advancement of the worker. Their failure is not a matter for tears when that is their object.

Rev. Mr. Walkley has offered to resign his pastorate in expiation of his action in expressing disloyal sentiments in Boston. It is not at all likely that the congregation of his church will deem it necessary. It is only in the liberty-loving republic that a free citizen dare not speak his mind. In this monarchy-ridden empire and its down-trodden dependencies the divine right of a man to shoot off his mouth on any conceivable subject is only limited by the laws on slander and using abusive language.

THE WALKER HOUSE.

This Popular Toronto Hotel Adds to Its Efficiency.

For many years the Walker House has been the popular hotel for people from this section of the country who frequent the Queen City. It has enjoyed the reputation of being one of Toronto's leading and favorite hotels, and that its present management are determined to keep it in the front rank is evinced by the extensive alterations and improvements which have been made this season. An additional storey has just been completed with 41 rooms, 12 of which are fitted with baths, while 16 toilets have been added. The rooms throughout have all been handsomely and elaborately furnished with new furniture, carpets, etc. The management propose to further expend $5,000 on remodeling the lower portion of the hotel.

The Walker House occupies a most commanding position on the corner of York and Front Streets, within easy distance of the Union station and Younge Street wharf. Its dining-room overlooks Toronto Bay, and is admittedly the coolest and most airy in the city. The cuisine of the Walker House is first-class in every respect, and the courtesy and efficiency of its staff has served to make it one of the most popular hostelries on the continent. Mr. T. M. Bayne, the genial manager of the Walker House, is an old commercial traveler, who is most assiduous in his efforts to provide for the comfort and welfare of his guests. Mr. Bayne was for a time connected with a large mercantile establishment in Toronto, and is well and favorably known throughout the Dominion. The Walker House was established in 1874 by Mr. David Walker, the present proprietor, and has always been conducted in a manner to reflect credit not only on the management, but the city as well.

Thrice-a-Week Edition.

The Most Widely Read Newspaper in America.

Time has demonstrated that the Thrice-a-Week World stands alone in its class. Other papers have imitated its form but not its success. This is because it tells all the news all the time and tells it impartially, whether that news be political or otherwise. It is, in fact, almost a daily at the price of a weekly and you cannot afford to be without it.

Republican and Democrat alike can read the Thrice-a-Week World with absolute confidence in its truth.

In additions to news, it publishes first-class serial stories and other features suited to the home and fireside.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year and this pays for 156 papers.

A WESTERN OPINION.

This Trent Valley canal is one of the most palpable frauds that has ever been inflicted upon long-suffering people by their Parliamentary representatives. It has been a sink hole for good money for many generations, and outside of the few who have been directly benefited by that expenditure it is not now and never will be of any value. The sooner it is dropped the better, on the principle that the first loss is the least loss. Had the millions that have already been expended in it been given to assist young Canadians to make homes for themselves on the prairies of the North-West they would have yielded the country thousands for every farthing of benefit that the Trent Valley canal will ever afford.

INDIAN RIVER.

On Wednesday afternoon last a very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Peter Walker, Indian River, when his charming daughter, Emma, the youngest of the family, was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. Manley.

The bride was prettily attired in a dress of cream cashmere, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Annie Walker, who was becomingly attired in blue organdie, and also carried a bouquet of carnations, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Frank Manley.

Mendelsshon's wedding march was rendered by Miss Annie Duff as the wedding party entered the parlor. After the ceremony, which was performed by Dr. Andrews, of Keene, the guests sat down to a sumptuously served dinner, after which the young couple took the 4.30 train for Buffalo and points west. On their return they will take up residence in Otonabee.

The numerous and costly presents which they received testify the esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Manley are held. The Times extends its congratulations.

The Weak Spot.

If you are sitting in a restaurant where waitresses are in attendance, you will note now and again some young woman put her hand to her back, and straighten herself up, while her lips are tightened as if by pain. It's backache. Yet all day long she must be on her feet, lifting, carrying, hurrying.

That weak spot, the back, can be made strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures the womanly diseases which cause headache, backache, sideache, nervousness and sleeplessness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, and is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

"I wrote you for advice February 4th, 1896," writes Mrs. Loma Halstead, of Claremore, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Ty. "I was racking with pain from the back of my head down to my heels. Had hemorrhage for weeks at a time, and was unable to sit up for ten minutes at a time. You answered my letter, advised me to use your valuable medicines, viz., Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' also gave advice about injections, baths and diet. To my surprise, in four mouths from the time I began your treatment I was a well woman, and have not had the backache since, and now I put in sixteen hours a day at hard work."

Notice to Manufacturers of and Dealers of Cement

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tenders for Cement," will be received at this office up to sixteen o'clock on Wednesday, the 4th September, 1901, for the supply and immediate delivery of 3,600 barrels of Portland cement, at a point on the canal where directed.

In the case of firms there must be attached the actual signatures of the full name, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the same, and further, an accepted bank cheque for ten per cent of the total amount tendered for must accompany the tender. This accepted cheque must be endorsed over to the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted.

The accepted cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By Order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary
Department of Railways and Canals,

KRUGER STILL ACTIVE

London, Sept. 6.—That Kruger is placing himself in a position that may jeopardise his freedom, is apparent. It is no longer denied that he is planning and plotting against Britain, and just how long this country will premit this to continue, is now a live question. There is a growing feeling here that Britain should demand an explanation from the netherland government as to why she permits Kruger and his Lieutenants to direct the war from that country.

The Hague, Sept. 5.—It is so difficult to find Hilversum on the map of Holland that one might easily infer was an extremely small place. In fact it is a small place commercially, but from a social viewpoint it is one of the most important places in Holland. Here as at the Hague, the rich Hollanders have their homes, and Hilversum is a very attractive summer resort. It is so distinctly Dutch, however, that one has difficulty in finding an inhabitant who speaks English.

Casa Cara is the name of the house where Kruger lives. It is on the Trompenberg road, and quite a distance from Hilversum. It is, in fact, a boarding house where the Ex-president of the South African Republic has taken up his headquarters and where, with his Cabinet he conducts the affairs of the South African Republic.

STILL A POLITICAL POWER.

A London Mail correspondent wires: If anyone has the idea that Kruger is out of the political running since his establishment in Europe, he would be quickly disabused by a visit to Hilversum, especially if he had my good fortune and was admitted to conversation with the old man and his Council. The little country house which harbors the Transvaal leaders is the centre of a widespread political activity, whose ramifications take in England, Central Europe, South Africa, and even America.

Seated in his study at Hilversum, with his big Bible and his brierwood pipe in front of him, the old man is in touch with the Boer cause and the Boer interests all over the world. Working in the next room is the Cabinet, which, under the Ex-president, directs the whole European policy of the Transvaal, and even the general movements of the war. The Chief of Service, Mynheer C. van Boeschoten, with the assistants, E. J. Bok and P. A. van Veen, as well as the former Chief of Police of Johannesburg, Mynheer Bredell, control a minutely-organized system of information and direction which makes Hilversum for the moment as active and important a diplomatic centre as any in the world.

HAS A SECRET SERVICE.

With the aid also of the Bureau, in Brussels, of which Dr. Leyds retains the control, there has been established between the President and the Generals in the field a series of means of communication which keeps the English War Office in prepetual astonishment. Repeatedly has come from Hilversum news of English disaster which it had been decided in London to stifle; repeatedly the English have been disagreeably surprised to discover from Boer tactics in the field that Generals Botha and De Wet must have had private knowledge of secret decisions of the English War Office or of its cable communications of English generals.

The "Cabinet" at Hilversum is, in fact a wonderfully organized Secret Service Bureau. Nothing escapes it. Its emissaries, bearing dispatches from the President, penetrate into the heart of the country, and its spies and other agents in the Transvaal reach Hilversum from the scene of action by ways which defy all the preventive measures the English can adopt. While the writer was with President Kruger there arrived Mr. Beerans and Mr. Pameyer, two important functionaries, bringing important communications from the front. How did they get through? The Portuguese are supposed, probably with reason, to be in the pay of the English; why do they not stop the Transvaal agents? That is one of the secrets of the Cabinet; but one thing is certain, that they do not.

STIRS UP TROUBLE IN EUROPE.

An important part of the work of the Cabinet is that performed in England itself by the judicious manipulation of political undercurrents there. Boer agents, working by all kinds of secret means, under the special direction of Dr. Leyds himself, are engaged perpetually in striving to create a public opinion against the waging of the war.

Through the liberal newspapers facts and figures are circulated tending to discourage the mass of the people or to make them ashamed of the methods of subjugation employed. The lecture platform is largely used also for the same purpose. Several leaders of the Irish Revolutionary party have lent effective aid in this way as also by the more indirect device of proclaiming in Ireland itself a kind of boycott of the English army; the recruiting sergeants that used to make such liberal hauls of good fighting flesh and blood in the Green Isle are beginning to find their efforts and eloquence wasted as a direct result of this move. The numerous pro-Boer meetings organized among the Irish in America have received their first impulse from the Cabinet in Europe, which takes good care to be in close touch with the born enemies of the English wherever they are to be found.

SWORN FOE TO POMP.

This efficient secret service bureau presents outwardly a very simple appearance. Its daily deliberations take place in a plainly furnished office room at Hilversum, communicating with the President's private study. Everything in fact is arranged on the simplest scale round the Ex-president. He is a sworn foe to all pomp and pretension and his characteristic is shown clearly in the furnishing of the apartments occupied by himself and his staff, as well as in the details of his daily life. He is of course treated with the utmost reverence by all who come in contact with him, but there is no more outward shown around him than is seen in the case of any ordinary Dutch pater-familias in the neighborhood.

The house he lives in with his suite is a plain comfortable Dutch home and apart from his own personal peculiarities the daily course of life there is absolutely ordinary. When he is not engaged in transacting business directly with his cabinet he passes his time in his study or in the garden summer house, in company with his pipe and his bible, smoking, reading, meditating.

He goes to bed in the Transvaal fashion, very soon after sundown, he rises two or three times at regular fixed intervals during the night and remains up smoking and reading for half an hour or an hour, walking about his bed room in a dressing gown.

DUTCH GIVE HIM SYMPATHY.

Although they have the greatest respect and sympathy for Kruger, the people of Hilversum are not overwhelmed by the honor of his presence among them. They take off their hats as he passes, but they have confirmed to his wishes in the matter of refraining from any demonstrations since the first reception extended to him. In their sympathy for him they find themselves in harmony with all their fellow countrymen.

LOST $500,000 IN POKER GAME

New York, Sept. 6.—Just a cool half a million dollars was what changed hands in the big poker game played by Pittsburg millionaires during their journey across the Atlantic on the Deutchland.

It is said that the money went two ways, and that the $500,000 profits on the trip were divided by William I Mustin, president of the Pittsburg Stock Exchange, and J. A. Chambers, president of the Window Glass Trust, but they won it from other trust magnates.

All the members of the game were Pittsburgers, and they went about it in a business-like way. Someone suggested a poker game on the first day out, and before they bought chips they discussed the matter philosophically. They knew that poker had charms to make a man miss his meals and lose his sleep. As all of them had as many millions as they needed for one lifetime, they decided it would be better to lose money than food or sleep, and so the game was arranged.

The discussion was conducted in a manner entirely parliamentary. To have seen the magnates deliberating over the matter one might have thought they were merely arranging to take out a New Jersey charter for a company to control one of the necessities of life, instead of arranging the details of a poker game.

HOURS FOR THE GAME.

A committee on rules was appointed, and its report was that no matter how the game stood it should begin at 2 p.m., each day and continue until 6 p.m. There was to be an interval of two hours for dinner and then the game was to be resumed at 8 p.m., and continue until the stroke of 12.

All agreed to this, and the games were stopped at midnight in the middle of a pot.

The plan was to divorce the game from all forms of dissipation. All they needed was the excitement of winning and losing money. They succeeded.

The "big game" was the centre of attraction for all passengers on the ship and at times one could not get within ten feet of the game, and according to George McFarlane, who was one of the spectators, "They took the bridle off and let her run."

Incidentally, between the games, the players found recreation in betting in the pools on the day's run. Some of the pools amounted to $10,000 and one of them reached the enormous figure of $12,000.

Sitting in the game were James A. Chambers, W. I. Mustin, D. L. Gillespie, Frank Moore, M. K. McMullin and A. M. Fox.

W. I. Mustin is declared to have won the biggest pot of the game. There was $90,000 in it, and he showed his nerve by paying $25,000 cash to draw one card to fill a four flush, but he had a "hunch" that it would be good.

It was a big jack pot. Mustin got first cards and found a pair of queens. He opened it for a generous sum. Gillespie had two pairs and wanted to make it a personal engagement between the opener and himself. He raised it as far as he thought Mustin would stand.

SAW THE RAISE—RAISED AGAIN.

To his surprise McMullin, who held three aces, not only saw the raise, but more than doubled it. The other players fought shy until it came to Moore, who was dealing. He held a pat straight, and added to the wagers already made.

By the time it got back to Mustin, the play was figured out, and he was told it would cost $25,000 to draw cards.

He had a pair of queens—one of them a club. He also held a jack, ten and nine of clubs. This gave him a four straight flush open on both ends. He took the chance that "there is always a club on top" and put up the money.

THE COLUMBIA WILL RACE SHAMROCK II.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 6.—The Columbia, the boat which lowered the flag of the first Shamrock in the international races of 1899, has been chosen to defend the America Cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger, Shamrock II. The first race of the series this year will be sailed on Saturday September 21st, and the Columbia will immediately be prepared for the contest. Mr. E. D. Morgan, head of the syndicate which controls her, has already ordered another suit of canvas.

This is the first time in the history of the America Cup that a yacht has been chosen to defend the much coveted trophy on more than one occasion, and it only bears out the oft-repeated statement of British experts that the Herreschoffs were reaching their limit.

There can be no doubt of the wisdom of the committee in charge of the trial races in deciding upon the older boat as the defender, in preference to the Constitution. The new boat has behaved in the most erratic way ever since she was launched. Constant alterations of her sail plan made matters worse rather than better, and with the boat in but an experimental stage, sadly in need of tuning-up but two weeks from the international races the judges had no alternative but to bar her out. Some good yachtsmen are still of the opinion that the new boat would have beaten Columbia if she had only found herself in time.

Three trial races were sailed prior to the selection of the Columbia, but only two were finished. The first one was won by Columbia in a fresh breeze with over four minutes to spare. The second also went to the Columbia on time allowance by 17 seconds, although Constitution covered the course in 54 seconds less time. Out of a total of nineteen races between the two boats, Columbia won eleven. The majority of Constitution's wins were in very light weather.

As to the outcome of the approaching races American yachtsmen are very apprehensive, and admittedly so. Mr. J. C. Speers, historian of the American Navy, has said nothing was more certain than that the cup was as good as lost if they had to rely on the Columbia. The yachting expert of the New York Journal and many others have expressed the same opinion. A few members of the New York Yacht Club have actually placed their bets on the Shamrock at even money. Contrasted with these conditions is the fact that Sir Thomas Lipton and all connected with the Shamrock are certain of victory.

The showing of the challenger in American waters has been a revelation. She crossed the ocean with few British yachtsmen believing in her ability to "lift" the cup, and the impression that she was not very dangerous spread to this side of the water. Everything has been changed since then, and those who have followed her recent performances are satisfied that will be hard to beat let it blow hard or blow low. One New York paper said yesterday that the manner in which she travelled in light winds would have disgraced the Constitution, and she certainly is no laggard in a blow. Altogether the coming races promise to be of an intensely exciting character.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.

R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,

President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity, it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1865, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.

New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come, to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.

J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest an almost successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,

Advertising Manager for Sapolio.—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,

FRANK ROE BATCHELD,

Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.

JOS. H. HANNEN,

Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,

General Passenger Agent,

Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggrivated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

—Harvey fall fair will be held on Oct 2, at Lakehurst.

WANTED, a good general servant. Apply to Mrs. C. Bradburn, 293 London street.

—Every photograph taken at Whiten's studio is guaranteed not to fade, and is the best quality of work that can be made.

WANTED, by the first of November, two bed rooms, one sitting room and board. On George street, north, or vicinity. Mrs. F. J. Tate, Harborne, Lakefield, Ont.

—The congregation of the Church of Christ Scientists has purchased the old Aylmer Street church which will be handsomely and appropriately fitted up for the use of that body.

Just in—the best assortment of English novels ever shown in Peterborough. Sell on first sight. Two for 25 cents. See north window in Times Bookstore, Market block, Peterborough.

—Lakefield News—Mr. W. A. Casement shipped on Tuesday last a carload of Canadian wool to Peterborough. This is the first shipment made from Lakefield this season.

—The report that the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York would visit Port Hope appears to be incorrect, Mayor White has received a letter from the Governor General's Secretary to this effect.

—Don't miss the chance—people residing out of town to call next time when in town at Times Bookstore and have a look through the new English novels we are selling at less than cost. Perhaps you will find the titles you have been waiting for years to find.

—A writ has just been issued by Mr. Chas. M. Shannon, of Lakefield, in the Exchequer Court of Canada, Toronto Admiralty District against the steam yacht Avoka plying on Stony Lake and believed to be owned by Mr. Jas. Acton, of Toronto. This action has been brought by Mr. Shannon to obtain payment for repairs alleged to have been made by him to the said vessel.

Mr. Hudspeth's Death.

Lindsay Post.—A death notice which appeared in Wednesday's Toronto papers was read with deep regret by many Lindsay citizens. It told of the demise on Sunday last, at Winnipeg, of Robert Mills Hudspeth, son of the late Adam Hudspeth, M.P., of this town at the early age of 29 years. The cause of death was typhoid fever. The body reached town this morning, and the funeral will take place from St. Paul's church on Saturday morning Sept. 7th. at 9.30, to Riverside cemetery." Mr. Hudsteth has many relatives in Peterborough, who will also regret his demise.

Harvest Festival.

The annual harvest festival in connection with All Saints' Church will take place on the evening of Thursday, September 19th, when the special address will be delivered by Rev. W. J. Fiddler, of Colborne, who preached in All Saints' last winter, and whose discourse was highly commented on.

Sore Throat and Hoarseness.

with their attendant dangers may be speedily averted, and remedied by the use of Polson's Nerviline. Excellent to gargle with—ten times better than a mustard plaster, and more convenient for the outside. Nerviline penetrates the tissues instantly, soothes the pain, allays inflammation, and cures sore throat and hoarseness simply because that's what it was made for. The large 25c. bottle of Nerviline is unexcelled as a household liniment. It cures everything.

MEN WANTED

WANTED, a number of good men to go to the lumber camps of Edmund Hall, Nairn Centre. Good wages. Apply to GEO. J. CHALMERS.

PERSONAL.

—Mrs. John Brown, of Port Hope, was visiting friends in town yesterday.

—Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Bradburn returned to town a few days ago, and will take up their residence here.

—Mrs. J. B. McWilliams has closed her Stony Lake cottage "Tecumseh Lodge," for the season.

—Mr. David Hunter, of Otonabee, has gone to visit his brothers, the Rev. Dr. Hunter and Rev. R. J. Hunter, Denver, Colorado.

—Mr. R. H. Bradburn, who has recently returned from the south, has taken over the management of the opera house.

—Mrs. Welsh and Miss D. Welsh, Elm street, returned home last night after an extended visit to Chicago and other points in the States.

—Mrs. H. LeBrun and daughter have returned to town after enjoying a pleasant two months at their summer cottage, "Bellechasse," Stony Lake.

—Miss Florence Brooks, of Cleveland, who has been spending the last few weeks in town as the guest of Miss Ethel Wrighton, has returned home.

—Miss Susie Hughson, of Orangeville, is visiting Miss Wrighton, McDonel street. Miss Etta Haustrauset, of Toronto, is also a guest of Miss Wrighton.

-Lakefield News—Miss Mary White left Lakefield on Tuesday to take a course in the Kindergarten school at Peterboro. Before she left the village she was the pleased recipient of a gold watch guard presented to her by the members of her class in the Presbyterian Sunday School. Miss White will be greatly missed in the Sunday school, where she has proved a most efficient, painstaking and popular teacher.

Pill Sense.—It stands to reason that Dr. Agnew's Little Liver Pills will crowd out of the market many of the nauseous old-timers. A better medicine at less than half the price is all the argument needed to keep the demand what it has been—phenomenal—40 doses 10 cents. They cure Sick Headache, Biliousness, and allay all stomach irritations.—5

Opera House Last Night.

There was quite a good house last night when the "Humbug" Company made its first appearance before a Peterborough audience. The story depicts the trials of an ambitious young man of humble birth, passing himself off under the borrowed name of a man who is in India in order to obtain the affections of, and a marriage with, a lady, who is also passed off as coming from a "high" family. Relatives on both sides turn up, of course, as well as the man from India, the result of which naturally produces many funny complications and ludicrous situations. The work of Mr. Walter Hodges as Jack Lusterss as clever as could be wished. He handles the difficult part with an ease which marks him as an artist. Miss Annie Leonard, as the very much affected Mrs. Ponsby, carries her part well throughout the play. Fred Strong, as Jackson Luster, is deserving of favorable mention, as is also the work, of Emil Heusal, as Jacob Bartz.

Eat what you like.—Give the digestive organs some work to do. These functions need exercise as much as any part of the human anatomy, but if they're delicate, give them the aid that Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets afford and you can eat anything that's wholesome and palatable—60 in a box, 35 cents.—8

Transferred to Peterborough.

Lindsay Post:— The congregation of St. Mary's and our citizens generally, have learned with much regret of the coming departure from town of Rev. Father Phelan, who has been Mgr. Laurent's faithful and popular co-worker in this parish for the past four years. He has received notice from His Lordship Bishop O'Connor of his transfer to the Cathedral in Peterboro, a promotion which he has well earned, and which will be all the more pleasant because it restores him to his native town. He will leave town Saturday morning, and will be succeeded as curate of St Mary's by Rev. Father O'Sullivan, of the Cathedral clergy.

Dawson City Has Become The Centre For Fur Business

Dawson, September 6 Dawson is more than a mere mining camp. It has become the centre of a valuable fur trade in a bleak region embracing many thousand square miles, where an army of trappers bring their peltries to the nearest point for ready export to the great fur markets of the world. The Yukon Sun says: "Bears, black, brown, grizzly and cinnamon, are found all over the country from March to November. About 3,000 skins are shipped in a season. The value is from $10 to $25 each. Beavers are numerous on all streams; about 2500 skins are shipped, the price being from $3.50 to $7.00 each. Marten is the most numerous of all the number shipped, being from 25,000 to 30,000. Of red fox, lynx and black and gray foxes there are shipped about 2,000 each. Black fox skins are the rarest and most valuable; half a dozen are shipped, and the value is from $200 to $300." The trappers are among the hardiest and healthiest of the sons of men, and can only abide living in the open air.

EXILED CIGAR-MAKERS SAVED BY A SAVAGE

They Were Set Down on a Honduran Coast.

SUFFERED TERRIBLE HARDSHIPS

Key West, Fla., Sept. 6.—Like a romance of the old days, when pirates and slavers sailed the Spanish Main, was the story told here by the thirteen abducted leaders of the striking cigarmakers of Tampa, Fla., on their return from exile. The men, who composed the Central Committee of Resistencia Union, of Tampa, arrived here on a small fruit steamer, the Gertrude, of this port. Marooned on a barren, uninhabited isle off the coast of Honduras, they had, by an unexpected turn of fortune, escaped death from exposure and starvation and made their way to civilization and safety. They believe it was the intention of their captors, that they should never return from exile.

The party consisted of six Spaniards six Cubans, and one Englishman. The Cubans and the Englishman, however, are naturalized American citizens. The men all bear evidence of the hardships encountered during their forced exile and present a pitiful appearance. The stories they tell are substantially the same, differing only in minor details as to the violence resorted to by their abductors.

IN CLOSED CARRIAGE.

Luis Barcia, who was taken at midnight from the bedside of his wife whose accouchment had taken place three days before, and whose death has since been reported as a result of the shock incident to her husband's disappearance, says he was forced into a closed carriage and taken to the railroad station, where he was put into an electric car, of which the lights were out, the current having been shut off. Eight of his comrades who had been similarly captured were put with himself into the rear compartment of the car, and taken to Ballast Point, a few miles west of Tampa, on Hillsborough Bay. Four other members of Resitencia Union had been previously taken through the woods to the same place, where a tug with steam awaited them.

Several of the guards on the car, the men say, were prominent citizens of Tampa, and well known to them

After a brief conference at Ballast Point the thirteen men were dragged aboard the tug and the start was made amid derisive farewells of the abductors of the dock. The tug headed for the schooner Marie Cooper, which was riding at anchor in the stream with all sails set. The men were transferred to the schooner under a heavy guard.

As day followed day in dull monotony, without any indication that a landing was contemplated, the kidnapped men, who had been kept in ignorance, not only of their fate, but of their probable destination, became uneasy and requested to know where they were being taken. They were told they would be landed on English soil, far enough away to prevent a return to the United States for a long time. On the seventh day land was sighted, and the captives were informed that their destination had been reached. Nearer approach revealed a long, low stretch of sand beach without sign of human habitation.

ROBBED BEFORE LANDING.

Boats were lowered and preparations made for landing. Before passing over the schooner's rail, each man was subjected to a rigid search, and whatever money was found was taken away. This action however, had been anticipated, and less than $100 was found, the men having succeeded in evading the vigilance of the guards and concealing greater amounts

On landing, each man received $5 of the money previously taken from him. A box of soda crackers, two small hams three cans of beef and about a gallon of water were placed on the beach The boats then returned to the schooner, which immediately set sail and disappeared in the distance.

Left alone on the beach with their handful of provisions, the thirteen men realized for the first time their situation. They had purchased a revolver with a few rounds of cartridges, from Capt. La Penotiere of the Maria Cooper, but had no knowledge of the country, and had been told they were 12 miles from Truxillo.

INDIAN TO THE RESCUE.

For days they wandered along the beach, husbanding their meagre supplies, and without encountering a human being or sighting a sail. Their small stock of provisions finally gave out, the water supply was exhausted their hands and faces were burned by the tropical sun and their feet blistered by long marches. They began to despair of ever reaching home, and had almost given up the fight, when they were discovered by an Indian. He brought aid, took them to the main land and guided them to the plantation of a M. Bruno, where they were well received. Their immediate wants were supplied, and they secured a small boat to take them to Truxillo.

They were told by Mr. Bruno that from the description they gave of the island they had evidently been landed near the mouth of Plantation River.

At Truxillo they had the good fortune to meet two Cubans, former residents of Florida, and now engaged in fruit culture there, who supplied funds and hired a schooner to take them to Bonacco, where they were equally fortunate to find the schooner Gertrude seeking a cargo of fruit for this market. They chartered her for $100 and sailed for Key West.

Died in Toronto.

Mr. John Britton, Harvey street, yesterday received a telegram from Toronto, informing him of the death of his son, William, which occurred on Thursday night. The remains were brought to Peterborough last night for interment.

DUKE WILL PASS BY.

partment that if the duke and duchess were to violate the rule they have followed since leaving London by crossing the line from Canada into the United States other countries which they failed to visit might feel they had been purposely slighted.

When the management of the pan-American exposition sought the friendly aid of the state department to convey to the duke and duchess of York an invitation to cross the line and visit the exposition on the occasion of their Niagara Falls visit the department replied promptly the invitation ought not to be issued. In any event, if it should be neither the department not the British embassy in Washington will undertake to convey it to the duke of York.

WISH TO AVOID OFFENSE.

New York, Sept. 7.—The first intimation that the duke and duchess of York would not visit the United States was given by Lord Strathcona, lord high commissioner to Canada, who arrived here Saturday on the Campania. He and his wife will entertain the duke and duchess of York when the royal guests arrive in the dominion. The lord high commissioner said that the duke and duchess of York would not visit the United States, it being their purpose to visit only British possessions. This course was decided upon, Lord Strathcona said, because so many governments had invited the royal couple to visit. They were unable to do so, and in order not to give offence will confine their tour to British dependencies.

A NORWOOD SHOOTING

A Boy Fatally Shot by a Companion on Thursday Afternoon.

Norwood, September 5—A boy was shot in the abdomen, with no hopes of recovery, by his little comrade this afternoon The accident happened in the Township of Asphodel, about two miles from the village of Norwood. The two boys, Thomas Chattane, who was shot, and John Kelley, son of Mr. Daniel Kelley, both about twelve years of age, went home from school together. When they got to the Chattane residence they found the parents from home, and while playing in the house took down the gun to examine it. Not knowing the gun was loaded, young Kelley pointed the weapon and snapped it off several times at the boy Chattane. He then got a cap, put it on the nipple, and again pointed and fired, and, to his horror, the gun, which had been loaded with shot, went off. The whole charge entered the abdomen, piercing the stomach and bowels. The boy is still alive, but the physician says there is no hope of his recovery.

CARNEGIES' MILLIONS.

Amount of Money Given Away by the Great Philanthropist.

London, Sept. 7.—The following list of Andrew Carnegie's benefactions is compiled from sources believed to be accurate: To American libraries, $11,799,100; to American institutions, $17,270,952—total American gifts, $29,070,052. To European libraries, $1,154,000; to European institutions, $759,500; to Scottish universities, $10,000,000 total European gifts, $11,894,500. Grand total of gifts, $40,964,552. He has endowed libraries in ninetyfive cities and institutes in eight places; has endowed five universities, four clubs, two technical schools, one medical college, one academic college, one laboratory, one observatory, one zoological society, has given $4,300,000 to relief and pension funds. Has given $10,000 for a library in Alameda, $25,000 for library in San Diego, and $50,000 for a library in Oakland. Andrew Carnegie's wealth is estimated at anywhere, between $150,000,000 and something over $200,000,000. This does not include the $41,000,000 he has already given away.

THE TEMPLE OF MUSIC AT THE PAN-AMERICAN, BUFFALO, WHERE THE ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT McKINLEY TOOK PLACE

MRS. McKINLEY BEARS UP BRAVELY

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 9.

President McKinley maintains a good measure of his strength, and those who watch at his bedside hold higher hope for his ultimate recovery. The shock from the wounds inflicted upon him by Leon F. Czolgosz seems to be less than was anticipated and that is regarded as highly favorable to him. It is admitted that the crisis in his condition has not yet come and that there is the gravest danger until it has been safely passed. Several bulletins came from the chamber of the wounded President during the night and early hours of the morning and they all indicated a spirit of hopefulness. The President rested well, there were no alarming condition of temperature or pulse, and the spirits of the sufferer were strong and cheery. The feeling of hope was quite general about the Milburn residence this morning, in sharp contrast to the hopelessness and regret that prevailed last night. Mrs. McKinley bears up bravely in her sorrow, and the physicians in attendance feel but little concern on her account. At the request of the President, whose first thought was of her she was told that he was not seriously wounded, and when she saw him he had rallied from his operation, and was suffering but little pain. She was reassured by their meeting and was content to leave his side during the night, and rest herself. The surgeons who operated on the President are in constant attendance with a corps of the most skilled nurses obtainable, and the sufferer is the recipient of every care which their skill and science suggests. They have not publicly discussed the case other than to issue brief bulletins from time to time, but it is understood that they believe the President will recover unless complications not now anticipated come to sap his strength and vitality.

With a common impulse to spare the sufferer the annoyance that noise would inflict, the public avoids the neighborhood where the Milburn residence is located. Early in the night a small crowd gathered near the house eager for news of the President, but the police had no trouble in keeping the people at proper distance.

SOLDIERS ON GUARD.

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 8.

Early this morning a detachment of the Fourteenth United States Infantry was ordered to the house from Fort Porter. A picket line was established in front of the house, but the sentries found no work to do. Ropes were stretched across Delaware avenue in order to keep teams off that thoroughfare. A party of reporters kept a lonely vigil during the night, but besides them there were not a dozen persons in the neighborhood at 7.30 o'clock this morning. The Milburn residence was a large two and one-half story brick building, and it stands on the west side of Delaware avenue, two doors from the corner of West Ferry street. Graceful ivy climbs over the front of it, and on the large lawn which surrounds it are a number of pretty shade trees. The President lies in the rear room on the second floor. The room was chosen because it insured the greatest quiet. Telegraph wires have been led to the stable in the rear of the Milburn residence and offices opened there. The bulletins telling of the condition of the President are sent there by Dr. Rixey, and at once transmitted to the world.

CZOLGOSZ IS UNCONCERNED.

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 8.

Leon F. Czolgosz, the man who shot the President, slept in comfort after his crime. He was locked up at No. 1 police station, and after he had been interviewed by the officers of the law, a watch of two men was placed on him. He went to his bunk early and was fast asleep. He seemed without regret and undisturbed by the prospect of punishment for his crime. The police machinery of the entire country has been set in motion to expose the plot against the life of the President if plot there was. The detectives of this city and every other in the country have joined hands with the great secret system of the Federal Government, and if ingenuity, skill and energy count, the secrets of the crime will be ferreted out. Czolgosz insists that he alone planned the crime, which may rob the United States of its ruler, but that statement is not accepted as true. There is a belief that he was aided by others in a deliberate plot, and that confederates accompanied him to Buffalo and assisted in its execution. The police and secret agents are working privately and if they have made any progress toward the establishment of the plot theory they have not divulged the nature of it. They do insist that the prisoner locked up at Police Station No 1 is not insane, and that his act was not simply the crime of a lunatic with homicidal tendency. Czolgosz is kept in absolute seclusion by the police, and none save the officers have seen him.

SENSATION CAUSED.

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 8.

The attack upon the President has created a profound sensation and the people of Buffalo regard it with a feeling of poignant grief. It was at their invitation that the President and his party came to Buffalo, and they have a sense of personal responsibility for his safety. President Milburn and the officers of the Exposition directorate feel the deepest regret. While they had no knowledge or suggestion that there would be an attempt on the life of Mr. McKinley, the subject was one of the matters considered in arranging for the visit. They discussed the matter with the police of Buffalo and at their request several local officers were detailed to assist in guarding the person of the President. These men were on duty when the attack was made.

Hundreds of telegrams of regret continue to pour in from all over the world. They come from people in all walks of life, and are deeply sympathetic in tenor. All of them express fervent hope for the recovery of the President. The relatives of the President have hurried here and with them have come a large number of men in public life.

Buffalo is very quiet and there is not the slightest sign of disorder. There was talk of lynching last night, and whenever a crowd assembled there were bitter denunciations of the assassin's work. The police arrested a few men for inciting riot, but let them go this morning. The feeling to-day is no less intense than yesterday, but it will not find expression in mob violence.

CLEVELAND POLICE HARD AT WORK

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 8.

Acting on statements made by the man under arrest for the attempt on the life of the President, the Cleveland police went systematically at work to find if there was a gang of anarchists in Cleveland to which the crime could be traced. Every effort was made by the police apparently to locate any possible associates of acquaintences of the man arrested in Buffalo, and a number of men were examined at police headquarters without result so far as the police have announced. The men taken into the "sweat box" were allowed to go after their examination, but two of them were kept under the tension for hours.

Despite the confession of the President's assailant, in which he stated that he had had no confederates and had not acted for any organization, the police spent the night looking for the organization that is thought to be back of the act of the would-be assassin.

RESTLESS MOB AROUND THE JAIL

Buffalo, Sept. 8.—The closing of the Exposition grounds Saturday night shifted the centre of interest and passion to the streets of the city. The crowd, full ready to slay the anarchist, but not strong enough in temper and leadership to overcome the law, hung around and cordoned approaches to the prison. Ready and skillful mounted police, without a moment's loss of temper, kept the mob checked at every critical point; lines of constables roughly threw the stragglers of the crowd back, as they pressed towards the forbidden streets that led to the police station or jail. There seemed few policemen, and the mob had hundreds on the spot and possessed potential reinforcements of thousands who, pacing the near-by streets, would dash to the scene of noise if a serious riot were to be heard.

The people were quietly murderous, the remarks commonly heard being that the assassin should be lynched. In large measure the crowd was composed of young men and lads who were excited and angry, and craved to be doing something.

Buffalo people are absolutely dismayed at the blow dealt to the welfare of their city, for it is felt that the Pan-American cannot recover from the shadow of the crime, and Buffalo is heavily committed to the fortunes of the Pan-American. When President is struck down—and one hears snatches of conversation which show the average man in the light both of having an unexpectedly strong reverence for the office of the Chief Executive and a strong regard for Mr. McKinley personally—and their local and personal interests are dealt a staggering blow. The flippant craving for excitement which overlies the real horror and detestation of the crime, the anger of the foul treachery of the outrage, the feeling that the people have been wronged as well as the President gives a false air to the crowd, which, now doing nothing worse than hooting half-bitterly, half-derisively at the policemen, would on an instant turn furious an dangerous. No conviction in favor of the lawful course, no dislike for the sudden violence of the lynching mob, appears to exist as a brake, and it only needs an accession of passion in a throng already tense with excitement to set it aflame.

ARRESTS MADE IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 8.—The names of the men arrested last night on the charge of being implicated in the plot to assassinate President McKinley are: Abram Isaak, Abraham Isaak, Jr., Hippolyte Havel, Henry Trevegilo, Clemens Pfeutzner, Alfred Schneider.

The examination of the prisoners lasted until early this morning, but the police refused to make public what information had been secured.

Capt. Colleran, Chief o fthe Detective Bureau, however, gave out the following:

"The raid was made in consequence of a telegram from secret service officials in Buffalo asking us to investigate and learn the whereabouts of the headquarters of a paper known as the Free Society. We traced the owner to the house at 515 Carrogg avenue, and there found the persons arrested, apparently in the midst of an important meeting. All the prisoners admit they are anarchists, and do not hesitate to say that they have no regard for the laws as now enforced.

"Some of the men, I learned, have served terms in prison in their native countries for attempted crimes inspired by their anarchistic beliefs. The paper Free Society published by Isaak, I have learned was formerly issued on the Pacific coast, and it was only recently that Isaak opened an office here."

CABLES OF REGRET AND BULLETINS.

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 8.

The following bulletin was issued by the President's physicians at 9 p. m. "The President is resting comfortably, and there is no special change since the last bulletin. Pulse 130, temperature 101.6, respiration 30. Signed, P. M. Rixey, Roswell Park, Herman Mynter, Eugene Wasdin, C. McBurney, George Cortelyou, Sec'y to the President.

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 8.

The following are copies of messages received from King Edward and Emperor William:

Kielsept, Sept. 7.

President United States, Buffalo, America; I am horrified beyond words at the dastardly attempt on your life. My best and warmest good wishes and most earnest hopes for your recovery. EDWARD.

Koenigsberg, Sept. 7.

President United States, Buffalo, America; I am deeply distressed by the news of the dastardly attempt upon your life. I explain to you how I and the whole of the German people feel for you and for the anguish through which your country has to pass. May the Lord grant you a sure and speedy recovery. WILLIAM.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 9 3.10 a.m. No additional bulletins have been issued. President's condition is unchanged.

VICE-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S BIOGRAPHY

Theodore Roosevelt, Vice-President of the United States, who comes into prominence with the attempt upon the life of President McKinley, as he is now the acting head of the American republic, was born in New York, Oct. 27, 1858. He graduated from Harvard in 1880, and then entered Columbia Law School. In 1881 he was nominated for the Assembly, and was elected by a handsome majority and soon became one of the Republican leaders. In 1886 Mr. Roosevelt was nominated for mayor of New York by the Republicans, and ran against Abram S. Hewitt, Democrat, and Henry George, the Labor candidate. He was badly beaten in this three-cornered contest and for a time kept out of politics and turned his attention to literature. Early in May, 1889, President Harrison appointed him a civil service commissioner, and he continued in office under President Cleveland, resigning in 1895 to become president of the police commissioners of New York. In this position Mr. Roosevelt served the post of Assistant Secretary of the Navy, offered to him by President McKinley. When the war with Spain broke out Mr. Roosevelt resigned his latter appointment because he wanted to join the army and go to Cuba. Mr. Roosevelt organized the volunteer cavalry that has gone into history as the "Rough Riders," a body comprising men of every creed, rank and profession, and which made a record for itself in the Cuban war. Roosevelt was the lieutenant-colonel, and led in the celebrated charge up San Juan Hill.

In 1898 Mr. Roosevelt was elected Governor of New York State, and at the time was considered by many as but the stepping-stone to the Presidency of the United States. At the Presidential nominating convention, he was again "the man on horseback," and almost in spite of himself was placed in nomination as Vice-President. During the campaign he passed through the west on a speaking tour, and became known as "the cyclone." Apart from his political and war like exploits, and his prowess as a hunter, the Vice-President is an author of some prominence.

A PRINCE OF BIGAMISTS

Tracked to Buffalo by the Long Trail of Wives He Left.

WAS TOO HANDSOME TO RESIST

New York, Sept. 8.—Tracked by the trail of wives left in his wake, Charles Milton Leighton is in the Tombs to-night having been brought from Buffalo where he was arrested at the Lackawanna Hotel, at 3 o'clock in the morning by Ella Smith Leighton, one of his wives. She doesn't know where she stands in the list, but he admits he married her and three others.

Mrs. Ella Smith Leighton sent out to-day to numerous addresses a circular letter inviting all the other women her husband wooed or wed to meet her in this city in a few days and go with her to visit their husband and sweetheart in the Tombs.

LEIGHTON MAKES CONFESSION

Superintendent Robert J. Cromme, of the United States Detective Bureau, who made the capture, says it will be quite a large family party and will be almost national in its scope.

After his capture and positive identification in Buffalo, Leighton, who was running a barber shop, denied his wife. He was locked up for two hours and then taken again before Chief of Police Bull, where the pursuing wife confronted him. He then made this confession.

"Mrs. Ella Smith Leighton, who has been so persistent in chasing me about, is my wife. I married her three years ago, as she says.

BOSTON WIFE STILL ALIVE

"'My first wife was Mrs. Kinnicutt, now living at No. 102 West One Hundred and Ninth street, New York. I married her 19 years ago. She and I have a son 14 years old.

"'I also married a woman in Bellows Falls, N. H., and later a woman in Boston. I believe my Boston wife is still alive.

"'It is true that I have proposed several times to Mrs. Hull, of Danbury. She had not accepted me when I left.

"'Nettie Gilder was not the only girl in Experiment, Ga., with whom I was having matrimonial negotiations. There was another young lady with whom I corresponded. I knew both of them through a matrimonial agency.

"'I wish you'd get my barber tools from my shop. I may need them a long time."

WORKED THE SUMMER RESORTS.

According to the detectives Leighton has several more wives. One is at Narragansett Pier and another at Newport.

Mrs. Ella Smith Leighton, leader of the brigade of avenging wives, tells this story:

"I was married to Mr. Leighton three years ago. Six months after our marriage he began to tell me he had been married before, and that he always married for money. He said that was all he cared for.

"This made me suspicious, and it was only a few days before I found he was receiving letters from a matrimonial bureau. Through these letters I discovered Nettie Gilder.

"My husband disappeared and I engaged Superindent Cromme to locate him.

HOUNDED BY POLICE FOR A YEAR.

"Mr Cromme began the hunt on July 3, 1900. Eight days later he learned that he was at Danbury, Conn., making love to Mrs. Hull, a well-to-do widow of 67. I hardly arrived in Danbury before he departed, taking along $100 and two gold watches belonging to the widow. I found traces of various wives and found dozens of letters from women he was courting.

"Finally, on Sunday, we located him in Buffalo. He is the handsomest man I ever met. Women fall in love with him at sight. I cannot blame them, for I loved him, too. I couldn't help it."

The Shadow of War.

The man who told the Cincinnati Enquirer the other day that the United States government is making preparations for war with some European power of the first rank, presumably Germany, may be well informed as to the facts. Before giving absolute credance to his story, however, it would be interesting to know who he is, and what sources of information he has at his command that has escaped the watchful eyes and ears of the Washington correspondents. Possible complications over South America are hinted at as the fomenting cause of strife, with the Monroe doctrine impelling the United States to take arms if necessary to prevent the extension of any European sphere of influence of this side of the Atlantic. War on such a ground is not an impossibility, but it is at least unlikely to happen soon. There is a large German vote in the republic which would not favor a struggle with the Fatherland, and the serious nature of a war with a first-class power will prevent any government from entering upon it lightly. The army and the navy that found Spain so easy would have their work cut out if Germany were in the case.

FRANCE THINKS WAR IS NEAR

The French Nation Look For Clash With Turkey.

PRES. LOUBET'S PATIEFCE LOST

Paris, Sept. 9.—The possibility of a conflict at arms between France and Turkey is discussed seriously by men close to the foreign office. It is reported that men-of-war have been ordered to proceed to Turkish waters and unless Abdul Hamid quickly accedes to the French demands troops will be landed at an early day on the Sporadis islands in Aegean sea.

President Loubet has lost all patience with the dilatory and provoking tactics of the Turk and the general impression in Paris is that hostilities will not be long delayed.

A despatch from Vienna says the French government's course in the dispute with Turkey meets with the approval of a majority of the powers and also of public opinion in Europe, and adds that the sultan's overweening infatuation dates from the pan-Islamic agitation following the Armenian massacres five years ago. He then impressed upon his moslem subjects that the powers were afraid to interfere. Pan-Islamism was further encouraged by the visit of Emperor William to Constantinople. The idea of a misson to China profoundly impressed Mohammedans. The sultan is said to be dominated by an absorbing idea of pan-Islamism. Powers having Mohammedan subjects are pleased with the vigorous course France has taken. They believe that the rupture of diplomatic relations between France and Turkey will serve as a warning.

Constantinople, Sept. 9.—The German ambassador on Monday communicated to the porte the kaiser's declination to intervene, advising the palace to come to an understanding with France.

It appears that M. Delcasse's letter requiring Munir Bey to leave the country expressed astonishment that Munir should illuminate the embassy and give a banquet on the anniversary of the sultan's accession in view of the rupture in relations between France and Turkey.

The Turkish ambassador in London, Costaki Anthopulo Pasha, has been instructed to inform Great Britain that the action of the commander of a British warship in the Persian gulf in preventing the Turkish corvette Schob from entering Koweyt is incompatible with friendly relations. The British side of the controversy is that the Schob was trying to land Turkish troops on the territory of a sheikh who is independent of Turkey.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING.

How the Constabulary is Employed—Further Particulars of Zuurfontein Fight.

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—Mr. H. M. Campbell, trooper in division "A" troop 17 South African Constabulary, writes from Hout Kop, Transvaal, an interesting letter to a friend in this city, under date of July 30, in which he gives considerable information.

Trooper Campbell says: "I am going to write you a short account of the part our Canadian troops, now in South Africa, are playing. The South African Constabulary is engaged in operations which at present do not receive much notice from the press. However, the value of them will be visible in a very short time. The two colonies have been divided into four large S.A.C. divisions, and we Canadians are portioned out between them. Three troops of 300 men are in each division. We are now engaged in taking up positions all over the country. No 17 troop, "B.C.," for instance, reached Hout Kop (High Koppie") about two months ago. We have expended this two months in fortifying the position and making it habitable for troops. Another troop, No. 15, is almost in sight of us, about seven miles northeast, at a farm called Vlakfontein, doing exactly the same thing. Now the object of all this labour is to build a chain of forts through the country, close enough to be in almost constant touch with each other, and to maintain and keep up communication by means of patrols. The value of this work is at once apparent. However, fort building is only a side issue. We have to keep up our end in reducing the remnant of the once invincible Boer army to submission. This is being accomplished slowly, and, just for that reason, the more surely. As far as my own particular troop is concerned, we are in continual touch with the enemy.

Quite a serious skirmish took place on the 11th instant. We were on patrol. Captain Bennett, of Vancouver, in command. About seven miles west of this post, at a farm called Zuurfontein, we ran into a large commando of Boers under Dreyer. We estimated their number at between two and three hundred. We only had 21 men out, so you can imagine what a hot corner it was. It was a case of fight and no mistake, and fight those 21 men did in a way that made a man proud of his birthright and of a country that could produce such stamina. We suffered quite a serious loss: Major Chalmers, N. W. M. P.; killed; Trooper Sproule, Golden, B.C., killed; Trooper C. Begg, Okonagan B.C., killed Trooper G. L. Herchmer, Rossland, B.C. seriously wounded in the head. The wounded were: Trooper Jack Gravely Nelson, B.C., recovering; Trooper Thomas Curtis, Nelson B.C., recovering; Trooper McIntyre, Fort Steele, recovering.

The Boer loss was 36 killed and 31 wounded, and they were compelled to send into Vereeniging for surgical assistance. Our Captain Bennett acted in a most gallant manner, and endeared himself permanently in the hearts of his troop.

WILL TRY TO STOP OCEAN GAMBLING

A Growing Evil of Big Trans-Atlantic Liners.

WILL BE DENIED TICKETS

New York, Sept. 9.—Evils caused by the presence of professional gamblers on the big ocean steamers have grown so acute recently that the captains are considering the adoption of drastic measures to put down the cause of complaint. These professionals travel to and fro across theocean for the sole purpose of fleecing the unwary passengers whom they inveigle into card games.

Captain Albers, of the Hamburg-American steamer Deutschland, announces that he has taken precautions to prevent gamblers from obtaining berths on the steamer, which is scheduled to leave her pier in Hoboken at ten o'clock this morning. Even should they succeed in getting tickets a close watch, the captain states, will be kept on such of them as are known, and they will not be permitted to play.

Capt. Albers also announced his intention further of establishing a "rogues' gallery" on baord, by exhibiting in the card and smoking rooms the photographs of those who are known to be professional gamblers.

"'I am determined," the captain said yesterday, "to protect passengers sailing on any vessel under my command. Though I know several of these gambling sharks by sight, there are many that I do not know, and for that reason I will endeavor to obtain from the police photographs of all gamblers known to be such. I shall have the photographs prominently displayed in the card room, and shall, moreover, have passengers cautioned not to play with them.

"'To that end I intend to request the company to ask the police for photographs of all professional gamblers."

SOUTH AFRICA'S FUTURE.

Predicted That Johannesburg Will Reach 500,000 Population.

Washington, Sept. 9.—In a report to the State Department Consul-General Stowe at Cape Town declares that in 1900 the United States exported a greater amount of goods to South Africa than ever before.

If the permission of the Portuguese Government can be obtained, he says, a railroad will be built from Delagoa Bay to Johannesburg. He declares Johannesburg probably will reach a population of 500,000.

The Consul General quotes Lord Roberts as saying that American are superior to either Cape or English wagons.

Mr. Stowe says $100,000,000 will be expended in building up the Transvaal and the Orange River colony, and adds: "We must not fail to bid for the work."

SAYS APPENDIX IS USEFUL

Western Physician Tells of Important Discovery About the Vermiform.

Denver, Colorado, Sept. 6—At a meeting of the Rocky Mountain Interstate Medical Association to-day Dr. H. P. Hershey read a paper in which he claimed the discovery that the vermiform appendix universally supposed to be a detriment and a danger to man was in reality a very necessary part of the anatomy. This is the first time this claim has ever been made.

Dr. Hershey's theory is that the function of the appendix is to create a lubricant for the caecum, or the beginning of the large intestine. In the discussion which followed it was decided that Dr. Hershey's theory was not conclusively proven and his paper was thrown out with the recommendation that another year's study be spent on it before it be announced to the world.

The Fate of the Loser.

When the war in South Africa was going in favor of the Boers, there was a disposition in some quarters to blame the British generals. Something of the same sort of treatment is being meted out to President Shaffer now that the steel strike looks like a defeat for the men, yet Shaffer, no more than the generals referred to, will be responsible for defeat if it comes. The lot of a labor "leader" is far from enviable. As a matter of fact, he is usually not a "leader" at all, in any proper sense of the word; his authority is so circumscribed, and it is shared by so many others who figure less prominently before the public, that he is often little more than the mouthpiece for a committee, and may be compelled to put into effect and defend the very policy which he is convinced ought not to have been adopted.

Among those not well informed as to the facts there is an impression that a leader such as Shaffer occupies a position similar to that of a dictator—that he can order the rank and file of the membership of his organization to cause work or to resume, just as he pleases. Nothing could be farther from the truth. There may be unions in which power of the kind is entrusted temporarily to some one in whom the workers have confidence, but they are extremely rare, and no wise leader will seek or favor such action. The thoroughly democratic character of these organizations prevents the concentration of authority in the hands of those at their head, and any tendency on the part of the so-called "leaders" to exceed the powers conferred on them by the constitutions of their various unions would be the signal for their prompt deposition.

At the same time, the man who has the misfortune to be in the front of a losing battle, as is likely to be the case with Theodore Shaffer, generally is loaded with more than his fair share of the odium of failure, and drops into oblivion with as little delay as possible, and such oblivion may be, and often is, better, financially and every other way, for the once honored but now discredited general of labor's hosts who found his capitalist enemies too strong for him.

SPECIALISM IN RELIGION

This is pre-eminently the day of specialism. In medicine, in law, in engineering, in everything the specialist, after the German fashion, is the man of the hour. It is so also in matters of religion. Formerly the churches were everything; now they are nothing, or next door to it. Of yore the church held in its bosom all its children, old and young, male and female, but at the present time the young have deserted it, and we find in the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A., organizations which apparently the necessities of the times have brought into prominence. It has always been a mystery to us why these organizations felt the necessity of abandoning the churches and carving a way for themselves. That they are constructed on non-sectarian lines probably reveals the cause of the separation. The union of the young men has made youth a factor to be dealt with, whereas before it was merely the unripe fruit of a motely variety of trees. It will in the end be the cause of the union or the obliteration of sectarian bodies. The Presbyterian church has sent up a cry for more men for its ministry, but the young men know it no more. How does the Methodist Church compare with the Y.M.C.A. as to the young men? It is not in it. They look upon that church as a relic of the past— as a place to pass their age in but not their youth. To us this breaking of family ties—this desertion of the family hearth by the young— is one of the worst signs to an evil age. The great curse of Canada is a lack of the knowledge of the sacredness of the family tie, the glory of the union of those related by blood and religious belief. That the religious has been sacrificed to the utilitarian and the ethical, is quite patent. The good old days when all belonged to a church and all were cared for by it, have gone, we are afraid never to return. It is the old case of prespiration being mistaken for inspiration. However, since it must be so we commend the Young Women's Association to the public attention. Next to the care of children, the care of women is the prime necessity. We cannot urge this too strongly, and if those who devote their time to football, tennis and pink teas, in one of our largest institutions, would take this matter up and see that before all the valiant man provides for his sister, a great step forward would be taken in the public weal. We would suggest a public meeting and the organization of a powerful committee to put this Y. W. C. A. upon a sound and enduring basis.

DELIRIOUS DAVITT

Mr. Davitt declares that most of the people of England are opposed to a continuation of the war against the Boers. "If there were no gold mines in Johannesburg," says Davitt, "there would be no war. The majority of the English people are beginning to realize that the whole affair was a gigantic and costly blunder."

Mr Davitt spent eight months among the Boers, visiting their cities and armies, and his observations lead him to believe that the Boers will never be conquered by the British.

The British are in power only along three principal lines of railways, and occupy Pretoria. They have to stick close to their lines or be cut up by the Boers. The Transvaal is about as large as France, and in the vast territory Boer rule is supreme.

"The situation," said Mr. Davitt, "might be likened to the peroid in American history when the British occupied your cities and Washington's army was in camp at Valley Forge. Yet in the Transvaal the British are not even as well off as they were during your Revolutionary War. On the other hand, ultimate victory for the Boers by following Washington's plan of warfare may not be possible, because there are not so many Boers as there were American patriots. At the beginning of the war there were only 250,000 men, women and children in the Transvaal and Orange Free State. How many remain now can only be estimated.

Recurring to the feeling among the British people, Mr. Davitt said there has been a marked change in public sentiment during the past twelve months in favor of a settlement with the Boers. The opinion among the English people was divided into four classes: First, those who believe the Government should be supported whether right or wrong; second, those who feel humiliated, and think the military prestige of the United Kingdom should be re-established; third, those who think the Government blundered getting into the war, and who believe practical independence should be given the Boers; and fourth, those who detest the war as a crime, and believe it should be terminated for the credit of the British Empire.

But as the present Ministry has three more years in which its policy may be continued Mr. Davitt does not think that policy will undergo any radical change, unless the Emperor of Russia, for instance, should intimate to King Edward that he would like to see the struggle in South Africa ended. Even the result of such an expression might not terminate the war. Intervention by Russia or France was the only means for effecting that, and he does not believe that is probable.

Mr. Davitt believes that the Boer war will be the means of promoting Home Rule for Ireland. "I am satisfied," he said, "that the evolution of events now in progress will result in giving Home Rule to Ireland. When the Boer war is over the English people will see it will be to their advantage to give Ireland such a government as Canada has. If the Boer army of 30,000 men and a total Boer population of about 200,000 people could give England so much trouble, the question arising is, What would she experience in a war with one of the great Powers? This view will come to the English people, and as a matter of expediency they will want more justice for Ireland in order to reduce the danger from that country while ruled as at present. For myself, I have enlarged my claim. I was satisfied to have Home Rule, but when I saw what a fight the Boers could make against England, I declared that I wanted independence for Ireland. Independence for Ireland would not injure England, but will really safeguard her interests. Within sixty miles of England, and as a small independent power, she could never be hostile. I firmly believe that independence would be an element of strength to the British empire should it become involved in a war with one of the great Powers.

DUKE NOT TO VISIT STATES

Washington, Sept. 7.—The department of state has requested the managers of the pan-American exposition at Buffalo to refrain from inviting to their big show the duke and duchess of York, the future king and queen of Great Britain.

Diplomatic reasons are assigned as the cause for the department's request, but what these may be can be explained only by Secretary Hay, who is absent in New Hampshire. The explanation of the unusual procedure of the department most generally accepted in Washington is that the secretary of state received formal notice from the British embassy that the duke and duchess would not cross the line from Canada into the United States during their approaching visit to the dominion. Therefore, when Director General Buchanan of the pan-American exposition communicated to the state department his purpose to formally invite the future kind and queen of England to visit the exposition and politely requested the good offices of the department of state, Secretary Hay promptly informed him the invitation would be ignored and that it ought not to be sent.

WILL STAY ON ENGLAND SOIL

The itinerary of the royal travelers as fixed by the foreign office in London will keep the duke and duchess on English soil. This fact was communicated to the British embassy in Washington several weeks ago, and by the British charged affairs to the state department. It was not known till that communication reached the department whether the son and daughter-in-law of King Edward VII would pay a visit to the United States before sailing for home.

The department was also informed in an inofficial way that the sole purpose of the world-girdling tour of the duke and duchess would be to enable them to visit all of Great Britain's colonies and possessions and that they had carefully avoided even the semblance of visits to other countries. To have begun such visits would have created diplomatic complications of more or less seriousness.

It was pointed out to the state department that if the duke and duchess were to violate the rule they have followed since leaving London by crossing the line from Canada into the United States other countries which they failed to visit might feel they had been purposely slighted.

When the management of the pan-American exposition sought the friendly aid of the state department to convey to the duke and duchess of York an invitation to cross the line and visit the exposition on the occasion of their Niagara Falls visit the department replied promptly the invitation ought not to be issued. In any event, if it should be neither the department nor the British embassy in Washington will undertake to convey it to the duke of York.

WISH TO AVOID OFFENSE.

New York, Sept. 7.—The first intimation that the duke and duchess of York would not visit the United States was given by Lord Strathcona, lord high commissioner to Canada, who arrived here Saturday on the Campania. He and his wife will entertain the duke and duchess of York when the royal guests arrive in the dominion. The lord high commissioner said that the duke and duchess of York would not visit the United States, it being their purpose to visit only British possessions. This course was decided upon. Lord Strathcona said, because so many governments had invited the royal couple to visit. They were unable to do so, and in order not to give offence will confine their tour to British dependencies.

JAPANESE EAGER TO FIGHT RUSSIANS

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 6.—Bishop John. McKim, of Tokio, Japan, chairman of the Executive Board of Foreign Missions of the Episcopal church is visiting his brother here. When interviewed, he said:

"Japan is exceedingly anxious to fight Russia. Of the people of the Mikado's realm, nineteen-twentieths are eager to fight, and if it were not for Japan's foolish pride about borrowing money, she could win in a struggle with Russia.

Japan's fleet is much superior to that of Russia in the eastern waters. Japan's army is larger and is made up of braver and more intelligent men than those composing Russia's forces in China and Manchuria. I think, however, that if Japan does not fight Russia very soon her chances of winning will deteriorate. Russia at present has no coaling station near Japan, but in two years the Siberia railway will be completed and the forces of the Czar will then be in a much better position to war against Japan and kindred eastern powers.

"Japan is very much opposed to the partition of China, and is especially desirous that Russia shall not secure a foothold in the Empire, for the Japanese authorities well know that Corea in such an event would soon go as Manchuria went and Russia would be impregnable in a position enabling the Czar to dictate to Japan.

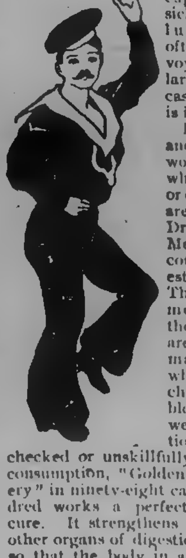
"Japan is anxious for the accomplishment of an alliance between America, England and itself."

CARNEGIES' MILLIONS.

Amount of Money Given Away by the Great Philanthropist.

London, Sept. 7.—The following list of Andrew Carnegie's benefactions is compiled from sources believed to be accurate: To American libraries, $11,799,100; to American institutions, $17,270,952—total American gifts, $29,070,052. To European libraries, $1,154,000; to European institutions, $759,500; to Scottish universities, $10,000,000 total European gifts, $11,894,500. Grand total of gifts, $40,964,552. He has endowed libraries in ninetyfive cities and institutes in eight places; has endowed five universities, four clubs, two technical schools, one medical college, one academic college, one laboratory, one observatory, one zoological society, has given $4,300,000 to relief and pension funds. Has given $10,000 for a library in Alameda, $25,000 for library in San Diego, and $50,000 for a library in Oakland. Andrew Carnegie's wealth is estimated at anywhere between $150,000,000 and something over $[illegible]0,000,000. This does not include the $41,000,000 he has already given away.

Jolly Jack Tar.



"Jolly" is the word generally associated with the jack tar. He is the picture of health, and the health bubbles over in mirth and merriment. When people are sick, especially when sickness attacks the lungs the doctor often advises a sea voyage. But in the large majority of cases the sea voyage is impossible.

It is to the men and women of the workaday world to whom sea voyages or change of climate are impossible, that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery comes as the greatest earthly boon. The effect of this medicine upon those whose lungs are "weak" is remarkable. Even where there is bronchitis, spitting of blood, emaciation, weakness, conditions which if unchecked or unskillfully treated lead to consumption, "Golden Medical Discovery" in ninety-eight cases out of a hundred works a perfect and permanent cure. It strengthens the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, so that the body in all its parts is not merely fed but nourished. And it is by nourishment that Nature builds up the body to resist or throw off disease.

"I had a terrible cough something over a year ago and could find nothing to stop it, or even to do me a particle of good," writes J. M. Farr, Esq., of Cameron, Screven Co., Ga. "I chanced to see an advertisement of yours, and forthwith bought a bottle of your invaluable 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Before I had taken half a bottle I was entirely well."

BOER ATROCITY.

Dr. Fred Carron, with the British forces in South Africa, writing from Beaufort, West Cape Colony, under date July 25, 1901, to his brother, in Brockville, says:—

I am sorry I could not write you for last mail, but we have been so busy that I really did not have the time; the most I could have done would only have been a few words at best. The old adage that there is "always a calm after a storm," is well exemplified—reversed—in our case, as the past month has been very quiet in hospital circles, and I was beginning to settle down to an easy time, but I had an early and rude awakening. The Boers had another head dance and held up a troop train about three miles from Nelsport (23 miles from Beaufort), about one o'clock a.m. last Saturday. This train, 509, generally carries troops, and on this occasion had over 100 federals en route to join their several regiments up country. They chose a narrow part of the road on a stiff up-grade with fairly high banks on either side; placing boulders on the track, it was not difficult to bring the train to a standstill. The first intimation that the sleeping troops had was the rattle and clang of rifles, splintering of wood and the groans of the injured. Of course it was considered that part of the road was comparatively safe, and consequently those not on guard were endeavoring to snatch a few winks of sleep and keep as warm as possible, as they were in open trucks. It was bitterly cold. Malan and Scheepers, who were in command of the attacking party, had 30 men on each side of the train and 30 in front, as Malan himself acknowledged afterwards to the doctor who was on board, so I think there were fully that many, if not more. The guard was in the after truck and was composed of 12 men and a sergeant, only one of whom was left standing after the first volley. It was simply murder, as the men were shot down like rats in a trap. Most of the casualties occurred in the truck and three coaches which were attacked, because as soon as a man appeared in front of a lighted window, he was picked off quite easily by those outside, as they offered splendid targets. Of course there was a rush for outside, and many were shot while climbing over the side or through the windows and taken. Altogether they had a pretty hard quarter of an hour. The Tommies got in a little work, but they were nearly all raw recruits, and had just come out, some to their death, and others to be maimed for life in a scrap where they had not even a chance to defending themselves, much less showing what they were made of. The game was soon up, and the Boers had possession of everything. They ransacked the train, collecting all the rifles and anything else they fancied, but were frightened away before finishing it properly, by the armored train which very accidentally happened along. In fact, they were in such a hurry that they were obliged to leave the rifles behind, but managed to fire the train first, which was a complete wreck. At the round up, it was found that there were three killed, eighteen dangerously wounded and four whose wounds were not necessarily serious. One Boer saved the hangman a job by dying. Shortly after the fight we got an urgent wire for an ambulance train, and soon had them into the hospital. They were in pretty bad shape, as the Boers had used all kinds of bullets and some of the fractures were terrible, simulating in many instances the wounds made by fragments of shell or sharpnel. Three of us were operating until we could hardly stand, only dressing the most serious that night, and finishing the next day. Two have since died, one from wound in abdomen, the other from common fracture of upper arm with severed Brachial artery. There were all kinds and conditions of wounds. Some of the men were wounded three or four times and had miraculous escapes. One was shot in each thigh, calf and foot, each bullet escaping the principal arteries. Another had a bullet in the side of his head, escaping death by about 1-16th of an inch, but the details would not interest you I am sure.

On the 23rd we had a wire from Gen. French to proceed to Karubosch with ambulance for Major Rundle, who was injured in a brush with the Boers about 70 miles from here. We got as far as Nelsport and found they had brought him up in a Cape cart. Poor fellow, I am afraid he is done for, as the bullet (Lee-Enfield) passed through back part of his head, causing paralysis of the right side and loss of speech. We trephined last night and he is resting comfortably, but it is a question whether death would not be preferable to the condition he will be in if he does recover.

So you see we have not had much time to let the grass grow under our feet. We are doing everything that can possibly be done for them, and they are nearly all resting comfortably, though I would not be surprised if we lose a couple more yet. Tjere are three cases in my ward in which the bullet cannot be located, but I intend to leave them alone until we get a Roentgen Ray apparatus, or send them down to Wynberg to be skiographed. The Boers were only thirty yards away when firing began, and directed it at an upward angle, so as not to injure those on the opposite side. The air brake was cut in several places, so that it would have been impossible to move the train if there had been no obstruction on the track, so that unless it had been heavily guarded, the troops did not stand much chance in the dark, and even then the loss would have been heavy, as the bullets pass through almost everything. The truck that carried the guard was not burned, and I saw it at Nelsport station afterwards. It is like our coal cars with 3-foot sides. It was simply riddled with bullets from end to end. There is not a place that a man could stand or kneel without being hit. The side doors are of iron and it did not seem to stop a bullet any more than brown paper. The truck frames were perforated as if with a drill, the holes are so clean, and even the car wheels did not escape. Several bullets were embedded in the metal so as to be flush with the presenting surface. Some holes were as large as our old Snider bullets and I have a Martini-Henri bullet of soft lead that was picked up beside the wreck, and I could easily account for the fearful wounds inflicted. One of our killed must have been struck by such a bullet, as it entered the back of his head and blew the left half of his face off.

Lt Day was in charge of the train, and was held up by Scheepers, who ordered him to take off his leggings. The Boers have taken a great fancy to our pigskin leggings, but he told him if he wanted them he could take them off himself. Scheepers then ordered one of his men to take them off for him. He took all his money but gave him back some silver for running expenses. Day also got Malan to have his overcoat returned, as he had nothing to put on, and I think that during the palaver he must have got too cheeky, as Malan told him he thought a 35-mile walk would do him good. Fortunately he was prevented from carrying out this threat by the timely arrival of the armored train. Day was in my tent for dinner on Monday, so I got all particulars of the fight pretty accurately. There were 200,000 rounds of ammunition on the train which the Boers missed, and it went up in fireworks. They would be disappointed when they would find that out, as they certainly would. Their intelligence department is, I think as perfect as our own. They seem to know every move made, and in fact, at times, some that are proposed. (They knew the officers' names on this train).

The doctor who brought in Major Rundle had an interview with Scheepers on the road to Nelsport. He had a patient at a farm house, when a Boer commando rode up headed by Scheepers. They were treated with every respect, and he asked the doctor to see a couple of his sick, presenting him with a pony before leaving, for his kindness. He says he can play the game for the next twenty years, and he really has succeeded in eluding our forces so far with remarkable success. What we want here is a few hundred of our western boys turned loose on their trail and never give them a minute's rest till they routed them up. I think the boys would find they did not understand the first principle of the game and begin to think that the sooner they began to fold their uniforms and get out the better for them, if they wished to die a natural death with their scalps on. This brings the war a little nearer home to us as it has been the most serious collision we have had with the Boers for some time.

Well, Jim, although I might go on for some time giving you sketches of Malan and his gang, I think this will sufficiently tire you for the time being as I am quite sure the outside world is sick of the name Boer and South African war, except those who are intimately associated with it. I may say, in conclusion, that there does not appear to be any end as yet, as they have pretty well overrun the Colony. What the outside operations are I do not know as all Cape papers are proscribed in this district. I am in excellent health and much pleased with my position here.

EXILED CIGAR-MAKERS SAVED BY A SAVAGE

Key West, Fla., Sept. 6.—Like a romance of the old days, when pirates and slavers sailed the Spanish Main, was the story told here by the thirteen abducted leaders of the striking cigarmakers of Tampa, Fla., on their return from exile. The men, who composed the Central Committee of Resistencia Union, of Tampa, arrived here on a small fruit steamer, the Gertrude, of this port. Marooned on a barren, uninhabited isle off the coast of Honduras, they had, by an unexpected turn of fortune, escaped death from exposure and starvation and made their way to civilization and safety. They believe it was the intention of their captors that they should never return from exile.

The party consisted of six Spaniards six Cubans, and one Englishman. The Cubans and the Englishman, however, are naturalized American citizens. The men all bear evidence of the hardships encountered during their forced exile and present a pitiful appearance. The stories they tell are substantially the same, differing only in minor details as to the violence resorted to by their abductors.

IN CLOSED CARRIAGE.

Luis Barcia, who was taken at midnight from the bedside of his wife whose accouchment had taken place three days before, and whose death has since been reported as a result of the shock incident to her husband's disappearance, says he was forced into a closed carriage and taken to the railroad station, where he was put into an electric car, of which the lights were out, the current having been shut off. Eight of his comrades who had been similarly captured were put with himself into the rear compartment of the car, and taken to Ballast Point, a few miles west of Tampa, on Hillsborough Bay. Four other members of Resistencia Union had been previously taken through the woods to the same place, where a tug with steam awaited them.

Several of the guards on the car, the men say, were prominent citizens of Tampa, and well known to them.

After a brief conference at Ballast Point the thirteen men were dragged aboard the tug and the start was made amid derisive farewells of the abductors of the dock. The tug headed for the schooner Marie Cooper, which was riding at anchor in the stream with all sail set. The men were transferred to the schooner under a heavy guard.

As day followed day in dull monotony, without any indication that a landing was contemplated, the kidnapped men, who had been kept in ignorance, not only of their fate, but of their probable destination, became uneasy and requested to know where they were being taken. They were told they would be landed on English soil, far enough away to prevent a return to the United States for a long time.

On the seventh day land was sighted, and the captives were informed that their destination had been reached. Nearer approach revealed a long, low stretch of sand beach without sign of human habitation.

ROBBED BEFORE LANDING.

Boats were lowered and preparations made for landing. Before passing over the schooner's rail, each man was subjected to a rigid search, and whatever money was found was taken away. This action however, had been anticipated, and less than $100 was found, the men having succeeded in evading the vigilance of the guards and concealing greater amounts.

On landing, each man received $5 of the money previously taken from him. A box of soda crackers, two small hams three cans of beef and about a gallon of water were placed on the beach. The boats then returned to the schooner, which immediately set sail and disappeared in the distance.

Left alone on the beach with their handful of provisions, the thirteen men realized for the first time their situation. They had purchased a revolver with a few rounds of cartridges, from Capt. La Penotiere of the Maria Cooper, but had no knowledge of the country, and had been told they were 12 miles from Truxillo.

INDIAN TO THE RESCUE.

For days they wandered along the beach, husbanding their meagre supplies, and without encountering a human being or sighting a sail. Their small stock of provisions finally gave out, the water supply was exhausted their hands and faces were burned by the tropical sun and their feet blistered by long marches. They began to despair of ever reaching home, and had almost given up the fight, when they were discovered by an Indian. He brought aid, took them to the main land and guided them to the plantation of a M. Bruno, where they were well received. Their immediate wants were supplied, and they secured a small boat to take them to Truxillo.

They were told by Mr. Bruno that from the description they gave of the island they had evidently been landed near the mouth of Plantation River.

At Truxillo they had the good fortune to meet two Cubans, former residents of Florida, and now engaged in fruit culture there, who supplied funds and hired a schooner to take them to Bonacco, where they were equally fortunate to find the schooner Gertrude seeking a cargo of fruit for this market. They chartered her for $100 and sailed for Key West.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.

R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,

President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Aud, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for not securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June, New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It continues the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES,

New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.

J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,

Advertising Manager for Sapolio—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,

FRANK ROE BATCHELD,

Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.

Washington, D. C., Jan 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,899 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.

JOS. H. HANNEN,

Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,

General Passenger Agent,

Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Shoemaker's Backache

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets a Positive Cure for this Complaint.

The constant bending over that of necessity a shoemaker must do when at work, comes hard on his back and hard on his kidneys. Backache and lame back are the great bugbears of a shoemaker's existence. That Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets can ease the aching back and cure the kidney trouble is amply proven in the following case:—

Mr. J. O'Shea, corner Main and Market streets, Lucan, Ont., the well-known shoemaker of that village, says:—"A shoemaker's work requires lots of sitting and leaning forward, and invariably, as in my case, in time brings on a pain in the small of the back and Kidney trouble. This has been my complaint for two or three years, and I was about tired of it. Some one told me about Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, and I got a bottle at John Farrel's drug store. The taking of this one bottle was followed by complete relief. This is naturally a big lift to me in my work, and I am correspondingly grateful. I can recommend the Tablets conscientiously to others."

If you are anxiously desirous of being cured insist on having Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. Price 50 cents a box, at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto.

So thorough going is this treatment that it destroys the Cancer germ completely, removes the Cancer, root and branch, and not a vestige remains to again come back and cause trouble. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont., send full particulars of this treatment to anyone on receipt of two stamps. All correspondence strictly confidential.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH SEPTEMBER 9 1901

JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN.

—There was a fair market on Saturday.

—A good boy wanted at The Times office.

—The Belleville Driving Club will put on a fall meeting on Oct. 8th and 9th.

WANTED, a good general servant. Apply to Mrs. C. Bradburn, 293 London street.

—Every photograph taken at Whiten's studio is guaranteed not to fade, and is the best quality of work that can be made.

—The demand for The Times on Saturday was so great that a second edition had to be run off at ten o'clock.

WANTED, by the first of November, two bed rooms, one sitting room and board. On George street, north, or vicinity. Mrs. F. J. Tate, Hurborne, Lakefield, Ont.

The members of Harmony Lodge I.O.G.T. will meet in their new hall on Tuesday evening. A full attendance of the members requested.

—The Globe File Works in Port Hope have been purchased by Americans, and it is feared the industry may be closed up in connection with a trust.

—The first fall drill for the recruit class of the 57th Regiment will take place this evening. Those intending to join the regiment should attend.

—It is rumored that certain employes of one of the Marmora Gold Mines are to be arrested as the result of an investigation into the mysterious disappearance of a quantity of gold.

—The steamer Water Lily broke her rudder when on her way to Peterborough on Saturday morning. The crew with the aid of a plank steered her up to the Wolfe street wharf.

—Don't miss the chance—people residing out of town to call next time when in town at Times Bookstore and have a look through the new English novels we are selling at less than cost. Perhaps you will find the titles you have been waiting for years to find.

LAID AT REST

Funeral of the Late Miss Devlin Yesterday Largely Attended.

The remains of the late Miss Mary Anna, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Roger Devlin, who passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital on Friday last, were interred yesterday from the family residence, Stonanee, and were followed to their last resting place by a large number of sympathizing relatives and friends. The interment took place in St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro.

The deceased was stricken with appendicitis, an operation being performed on Thursday, but heart failure supervened and the young lady, who was but 21 years of age, passed away.

The deceased was greatly beloved by all who knew her, and much sympathy is felt for the grief-stricken parents in which The Times heartily joins.

Good Fishing.

Mr Rolly Hill, the popular delivery clerk of Messrs. E. Brown and Co., returned on Saturday from Stony Lake where he spent several days fishing. Rolly is a natural born fisherman, and knows how to inveigle the finny tribe from their native element. He brought with him a 25 pound maskilonge and several smaller ones, besides a quantity of bass, as a proof of this. It has been rumored amongst the members of Mr. Brown's staff, who are naturally jealous of Mr. Hill's success, that Rolly has a different kind of blackstrap chewing tobacco, which, when he expectorates on the hook, it fetches the fish every time.

The Alert Repaired.

The steamer Alert, which was sunk in Clear Lake, has been raised, and will be ready for work again tomorrow. Captain W. H. White, who was in town Saturday, stated that the damage was not so great as reported.

PERSONAL.

—Capt. Rolly Griffin was down from Lakefield on Saturday.

—Mrs. J. F. Clarke, Port Hope, is the guest of Mrs. Dr. McCullough.

—Mr. Fred W. Bates has returned from a trip to the Pan-American.

—Mr. Edwin Searight, of Norwood is attending the Peterborough Business College.

—Mrs. James Scott and Mr. John O'Brien, of Clydesdale, are visiting friends in town.

—Mrs. J. Wright and baby Helen, of Montreal, are visiting with Mr Stewart Wright, Ashburnham.

—Mr J. B. McWilliams returned from Arnprior on Saturday, where he conducted the annual Culler's examinations.

—The hosts of friends of the Rev. C. J. Phelan are delighted to see him again established in Peterborough. His parishioners in Lindsay presented him last evening with a purse containing $200 in gold. The altar boys also made a suitable presentation.

THE ROYAL CHORUS

Peterborough's Contribution to the Duke of Cornwall's Chorus.

Through the energy of Mr. Mulligan a splendid contribution of vocalists will attend the reception of the Duke of Cornwall at Toronto next month.

The tenors and basses rehearsed Saturday evening, and a full practice of the entire chorus will be held to-morrow night. The following is a list of the singers:

Sopranos.—Misses Butcher, Metheral, McGuire, Hoolihan, A. L. Hill, Godfrey, Tucker, B. Tucker, R. Morris, McClellan, Grace Goldie, Phyllis Goldie, Kathleen Martin, B. Sollitt, M. Rickey, B. Leightman, N. Hall, B. Might, M. Detcher, Watt, M. Sawers, D. Sawers, Spier, M. Allen, Tivey, Phillipps, Rush, Sherwood, A. Hall, C. Bellefhem, M. Cuncannon, and Mrs. Geo. Ball.

Altos. — Misses VanEvery, Hurley, Gray, Yenney, Esther, McClellan, Brown, Mrs. Mulligan, Mrs. McGuire, Misses May Bullen, Eva Hopkins, A. Smith, A. Rush, Mrs. Mowat, Misses Dawson, E. T. Hill, Mrs. McCall, Irene Grag.

Tenors.—Messrs. McGuire, Tranter, R. Cunningham, Fowler, G. K. Martin, C. H. Thorton, Jas. Browne, Froude, Seymour, Walton, T. Cunningham, G. J. Tovey, W. Freeburn, Whatley, Kingscote, H. Goldie, Patterson, Geo. Ball, H. Brown, J. Legg, Chas. Westbrooke, W. G. Elliott, W. Moore.

Bassos. — Messrs. Edwards, Moore, McClellan, Adams, Allen, Speirs, Sheppard, G. Browne, B. Turner, Watson, D. Holt, Dodge, H. Moore, W. Hill, R. Merrill, J. Turner, F. Sollitt, W. Douglas, Beattie, J. Dawson, J. Edgecumbe, J. R. Bell, N. Munroe, H. Smythe, G. W. Mulligan, W. J. Rome, W. Stocker, G. H. Dawson, R. Donnell, J. Weir, Rev. W. L. Armitage.

A Pleasant Duty.—"When I know anything worthy of recommendation, I consider it my duty to tell it," says Rev. Jas. Murdock, of Hamburg, Pa. "Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder has cured me of Catarrh of five years standing. It is certainly magical in its effect. The first application benefited me in five minutes. 50 cts."—9

A Mistaken Notion.

Many hotel men appear to harbor the idea that the law permits them to dispose of liquor to their so-called guests—that is lodgers and boarders who stop in their houses and make them their homes — in prohibited hours. Such an idea is a mistake, it seems, as it cannot be legally done, it was done some years ago, but the privilege was so much abused that action had to be taken to prevent it; so the judges decided that no exception could be taken in the case of guests any more than the general public, as so many persons were attempted to be palmed off as guests who were not such at all. So all sales had to be shut off when the disposal of liquor was forbidden in licensed places, except in the cases of sickness, and then only under a genuine unobservable doctor's certificate. The truth of this can be confirmed by any reputable lawyer.

Keys Lost.

A ring containing two small keys, between the Times Bookstore, the Police Station and the Post Office. The finder will be rewarded by leaving them at the Times Bookstore.

An Afflicted Family.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, who reside at 111 Rubidge st., will sympathize with them in a great affliction which has overtaken the family. On August 9th last one of the family was stricken with diphtheria, and since that time five of the children took the dread disease. The mother, in caring for her little ones, was also taken down, making six in all. It is pleasing to note, however, that the worst has been past, and that all are now in a fair way to recovery. Dr. Scott, the attending physician, was faithful in his attention, paying no fewer than 32 visits to the afflicted family. The Times extends its sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, and hopes that rapid recovery will follow.

MUSCULAR PASTOR

Muscles Built up by Common Sense Habits

"For years I have not been able to drink coffee, as it made me very nervous and gave me a headache. No one loved coffee more than I and it was a severe trial to abandon its use. Nearly three years ago I saw Postum Cereal Coffee advertised and concluded, to try it.

I have been so well pleased with it and its healthful effects that I have used it ever since. I carry package with me when I visit other places.

When I began to drink Postum, my muscles were flabby, as my habits are sedentary, but for the past two year my muscles have been hard and I never felt stronger in my life than I do now at sixty years of age, and I attribute my strength of muscle to constant use of Postum. I drink it three times a day. I feel so enthusiastic about Postum that I cannot recommend it too highly wherever I go. Wishing you great success, yours truly." Rev. A. P. Moore, 474 Rhode Island St., Buffalo, N. Y.

The reason Postum builds up the human body to a prime condition of health, is that when coffee is left off, the drug effects of the poison disappear and the elements in Postum unite with albumen of the food to make gray matter and refill the delicate nerve centers all over the body and in the brain. This sets up a perfect condition of nerve health, and the result is that the entire body feels the effect of it.

ANNUAL REPORT OF C. P. R. COMPANY

Covering a Satisfactory Period of Eighteen Months.

SYSTEM COVERS 10,333 MILES

The 20th annual report of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which has just been issued for the period of eighteen months, ended June 30th, 1901, is considered by far the most encouraging statement of affairs ever issued.

The immense system now embraces upwards of 10,333 miles. The condensed balance-sheet shows the assets of the company to amount to $291,518,574, the cost of railway and equipment being $225,-353,616.

The steamships, ocean, lake and river, are valued at $3,791, 816.

The earnings for the twelve months ended June 30 were $30,855,203. For the last full year for which returns have been received ending with December, 1899, the gross earnings were $29,230,028.

The working expenses were in 1899, $16,-999,872, and in the twelve months covered by the report, $18,745, 828, leaving the net earnings $12,230, 165 for 1899, and $12,-109, 375 for 1900-01. Like all other large systems the C.P.R. has felt the increase in the cost of wages, material, etc.; taking this into account and the partial failure of last year's wheat crop, the statement is most satisfactory. During the year the road carried 4,337,799 passengers, and 7,155, 813 tons of freight, the average passenger fare being 1.93 cents a mile, the charge per ton of freight 0.79 cents per mile.

The working expenses for the year amounted to 60.75 per cent. of the gross earnings, and the net earnings to 39.25 per cent., as compared to 58.16 and 41.84 per cent., respectively in 1899.

The report points out that in view of the rapidly increasing development of Pacific trade and the desirability of securing as much as possible of that trade, the directors recommend that a suitable line of coasting steamers be provided by the company, and as the steamers and other property of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company, actively engaged in the business and with established trade relations, could be secured on terms that appeared to be advantageous, it was deemed desirable to acquire the same at an expense of five hundred and thirty-one thousand dollars ($531,000.00). Since the purchase was made, another steamer has been added to the fleet at an expense of one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars ($175,000.00) Before next season, it may be necessary to provide one more steamer for the northern or Yukon trade, and one for the route between Vancouver and Victoria.

The growth of the Company's traffic on the Pacific Ocean suggests the importance of providing at an early date an additional steamship, somewhat larger and faster than the present Pacific steamship of the company.

In order to provide for these expenditures, the shareholders will be asked to authorize the issue of steamship bonds to the amount of four hundred and eighty thousand pounds (£840,000) sterling.

The report concludes by expressing much regret at the death of Hon. D.A. MacInnes, one of the Board.

We Cannot Support It.

Now that the government dredge has completed its job below the locks, it has been suggested to this great family journal that the work of cleaning out the creek between the Snowden house and the river, be undertaken. Mr. Snowden, who is regarded as the fishery overseer in the section of the creek referred to, says that if the bed of the stream was deepened fishing would be vastly improved. He hopes the day will come when guests of the Snowden House can sit on the rear balcony and haul in the speckled beauties by the dozen with one hand, while they bid forty with the other. This would be heaven itself to the enthusiastic nimrod, while at the same time there would be an occasional shilling in it for the house. The only drawback to the scheme we fear would be that Mr. Snowden might be tempted himself to violate the fishery regulations, and thus lose his government job. This g. f. j. therefore cannot support the project.

Peterborough Talent.

The Omemee Mirror, in referring to the recent concert held in connection with St. James' church, Emily, says: A commodious tent was put up to accommodate about 400 people, and it was filled with a large audience to listen to a first-class entertainment. Mr. J. Halpany, dramatic entertainer, Peterborough, was the chief attraction, and his productions were indeed fine. Rev. W. L. Armitage, of All Saint's church, Peterborough, had come with about 20 members of his choir to take part in the programme. Mr. Halpany is a host in himself and he entertained the audience in an excellent way. He had the attention of all, and enabled everyone to have many good laughs at the witty things he said and sang. Mr. Armitage gave several good readings.

Father Fitzpatrick's Picnic

It will be pleasing news to many to learn that the Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Young's Point, has announced that his big picnic will be held at Young's Point, on Sept 17 when a splendid programme of sport will be presented, including a football match between Cobourg and Peterborough, an excursion being run from the former place. A number of prominent speakers will be present and deliver addresses. Dinner will be served to the grounds, and a first-class orchestra has been engaged to furnish music for dancing. As usual special rate will prevail on the trains and boats.

A Broken Leg.

While driving from Bridgenorth on Friday evening, Mrs. D. Belleghem met with a rather serious accident. The whiffletree of the carriage broke and the horse became unmanageable. The animal swayed the buggy into the ditch and whilst the vehicle was not upset, nor the occupants, consisting of Mrs. Belleghem and her driver, thrown out, still the concussion was such as to break Mrs. Belleghem's leg. She was conveyed to her home and a physician summoned and she is now doing as well as can be expected.

For the Y. W. C. A.

A lawn social under the auspices of the King's Daughters of St. John's church, assisted by other young ladies of the town, will be held on the grounds of St. John's church, on the evening of Tuesday, September 17th, for the benefit of the Y.W.C.A. The band will be in attendance, and great preparations are being made to make the affair a success.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

The Shamrocks won from the Capitals on Saturday by a score of 6 to 2.

The Orangevilles won from St. Catherines on Saturday by a score of 7 to 5.

Port Hope will probably play off with Beaverton at the Island next Saturday.

BASEBALL.

The Baseball match between the Auburn nine and the Elms of Peterborough Saturday afternoon resulted in a victory for the latter by 6 to 4. The game was anybodys game until the finish and hence the game was exciting from start to finish. Both teams played good ball. The Auburn team went to bat and looked like winners for the first two innings by scoring 3 runs in the first and 1 in the second but retired in the third without a run. Then the Elms seemed to make their batting effective and in the third innings batted out 3 runs and in the fourth scored 1 and in the fifth and sixth failed to make a run but notched 1 in the seventh and 1 in the eighth but failed to score a run in the ninth, making the score 6 to 4 in the Elms favor.

DROWNED IN MIDLAND.

A Former Peterborough Resident Drowned at Midland Harbor.

Midland, Sept 8.

John Hagerman, a G. T. R. engine driver, formerly of Peterborough, was drowned in the bay here this afternoon. He was out in a canoe and upset. The body has not yet been recovered.

Deceased was a member of Peterborough Lodge I. O. O. F. No. 111, and resided in Peterborough about five years ago.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR McKINLEY'S RECOVERY.

Physicians Are Now Full of Confidence That He Has Passed She Danger Point.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY RECOVERING.

Milburn, House, Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 9. President McKinley's condition this morning is so increasingly favourable that it has dispelled almost the last shade of doubt and apprehension and has led those nearest to him to make the most confident predictions of his recovery. The official bulletins from the physicians as well as the authoritative statements of those in most intimate relation with the Presidential household give certainty to the feeling that the worst phases of the crisis are about over. The tone of the 6 a.m. bulletin in referring to the President's somewhat restless night gave temporary apprehension, but this was shortly dispelled by the results of the consultation held by the doctors from 8 to 9 o'clock, and officially announced at the latter hour. This disclosed a markedk change in the pulse and temperature. Aside from these pathological features, the doctors gave the cheering information free from all technicalities of science, that the President's condition was becoming more and more satisfactory, and that untoward complications were becoming less likely. Besides their official signed utterances, the doctors gave individual expressions, reinforcing the buoyant and confident tone. They made known, too, that the President's mind was clear, his mental faculties as vigorous as ever, and that he retained his cheerful, happy disposition. He was even ready to talk with the doctors, but they restrained him to a considerable extent in any exertion of this kind. These positive assurances gave to the members of the Cabinet and to the relatives and nearest friends of the President a feeling of confidence little short of absolute certainty that the President was now well on the way to recovery. Without exception those who come to the Milburn house expressed the same confident view. Among those who called to receive the good news and then to repeat it to the many anxious watchers, were Attorney General Knox, Secretary Wilson, Postmaster-General Charles Emory Smith, Senator Hanna, Abney McKinley, Myron T. Kerrick, Senator Fairbanks, Comptroller Dawes and many others holding the closest relations with the President.

PROSPECTS FOR RECOVERY BRIGHTER.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 9.

The condition of President McKinley improved throughout yesterday. His temperature dropped to 101 from 102.8 during the day. His pulse grew slower and his respiration quicker and easier. The marked improvement shown by the stricken President warrants strong hopes for his recovery. The charge that the bulletins have been deliberately colored with optimism is nonsense. The bulletins issued by the physicians are an accurate statement of the President's exact condition so far as it is humanely possible to judge. Vice-President Roosevelt and Senator Hanna, who were at the Milburn House during the afternoon, denounced the rumors of false bulletins as gross falsehoods. The Vice-President said that if anything the bulletins were inclined toward an understatement of the hopeful conditions rather than an overstatement. He declared that the Presidents' condition warrants the belief that he will recover. The improvement was very apparent yesterday. Dr. McBurney arrived from New York for consultation yesterday. There are now in attendance at the President's bedside Drs. Rixey Mann, Park, Myner, Wasdin and McBurney. The X-ray apparatus arrived from Orange yesterday, but there is no intention of using it while the President is in the present condition of weakness, which will not warrant the use of ether. As he now rests he suffers but little pain and is wonderfully quiet and composed. He is lying on a cot brought from the hospital at the Exposition grounds. The physicians are always careful to add to any statement concerning the President's ultimate recovery that it will be at least five days from the time of the shooting before it will be possible to say positively whether the President will recover. All that can be said at this state is that there is not a single unfavorable symptom, and not the slightest indication of blood poisoning or peritonitis, the two deadly enemies that are most feared. Nothing but injections of water have been given the President since the shooting because of the bullet holes through the front and rear walls of the stomach. The cool weather of yesterday added greatly in improving the Presidents' condition.

HERO AND MARTYR.

Besides Mrs. McKinley, the only other person in Buffalo who does not know the President's exact condition is Czolgosz. He is beginning to enjoy himself as a hero and a martyr now that he no longer fears the mob. Physicians declare him much more intelligent than was supposed. There are no indications of insanity. He probably supposes the President dead. He hears absolutely nothing from the outside; he sees nobody but the two guards whose duty it is to see that he does not commit suicide. He persists in maintaining that he had no accomplices. The police are convinced that the attempted murder was the result of a maturely-hatched plot. Just what evidence they have collected is kept a profound secret. They appeal to his vanity and conceit in cross-examining him. He is cunning enough to make no statements that will not fit in with his story. He is not annoyed in any way, and is made comparatively comfortable. He smokes three cigars a day. It is the intention of the authorities to have nothing annoy him in prison so that he may leave in an entirely normal condition. He has not yet made any effort to simulate insanity. The police declare that he could never have succeeded in wearing the handkerchief so cleverly bound about his hand as to convey the impression of its binding up a wound without many rehearsals, and these in the presence of others. The feeling of popular fury that almost resulted in the lynching of the would-be murderer seems to have died away. Crowds no longer gather about the prison and threatening language is no longer heard. Information as to Czolgosz is kept from the public as much as possible at the request of Secretary of War Root, whose aim seems to be to cause him chagrin through neglect. He is a coward at heart, and it could have been only by harping on his vanity that his anarchistic friends could have worked him up to the necessary pitch to attempt the dastardly deed. Now that he is safe from the violence of the mob his vanity is coming to the front again and the police are making the most of it. He imagines that the notoriety has made him one of the great ones of the earth, and he posed in heroic attitude when having his picture taken for the Rogues' Gallery. Czolgosz is a Pole with a narrow forehead and thick, light-brown, wavy hair which stands up from his low forehead in stands up from his low forehead in semi-pompadour style. He is small and slight of build.

A cut and swollen lip and a scratched nose are the only marks on the prisoner's person as a result of his rough handling on Friday.

OUT OF WHOLE CLOTH

Milburn, House, Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 9. Many sensational reports are being circulated about Cabinet action looking to the wholesale apprehension and prosecution of Emma Goldman, and leaders of anarchist organizations, of mysterious directions from the Secretary of War to the chief of police here, and of developments of a startling nature that are anticipated. The great majority of these reports, in the words of a cabinet officer, are "manufactured out of whole cloth." The question of the prosecution of Czolgosz the Cabinet are unanimously of opinion is purely a local affair. There is no Government statute covering an assault upon the President of the United States, and in the eye of the law the crime of last Friday is merely a local offence committed against a private citizen in violation of the laws of the State of New York and of Erie county. The Government can have no hand in the prosecution of a local offender. His trial will take place in the local courts.

The only request Secretary Root has made to the Superintendent of Police and the district attorney here was one designed to prevent the would-be assassin from being made a hero of by exploitation. Mr. Root's view in this respect was shared by other members of the Cabinet, and the local authorities have done everything in their power to comply with it. They have declined to allow reporters to have access to the prisoner or even to see him.

NO UNFAVORABLE SYMPTOMS

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 9.

President McKinley has gone through the early part of the crisis in his case without material sacrifice of strength or the appearance of dangerous symptoms. There was an unsatisfactory note in the first bulletin of the morning in reference to the restless night passed by the President. It was one of the few unfavorable things said by the official bulletins and several disturbing rumors were put in circulation. The general state of the sufferer remained unchanged, however. A slight decline in temperature and an inclination of the pulse and the respiration to return toward normality were favorable conditions and the official statement gave an assurance that no unfavorable symptoms had shown themselves. The doctors still inclined to a very hopeful view of the case and insisted that at present it did not present a single unsatisfactory feature. They said that several complications fraught with serious consequences might develop, but they did not anticipate that any of them would appear. The President was holding his own so far in the crucial hours.

The morning hours at the Milburn house were very quiet; few of the occupants of the home were astir early and save for sentries, police, newspaper correspondents and telegraphers, the street was deserted. A few workmen as they passed to their daily toil passed near the house to ask to the condition of the President. Shortly after daylight a small crowd gathered on West Ferry street, half a block away. The police and military restrictions have somewhat relaxed, but the Milburn house is still carefully guarded and no one is permitted to approach it without a challenge and explanation.

LATEST BULLETIN

Milburn House, Buffalo, Sept. 9.

The following bulletin was issued by the President's physicians at 3.30.

The President's condition continues favorable, pulse 112., temperature 101 respiration 27.

GEO. B. CORTELYYON,
Sec'y to the President.

His Temperature Said to Be Steadily Decreasing And he is Very Cheerful.

McKINLEY WILL GET WELL.

London, Sept. 9.

"The feeling of the British financial world," said Lord Rothschild this morning to a representative of the Associated Press, "is that President McKinley will get well and everything come out all right. Hence the rise of American securities on the Stock Exchange above parity."

Asked if he thought the financial condition of the United States was strong enough to withstand the worst contingency, Lord Rothschild said:

"We are not dealing with hypotheses. We think President McKinley will live, and that is sufficient. Today's rise is due to a general belief in that and to no other concerted action on the part of the financial leaders."

Lord Rothschild expressed sorrow for the attempted assassination of President McKinley, and added that everybody he knew felt the same way.

DANGER TO THE DUKE.

London, Sept. 9

President McKinley's condition and discussions as to the methods of dealing with anarchists continue to dominate the editorial and news pages of the papers here. Messages of sympathy and inquiry from hundreds of official and private persons are still arriving at the United States Embassy and the societies, boards of guardians and bodies of various kinds that happen to be meeting today in the United Kingdom have almost without exception passed resolutions deploring the act. Some of them, including the London Chamber of Commerce, have cabled these expressions to the United States.

The Evening Standard comments on the danger to which the Duke of Cornwall and York will be exposed during his visit to North America, questioning whether any precaution can be considered adequate protection against murderous purposes.

SEPTIC POISONING PROBABLE.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept 9

11.30 a.m.—The fear of the President's physicians is that sceptic poisoning will set in and it is for the first symptoms of blood poisoning that they are now watching. Thee bullet lodged in the muscles of the back and the physicians have decided that for the present it is of secondary importance. The bullet took a downward course but neither the intestines nor the kidneys were the intestines nor the kidneys were injured. Of this the physicians are confident. If inflammation should appear in the neighborhood of the place where the bullet is believed to have lodged the Roentgen rays will be used to locate the bullet, and the doctors do not think there would be difficulty in extracting it.

THE STORY OF CZOLGOSZ

Afetr midnight the District Attorney completed the work of taking the prisoner's confession. An abstract of the confession has been given out as follows:

Leon F. Czolgosz was born in Detroit 28 years ago. His parents were Russian Poles, who came to this country about 40 years ago. He received some education in the common schools of Detroit. For a while he worked in Cleveland. While there he became interested in the Socialist movement, read quantities of Socialist literature and soon became known as a Socialist in the West.

Several years ago he left Cleveland and went to Chicago where he lived for several months. Then he returned to Cleveland and procured employment in the wire mills in Newburgh, a suburb of Cleveland. During the last few years he has gained quite a reputation in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and other western cities as an anarchist of the more bitter type. Some days ago Czolgosz attended a lecture given by Emma Goldman in Cleveland. Her doctrine that all rulers should be exterminated was accepted by him. He went away from the lecture determined to do something heroic for the cause. A little over a week ago while in Chicago he read in a Chicago paper of the intended visit of President McKinley to the Pan-American Exposition. A day or two later he bought a ticket for Buffalo. He came to this city with a half-formed purpose. The idea that he might have an opportunity to assassinate the President was in his mind, but the plot had not taken form at that time.

PLOT TOOK SHAPE

On Tuesday morning the plot to murder, which had occured to him days before took definite and final shape in his mind. He bought a 32-calibre revolver and loaded it. That evening he went to the Exposition early, and was near the railroad gate when the Presidential party arrived. He tried to get through the gate to the railroad station outside, so that he might be better able to approach the President, but the police forced him back. He stood close to the President when the latter go tinto his carriage for the drive through the grounds, but he was afraid to attempt the assassination owing to the presence of so many detectives. He feared he might not be able to draw his revolver and use it before they

PHILLIPINE WAR NOT YET OVER

Americans Have a Long Windedd War on Their Hands.

HOAX THE YANDEES IF THEY CAN

Woodstock, Sept. 10. — Mrs. Lewis Bush, of this city, has received a very interesting letter from her son, Will, who was with the 4th U. S. Cavalry in the Philippines. He writes from Manila, under date of July 22nd. His regiment, he said, was to be ordered home about August 1st, but he himself had decided to remain and "see the political drama through to the end." Accordingly he transferred to the 3rd Cavalry, and remained in the Philippines. His regiment has moved to the northern part of the Island, where the natives particularly object to any measures toward civilizing them. Private Bush continues,—

"While confined in the hospital at Angeles, I read several articles in American newspapers in reference to the situation over here, and with one or two exceptions they all stated that everything was quiet and that the inhabitants were accepting the civil government, which is being put in force here, with open arms. Really, I had to smile when I read that, as it is such rot. Just for an example, when civil government was being inaugurated in the town of Batangas, about 90 miles from Manila, and while the United States civil commissioners were feasting with the newly-appointed governor of the province, Col. Malavar and 150 insurgents made an attack on the town, and for a couple of hours the Americans had a high old time, finally driving him back into the mountains. Still you read that it is only a matter of a few days until the country will be as peaceful as the State of New York. Such rot! But, then, the American people like to be humbugged, and they have the right representatives over here to do the job for them.

A GREAT CRISIS MAY TAKE PLACE

What Will Happen Should President McKinley Die

ENTIPE CABINET CHANGED

Vice President Roosevelt May Fill Office and Assume Duties of Executive

Vice President—Theodore Roosevelt.
Secretary of state—John Hay.
Secretary of the treasury —Lyman J. Gage.
Secretary of war—Elihu Root.
Secretary of interior — Ethan A Hitchcock.
Secretary of the navy—John D. Long
Secretary of agriculture — James Wilson.
Postmaster general — Charles Emory Smith.
Attorney general — Philander K. Knox.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Upon the issue of President McKinley's wounds depend matters of the greatest importance to the people of the United States. A fatal issue will involve a complete reorganization of executive forces of the government.

Vice-President Theodore Roosevelt, would become president. Following precedents that have been established, the oath of office would be administered to the vice president whenever he happened to be just as soon after the death of the president as a judge of a court of record could reach his side, and an extra session of congress would be called in compliance with the existing law.

Steps have been taken to provide for the future of the executive branch of the government. It is realized that even under the most favorable conditions the president's injuries are of such a character as to make it almost certain that he cannot undertake for a long time to discharge the duties of chief executive, even in the most formal way. Every member of the cabinet able to travel is expected to speed at once to Buffalo and there a cabinet council will be held to decide upon the course to be followed by the executive branch.

ROOSEVELT TO ASSUME DUTIES

Vice President Roosevelt is in Vermont and, of course, will hold himself in readiness to do whatever is necessary to meet the obligations imposed upon the vice president by the constitution of the United States. These are contained in paragraph 6, section 1, article 2, in the following words:

In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president," etc.

Under the terms of this article, as soon as Mr. Roosevelt is assured by proper authority, probably in this case by the senior member of the cabinet, Secretary Hay, who is now in Buffalo will undertake at once in a provisional way to discharge such duties as may devolve upon him. Much will depend upon the report of the physicians upon the character of the president's injuries as to the extent to which Mr. Roosevelt will discharge the presidential duties, and it is almost certain that in the absence of great emergency in public affairs, even if called to assume these obligations, the vice president will confine himself in the exercise of his powers to the discharge of the most routine and indispensable functions.

FEAR FATAL TERMINATION

For the present the thought of a fatal termination of the president's condition is referred to with awelike apprehension and there is a hopeful, even prayerful, anticipation that there may be no need for meeting those grave emergencies which would follow a fatal termination of the tragic event.

The news to-night in the capital that the president is making a courageous fight against death is so favorable that his friends and subordinates in Washington are hoping that he will survive to serve out his second term. They believe his superb recuperative powers will come to his rescue, as they did last winter, and pull him out of the jaws of death. Nevertheless they are acutely alive to the seriousness of the misfortune that has overtaken him. Gunshot wounds sustained by men of Mr. McKinley's advanced years are likely to produce fatal consequences. It is upon this hypothesis that Washington is discussing to-night the probable effect of the death of the President.

WOULD MAKE A CLEAN SWEEP.

Nobody doubts that Mr. Roosevelt, if he should be called to the White House, would make a clean sweep of the present cabinet, that he would make revolutionary changes in the personnel of officials holding presidential offices not alone in Washington, but all over the country, that he would immediately enter upon reforms in the war and navy departments, with both of which he has repeatedly quarrelled in the past, and that he would revive questions and issues which have been partly suppressed by the friends of the present administration.

WILL GO THROUGH WHIRLPOOL RAPIDS

Peter Nissien of Chicago Will Make His Second Trip

WILL SEARCH FOR BOTTOM

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Peter Nissen, of this city, who on July 9, 1900, made a trip through the whirlpool rapids in his famous boat, the Fool-Killer, is preparing to make another trip, with the expressed intent of sounding the depth of the mysterious waters of the great Niagara whirlpool. It will be recalled that on sending Nissen's boat out of the pool it was partly wrecked, the heavy iron keel being torn off and the craft springing a leak. Since then Nissen has remodeled the boat, and it is now a little steamer, and in the coming trip he expects to emulate the trip of the Maid-of-the-Mist on June 6, 1861.

Nissen's boat now looks like a big, fat cigar. It is 11 feet long, four feet beam and six and one-half feet high. It has a new deck, and new and heavier ribs have been placed in it. The keel is made of narrow iron strips and weighs about 1700 pounds. An eight horse-power boiler has been installed, together with an engine, to operate a 28-inch propeller, and this power Nissen expects will carry him about the pool in competition with the mighty currents there. The boiler and engine rooms are in the middle of the craft, and are protected by bulkheads. The engine room is very small, and during the trip Nissen will sit on a shelflike arrangement at one side of the engine room, from which point he will manipulate the machinery. A 4-inch pipe extends through the bottom of the boat, and this will aid Nissen in making soundings, as through the pipe he will be enabled to lower his line and cast a lead. In the bow and stern are water-tight compartments, in which sealed cans are placed, and these are expected to float the boat in case its woodwork is injured.

When Nissen made his first trip he was swept about the whirlpool for an hour, but this time he hopes to spend two hours there.

CHEAP LABOR FOR AFRICA.

Proposal to Import Arabs to Work the Mine on the Rand.

London, Sept. 10.—The public condemnation of the proposition to import Chinese laborers into south Africa was so emphatic that Cecil Rhodes and his associates were obliged to abandon the idea. That person, however, masquerading as the Chartered Company hopes to get over its difficulties by introducing Arab laborers on a large scale. From inquiries made at the London offices of the company it appears that the first batch of Arabs now at the mines are working satisfactorily and with contentment.

Cecil Rhodes is largely responsible for the new arrangement and he has personally induced the present administration at Bulawayo to lend its official support. It is confidently hoped that within a few days the administration will pass a labor ordinance insuring proper treatment for the Arabs. Only on this understanding has the scheme received the practical support of his majesty's government.

The government has instructed its resident at Aden to give every facility to the Chartered Company's representative, who was sent there with the object of engaging Asiatic labor for Rhodesia. Over 350 Arabs sent from Aden have already been put to work at the mines, and the Chartered Company received a cable from its representative at Aden a few days ago saying that he hoped to ship 1,000 more laborers for Rhodesia by the end of next month. The reason for these importations is said to be the impossibility of obtaining sufficient native labor in SouthAfrica itself.

R. R. HUNGERFORD HAS PASSED AWAY

Grand Master of the Canadian Fre Masons Diad Monday.

HAD AN ATTACK OF PARALYSIS

London, Sept. 9.—R. B. Hungerford, Grand Master of Canada, A.F. & A.M., died at 5 o'clock this morning of paralysis.

Mr. Hungerford was elected Grand Master of the Grand Lodge in 1900, and was reelected this year. He had been a member of the craft for nearly 30 years, and was known throughout the length and breadth of his jurisdiction as an energetic popular and zealous worker. He was an Irishman by birth, being born in the County of Cork, in 1846, where his family "The Island Hungerfords" had been noted for generations. He came to Canada in 1862, and for a great many years was Inspector in Western Ontario for the North American Life Assurance Company. He joined the Masonic Order at Mount Brydges in 1872, as a member of St. John's Lodge, No. 81. At the time of his death he belonged to Kilwining Lodge, No. 64; the Tuscan, No. 195; and Union Lodge No. 380. He served for a time as D.D.G.M. of the London District. In Capitular Masonry he was a Past Z of St. George's Royal Arch Chapter, No. 5, and Past Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter of Canada. He filled all the subordinate offices in the lodge and chapter of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, was a member of the Novice Consistory, 32 degrees, of Hamilton, and an Honorary Inspector-General of the Supreme Council, 33 degrees, of the Dominion of Canada. He was also a Sir Knight of Richard Coeur de Lion Preceptory of Knights Templar, and a member of the Huron Conclave of the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine. Previous to his election as Deputy Grand Master, he was for a long period Chairman of the Credential Committee. He was also Grand Representative of the Grand Lodge of Michigan, near the Grand Lodge of Canada, and President of the Masonic Relief Association of the United States and Canada, which has its headquarters in Baltimore Md.

Mr. Hungerford was married and leaves a family of three, two sons and a daughter.

A Canadian sentiment.

Now and then we find an influential voice insisting that the French Canadians shall remain a separated people always cherishing the French ideal, never mixing with any other nationality, imbibing French sentiments, looking to the Mother Land for the highest sanctions and keeping themselves an undivided people who shall present a solid front—untouched by time or association with other people, who go to make up the population of Canada. This advice has been acted on only too well with the most baneful results. Generally, it may be said that the recognized leaders are ashamed to utter such sentiments, and those who best love the race have advised travel, intercourse, the loyal taking possession of the whole country as a common heritage. One of such leaders not long ago earnestly begged his compatriots to visit the Dominion, of which they knew so little; to travel through the great western provinces especially, and to get it into their minds that they were citizens, not of a province, but of a splendid commonwealth. This would broaden their minds give them a new sense of pride, and do away, in large measure, with provincialism, which has been our bane. It is little short of criminal for any man to urge a course which would make for our national belittlement. Our crying need is for a great solidarity. We need never expect to be influential until we have created a Canadian sentiment —not a French, not a British, but a Canadian sentiment—a national feeling which will thrill our people from ocean to ocean. We see too well the results of separation. Two languages, two school systems, two peoples, each with different ideals; racial antagonisms, thinly veiled, or sometimes not veiled at all, and disclosing themselves with brutality. The sense of strangeness when we touch our fellow citizens, the thought of two camps separated by a gulf of racial feeling, when there should be one common ground, of fellowship and effort. It is said, "Oh, but Quebec is peculiar, you know." Why should it be peculiar? Why should there not be the desire to assume the full rights of citizenship in a great country? Why cherish the notion of separation? Can it make for strength Does it not mean exclusion from the larger and better life of the country as a whole? We need a common purpose and a common song, and he who shall, with voice and pen, labor to bring about a community of interest between the two peoples who form our population will be the true leader and patriot, deserving our warmest thanks. We would have neither English, Irish, Scotch nor French sentiment. We would have a nation, showing a splendid blend of all these racial qualities, and we would call it Canadian.

A True Story.

Bedbugs are not very nice to talk about," said a citizen yesterday to The Times, "but this incident is perhaps worth telling, if only to illustrate the fact that even school teachers don't know everything. I live in a row of houses and recently a bride and groom took one of the properties and moved in. The bride had formerly been a school teacher. The other day she accosted one of her neighbors in this fashion: "I understand the people who previously occupied my house were troubled with bedbugs, and as I never saw one, and I have noticed several insects running about the premises. I thought I would bring this dead one to you and see if it really is a bedbug." With that she produced from a piece of paper the remains of a big black cockroach. She was assured that it was not a bedbug, and seemed greatly relieved.

SCOBELL TOOK BOER LAAGER

Recent Capture of Lotter and His Men a Well-Executed Plan.

BIG CAPTURES BY THE BRITISH

CCape Town, Sept. 9.—Colonel Scobell's capture of Lotter's commando recently was the result of a cleverly planned ad well executed surprise. The Boers occupied two Kaffir villages situated in a valley surrounded by high ridges.

At daylight the Cape Mounted Rifles and the Ninth Lancers surrounded the Boer position and with the first well directed volleys stampeded the Boer horses. As their retreat was cut off th eBoers took refuge in a big grain shed and hoisted a whiteflag. A trooper of the Ninth Lancers galloped forward to receive the surrender and was shot at a distance of twenty yards. Immediately afterwards Commandant Scobell himself came forward and surrendered personally. Nineteen Boers were killed, forty-six wounded, and one hundred captured.

STILL THEY COME.

Pretoria, Sept. 9.—The reports received during the past three or four days show over 250 Boers to have been killed or captured. Colonel Williams surrounded and captured a patrol of 20 Boers in the Magaliesburg.

Col Rimington had an engagement east of Kroonstad, in which he killed four Boers and captured twenty, in addition to many wagons and a quantity of stock.

Cols. Benson and CCopley effected two surprises on the Boers in the vicinity of Middleburg, Cape Colony, in which the burghers lost thirty men Col Murray captured six more at Vryburg.

HINDOOS FOR ARMY OFFICERS

High-Caste Natives of India Will be Intrusted With Commands.

London, Sept. 10.—Ever since the Sepoy rebellion it has been the policy of the British government to discourage any attempt on the part of aristocratic residents of India to attain high military rank. This policy was due to the well-founded suspicion that the high-caste natives were not to be trusted. But of late years this class has so often demonstrated its loyalty that a change has been decided upon. The plan contemplates the bestowal of military rank upon a certain number of highly born cadets. A large field is already provided for the military employment of native officers of good birth or position, nearly 3,000 being in the commissioned rank of the native army; but there has been a dearth of corresponding openings for the sons of Indian princes, nobles and gentlemen, who are every day receiving a superior education, but to whom opportunities of active public service when they reach years of manhood are restricted. A desire to gratify the military aspiration of these classes has long existed, but difficulties in connection with selection, tuition, military rank and duties have barred the way. The present experiment will be of a tentative character and some time must elapse before its details are fully worked out. It rests upon the periodical selection of a small number—probably to start with—of scions of noble families, who, with rare exceptions, will be drawn from the four chief colleges at Ajmere, Lahore, Rajkot and Indore and who will constitute what will be known as the Imperial Cadet corps under the command of a specially selected commandant and adjutant. The cadets will pass through a two years' course of training in the cold weather and will from time to time be in personal attendance upon the viceroy on ceremonial and other occasions. Such of them as exhibit special capacity will then pass through a course of military training in a garrison class and ultimately will be appointed to staff positions or other extra-regimental military employment. The scheme is said to have the enthusiastic support of Edward VII.

THE GREAT LEAK.

Many Citizens Believe That It is the Works Department.

That the taxes of the town are increasing by leaps and bounds no one will deny. We know of property that pays one-third more now than it did six or eight years ago, and this without any increase in the amount of the assessment. This increase is due mainly to the building way our street work has been, and is being performed. As a sample of this we would refer to the work at the corner of George and Brock streets, which has to be done over again at a cost, it is said, of $700. Look again at the great waste that was incurred in the cutting down of Murray Street, which served no purpose other than to injure the thoroughfare. The cement walk in front of the Oriental Hotel had to be relaid, and thus it goes. The only cure, it seems to us, would be to place in the council enough new men who will pledge themselves to a certain defined policy in regard to civic expenditure, and who will put a stop to the present regime of uncompetency and waste.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWY SYSTEM

It is expected that on Railroad Day the largest number of Railway men will be congregated together, than on any former occasion. Buffalo being a great Railway centre, having a population of 400,000, a large number of them being engaged in Railway work. In order to give the Railway men and their friends an opportunity of visiting Buffalo, special excursion fares have been arranged by the Grand Trunk Railway System. Tickets will be valid going by all regular train Friday September 13th and good for return passage on all regular trains Monday September 16th. Ask your nearest Grand Trunk agent about it.

In connection with this excursion the Grand Trunk Railway System will issue Engraved Souvenir admission tickets to Exposition at 50 cents for adults. These tickets can be purchased from Agents at starting points.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 10 1901

THE PICNIC SEASON

If our friends the Conservatives hope to vie with our friends the Liberals in Roman Catholic estimation they will have to either attend more Catholic picnics or receive more invitations to attend. Hon. E. J. Davis and Hon. J. R. Stratton, (by the way how silly this "honorabling" of Provincial cabinet officers)—are right in it from the start, and it is up to the Conservatives to do likewise or quit. Speaking of picnics puts us in mind of the story of an escaped lunatic, who addressed a political meeting for an hour with great fervour and to the delight of the friends of one side. He did not know what he was talking about. Nor did they, but he happened to say that Tories were a pack of thieves, at which the audience fell to the floor in an ecstasy of delight. His keeper arrived shortly afterwards and put him in a strait-jacket. (Sic transit gloria mundi, or any other man! This is the sort of thing this great country is run on.

THE SHADOW OF WAR

The man who told the Cincinnati Enquirer the other day that the United States government is making preparations for war with some European power of the first rank, presumably Germany, may be well informed as to the facts. Before giving absolute credence to his story, however, it would be interesting to know who he is, and what sources of information he has at his command that has escaped the watchful eyes and ears of the Washington correspondents. Possible complications over South America are hinted at as the fomenting cause of strife, with the Monroe doctrine impelling the United States to take arms if necessary to prevent the extension of any European sphere of influence of this side of the Atlantic. War on such a ground is not an impossibility, but it is at least unlikely to happen soon. There is a large German vote in the republic which would not favor a struggle with the Fatherland, and the serious nature of a war with a first-class power will prevent any government from entering upon it lightly. The army and the navy that found Spain so easy would have their work cut out if Germany were in the case.

THE FATE OF THE LOSER

When the war in South Africa was going in favor of the Boers, there was a disposition in some quarters to blame the British generals. Something of the same sort of treatment is being meted out to President Shaffer now that the steel strike looks like a defeat for the men, yet Shaffer, no more than the generals referred to, will be responsible for defeat if it comes. The lot of a labor "leader" is far from enviable. As a matter of fact, he is usually not a "leader" at all, in any proper sense of the word; his authority is so circumscribed, and it is shared by so many others who figure less prominently before the public, that he is often little more than the mouthpiece for a committee, and may be compelled to put into effect and defend the very policy which he is convinced ought not to have been adopted.

Among those not well informed as to the facts there is an impression that a leader such as Shaffer occupies a position similar to that of a dictator—that he can order the rank and file of the membership of his organization to cause work or to resume, just as he pleases. Nothing could be farther from the truth. There may be unions in which power of the kind is entrusted temporarily to some one in whom the workers have confidence, but they are extremely rare, and no wise leader will seek or favor such action. The thoroughly democratic character of these organizations prevents the concentration of authority in the hands of those at their head, and any tendency on the part of the so-called "leaders" to exceed the powers conferred on them by the constitutions of their various unions would be the signal for their prompt deposition.

At the same time, the man who has the misfortune to be in the front of a losing battle, as is likely to be the case with Theodore Shaffer, usually is loaded with more than his fair share of the odium of failure, and drops into oblivion with as little delay as possible. And such oblivion may be, and often is, better, financially and every other way for the once honored but now discredited general of labor's hosts who found his capital stock none too strong for him.

SOUTH AFRICA'S FUTURE.

Washington, Sept. 9.—In a report to the State Department Consul-General Stowe at Cape Town declares that in 1900 the United States exported a greater amount of goods to South Africa than ever before.

If the permission of the Portuguese Government can be obtained, he says, a railroad will be built from Delagoa Bay to Johannesburg. He declares Johannesburg probably will reach a population of 500,000.

The Consul General quotes Lord Roberts as saying that American are superior to either Cape or English wagons.

Mr. Stowe says $100,000,000 will be expended in building up the Transvaal and the Orange River colony, and adds: "We must not fail to bid for this work."

A Mistaken Notion

Many hotel men appear to harbor the idea that the law permits them to dispose of liquor to their so-called guests—that is lodgers and boarders who stop in their houses and make them their homes — in prohibited hours. Such an idea is a mistake, it seems, as it cannot be legally done. It was done some years ago, but the privilege was so much abused that action had to be taken to prevent it; so the judges decided that no exception could be taken in the case of guests any more than the general public, as so many persons were attempted to be palmed off as guests who were not such at all. So all sales had to be shut off when the disposal of liquor was forbidden in licensed places, except in the cases of sickness and then only under a genuine unquestionable doctor's certificate. The truth of this can be confirmed by any reputable lawyer.

FRANCE AND TURKEY

Paris, Sept. 9.—The possibility of a conflict at arms between France and Turkey is discussed seriously by men close to the foreign office. It is reported that men-of-war have been ordered to proceed to Turkish waters and unless Abdul Hamid quickly accedes to the French demands troops will be landed at an early day on the Sporadis islands in Aegean sea.

President Loubet has lost all patience with the dilatory and provoking tactics of the Turk and the general impression in Paris is that hostilities will not be long delayed.

A despatch from Vienna says the French government's course in the dispute with Turkey meets with the approval of a majority of the powers and also of public opinion in Europe, and adds that the sultan's overweening infatuation dates from the pan-Islamic agitation following the Armenian massacres five years ago. He then impressed upon his moslem subjects that the powers were afraid to interfere. Pan-Islamism was further encouraged by the visit of Emperor William to Constantinople. The dea of a misson to China profoundly impressed Mohammedans. The sultan is said to be dominated by an absorbing idea of pan-Islamism. Powers having Mohammedan subjects are pleased with the vigorous course France has taken. They believe that the rupture of diplomatic relations between France and Turkey will serve as a warning.

Constantinople, Sept. 9.—The German ambassador on Monday communicated to the porte the kaiser's declination to intervene, advising the palace to come to an understanding with France.

It appears that M. Delcasse's letter requiring Munir Bey to leave the country expressed astonishment that Munir should illuminate the embassy and give a banquet on the anniversary of the sultan's accession in view of the rupture in relations between France and Turkey.

The Turkish ambassador in London, Costaki Anthopulo Pasha, has been instructed to inform Great Britain that the action of the commander of a British warship in the Persian gulf in preventing the Turkish corvette Sebob from entering Koweyt is incompatible with friendly relations. The British side of the controversy is that the Sebob was trying to land Turkish troops on the territory of a sheikh who is independent of Turkey.

THE C. P. R.

The 20th annual report of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which has just been issued for the period of eighteen months, ended June 30th, 1901, is considered by far the most encouraging statement of affairs ever issued.

The immense system now embraces upwards of 10,533 miles. The condensed balance sheet shows the assets of the company to amount to $291,518,571, the cost of railway and equipment being $225,553,616.

The steamships, ocean, lake and river, are valued at $5,791, 815.

The earnings for the twelve months ended June 30 were $30,855,203. For the last full year for which returns have been received ending with December, 1899, the gross earnings were $29,230,028.

The working expenses were in 1899, $16,999,872, and in the twelve months covered by the report, $18,745, 828, leaving the net earnings $12,230, 165 for 1899, and $12,109, 375 for 1900-01. Like all other large systems the C.P.R. has felt the increase in the cost of wages, material, etc.; taking this into account and the partial failure of last year's wheat crop, the statement is most satisfactory. During the year the road carried 4,337,799 passengers, and 7,155, 813 tons of freight, the average passenger fare being 1.93 cents a mile, the charge per ton of freight 0.79 cents per mile.

The working expenses for the year amounted to 60.75 per cent. of the gross earnings, and the net earnings to 39.25 per cent., as compared to 58.16 and 41.84 per cent. respectively in 1899.

The report points out that in view of the rapidly increasing development of Pacific trade and the desirability of securing as much as possible of that trade, the directors recommend that a suitable line of coasting steamers be provided by the company, and as the steamers and other property of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company, actively engaged in the business and with established trade relations, could be secured on terms that appeared to be advantageous, it was deemed desirable to acquire the same at an expense of five hundred and thirty-one thousand dollars ($531,000,00). Since the purchase was made, another steamer has been added to the fleet at an expense of one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars ($175,000,00) Before next season, it may be necessary to provide one more steamer for the northern or Yukon trade, and one for the route between Vancouver and Victoria.

The growth of the Company's traffic on the Pacific Ocean suggests the importance of providing at an early date an additional steamship, somewhat larger and faster than the present Pacific steamship of the company.

In order to provide for these expenditures, the shareholders will be asked to authorize the issue of steamship bonds to the amount of four hundred and eighty thousand pounds (£480,000) sterling.

The report concludes by expressing much regret at the death of Hon. D. A. Macinnes, one of the Board.

SAYS APPENDIX IS USEFUL

Denver, Colorado, Sept. 6—At a meeting of the Rocky Mountain Interstate Medical Association to-day Dr. E. P. Hershey read a paper in which he claimed the discovery that the vermiform appendix universally supposed to be a detriment and a danger to man was in reality a very necessary part of the anatomy. This is the first time this claim has ever been made.

Dr. Hershey's theory is that the function of the appendix is to create a lubricant for the caecum, or the beginning of the large intestine. In the discussion which followed it was decided that Dr. Hershey's theory was not conclusively proven and his paper was thrown out with the recommendation that another year's study be spent on it before it be announced to the world.

Keys Lost.

The old proverb: "To be at peace prepare for war," is the secret of the larger part of life's successes, whether of nations or individuals.

The difference between the healthy, happy mother who has healthy children to nurse and nourish, and the weak, nervous mother, with a weakling child, is mostly a difference of preparation.

The great preparative for motherhood is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces refreshing sleep. It gives the mother strength to give her child. It imparts elasticity and strength to the organs of maternity so that the baby's advent is practically painless.

"I take pleasure in writing you to let you know about your 'Favorite Prescription,'" says Mr. E. E. Fricke, of Petersburg, Menard Co., Ill., Box 367. "My wife had been sick nearly all her life, and after trying everything I could think of I made up my mind to try 'Favorite Prescription.' I sent to Chicago and got six bottles, which my wife took, a tablespoonful three times a day, until the baby came. She felt better after taking the first bottle, and when baby was born he weighed nine and a half pounds. To-day he is six months old and weighs twenty-two pounds. He is as good a child as any one could wish. The doctor says he is as healthy as any baby could be, and also the doctor says your 'Favorite Prescription' was the cause of such a healthy baby. I felt I owed you this much for the good you did my wife and myself. I hope you will mention this to others who may be in need of such help, and you may refer them to me, as I would be glad to tell of the good of such a valuable medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE SHOOTING OF PRESIDENT McKINLEY

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 8.

The attack upon the President has created a profound sensation and the people of Buffalo regard it with a feeling of poignant grief. It was at their invitation that the President and his party came to Buffalo, and they have a sense of personal responsibility for his safety. President Milburn and the officers of the Exposition directorate feel the deepest regret. While they had no knowledge or suggestion that there would be an attempt on the life of Mr. McKinley, the subject was one of the matters considered in arranging for the visit. They discussed the matter with the police of Buffalo and at their request several local officers were detailed to assist in guarding the person of the President. These men were on duty when the attack was made.

Hundreds of telegrams of regret continue to pour in from all over the world. They come from people in all walks of life, and are deeply sympathetic in tenor. All of them express fervent hope for the recovery of the President. The relatives of the President have hurried here and with them have come a large number of men in public life.

Buffalo is very quiet and there is not the slightest sign of disorder. There was talk of lynching last night, and whenever a crowd assembled there were bitter denunciations of the assassin's work. The police arrested a few men for inciting riot, but let them go this morning. The feeling to-day is no less intense than yesterday, but it will not find expression in mob violence.

CLEVELAND POLICE HARD AT WORK

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 8.

Acting on statements made by the man under arrest for the attempt on the life of the President, the Cleveland police went systematically at work to find if there was a gang of anarchists in Cleveland to which the crime could be traced. Every effort was made by the police apparently to locate any possible associates of acquaintences of the man arrested in Buffalo, and a number of men were examined at police headquarters without result so far as the police have announced. The men taken into the "sweat box" were allowed to go after their examination, but two of them were kept under the tension for hours.

Despite the confession of the President's assailant, in which he stated that he had had no confederates and had not acted for any organization, the police spent the night looking for the organization that is thought to be back of the act of the would-be assassin.

RESTLESS MOB AROUND THE JAIL

Buffalo, Sept. 8.—The closing of the Exposition grounds Saturday night shifted the centre of interest and passion to the streets of the city. The crowd, full ready to slay the anarchist, but not strong enough in temper and leadership to overcome the law, hung around and cordoned approaches to the prison. Ready and skillful mounted police, without a moment's loss of temper, kept the mob checked at every critical point; lines of constables roughly threw the stragglers of the crowd back, as they pressed towards the forbidden streets that led to the police station or jail. There seemed few policemen, and the mob had hundreds on the spot and possessed potential reinforcements of thousands who, pacing the near-by streets, would dash to the scene of noise if a serious riot were to be heard.

The people were quietly murderous, the remarks commonly heard being that the assassin should be lynched. In large measure the crowd was composed of young men and lads who were excited and angry, and craved to be doing something.

Buffalo people are absolutely dismayed at the blow dealt to the welfare of their city, for it is felt that the Pan-American cannot recover from the shadow of the crime, and Buffalo is heavily committed to the fortunes of the Pan-American. Their President is struck down—and one hears snatches of conversation which show the average man in the light both of having an unexpectedly strong reverence for the office of the Chief Executive and a strong regard for Mr. McKinley personally—and their local and personal interests are dealt a staggering blow. The flippant craving for excitement which overlies the real horror and detestation of the crime, the anger of the foul treachery of the outrage, the feeling that the people have been wronged as well as the President gives a false air to the crowd, which, now doing nothing worse than hooting half-bitterly, half-derisively at the policemen, would on an instant turn furious an ddangerous. No conviction in favor of the lawful course, no dislike for the sudden violence of the lynching mob, appears to exist as a brake, and it only needs an accession of passion in a throng already tense with excitement to set it aflame.

MRS. McKINLEY BEARS UP BRAVELY

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 9.

President McKinley maintains a good measure of his strength, and those who watch at his bedside hold higher hope for his ultimate recovery. The shock from the wounds inflicted upon him by Leon F. Czolgosz seems to be less than was anticipated and that is regarded as highly favorable to him. It is admitted that the crisis in his condition has not yet come and that there is the gravest danger until it has been safely passed. Several bulletins came from the chamber of the wounded President during the night and early hours of the morning and they all indicated a spirit of hopefulness. The President rested well, there were no alarming condition of temperature or pulse, and the spirits of the sufferer were strong and cheery. The feeling of hope was quite general about the Milburn residence this morning, in sharp contrast to the hopelessness and regret that prevailed last night. Mrs. McKinley bears up bravely in her sorrow, and the physicians in attendance feel but little concern on her account. At the request of the President, whose first thought was of her she was told that he was not seriously wounded, and when she saw him he had rallied from his operation, and was suffering but little pain. She was reassured by their meeting and was content to leave his side during the night, and rest herself. The surgeons who operated on the President are in constant attendance with a corps of the most skilled nurses obtainable, and the sufferer is the recipient of every care which their skill and science suggests. They have not publicly discussed the case other than to issue brief bulletins from time to time, but it is understood that they believe the President will recover unless complications not now anticipated come to sap his strength and vitality.

With a common impulse to spare the sufferer the annoyance that noise would inflict, the public avoids the neighborhood where the Milburn residence is located. Early in the night a small crowd gathered near the house eager for news of the President, but the police had no trouble in keeping the people at proper distance.

SOLDIERS ON GUARD.

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 8.

Early this morning a detachment of the Fourteenth United States Infantry was ordered to the house from Fort Porter. A picket line was established in front of the house, but he sentries found no work to do. Ropes were stretched across Delaware avenue in order to keep teams off that thoroughfare. A party of reporters kept a lonely vigil during the night, but besides them there were not a dozen persons in the neighborhood at 7.30 o'clock this morning. The Milburn residence was a large two and one-half story brick building, and it stands on the west side of Delaware avenue, two doors from the corner of West Ferry street. Graceful ivy climbs over the front of it, and on the large lawn which surrounds it are a number of pretty shade trees. The President lies in the rear room on the second floor. The room was chosen because it insured the greatest quiet. Telegraph wires have been led to the stable in the rear of the Milburn residence and offices opened there. The bulletins telling of the condition of the President are sent there by Dr. Rixey, and at once transmitted to the world.

CZOLGOSZ IS UNCONCERNED.

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 8.

Leon F. Czolgosz, the man who shot the President, slept in comfort after his crime. He was locked up at No. 1 police station, and after he had been interviewed by the officers of the law, a watch of two men was placed on him. He went to his bunk early and was soon asleep. He seemed without regret and undisturbed by the prospect of punishment for his crime. The police machinery of the entire country has been set in motion to expose the plot against the life of the President if plot there was. The detectives of this city and every other in the country have joined hands with the great secret system of the Federal Government, and if ingenuity, skill and energy count, the secrets of the crime will be ferreted out. Czolgosz insists that he alone planned the crime, which may rob the United States of its ruler, but that statement is not accepted as true. There is a belief that he was aided by others in a deliberate plot, and that confederates accompanied him to Buffalo and assisted in its execution. The police and secret agents are working privately and if they have made any progress toward the establishment of the plot theory they have not divulged the nature of it. They do insist that the prisoner locked up at Police Station No. 1 is not insane, and that his act was not simply the crime of a lunatic with homicidal tendency. Czolgosz is kept in absolute seclusion by the police, and none save the officers have seen him.

ARRESTS MADE IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 8.—The names of the men arrested last night on the charge of being implicated in the plot to assassinate President McKinley are: Abram Isaak, Abraham Isaak, Jr., Hippolyte Havel, Henry Trevegilo, Clemens Pfeutzner, Alfred Schneider.

The examination of the prisoners lasted until early this morning, but the police refused to make public what information had been secured.

Capt. Colleran, Chief o fthe Detective Bureau, however, gave out the following:

"The raid was made in consequence of a telegram from secret service officials in Buffalo asking us to investigate and learn the whereabouts of the headquarters of a paper known as the Free Society. We traced the owner to the house at 515 Carrogg avenue, and there found the persons arrested, apparently in the midst of an important meeting. All the prisoners admit they are anarchists, and do not hesitate to say that they have no regard for the laws as now enforced.

"Some of the men, I learned, have served terms in prison in their native countries for attempted crimes inspired by their anarchistic beliefs. The paper Free Society published by Isaak, I have learned was formerly issued on the Pacific coast, and it was only recently that Isaak opened an office here."

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING.

Ottawa, Sept. 8.—Mr. H. M. Campbell, trooper in division "A" troop 17 South African Constabulary, writes from Hout Kop, Transvaal, an interesting letter to a friend in this city, under date of July 30, in which he gives considerable information.

Trooper Campbell says: "I am going to write you a short account of the part our Canadian troops, now in South Africa, are playing. The South African Constabulary is engaged in operations which at present do not receive much notice from the press. However, the value of them will be visible in a very short time. The two colonies have been divided into four large S.A.C. divisions, and we Canadians are portioned out between them. Three troops of 300 men are in each division. We are now engaged in taking up positions all over the country. No 17 troop, "B.C.," for instance, reached Hout Kop (High Koppie") about two months ago. We have expended this two months in fortifying the position and making it habitable for troops. Another troop, No. 15, is almost in sight of us, about seven miles northeast, at a farm called Vlakfontein, doing exactly the same thing. Now the object of all this labour is to build a chain of forts through the country, close enough to be in almost constant touch with each other, and to maintain and keep up communication by means of patrols. The value of this work is at once apparent. However, fort building is only a side issue. We have to keep up our end in reducing the remnant of the once invincible Boer army to submission. This is being accomplished slowly, and, just for that reason, the more surely. As far as my own particular troop is concerned, we are in continual touch with the enemy.

"Quite a serious skirmish took place on the 11th instant. We were on patrol. Captain Bennett, of Vancouver, in command. About seven miles west of this post, at a farm called Zuurfontein, we ran into a large commando of Boers under Dreyer. We estimated their number at between two and three hundred. We only had 21 men out, so you can imagine what a hot corner it was. It was a case of fight and no mistake, and fight those 21 men did in a way that made a man proud of his birthright and of a country that could produce such stamina. We suffered quite a serious loss: Major Chalmers, N. W. M. P., killed; Trooper Sproule, Golden, B.C., killed; Trooper C. Begg, Okonagan B.C., killed Trooper G. L. Herchmer, Rossland, B.C. seriously wounded in the head. The wounded were: Trooper Jack Gravely Nelson, B.C., recovering; Trooper Thomas Curtis, Nelson B.C., recovering; Trooper McIntyre, Fort Steele, recovering.

The Boer loss was 36 killed and 31 wounded, and they were compelled to send into Vereniging for surgical assistance. Our Captain Bennett acted in a most gallant manner, and endeared himself permanently in the hearts of his troop.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directores—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * * * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advretiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June, New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6.89. miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from the Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Cancer Attacks the Middle-Aged

It is a well known fact, that any physician will substantiate, that there is a greater percentage of Cancer among those of midlife than at any other age.

Persons at this time of life, would do well to regard with suspicion, any lumps or growths on their body. Should these prove malignant or of a cancerous nature, they can be removed completely without operation, by the use of our painless home treatment.

It is the most successful remedy for the cure of cancers and tumors and has cured numbers of people here in Canada and saved them from the torture of the surgeon's knife or the painful plaster.

PETERBOROUGH SEPTEMBER 10 1901

JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN.

—There was a big practice last night of the royal chorus.

—The North Star will discontinue her daily trips after Saturday next.

—The weekly drill of the 57th Regiment will take place this evening.

—Every photograph taken at Whiten's studio is guaranteed not to fade, and is the best quality of work that can be made.

Just in—the best assortment of English novels ever shown in Peterborough. Sell on first sight. 10 cents each. See north window in Times Bookstore, Market block, Peterborough.

—Don't miss the chance—people residing out of town to call next time when in town at Times Bookstore and have a look through the new English novels we are selling at less than cost. Perhaps you will find the titles you have been waiting for years to find.

—The local agents of both the G. T. R. and the C. P. R. have decided to enforce the storage regulations in respect to freight hereafter. This course of action is found necessary on account of the overcrowding of the freight sheds.

—The death occurred on Sunday evening of Hazel Eva, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Mr. T. H. Graham, of the 4th line of Smith. The deceased had been ailing for a short time only of spinal trouble. The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery.

Malt Breakfast Food

HAS IMPORTANT ADVANTAGES OVER ALL OTHER GRAIN FOODS

Malt Breakfast Food possesses special and important advantages over all other grain foods. While it has become the chosen breakfast dish of the well and strong, keeping digestion perfect and the brain clear, it has become the popular food with thousands suffering from dyspepsia and indigestion. Dyspepsia subjects find Malt Breakfast Food an infallible cure for their troubles. Weak stomachs relish the great health food; it is easily digested, and furnishes all the nourishment required. Malt Breakfast Food is a blessing to all who suffer from stomach derangements. All Grocers sell it.

Police Court.

Mr. T. Stevenson, manager here for Mr. T. G. Holmes, junk dealer, was arrested, charged with receiving a quantity of copper wire, knowing the same to be stolen. The wire is alleged to have been taken from the premises of the Canadian General Electric Co.

Stevenson is a one-armed man, of about 26 years of age apparently, and came here recently from Port Hope.

At the police court yesterday afternoon he pleaded not guilty, and the case was enlarged until the 17th. Prisoner was represented by Mr. E. B. Stone. Bail for $200 was accepted.

Pimples and Blotches.

how unsightly, sometimes disgusting, mortifying to the sufferer and unpleasant to all. An evidence of poor blood and lowered vitality of the eliminating organs. They need toning up—the whole system does. You can quickly bring about the improved condition by using Ferrozone. Poisons are driven out of the blood, organs grow stronger, the blood richer, the nerves stronger. Pimples and blotches disappear, color becomes good. Glad! just try and see how much joy can be gotten out of a box of Ferrozone. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Municipal Ownership.

Port Arthur owns its own street railway, being the first town in Canada to install a municipal trolley system; owns its own lighting system and has not given away its water franchise. The town recently refused to entertain a proposition from the "Wizard of the North" to turn the plums over to him, to enrich private individuals at public expense. The people are beginning to realise that they get better service for less money by public ownership than by private owned public service.

Cramps Are Like Burglars,

they come unexpected, and when they are least welcome. Be armed with a one minute cure for cramps and keep Polson's Nerviline handy. It acts instantaneously. Nerviline's anodyne power is unique, for its composition expresses the highest medical progress of the age. Polson's Nerviline is a true comfort in the family, for in all derangements of the stomach and bowels it is an absolute specific. Nerviline has five times greater medicinal value than any other remedy and is sold in large 25c. bottles. Try it.

REV. FATHER PHELAN.

Lindsay's Tribute of Love and Respect.

Rev. Father Phelan has reason to feel proud of the honors he has received since his elevation to the priesthood about six years ago. These honors do not consist in preferment in office, but in the love and esteem which his faithful and earnest discharge of his priestly duties have engendered, both in his brethren of the clergy, whom he has labored as a pastor, and in the hearts of the people among whom he labored as a pastor, and in the estimation of our citizens as a body.

For the past three years and seven months he has been assistant to Rt. Rev. Mgr. Laurent, of Lindsay. A practical evidence was afforded in Lindsay on Friday night of how Rev. Fr. Phelan has endeared himself to the people of Lindsay during his brief stay amongst them. His Lordship the Bishop having transferred Rev. Fr. Phelan to Peterborough, he promptly responded to the call of duty. The position of a priest resembles closely that of the soldier mentioned in the gospel: "Go and he goeth, come and he cometh; do this and he doeth it."

The people of Lindsay could not permit Father Phelan to leave without expressing their affection for him as a priest, and their appreciation of his services. Over 100 members of the congregation, including a number of ladies assembled in the spacious C. M. B. A. parlor in the parish hall to bid him an affectionate farewell on the eve of his departure for Peterborough, and to give expression to the feelings aroused by a sense of the loss which the parish was about to sustain. Mgr. Laurent was present, also Rev. Father Sullivan, of Peterborough, who succeeds Fr. Phelan as curate of St. Marys'.

Mr. A. P. Devlin, chairman, opened the proceedings with a few appropriate remarks relative to the object of the gathering and then called upon Mr. W. F. O'Boyle, who stepped forward and read an address on behalf of the congregation of St. Mary's. The address was a work of art, being engrossed in the old scriptural text, with illuminated hand-painted capitals and ornaments, and had been executed by Mrs. A. O'Loughlin.

Rev. Father Phelan made an eloquent and feeling reply, in which he spoke of the pleasant relationship which had existed between the people of Lindsay and himself. He concluded by asking a blessing for them all.

Short but interesting addresses were also made by Mgr. Laurent, Senator McHugh, Police Magistrate Steers, Alderman O'Reilly, Mr. Thomas Brady, Mr. Jas. Killen, Mr. Kingsley, Mr. A. D. Mallon, Mr. D. O'Connell and Mr. M. J. Kenny, all eulogistic of Father Phelan's good qualities and expressing regret at the severance of pleasant relations.

During the evening Mgr. Laurent took advantage of an opportunity to introduce to those present Rev. Father Sullivan, the new curate, who received a warm welcome and made a few happy remarks suitable to the occasion.

Injured in Toronto.

Mrs. A. R. Plumm, Aylmer, met with a painful accident in Toronto last week. It appears that she was in the act of coming down stairs, when she tripped and fell headlong the full length of the stairs, striking the newel post at the bottom with great force, and fracturing her collar bone. She also received a number of severe bruises about the head and back. She was brought home on Saturday evening, and is now doing as well as could be expected.

Over-Assessment.

As an instance of the way real estate in town is over-assessed, we might mention that the other day a certain property on Hunter street was sold for less than it was assessed for. This is the case in hundreds of cases. The assessment should be reduced all around.

KNOWLEDGE OF FOOD.

Proper Selection of Great Importance in Summer.

The feeding of infants is a very serious proposition as all mothers know. Food must be used that will easily digest, or the undigested parts will be thrown into the intestines and cause sickness.

It is important to know that a food can be obtained that is always safe; that is Grape-Nuts.

A mother writes: "My baby took the first premium at a baby show on the 8th inst., and is in every way a prize baby. I have fed him on Grape-Nuts since he was five months old. I also use your Postum Food Coffee for myself." Mrs. L. F. Fishback, Alvin, Tex.

Grape-Nuts food is not made solely for a baby food by any means, but is manufactured for all human beings who have trifling, or serious, difficulties in the stomach and bowels.

One especial point of value is that the food is predigested in the process of manufacture, not by any drugs or chemicals whatsoever, but simply by the action of heat, moisture, and time, which permits the diastase to grow, and change the starch into grape-sugar. This presents food to the system ready for immediate assimilation.

Its especial value as a food, beyond the fact that it is easily digested, is that it supplies the needed elements to quickly rebuild the cells in the brain and nerve centers throughout the body.

PRESIDENT RECOVERING

would discover him and then his chance would be gone. So he permitted the President to escape. The next morning he went to the Exposition early and took up a post on close to the stand from which the President spoke. Several times the idea came to him of shooting the President while he was delivering the address, but he could not approach sufficiently close to make his aim certain so he waited. When the President got into his carriage again the mounted escort formed a cordon about him, and Czolgosz became hopelessly entangled in the crowd. Yesterday morning Czolgosz was at the Exposition again. He waited near the railroad gate for the President, who boarded his special train at this point, but the police were too watchful, and nobody but the President's party was permitted to pass through the station where the train was in waiting. He remained at the Exposition all day waiting for the President to return. In the meantime he had hit upon the scheme of concealing his revolver under his handkerchief. He was one of the first in the Temple of Music, where the public reception was held. He fell into the line with the rest of the people and when his turn came to shake hands with the Chief Executive of the nation, he fired two shots with the muzzle of the revolver close to the President's body. He said he would have fired more but for the fact that someone struck him a frightful blow. "Did you mean to kill the President?" asked District Attorney Penney. "I did." replied Czolgosz. "What was your motive?" "I am a disciple of Emma Goldman," was the only reply he would make. Czolgosz at no time expressed any regret for his act. If he regretted anything it was the fact that his attempt to kill the President apparently had failed. He positively denied that he had any accomplices or confidents. He said he had conceived the plot to murder alone and that he was the agent of no organization.

He also declared that he was in no way connected with the anarchists whose agent, Bresci, assassinated King Humbert of Italy.

CAUSE OF THE CRIME

New York, Sept. 9.

While millions are sorrowing over the attempt to kill President McKinley and are watching anxiously for the bulletins which tell of his brave fight for life, there is one woman who is generally credited with different feelings. This is Emma Goldman, an Anarchist product of the East Side slums, who, according to the confession of Czolgosz, by fiery speeches persuaded him to become an assassin. She is reported to have said repeatedly that it would be the proudest moment of her life when she could persuade some man to kill a ruler.

Just where the Goldman woman is now is a question which the police of four cities are trying to solve. She was driven out of New York five months ago by the police. They stopped her various meetings and told her to leave the city or be arrested. She went from here to Toledo, then to Detroit, and next to Cleveland. The last time the police of this city heard of her she was holding meetings in Toledo. It was there that Czolgosz says he heard her speak, and was persuaded that the American form of government was wrong and that it was his duty to remove its head.

Rheumatic Joints.—Mrs. George Smith, 62 Charron street, Point St. Charles, Que., says: "Rheumatism in my joints caused me sufferings that words cannot describe how terrible. I took four bottles of South American Rheumatic Cure and am a well woman. I have recommended it to others with as good results. Think the treatment nothing short of a wonder."—10 Sold by H. H. Edmison.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

The Ministers of the Town Meet and Transact Some Business.

The Ministerial Association met yesterday morning for the first time since the holidays, and an informal discussion took place in regard to the introduction of religious instruction in the schools. It was decided to postpone the date of the annual elections until the October meeting of the Association.

The following schedule of visits to the Nicholls Hospital and the Peterborough Protestant Home was drawn up:

Nicholls' Hospital.

Monday, Sept. 9th Rev. D. O. Crossley.

Monday, Sept. 16th—Rev. George Yule.

Monday, Sept. 23rd—Rev. J. P. Wilson.

Monday, Sept. 30th—Rev. J. C. Davidson.

Peterborough Protestant Home.

Wednesday, Sept. 11th — Rev. D. O. Crossley.

Wednesday, Sept. 18th — Rev. G. Yule.

Wednesday, Sept. 25th — Rev. J. P. Wilson.

Wednesday, Oct. 2nd — Rev. J. C. Davidson.

What Experience Teaches.

"Even the most meritorious article needs thorough advertising in the leading newspapers in order to make its way. An article which is without real merit may have a considerable sale if it be well advertised; but within six months or a year the venture will fail. You don't feel the full effects of newspaper advertising at once, as a rule. You have to wait to get the cumulative effects. No advertiser can afford to suspend advertising for a time." These are the opinions of a successful proprietary medicine man.

Stop Thief.

would be a justifiable cry directed against countless humbugs that offer a cure for Catarrh. There is only one scientific method of treatment for Catarrh. Make the air you breathe the carrier of healing, balsamic, curative agents. It bathes every inch of mucous membranes with its healing, soothing properties. That's Catarrhozone. Your druggist or doctor will tell you it's the only effective method of treatment and that it is sure—prompt—permanent. Remember the name, Catarrhozone. All dealers, 25c. and $1.00.

What an Ad Did.

Mrs. Bradburn, London street, advertised for a servant and secured one two hours after the ad. appeared in The Times. Everybody reads The Times.

"THE WOMAN TEMPTED ME."

The Club Came to the Conclusion that There are Separate Codes of Ethics.

It was properly speaking, the afternoon set aside by the woman's club for the discussion of missions. Before the members could be called to order, however, one of the number started an informal talk on a subject somewhat nearer home, and the matter of missions was allowed to go over to the next meeting.

The member waved aloft a newspaper and read an extract describing arrests made in a saloon which was violating the closing law by being open on Sunday. The men and women were all taken to the station house. In closing the account of the very ordinary occurrence the paper said:

"The proprietor was held for trial for violation of the liquor tax law. The Magistrate committed the women to jail for a month each. He discharged the thirty-five men."

"This," said the member with the newspaper, "is such a common happening that it apparently doesn't rank very high as an item of news, because there is only very little space given to it. But it makes my blood boil to think of the injustice, the unchallenged injustice, of the law as it is interpreted. 'Court of justice,' indeed! 'He committed the women to jail for a month each. He discharged the thirty-five men!'

"There is something appalling in this inequality. I should like to know why it is always the woman who must bear the brunt of the moral storm. From the time of Adam, who tried to make Eve responsible for his downfall, the story has been the same. Just take this case, for an instance. Some men and women were aiding the proprietor of a saloon to break the law by buying drinks from him. If that is an offence, why were not both men and women held to account instead of just the women? If it was not an offence why were the women held at all?"

None of the other women was ready with an explanation. But many were anxious to corroborate the first speaker. Said one:

"You notice the same thing on the stage. The custom of making the woman suffer solely for the transgressions of all has become so common that a dramatist never thinks of presenting her in a light other than the light of being lost. Did you ever hear of society shutting its doors in the face of the male sinner and opening it to the woman sinner? Hardly. It is always the reverse of the situation.

After some further discussion, the club came to the conviction that there are separate codes of ethics for the sexes. They hadn't accomplished anything in the way of bettering the conditions, but they felt ever so much happier for having freed their minds.

For the Sick Room.

Wash two ounces of pearl barley, and put into a saucepan with one and a half pints of water and the rind of a lemon. Boil slowly for an hour, strain and add the juice of a small lemon; sweeten to taste.

Wash one ounce of linseed, put it into a saucepan with one quart of cold water, some licorice, and one ounce of the best sugar candy. Simmer for half an hour, then strain and drink hot.

Toast a slice of bread evenly to a nice brown; it must not be allowed to burn. Put it into a jug and pour cold water over; allow it to stand some time, closely covered; strain and use. Some people use boiling water, but the toast water will not be so clear as if made with cold.

Beat a fresh egg with a pint of milk, lukewarm, add a tablespoonful of capillane, which is made by boiling a pound of lump sugar with one and a half pints of water until it thickens. Next add a tablespoonful of rosewater and a pinch of ground nutmeg. Drink night and morning until the cough is relieved.

Put a small bunch of sage, two sprigs of balm, and a little sorrel into a china jug, having first washed and dried them; peel a lemon very thinly; slice the lemon and put it with the peel into the jug; pour on it three pints of boiling water. Sweeten to taste and cover closely. Take a wineglassful, cold, twice or three times a day.

What to Read in Finger Nails.

Long nails never indicate such great physical strength as short, broad ones. Very long finger nailed persons are apt to have delicate chests and lungs.

Long nails, very wide at the top and bluish in appearance, denote bad circulation. Long-nailed men and women are less critical and more impressionable than those with short nails.

Long nails indicate ideality and an artistic temperament.

Long-nailed people are apt to be very visionary and hate to face disagreeable facts.

Short-nailed men never give up an argument.

A sense of humor accompanies short nails.

Short-nailed persons make good critics, they are sharper and more logical than long nailed people, and usually more positive in assertion.

Short nails, very flat and sunken as it were into the flesh at the base, are a sign of diseased nerves.

Short nails, very flat and inclined to curve out or up at the edges, are the forerunners of paralysis.

A Valuable Property.

Mr. Frank Matthews, manager of the George Matthews Company, has purchased from Mr. William Lech, Sr., a valuable building lot, on Hunter St., adjoining Mr. Lech's residence. The property is one of the most desirable in town for a private residence, and comprises 111 feet on Hunter St. and 127 on Stewart St. Mr. Matthews intends to erect a handsome residence thereon at an early date.

RAPID CONVALESCENCE PREDICTED FOR McKINLEY

The President's Condition is Steadily Improving--All The World at Ease

Pronounced Shawl-gotch

The name of Leon Czolgosz, the would-be assassin of President McKinley, is best pronounced by the uninitiated by recollecting how the Russian always introduces a "t" into the pronunciation of the name of the Czar. Thus the Russian says "t-zar." In the case of Czolgosz one should say, "Tschol-gotch," with the "l" faintly sounded and the second "t" quite full. The average Canadian, however, will get it as "Shawl-gotch" and that is about as correct as he can make it. The assassin has lived in Detroit and other parts of Michigan, Cleveland and Cincinnati and been in Chicago quite recently. He is without particular education, except in anarchistic doctrines.

THIS MAN HEARD PLOT HATCHED.

Chicago, Sept. 10.

Charles H. McMurray, employed by a wholesale grocery house in this city, has notified the police that on the night of July 12 or 13, he is not sure which, while waiting for his suburban train at the main station of the Illinois Central road, he overheard three men discussing plans to kill President McKinley, and two well known New York capitalist. After talking a few minutes the three shook hands and went toward the Michigan Central train for Buffalo. McMurray says he told the policeman on duty at the station and after a few days had practically forgotten the occurrence. The description of one of the men given by McMurray is not unlike the appearance of Czolgosz, and it is known that on July 12 he was in Chicago going east to Buffalo that night.

WILL CARRY BALL TO HIS GRAVE.

Milburn House, Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 10.

The President will live, but will probably carry the bullet of the would-be assassin with him to the grave. This is the solemnly expressed opinion of Dr. Charles McBurney, of New York, in a statement to a representative of the Associated Press, after the consultation of the physicians this morning. He announced that the President had passed the danger point, and now only slight possibility of complications remained. He also announced that unless the bullet embedded in the muscles of the back should cause trouble there would be no necessity to extract it. In his opinion it would not even be relocated with the X-rays. Nothing could be gained by the use of the X-rays, he said, except the satisfaction of curiosities. All the other physicians were equally confident after the morning consultation that recovery was assured. Dr. Mynter said the President was out of the woods, and Dr. Wasdin answered, "Yes, with plenty of daylight behind him."

Dr. Roswell Park expressed it in this way: "Unless unexpected complications occur, we expect him to recover."

ANARCHISTS IN COURT

Chicago, Sept. 10.

The twelve anarchists arrested here on suspicion of complicity in the shooting of President McKinley, were up in the Police Court yesterday. The prosecutor asked for two days to prepare the case and for the holding of the men without bail. The order was granted against the protest of the accused, and the case will come up again on Sept. 19. The women are held in $3,000 bail. Some important evidence is promised for the trial. The police are close upon the trail of Emma Goldman. She is said to be near this city and her capture is expected at any moment. Private detectives and secret service men are also out after her.

Evidence of another anarchist plot came to light to-day when C. H. McMurray, connected with Franklyn MacVeagh, announced to the police that on either July 12th or 13th he overheard from an alley an excited discussion in the back room of a saloon, which developed into an Anarchists' meeting, having for its purpose arrangements to accomplish the assassination of President McKinley, John D. Rockfeller and J. Pierpont Morgan. According to Mr. McMurray the description of the man who is said to have preceded Czolgosz in the reception line, and protected him as far as possible till the shots were fired, tallies with his recollection of the meeting Mr. McMurray overheard. Senator T. E. Ellsworth is said to have given out the facts concerning the previous plot against the life of President McKinley. The following is the story as obtained:—

The plot was matured in Paterson, N. J., three months ago, and Emma Goldman, Luis Bernstein and other prominent anarchists are said to have been concerned in it. Michaelo Anutzi, a young tailor, living in New York, was delegated to do the deed. He immediately left for San Francisco, where he expected to meet McKinley, who was then on his western tour. He made the acquaintance of a young man there who professed to believe in the same doctrines and who was accepted by Anutzi as a "brother." In an inadverdent moment he told this brother of his mission in San Francisco, and was promptly arrested, the "brother" proving to be a secret service detective. Owing to the condition of Mrs. McKinley at that time the matter was hushed up, the culprit being charged with vagrancy. He was sent to the San Francisco workhouse to serve a sentence of nine months.

PRESIDENTS TEMPERATURE HIGHER.

Milburn House, N.Y., September 11.

4.15 a.m.—The condition of the President is unchanged in all important particulars. His temperature is 100.6, pulse 114, respiration 28. When the operation was performed on Friday last it was noted that the bullet had carried with it a short distance beneath the skin a fragment of the President's coat. This foreign material was of course removed, but a slight irritation of the tissues was produced, the evidence of which has appeared only to-night. It has been necessary on account of this slight disturbance to remove a few stitches and partially open the skin wound. This incident cannot give rise to other complications, but it is communicated to the public as the surgeons in attendance wish to make their bulletins entirely frank. In consequence of this separation of the edges of the surface healing of the same will be somewhat delayed. The President is now well enough to begin to take nourishment by the mouth in the form of pure beef juice.

Signed,
G. CORTELYOU,
Secretary to the President.

POPE SPEAKS OF THE ATTEMPT.

ROME, Sept. 10.

The Pope today, after mass, conversed with several cardinals concerning the shooting of President McKinley, and expressed his strong regrets. "It is deplorable that modern society," he said, "cannot protect itself against the sect that under the guise of politics, commits the most horrible crimes, striking down the chiefs of State, and yet having the greatest civil liberty, casting confusion into the midst of the most peaceful and industrious of nations.

"Mr. McKinley is a model man and President. Whoever strikes such a man is a madman or a depraved offender. The wounds inflicted upon the American President are a bloody injury to the entire people. I am certain that American Catholics, as well as those of the entire world, will unanimously testify their sympathy for Mr. McKinley and their horror at the ferocious crime.

HOPE BECOMES CONVICTION.

Buffalo, Sept. 10.

There has been a steady improvement in the Presidents' condition. Not an unfavorable symptom has appeared, and hope for recovery has become conviction. Nevertheless, the President is by no means out of danger, and not one of the physicians in attendance will risk his professional reputation with a statement that the President will live. The danger of complications from peritonitis or blood poisoning, of course, still exist. Dr. McBurney, the most eminent physician in attendance, expresses the opinion that if the improvement continues it will be a week yet before the President can be pronounced out of danger and convalescent. Some of his colleagues place the limit of danger still farther away. The President is cheerful and expresses confidence in his recovery. Yesterday he asked for a morning paper, but it was refused him. He asked to be allowed to change his position, and when permission had been given, he shifted to the position he desired, without assistance and without difficulty or pain. Mrs. McKinley saw him again yesterday for a short time. He was given nourishment in the form of eggs beaten in milk, administered through the bowels. The water, which has been given heretofore cold, did not appear to agree with him and since last night very hot water has been taken into the stomach through the mouth, with splendid results. If he continues to improve, it will be gradually. If he should grow worse the change in that direction will also probably be slow. This is the opinion of Dr. Mann. There will be no crisis. If he arrives at convalescence, Dr. Park expresses the opinion that it will be three weeks before it will be safe to move him. It is expected that the interior wounds will heal first. The sutures of the lacerated tissue were made so soon after the bullet passed that they are probably healing rapidly. With the exterior wound it is a slower process. The Vice-President and the members of the Cabinet are extremely confident. Secretary Gage and Attorney General Knox have returned to Washington, feeling that the President will recover.

The day, which had dawned wet and gloomy, cleared as the physicians departed. The sun broke through the clouds and bathed in mellow sunshine the ivy-clad house in which the President lay.

QUAKE FOR THE CZAR

French Fear Lest Assassin End Ruler's Life

COMING VISIT TO PARIS

Wide Hunt for Anarchists Begun and Some Arrests Made.

Shooting of Mr. McKinley Causes Alarm Across the Sea The Fight Against Anarchists.

Paris, Sept. 11.—Fear of the assassination of the czar of Russia during his visit to France has seized the officials of Europe since an attempt on the life of President McKinley at the Buffalo fair. In consequence a widespread search for anarchists of whatever nationality is now in progress.

The French minister of the interior has telegraphed severe instructions to the special commissaries of police in all the provinces to exercise the closest vigilance upon anarchists. Special detectives also have been sent to the industrial centers to aid the police in watching anarchists and other agitators.

Any anarchist who is considered dangerous or whose movements are suspicious will be taken into custody.

All the commissaries possess portraits and descriptions of the anarchists known to the international police. Several Italian anarchists who had been specially shadowed left Paris recently, but all but two of them have been located and the police expect to unearth them quickly.

CHIEF ANXIETY AT DUNKIRK.

A dispatch from Dunkirk received today reports that anxiety prevails there lest the Buffalo outrage lead the czar to postpone or abandon his visit to France. This impression, however, is unjustified, as is proved by the fact that inquiries in Paris indicate that no change in the arrangement of the czar's visit have even considered. It is the general feeling that the abandonment of his proposed visit by Emperor Nicholas would be a too obvious display of the white feather, even if apprehensions of another outrage existed.

A dispatch from Bergues, near Dunkirk, says that a man known as an anarchist arrived there yesterday and is now under surveillance.

An Italian named Romani, who was arrested last week at a suburb of Paris on suspicion of being an anarchist, but whose honorable character was attested by a number of inhabitants who petitioned for his release, is still held in prison. M. Alleman, who had interested himself in the prisoner's behalf, received a letter from Premier Waldeck-Rousseau declaring it was impossible to set the man free and he will undoubtedly be detained until after the czar shall have left.

FOR BRITISH WATERS.

To Take Part in the King's Coronation Ceremonies.

Washington, Sept. 11.—The making or plans for the respresentation of this Government at the ceremonies connected with the coronation of King Edward VII is going on apace in the War and Navy Departments. The latest suggestion in the matter is that Admiral Dewey be sent with a large fleet of our best vessels, and that for his use on that occasion he should have at the Olympia, the vessel that led the attack on the Spanish fleet and forts at Manila.

It has been intended to send the Olympia to serve as the flagship of the South Atlantic station. It is now suggested that it would be especially fitting to have her present at the coronation ceremonies. There is doubt whether the Admiral would select a second rate ship like the Olympia for his flagship, yet the Olympia might well be attached to his fleet. She has been recently overhauled at the Boston navy yard, and is in fine order, and is one of the best ships in the navy, with exceptionally fine quarters for officers and men.

The prospective retirement of Rear Admiral Cromwell, now commanding on the European station, has given special interest in the question of who is to succeed him. Admiral Crowninshield has been generally regarded as likely to receive the honor. The suggestion of the presence of the Admiral of the American navy to head the naval representation at the coronation is, however, generally approved by naval officers, and is likely to have the approval of Secretary Long, as it will of the country at large.

TRADING STAMPS MUST GO JAN. 2.

A By-Law to This Effect Passed at Last Night's Council Meeting.

THE VOTE NEARLY UNANIMOUS.

The Town Council met in regular session last night, when there were present Aldermen Shortly, Edgcumbe, Batten, Corkery, Clinkscale, Roger and Best. In the absence of Mayor T. H. G. Denne, Ald. Roger presided.

On motion of Ald. Best the reading of the minutes was dispensed with.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From town teamsters Montgomery and Parnell, asking for an increase of salary.—Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From John McGrath stating that the corner of his lot on Antrim and Harvey streets has been used for some years as a public highway, and asking compensation for the same.—Referred to the Board of Works.

From Mary O'Brien asking for remission of one half of her taxes for the year 1901, on 454 Sherbrooke street.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

From R. W. Errett, assistant inspector of weights and measures, complaining that the assessment of his office, No. 574 Water street, this year for the first time, is illegal according to the assessment act, sec. 7, which provides for the special exemption from assessment of "weights and measures offices."—Referred to the Court of Revision.

From Geo. W. Hall, complaining that he had been wrongfully assessed for a dog which was destroyed by order of the chief of police.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

From Wm. Batten asking permission to fence in an unused piece of property on Downie street, between McDonnell street and the G.T.R. This act the petitioner explains would close the railway track to mischievous boys, and do away with the danger of children getting on the track at this point. The enclosure could also be used for town requirements when necessary.—Referred to the Board of Works with power to act.

From Geo. C. Robb, boiler inspector, certifying that the steam boiler of the fire engine was inspected with steam on the 6th August, when the steam gauge and boiler and engine were found to be in a satisfactory condition, and ready for work whenever required.—Received.

From Phillipa Allen and Minnie Allen enclosing a statutory declaration to the effect that they had been wrongfully assessed for a dog.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

TRADING STAMPS MUST GO

At this juncture Ald. Clinkscale introduced a by-law to prohibit the giving, selling, distributing or receiving of trading stamps, coupons or other similar devices in the Town of Peterborough.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun was present in the interest of the Trading Stamp Company, while Mr. D. W. Dumble, and Mr. E. M. Trowern, Secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, supported by a large and representative gathering of merchants, supported the by-law.

On acting-Mayor G. M. Roger inviting discussion on the matter, Mr. Dennistoun took the floor. He said that while a petition had been sent in praying for the abolition of trading stamps, one as large, if not larger, had also been submitted in support of the scheme. There are two sides to the question and the local legislature found there was so much to argue pro. and con. that they declined to pass a bill abolishing the use of trading stamps, but gave a right to municipalities to pass a by-law to this effect, adding a rider thereto, however, that such abolition should not come into force until January 1st, 1902. This is a large question he argued, and urged that the by-law be not pushed through now, but left over for the next council to deal with thus giving opportunity for further inquiry. The Trading Stamp Co'y business is not but is in operation in every large mercantile centre, and they have questioned whether the Provincial Legislature had power to pass a statute authorizing municipalities to deal with the question; in fact the matter is now being argued before the courts. Touching the question on its merits, everyone must admit the introduction of a cash system is a benefit to any community, and each merchant will acknowledge that he believes in such a system. The number of cases coming before the division court now is one third less than one year ago, and yet our population has increased; this is in a large measure due to the cash system now in vogue. In the by-law submitted to-night there is nothing to prevent a merchant giving coupons, providing he awards the prizes himself and not through a trading stamp concern, therefore it is not a question of abolishing trading stamps, but one of shutting out the Dominion Trading Stamp Company. By the trading stamp system one can fill a book and secure a prize quicker than by the coupon system, which limits the purchaser to an individual merchant. Then a business man handling coupons can only buy to a limited amount, and cannot afford to give as large a discount as a company like the one in question, which purchases its prizes wholesale. If we wish to keep out departmental stores, we must encourage the cash system, and therefore should support any scheme which induces cash payments. Every individual merchant in town has some advantage over his competitors, and the council would not dare to interfere therewith, then why should it do so in respect to trading stamps. This company is doing business with a large section of the community, and the advantage is shared between them and their supporters. They are not making more than a legitimate share of the profits, and take not as much money out of town as the wholesalers do by their credit system. In conclusion Mr. Dennistoun remarked that the town itself offers special inducements for the payment of taxes by a certain date, and urged that the matter be left over for the council responsible for next year's business to handle, when the company will have an opportunity of placing their views on record at the polls.

Mr. R. Fair spoke briefly in support of the by-law and submitted that a similar measure had been passed in St. Thomas, Woodstock, Stratford, Galt, Toronto, Chatham, Orangeville and Guelph.

Mr. D. W. Dumble, president of the Board of Trade, said that in 1899 the above board condemned the trading stamp system as an unfair and unligitimate business. Mr. Dennistoun urges that the matter should be left over till next year's council; the same argument could be used then and the matter indefinitely postponed from year to year. He (Mr. Dumble) takes it that the council of 1901 is as intelligent as any to come, and quite capable of dealing with the question. He indorsed all that Mr. Dennistoun said about the cash system only he overlooks the fact that we enjoyed a cash system before trading stamps came into use. That is a change which has come over the country irrespective of stamps. The Board of Trade characterised this company as a foreign corporation which brings no capital or labor to render it valuable; it is only a system which takes out of the country something for which it pays nothing. Continuing, the speaker characterized the scheme as a system of "gull." The merchant gives $5 in every $100 for which the consumer has to pay; the company gets paid for everything—for the cheap tinsel, the pretty girl at the store and the enormous taxes paid for the little shop—some $2.97—and the big dividend goes to an American stock corporation. So far as this country is concerned, the little red stamp simply represents the amount to which the purchaser has been pulled. It is unfair to encourage a system which places merchants on an unequal footing. We don't find departmental stores giving trading stamps, they cannot afford it, and yet they buy largely and cheaply. In conclusion, the speaker argued that it is neither systematic nor legitimate to encourage a system which swells the coffers of a bloated stock company in the United States—a system of pulling the public.

Mr. E. M. Trowern, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Ass'n., advocated the passing of the by-law in the interest of the better trade of the country. The legislature had passed its bill in accordance with the request of the association, and with a vote of 80 per cent of its members. In Halifax and in the state of New York the trading stamp scheme had been abolished, while the city of Toronto passed its by-law unanimously. He characterised the system as a scheme for enriching a few at the expense of many, and explained that there is no such concern registered as the Dominion Trading Stamp Co.; it was entered as "The Dominion Trading Co., manufacturers of furniture and dealers in household goods."

The by-law here passed its first and second readings.

Ald. Corkery moved that the third reading of the by-law be left over for six months, but could not secure a seconder.

A standing vote being taken, the by-law passed its third reading, Alderman Corkery being the only one to oppose it.

OTHER BY-LAWS.

A by-law providing that the third Thursday in August each year be Civic Holiday, passed its several readings.

A by-law to provide for borrowing $1606 for the construction of a bridge over the creek on Smith Street, passed its third reading.

A by-law to aid the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company, passed its third reading.

QUESTION OF POWER

Ald. Best moved, seconded by Ald. Batten that the town renew its application to the Dominion government for water power off No. 5 dam, and if that cannot be obtained, then for power off No. 4 dam.

Ald. Best explained that two applications had already been made for power off No. 5 dam, and the town had been passed over in favor of a private company. He did not wish to do anything to block the Otonabee Power Co., but merely desired to keep the town's application before the government.

—The motion was lost, only the mover and seconder voting for it.

Council then adjourned.

Owing to lack of space some communications have been held over and will appear in to-morrow's issue.

MURDERED PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES

The Assassination of Presidents Lincoln and Garfield.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD.

Washington, Sept. 11.—President McKinley is the third Executive of the Federal Government to fall under the bullet of the assassin. Both Abraham Lincoln and James A. Garfield died from their dastardly inflicted wounds, and have their names inscribed upon the national calandar of martyrs. The sad details of the fatal shooting of each of these rulers of the country have been vividly recalled by the terrible crime at Buffalo, and it may be worth while to narrate again the main facts concerning those past Presidential assassinations.

The shooting of Lincoln by John Wilkes Booth was the more sensational, in view of the troubled state of the Government at Washington, and was highly dramatic in manner of accomplishment. The additional feature that Booth was the head of a sort of conspiracy gave to the martyrdom of Lincoln a peculiar political significance which most assassinations of modern history have lacked. When Lincoln went to Washington to take the oath of office as President the air was rife with fears of an attempted assassination of "the negro's friend." But "Honest Abe" passed through the grim ordeal of the Civil War without an attempt on his life, and fell a victim to the assassin in the very hour of seeming triumph and restored peace. On April 11, 1865, General Anderson had raised over Fort Sumter the tattered flag he had hauled down just four years before. The North was rejoicing that the war was over, when, suddenly, the news flashed throughout the land that Lincoln had been murdered.

WHEN LINCOLN WAS STRICKEN.

On the night of that same April 14 the wearied President had sought a slight diversion from the burdens of his office in attending Ford's Theatre, on Tenth street, Washington, accompanied by Mrs. Lincoln and two friends—Major Henry Rathbone and daughter of Senator Ira Harris. The bill was "Our American Cousin," with Laura Keene in the cast. Miss Keene was awaiting one of her cues in the side-wing and the audience was eagerly watching the play, when the report of a pistol startled everybody. A man was seen to leap from the President's box to the stage, brandishing a dagger, and shouting "Sic semper tyrannis! The south is avenged!" His foot caught in the folds of a flag, and he fell, breaking his leg, but regaining his feet he managed to escape to a side alley, where he leaped upon a horse that had been kept saddled there, and fled from the city. The audience was seized with panic. Laura Keene, running into the President's box, held Lincoln's bleeding head on her lap, and the robes of comedy were besmirched with the blood of this terrible tragedy.

BOOTH'S ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE.

John Wilkes Booth's bullet had entered one of Lincoln's temples. After shooting the President, the half-demented actor had stabbed Major Rathbone. The dying President was carried to a small house opposite the theatre, where, surrounded by his family and the principal officials of the Government, he breathed his last at 7 o'clock on the morning of April 15, in the third month of his 57th year. The joy over the return of peace was eclipsed everywhere by this bloody event. The body lay in state at the Capitol on April 20, and was viewed by a grand concourse of mourning people. The next day the funeral train set out for Springfield, Ill. The cortege halted at all the principal cities on the way, and was greeted everywhere with extraordinary demonstrations of grief for the dead leader. The remains were finally laid to rest at Oak Ridge, near Springfield, on May 4, and a white marble monument (by the sculptor, Larkin G. Mead) now marks the consecrated ground. The expressions of sorrow and condolence that were sent to the Federal Government from all over the world were afterward published by the State Department in a quarto volume of nearly a thousand pages, called "The Tribute of the Nations to Abraham Lincoln."

John Wilkes Booth, the assassinator, succeeded in eluding capture for twelve days after his crime. Fleeing on horseback to a farm about 35 miles from Washington, he lay for six days in the woods. Then he secretly crossed both the Potomac and the Rappahannock, and took refuge in a barn on a farm near Bowling Green. To this hiding place a squadron of United States troops tracked him. The barn was set on fire and Booth, while resisting arrest, was shot dead by a soldier named Boston Corbett. Thus miserably perished the murderer of Lincoln, who was a son of the noted actor, Junius Brutus Booth, and whose gifts had seemed to destine him to a noble career. He had been born at Bel Air, Md., in 1838, and was only 27 years old. His last appearance as an actor had been at a benefit for John McCullough. His deed brought for a time an unmerited public contempt for the actor's profession. His own corpse was secretly buried under the flagstones of the arsenal warehouse at Washington. Two years later, however, his brother, Edwin Booth, had the remains reinterred in the family plot in the cemetery at Baltimore.

BOOTH'S HALLUCINATION.

Booth undoubtedly labored under the hallucination that he was revenging Southern wrongs and sufferings in slaying Lincoln. The actor was at the head of a small conspiracy, and on the same evening that he shot the President a fellow-conspirator gained access to the home of Secretary of State William Henry Seward, where Seward lay on a couch with a fractured arm and jaw, and stabbed the Secretary several times in the face and the neck. Seward's son was also struck down. After severe sufferings both of the attacked men recovered from their knife wounds. Later the conspiracy was unearthed; four of the conspirators were hanged, three were imprisoned for life, and one was sentenced for a term of years. Andrew Johnson succeeded to the Presidency and to the tremendous problem of Federal reconstruction, which he so signally failed to cope with in the masterly style of a Lincoln.

The assassination of President Garfield had no such peculiar significance as that of Lincoln. Garfield was laid low by the bullet of a hare-brained individual, who had come to Washington for a political office and who had been disappointed. To be sure, the division of the Republican camp into "Stalwarts" and "Half-Breeds" may have contributed to inspire Charles Guiteau with the desire of killing the President whom Roscoe Conkling had so savagely denounced as a party traitor.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD'S FATE.

It was on July 2, 1881, only four months after his inauguration as President, that Garfield left the White House to attend commencement at his alma mater, Williams College. He had just entered the Pennsylvania station in Washington, when he was shot in the back by Guiteau. Guiteau was promptly captured, and for a time there was hope of Garfield's recovery. But, after enduring great suffering with notable fortitude, Garfield passed away at Elberon, N.J., on September 19, eighty days after the shooting. He was in his fiftieth year. His public career had not been without political scandals, and he had even been accused of selling John Sherman in his own interest at the convention of June, 1880, which so unexpectedly nominated him as the Republican candidate. But the manner of his matyrdom moved all citizens, irrespective of party or opinion, to genuine grief, and his brave battle with pain and death won him the hearts of his countrymen. The remains of this brilliant, Gambetta-like statesman were placed in the rotunda of the Capitol, where an immense wreath of white rosebuds stood at the foot of his coffin, with the inscription: "Queen Victoria to the memory of the late President Garfield. An expression of her sorrow and sympathy with Mrs. Garfield and the American nation." Garfield's memorial monument stands at Cleveland, O.

BLAINE WAS WITH HIM.

Secretary of State James G. Blaine was walking arm-in-arm with Garshot. Guiteau was one of a small group of people standing near the door to the ladies' room in the railroad station. As the President and Secretary passed, the assassin turned, made a step in their direction, and, drawing a heavy revolver from his pocket, aimed it carefully and fired deliberately. Garfield turned in excited surprise. Blaine sprang to one side. Guiteau then recocked his revolver and calmly fired again at the President, who this time fell to the floor, covered with blood. Guiteau fled, dropping his pistol as he ran, but he was quickly caught.

Garfield was driven to the Executive Mansion, where his condition was decided to be so critical that it would be highly dangerous to probe for the bullet. The medical judgment in this case has been declared to have been at fault. Later the wounded President was removed to Elberon to benefit by the sea breeze; but the hope proved vain. The bullet lodged in his back caused bloodpoisoning. It had pierced the tissues by a long, crooked course, leaving a wound that could not be properly drained.

GUITEAU'S CAREER.

Garfield's assassin, Guiteau, had been by spells a politician, a lawyer, lecturer, theologian and evangelist. He pretended to have been inspired by Deity with the thought that the removal of Garfield was necessary for the unity of the Republican party and for the salvation of the country. He is said to have exclaimed on being arrested: "All right; I did it, and will go to jail for it. I am a stalwart, and Arthur will be President." His trial began in November and lasted over two months. The defense was insanity, but the prosecution sought to show that the murderer had long been "an unprincipled adventurer, greedy for notoriety." The public rage against him was intense. Sergeant Mason, a soldier set to guard him, actually fired a bullet into Guiteau's cell. For this unsuccessful deed the sergeant received a sentence of eight years in the Albany Penitentiary. Two months later a mysterious horseman, dashing past Guiteau, as the assassin was being led from jail to Court, grazed the prisoner's wrist with a bullet. During his trial Guiteau acted in most disorderly style and indulged in scurrilous interruptions. He was found guilty in January, 1882, and

TYPHOID AND DRINKING WATER

The Cleveland Leader says that the development of sixty cases of typhoid fever among the one hundred persons who attended a banquet at Huma, several weeks ago, and drank water from a long-unused well, is a startling confirmation of the well-established theory that water is the very best medium if not the only one, by which the germs of this disease may be introduced into the human system. It should also serve as a warning to the people against drinking water that is not known to be free from disease germs.

It is now generally believed that typhoid is a preventable disease. People who drink pure water are not likely to contract the malady. A year ago it was announced that typhoid had been eliminated absolutely from the great German city of Berlin by the filtration of the water supply, and later it was declared that a similar result had been brought about at Hamburg by the same means.

A GOOD POPE

The forthcoming jubilee of the Pope will be a world event. Abler Popes there may have been than Pope Leo,—great warrior Popes, who were more concerned about the condition of the map of Europe than the spiritual kingdom of which they were the official heads; but the present occupant of the Holy See is unique in this, that he has lived in his own age adapted himself to the spirit of the time, and sought for influences and activity in the environment which he accepted as the allotment of Providence. He has, indeed, rebelled against the loss of temporary power, but this was conventional rather than real, and it may be said that he set himself to make the church strong with the tools and the facilities which were possible in a world which had more and more come to smile indulgently at papal pretensions. His Holiness has shown that he possesses a broad mind. The successor of St. Peter has shown himself the champion of the poor. He has, contrary to tradition, and usage and even law, acknowledged the French republic. He has insisted upon a friendly attitude towards Protestantism, and has greatly desired to see the end of that heresy. He has taken a lively interest in social questions. He has been upon the side of the weak and the oppressed. He is a unique example of intellectual clearness and strength at an age when men are senile and debilitated. The Pope has ruled with wisdom, with unfailing tact, with remarkable ability. The faithful all over the world are preparing to congratulate him in a fitting manner. The Catholic world is thrilled. There is not a corner of the civilized globe which will not feel the impulse of this movement. Men and women talking most of the languages of earth will send reverential greetings. The Catholic church has had powerful popes; the pope of iron, the pope militant and the pope who cared chiefly to smite his enemies and depose rebellious princes;—Pope Leo has stood for the moral idea for this reason he commands the homage of the world. Protestants everywhere will be pleased with the success which will undoubtedly attend the great celebration.

CANADA FIRST

Now and then we find an influential voice insisting that the French Canadians shall remain a separated people always cherishing the French ideal, never mixing with any other nationality, imbibing French sentiments, looking to the Mother Land for the highest sanctions and keeping themselves an undivided people who shall present a solid front—untouched by time or association with other people who go to make up the population of Canada. This advice has been acted on only too well, with the most baneful results. Generally, it may be said that the recognized leaders are ashamed to utter such sentiments, and those who best love the race have advised travel, intercourse, the loyal taking possession of the whole country as a common heritage. One of such leaders not long ago earnestly begged his compatriots to visit the Dominion, of which they knew so little; to travel through the great western provinces especially and to get it into their minds that they were citizens, not of a province but of a splendid commonwealth. This would broaden their minds give them a new sense of pride, and do away in large measure, with provincialism, which has been our bane. It is little short of criminal for any man to urge a course which would make for our national belittlement. Our crying need is for a great solidarity. We need never expect to be influential until we have created a Canadian sentiment—not a French, not a British, but a Canadian sentiment—a national feeling which will thrill our people from ocean to ocean. We see too well the results of separation. Two languages two school systems, two peoples, each with different ideals; racial antagonisms, thinly veiled, or sometimes not veiled at all, and disclosing themselves with brutality. The sense of strangeness when we touch our fellow citizens the thought of two camps separated by a gulf of racial feeling, when there should be one common ground, of fellowship and effort. It is said, "Oh, but Quebec is peculiar, you know." Why should it be peculiar? Why should there not be the desire to assume the full rights of citizenship in a great country? Why cherish the notion of separation? Can it make for strength Does it not mean exclusion from the larger and better life of the country as a whole? We need a common purpose and a common song, and he who shall, with voice and pen, labor to bring about a community of interest between the two peoples who form our population will be the true leader and patriot, deserving our warmest thanks. We would have neither English, Irish Scotch nor French sentiment. We would have a nation, showing a splendid blend of all these racial qualities, and we would call it Canadian.

"Badly Crippled."

Rheumatism at its worst is a sort of living death. It chains a man to a chair or binds him to a bed, and metes out to him a daily martyrdom. At the best rheumatism is a painful malady, interfering alike with pleasure and business.

To cure rheumatism it is necessary to eliminate from the blood the acid poisons which are the cause of the disease. This is effectually done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It carries out of the blood the corrupt and poisonous accumulations which breed and feed disease. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands and sends an increased supply of rich, pure blood through vein and artery to strengthen every organ of the body.

"I had been troubled with rheumatism for twelve years, so bad at times I could not leave my bed," writes Mr. R. J. McKnight, of Cades, Williamsburg Co., S. C. "I was badly crippled. Tried many doctors and two of them gave me up to die. None of them did me much good. The pains in my back, hips and legs (and at times in my head), would nearly kill me. My appetite was very bad. Everybody who saw me said I must die. I took five bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four vials of 'Pellets,' and to-day my health is good after suffering twelve years with rheumatism."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are powerful aids to the cleansing of the clogged system. By all dealers in medicine.

R. R. HUNGERFORD HAS PASSED AWAY

London, Sept. 9.—R. B. Hungerford, Grand Master of Canada, A.F. & A.M., died at 5 o'clock this morning of paralysis.

Mr. Hungerford was elected Grand Master of the Grand Lodge in 1900, and was reelected this year. He had been a member of the craft for nearly 30 years, and was known throughout the length and breadth of his jurisdiction as an energetic popular and zealous worker. He was an Irishman by birth, being born in the County of Cork, in 1846, where his family "The Island Hungerfords" had been noted for generations. He came to Canada in 1862, and for a great many years was Inspector in Western Ontario for the North American Life Assurance Company. He joined the Masonic Order at Mount Brydges in 1872, as a member of St. John's Lodge, No. 81. At the time of his death he belonged to Kilwining Lodge, No. 64; the Tuscany No. 195; and Union Lodge No. 380. He served for a time as D. D. G. M. of the London District. In Capitular Masonry he was a Past Z of St. George's Royal Arch Chapter, No. 5, and Past Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter of Canada. He filled all the subordinate offices in the lodge and chapter of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, was a member of the Novice Consistory, 32 degrees, of Hamilton, and an Honorary Inspector-General of the Supreme Council, 33 degrees, of the Dominion of Canada. He was also a Sir Knight of Richard Coeur de Lion Preceptory of Knights Templar, and a member of the Huron Conclave of the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine. Previous to his election as Deputy Grand Master, he was for a long period Chairman of the Credential Committee. He was also Grand Representative of the Grand Lodge of Michigan, near the Grand Lodge of Canada, and President of the Masonic Relief Association of the United States and Canada, which has its headquarters in Baltimore Md.

Mr. Hungerford was married and leaves a family of three, two sons and a daughter.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY SYSTEM

It is expected that on Railroad Day the largest number of Railway men will be congregated together, than on any former occasion, Buffalo being a great Railway centre, having a population of 400,000, a large number of them being engaged in Railway work. In order to give the Railway men and their friends an opportunity of visiting Buffalo special excursion fares have been arranged by the Grand Trunk Railway System. Tickets will be valid going by all regular train Friday September 13th and good for return passage on all regular trains Monday September 16th. Ask your nearest Grand Trunk agent about it.

In connection with this excursion the Grand Trunk Railway System will issue Engraved Souvenir admission tickets to Exposition at 50 cents for adults. These tickets can be purchased from Agents at starting points.

What Experience Teaches

"Even the most meritorious article needs thorough advertising in the leading newspapers in order to make its way. An article which is without real merit may have a considerable sale if it be well advertised; but within six months or a year the venture will fail. You don't feel the full effects of newspaper advertising at once, as a rule. You have to wait to get the cumulative effects. No advertiser can afford to suspend advertising for a time." These are the opinions of a successful proprietary medicine man.

Stop Thief.

would be a justifiable cry directed against countless humbugs that offer a cure for Catarrh. There is only one scientific method of treatment for Catarrh. Make the air you breathe the carrier of healing, balsamic, curative agents. It bathes every inch of mucous membranes with its healing, soothing properties. That's Catarrhozone. Your druggist or doctor will tell you it's the only effective method of treatment and that it is sure—prompt—permanent. Remember the name, Catarrhozone. All dealers, 25c. and $1.00.

Over-Assessment.

As an instance of the way real estate in town is over-assessed, we might mention that the other day a certain property on Hunter street was sold for less than it was assessed for. This is the case in hundreds of cases. The assessment should be reduced all around.

WHAT WILL FOLLOW IF McKINLEY DIES

Vice President—Theodore Roosevelt.

Secretary of state—John Hay.

Secretary of the treasury —Lyman J. Gage.

Secretary of war—Elihu Root.

Secretary of interior — Ethan A Hitchcock.

Secretary of the navy—John D. Long

Secretary of agriculture — James Wilson.

Postmaster general — Charles Emory Smith.

Attorney general — Philander K. Knox.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Upon the issue of President McKinley's wounds depend matters of the greatest importance to the people of the United States. A fatal issue will involve a complete reorganization of executive forces of the government.

Vice-Pres.dent Theodore Roosevelt, would become president. Following precedents that have been established, the oath of office would be administered to the vice president wherever he happened to be just as soon after the death of the president as a judge of a court of record could reach his side, and an extra session of congress would be called in compliance with the existing law.

Steps have been taken to provide for the future of the executive branch of the government. It is realized that even under the most favorable conditions the president's injuries are of such a character as to make it almost certain that he cannot undertake for a long time to discharge the duties of chief executive, even in the most formal way. Every member of the cabinet able to travel is expected to speed at once to Buffalo and there a cabinet council will be held to decide upon the course to be followed by the executive branch.

Vice President Roosevelt is in Vermont and, of course, will hold himself in readiness to do whatever is necessary to meet the obligations imposed upon the vice president by the constitution of the United States. These are contained in paragraph 6, section 1, article 2, in the following words:

In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice president," etc.

Under the terms of this article, as soon as Mr. Roosevelt is assured by proper authority, probably in this case by the senior member of the cabinet, Secretary Hay, who is now in Buffalo will undertake at once in a provisional way to discharge such duties as may devolve upon him. Much will depend upon the report of the physicians upon the character of the president's injuries as to the extent to which Mr. Roosevelt will discharge the presidential duties, and it is almost certain that in the absence of great emergency in public affairs, even if called to assume these obligations, the vice president will confine himself in the exercise of his powers to the discharge of the most routine and indispensable functions.

For the present the thought of a fatal termination of the president's condition is referred to with awelike apprehension and there is a hopeful, even prayerful, anticipation that there may be no need for meeting those grave emergencies which would follow a fatal termination of the tragic event.

The news to-night in the capital that the president is making a courageous fight against death is so favorable that his friends and subordinates in Washington are hoping that he will survive to serve out his second term. They believe his superb recuperative powers will come to his rescue, as they did last winter, and pull him out of the jaws of death. Nevertheless they are acutely alive to the seriousness of the misfortune that has overtaken him. Gunshot wounds sustained by men of Mr. McKinley's advanced years are likely to produce fatal consequences. It is upon this hypothesis that Washington is discussing to-night the probable effect of the death of the President.

Nobody doubts that Mr. Roosevelt, if he should be called to the White House, would make a clean sweep of the present cabinet, that he would make revolutionary changes in the personnel of officials holding presidential offices not alone in Washington, but all over the country, that he would immediately enter upon reforms in the war and navy departments, with both of which he has repeatedly quarrelled in the past, and that he would revive questions and issues which have been partly suppressed by the friends of the present administration.

HINDOOS FOR ARMY OFFICERS

London, Sept. 10.—Ever since the Sepoy rebellion it has been the policy of the British government to discourage any attempt on the part of aristocratic residents of India to attain high military rank. This policy was due to the well-founded suspicion that the high-caste natives were not to be trusted. But of late years this class has so often demonstrated its loyalty that a change has been decided upon. The plan contemplates the bestowal of military rank upon a certain number of highly born cadets. A large field is already provided for the military employment of native officers of good birth or position, nearly 3,000 being in the commissioned rank of the native army; but there has been a dearth of corresponding openings for the sons of Indian princes, nobles and gentlemen, who are every day receiving a superior education, but to whom opportunities of active public service when they reach years of manhood are restricted. A desire to gratify the military aspiration of these classes has long existed, but difficulties in connection with selection, tuition, military rank and duties have barred the way.

The present experiment will be of a tentative character and some time must elapse before its details are fully worked out. It rests upon the periodical selection of a small number—probably to start with— of scions of noble families, who, with rare exceptions, will be drawn from the four chief colleges at Ajmere, Lahore, Rajkot and Indore and who will constitute what will be known as the Imperial Cadet corps under the command of a specially selected commandant and adjutant. The cadets will pass through a two years' course of training in the cold weather and will from time to time be in personal attendance upon the viceroy on ceremonial and other occasions. Such of them as exhibit special capacity will then pass through a course of military training in a garrison class and ultimately will be appointed to staff positions or other extra-regimental military employment. The scheme is said to have the enthusiastic support of Edward VII.

THE MAN WHO SHOT THE PRESIDENT

Leon F. Czolgosz was born in Detroit 28 years ago. His parents were Russian Poles, who came to this country about 40 years ago. He received some education in the common schools of Detroit. For a while he worked in Cleveland. While there he became interested in the Socialist movement, read quantities of Socialist literature and soon became known as a Socialist in the West.

Several years ago he left Cleveland and went to Chicago where he lived for several months. Then he returned to Cleveland and procured employment in the wire mills in Newburgh, a suburb of Cleveland. During the last few years he has gained quite a reputation in Chicago, Cleveland Detroit and other western cities as an anarchist of the more bitter type.

Some days ago Czolgosz attended a lecture given by Emma Goldman in Cleveland. Her doctrine that all rulers should be exterminated was accepted by him. He went away from the lecture determined to do something heroic for the cause. A little over a week ago while in Chicago he read in a Chicago paper of the intended visit of President McKinley to the Pan-American Exposition. A day or two later he bought a ticket for Buffalo. He came to this city with a half-formed purpose. The idea that he might have an opportunity to assassinate the President was in his mind, but the plot had not taken form at that time.

PLOT TOOK SHAPE

On Tuesday morning the plot to murder, which had occured to him days before took definite and final shape in his mind. He bought a 32-calibre revolver and loaded it. That evening he went to the Exposition early, and was near the railroad gate when the Presidential party arrived. He tried to get through the gate to the railroad station outside, so that he might be better able to approach the President, but the police forced him back. He stood close to the President when the latter got into his carriage for the drive through the grounds, but he was afraid to attempt the assassination owing to the presence of so many detectives. He feared he might not be able to draw his revolver and use it before they would discover him and then his chance would be gone. So he permitted the President to escape. The next morning he went to the Exposition early and took up a position close to the stand from which the President spoke. Several times the idea came to him of shooting the President while he was delivering the address, but he could not approach sufficiently close to make his aim certain. So he waited. When the President got into his carriage again the mounted escort formed a cordon about him, and Czolgosz became hopelessly entangled in the crowd. Yesterday morning Czolgosz was at the Exposition again. He waited near the railroad gate for the President, who boarded his special train at this point, but the police were too watchful, and nobody but the President's party was permitted to pass through the station where the train was in waiting. He remained at the Exposition all day waiting for the President to return. In the meantime he had hit upon the scheme of concealing his revolver under his handkerchief. He was one of the first in the Temple of Music, where the public reception was held. He fell into the line with the rest of the people and when his turn came to shake hands with the Chief Executive of the nation, he fired two shots with the muzzle of the revolver close to the President's body. He said he would have fired more but for the fact that someone struck him a frightful blow. "Did you mean to kill the President?" asked District Attorney Penney. "I did." replied Czolgosz. "What was your motive?" "I am a disciple of Emma Goldman," was the only reply he would make. Czolgosz at no time expressed any regret for his act. If he regretted anything it was the fact that his attempt to kill the President apparently had failed. He positively denied that he had any accomplices or confidents. He said he had conceived the plot to murder alone and that he was the agent of no organization.

He also declared that he was in no way connected with the anarchists whose agent, Bresci, assassinated King Humbert of Italy.

CAUSE OF THE CRIME

New York, Sept. 9

While millions are sorrowing over the attempt to kill President McKinley and are watching anxiously for the bulletins which tell of his brave fight for life, there is one woman who is generally credited with different feelings. This is Emma Goldman, an Anarchist product of the East Side slums, who, according to the confession of Czolgosz, by fiery speeches persuaded him to become an assassin. She is reported to have said repeatedly that it would be the proudest moment of her life when she could persuade some man to kill a ruler.

Just where the Goldman woman is now is a question which the police of four cities are trying to solve. She was driven out of New York five months ago by the police. They stopped her various meetings and told her to leave the city or be arrested. She went from here to Toledo, then to Detroit, and next to Cleveland. The last time the police of this city heard of her she was holding meetings in Toledo. It was there that Czolgosz says he heard her speak, and was persuaded that the American form of government was wrong and that it was his duty to remove its head.

PROSPECTS FOR RECOVERY BRIGHTER.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 9.

The condition of President McKinley improved throughout yesterday. His temperature dropped to 101 from 102.8 during the day. His pulse grew slower and his respiration quicker and easier. The marked improvement shown by the stricken President warrants strong hopes for his recovery. The charge that the bulletins have been deliberately colored with optimism is nonsense. The bulletins issued by the physicians are an accurate statement of the President's exact condition so far as it is humanely possible to judge. Vice-President Roosevelt and Senator Hanna, who were at the Milburn House during the afternoon, denounced the rumors of false bulletins as gross falsehoods. The Vice-President said that if anything the bulletins were inclined toward an understatement of the hopeful conditions rather than an overstatement. He declared that the Presidents' condition warrants the belief that he will recover. The improvement was very apparent yesterday. Dr. McBurney arrived from New York for consultation yesterday. There are now in attendance at the President's bedside Drs. Rixey Mann, Park, Myner, Wasdin and McBurney. The X-ray apparatus arrived from Orange yesterday, but there is no intention of using it while the President is in the present condition of weakness, which will not warrant the use of either. As he now rests he suffers but little pain and is wonderfully quiet and composed. He is lying on a cot brought from the hospital at the Exposition grounds. The physicians are always careful to add to any statement concerning the President's ultimate recovery that it will be at least five days from the time of the shooting before it will be possible to say positively whether the President will recover. All that can be said at this state is that there is not a single unfavorable symptom and not the slightest indication of blood poisoning or peritonitis, the two deadly enemies that are most feared. Nothing but injections of water have been given the President since the shooting because of the bullet holes through the front and rear walls of the stomach. The cool weather of yesterday added greatly in improving the Presidents' condition.

CHEAP LABOR FOR AFRICA.

London, Sept. 10.—The public condemnation of the proposition to import Chinese laborers into south Africa was so emphatic that Cecil Rhodes and his associates were obliged to abandon the idea. That person, however, masquerading as the Chartered Company hopes to get over its difficulties by introducing Arab laborers on a large scale. From inquiries made at the London offices of the company it appears that the first batch of Arabs now at the mines are working satisfactorily and with contentment.

Cecil Rhodes is largely responsible for the new arrangement and he has personally induced the present administration at Bulawayo to lend its official support. It is confidently hoped that within a few days the administration will pass a labor ordinance insuring proper treatment for the Arabs. Only on this understanding has the scheme received the practical support of his majesty's government.

The government has instructed its resident at Aden to give every facility to the Chartered Company's representative, who was sent there with the object of engaging Asiatic labor for Rhodesia. Over 250 Arabs sent from Aden have already been put to work at the mines, and the Chartered Company received a cable from its representative at Aden a few days ago saying that he hoped to ship 1,000 more laborers for Rhodesia by the end of next month. The reason for these importations is said to be the impossibility of obtaining sufficient native labor in SouthAfrica itself.

SCOBELL TOOK BOER LAAGER

Cape Town, Sept. 9.—Colonel Scobell's capture of Lotter's commando recently was the result of a cleverly planned ad well executed surprise. The Boers occupied two Kaffir villages situated in a valley surrounded by high ridges.

At daylight the Cape Mounted Rifles and the Ninth Lancers surrounded the Boer position and with the first well directed volleys stampeded the Boer horses. As their retreat was cut off the Boers took refuge in a big grain shed and hoisted a white flag. A trooper of the Ninth Lancers galloped forward to receive the surrender and was shot at a distance of twenty yards. Immediately afterwards Commandant Scobell himself came forward and surrendered personally. Nineteen Boers were killed, forty-six wounded, and one hundred captured.

STILL THEY COME

Pretoria, Sept. 9.—The reports received during the past three or four days show over 250 Boers to have been killed or captured. Colonel Williams surrounded and captured a patrol of 20 Boers in the Magaliesburg

Col Rimington had an engagement east of Kroonstad, in which he killed four Boers and captured twenty, in addition to many wagons and a quantity of stock.

Cols. Benson and Copley effected two surprises on the Boers in the vicinity of Middleburg, Cape Colony, in which the burghers lost thirty men Col Murray captured six more at Vryburg.

FEELING IN BRITAIN

London, Sept. 9.

"The feeling of the British financial world," said Lord Rothschild this morning to a representative of the Associated Press, "is that President McKinley will get well and everything come out all right. Hence the rise of American securities on the Stock Exchange above parity."

Asked if he thought the financial condition of the United States was strong enough to withstand the worst contingency, Lord Rothschild said:

"We are not dealing with hypotheses. We think President McKinley will live, and that is sufficient. Today's rise is due to a general belief in that and to no other concerted action on the part of the financial leaders."

Lord Rothschild expressed sorrow for the attempted assassination of President McKinley, and added that everybody he knew felt the same way.

FEARS OF BLOOD POISONING

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 9

11.30 a.m.—The fear of the President's physicians is that septic poisoning will set in and it is for the first symptoms of blood poisoning that they are now watching. The bullet lodged in the muscles of the back and the physicians have decided that for the present it is of secondary importance. The bullet took a downward course but neither the intestines nor the kidneys were the intestines nor the kidneys were injured. Of this the physicians are confident. If inflammation should appear in the neighborhood of the place where the bullet is believed to have lodged the Roentgen rays will be used to locate the bullet, and the doctors do not think there would be difficulty in extracting it.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * * * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for not securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world. The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow. his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,8?? miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as standard authority with the Southern Railway.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Blacksmith's Backache

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets Cure This Serious Trouble.

There is hardly a blacksmith in Canada who does not know what backache means—the stabbing pain, the sore, lame, stiff back that makes work misery.

Mr. Thos. Leonard, the well known blacksmith of Port Hope, was troubled as thousands are, and gladly tells of his cure in the following words:—"My life work as a blacksmith has been a hard one, and my back and kidneys bothered me for a long time. I have tried many medicines without relief, until I got a box of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets from R. Deyell, the druggist. Since then I have had comfort and am able to work with ease. I am sure those who use your medicine for backache, kidney, bladder or liver troubles, will never regret it. They are so easy to take, and yet work so well."

FINANCIAL DISTRICT MEETING

Of the Peterborough District of the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference.

The annual financial meeting of the Peterborough district of the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference was held yesterday afternoon in George street church. This is a meeting attended by the ministers of the district and one lay delegate from each circuit. There were present:—Rev. C. L. Thompson, Ashburnham; Rev. E. O. Crossley, Charlotte street; Mr. Batten, Charlotte street; Rev. H. V. Mounteer, Cavan; Rev. A. R. Delve, Selwyn; Rev. H. McQuade, Warsaw; Rev. L. Wite, Cavan South; Rev. Dr. Marvin, Pontypool; Rev. J. Kilgour, Peterborough; and Messrs. Thos. Morrow, town; M. W. Matchett, Ashburnham; John Lewis, Manvers; W. H. Clarke, Cavan; John Barnacutt, Pontypool; J. A. McCamus, Lakefield, secretary; Rev. J. P. Wilson, George street church, chairman.

The business of the meeting is to apportion to the several circuits the amounts placed at its disposal by the annual Conference. To examine into the circumstances and probable income of the Domestic, Indian and Foreign or other missions within the jurisdiction of the district, and recommend the amount which, in their opinion, should be appropriated towards the support of such missions. To arrange the claims of the children of ministers in the district, and to receive from the chairman the amount to be raised by such Circuit and Mission for the Superannuation Fund. To make arrangements for missionary and educational meetings.

NATURAL GAS AND OIL.

The Board of Trade Should Make a Start at Once

The Board of Trade, if there is such an institution, should endeavor to have our natural gas and petroleum deposits exploited. That both gas and oil exist here, we have every reason to believe. Peterborough is on the proper geological foundation, and experts have told us that there is abundance of gas or oil, or both, to be had for the boring.

The Board of Trade should investigate and have an expert look over the ground and report. His report, if favorable, as it is almost sure to be, would induce private capital to take the matter up and sink wells.

The Times would like to see the matter pushed ahead on the lines suggested the board of Trade. With the best and cheapest water and electric power in the world, and natural gas for heating and light, at a normal cost, coal oil wells employing thousands, Peterborough indeed would seen become one of the first cities in Canada.

Golf.

—The championship tournament of the local players has been begun, with varying results so far. Young Mr. McGill, a junior member of the Club, beat Mr. J. W. Garvin.

COFFEE DISEASES.

Minister and Young Lady Affected.

Ministers sometimes find they suffer from the effects of bad habits as well as ordinary people. Rev. Mr.— —of Athens, N. Y., has become greatly emaciated from coffee drinking, which produced stomach trouble and all of the effects of overwork or poor nourishment.

He quit the coffee and began drinking Postum Cereal Food Coffee.

His health began to improve and he now weighs 151 pounds, an increase of 15 pounds over his former weight. This improvement in health and strength is shown to be due to the use of Postum Food Coffee, by the fact that when he stops drinking Postum—as he has done for an experiment—he begins to lose flesh and get back into his old condition.

A young lady who writes about the case says that she was formerly suffering greatly from "those twin diseases," dyspepsia and nervousness. "I knew that both of the diseases had their origin in the use of coffee, and while I was fully aware of its injurious effects upon my system I was not willing to give it up, for I did not know of anything to take its place.

Tea, I knew, was also injurious, and as for cocoa, it lacked the 'snap and go' which can alone satisfy a coffee drinker's taste. About two years ago I purchased my first box of Postum Food Coffee and quit the use of coffee. I made Postum according to directions, and found I had a drink not only equal to coffee, but far superior to it in many ways. Since that time I have used it constantly and find my general health very much improved, and the 'twin diseases' gone. I also send you the names of Rev. and Mrs.— —of Athens, N. Y., who have been greatly helped by the use of Postum Food Coffee in the place of ordinary coffee."

MURDERED PRESIDENTS

was executed at Washington on June 30 following. As the last juror signified his assent to the death verdict Guiteau shrieked out: "My blood will be on the heads of that jury! Don't you forget it! God will avenge this outrage!" But the autopsy revealed no disease of the brain. Guiteau's skeleton is now in the Army Medical Museum.

RULERS KILLED IN OTHER COUNTRIES

Our sister republic of France has also been called upon to mourn for an assassinated President. Sadi-Carnot was stabbed to death by Cesario Santo on June 24, 1894. The great French statesman and President was visiting the Lyons Exposition, and was going from the Palais de Commerce, where a banquet had been held in his honor, to the Grand Theatre, when Santo jumped on the footstep of Carnot's carriage and stabbed him in the liver.

Spain's Prime Minister, Senor Canovas del Castillo, also met his fate at the hand of an Italian anarchist. While at the baths, at Santa Equeda, Spain, on August 8, 1897, he was shot by Rinaldi. The Premier fell dying at the feet of his horrified wife.

King Humbert of Italy has been the latest victim of the Old World slayers of crowned heads. He fell a victim to the bullet of Gaetano Bresci, on July 29, 1900. The illustrious monarch was shot through the heart while entering his carriage near Monza, Italy, and he died within a few minutes. Anarchy was at the bottom of this crime, as of almost every European assassination.

Perhaps the most brutal of all the assassinations of recent times was the murder of Elizabeth, the Empress of Austria, by Luigi Luccheni, on September 10, 1898. For this crime Luccheni was sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Emperor Alexander II, of Russia, was killed by the Nihilists on March 13, 1881. The imperial carriage was returning from a review of the Marine Corps, when a bomb was thrown that wounded some of his escort. The Emperor descended from his carriage and was mortally shattered by a second exploding bomb. His assassination thus occurred only a few weeks before that of Garfield.

Nasr-el-Din, Shah of Persia, was assassinated May 1, 1896; General Borda, President of Uruguay, August, 26, 1897, and General Barrios, of Guatemala, February 9, 1898.

The Woman's Club.

Editor Morning Times.

In yesterday's issue of The Times, your graphic description of the Woman's Club, reminds one of Dickens—in "Old Curiosity Shop." The lady at the Club, very justly set forth the harshness of the male sex towards the weaker vessel, ever since the days of good-for-nothing Adam. Dickens touches on the same subject in his own inimitable way. Quilps and his wife lived on Tower Hill. Now Quilps was a very bad husband; and his chief amusement was to pinch his wife, so that she was black and blue all over, and while Mrs. Quilps was pining on Tower Hill, some half dozen ladies of the neighborhood visited her during Quilp's absence. Then follow Dicken's description of the social visit.

"Now the ladies being together under these circumstances, it was extremely natural that the discourse should turn upon the propensity of mankind to tyrannise over the weaker sex, and the duty that devolved upon the weaker sex to resist that tyranny and assert their rights and dignity.

It was natural for four reasons: firstly, because Mrs. Quilp being a young woman, and notoriously under the dominion of her husband ought to be excited to rebel; secondly, because Mrs. Quilp's parent was known to be laudably shrewish in her disposition and inclined to resist male authority; thirdly, because each visitor wished to show for herself how superior she was in this respect to the generality of her sex; and fourthly, because the company being accustomed to scandalise each other in pairs, were deprived of their usual subject of conversation now that they were all assembled in close friendship, and had consequently no better employment than to attack the common enemy."

The Leading Paper

Rev. Mr. Bastow, the popular pastor of the Murray Street Baptist Church, complimented The Times on its progressive methods. The news of the shooting of President McKinley was first published in The Times, and our report of the tragedy was equal to what appeared in the Toronto papers. We always make it a point to keep our readers posted, and there is no news of interest that does not first appear in these columns.

Interment To-day.

The funeral of the late John Hagerman, who was drowned at Midland, Sunday, will take place with Oddfellows' honours at Port Hope today. It appears, from particulars to hand, that the deceased was out canoeing, and upset. The man who was with him succeeded in reaching shore, but Mr. Hagerman sank. The late Mr. Hagerman was one of the most prominent engineers on the Midland Division of the G.T.R. Some years ago he was driver on the local between Toronto and Peterborough. A number of Oddfellows from town will attend the funeral in Port Hope tomorrow.
